BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1899. NO. 11.

IT is said that the President will be in no hurry about hearing from the Senate on the peace treaty.

THE country editors who adjourned for the holidays have gone on duty again. Probably many of their readers appreciated the rest they were thus afforded.

ONE day last week a delegation of colored men called on the President and presented a memorial against the race riots and the lynching of colored men in the South.

MR. BRYAN is allowing himself to be interviewed too often. There is no cause so just but what the recognized leader therein can injure himself by talking too much in regard thereto.

SENATOR FRYE says the treaty "indicates that this government is not committed in any way whatever with respect to the disposition and government of the Philippine Islands."

LEPROSY has appeared in Ohio. In one family near Junction City, that State, are two children that are lepers. That disease will be more common in this country when the Philippines are annexed.

THE supervisors of tax are in session at the court house this week, and if your property has been assessed too high or too low, now is the time to appear before the board and have the correction made.

THE reports that have been coming from Havana for several weeks forbode considerable trouble there for some time to come, unless the Cubans become more conciliatory in the absence of the Spanish soldiers.

OUT in Minneapolis is an optician who grafts rabbits' eyes on to the sightless optics of a human and restores the person's sight. He claims to have revived the vision of an eye that had been blind for fifteen years.

THE Senatorial contest in Indiana is growing quite interesting, each candidate being very sanguine of success. The entries are comparatively new men, but they seem to be well posted as how to manipulate a campaign.

CINCINNATI burglars do not spend any time in cracking safes. When they want the contents of a safe in a business house, they secure a horse and wagon and go at night and haul the safe to a place where they can take their time in exploring it.

THOUSANDS of acres of cotton in the South have not been picked this season, because the price of the product is too low to justify the outlay necessary to save the crop. In many instances the producer has heretofore depended on his cotton to furnish his living.

THOMAS JEFFERSON is extensively quoted by both the expansionists and the anti-expansionists. If he were alive and would take the time to read all the quotations alleged to be taken from him he would be puzzled to know his own position on the question.

ONE subject to be considered by the National Council of Women to be held in Washington next month, is the existing divorce laws. They will try to have some legislation on the subject, hoping thereby to have removed the many faults existing in the present laws in the several States.

GEN. MERRITT says the Filipinos are not capable of governing the islands, but believes they will be in time to come. The General is evidently of the opinion that a large standing army will prove a good educator, but it will be an expensive teacher for which this country will have to furnish the salary.

WHILE Cuba belonged to Spain there was but one Jew business house in Havana, and it had to combine with other persons and interests in order to succeed, the Spaniards and Cubans absolutely refusing to trade with it. But since American rule in that island was assured, the Jews have been flocking to Havana, and their places of business in that city will be numerous from now on.

THE law against shooting quails went into effect again last Saturday. A great many of these birds were killed by the hunters, this winter, but if the law is respected from now on and excessively cold weather does not destroy them, the crop will be very large again next fall and fine sport will follow as a matter of course. Put up your gun, Johnnie.

FRANKLIN COUNTY was the first in the State to select a Democratic candidate for the Legislature and the majority the Hon. South Trimble received over his opponent was a handsome endorsement of his legislative career in the last General Assembly. His platform was the old flag and a large appropriation for a new Capitol building at Frankfort.

WHO will be the first of the several Democrats who desired to represent Boone in the next legislature to speak out? There are at least half a dozen in this county who would not object to spending sixty days of the year 1900 in Frankfort as the representative of Boone, and on the early bird theory some of them may be expected to come to the front now shortly.

IN the death of Senator Justin S. Morrill, of Vermont, last week, the senior member of the United States Senate both in the point of age and the length of service was removed. He was a Senator continuously for thirty-one years, and entered the National Assembly forty-four years ago. He was what is styled a self-made man, and a close student of both foreign and domestic affairs.

THE Lima, Ohio, bank robbery is a mystery to all the safe builders in the country, but it is the opinion that the locks on the bank vault were manipulated by some person or persons who were familiar with the combinations. No track or trace of any violence was left on any of the locks, but all the doors were opened one morning when the janitor went in to clean up the bank for the day.

IT will devolve upon Congress to make the final disposition of the Philippine question. It will have the shaping of the government of these islands, which will be determined upon before the people have an opportunity to instruct their representatives through the medium of the ballot box. Congress, for some time, will be watched by the public much closer than it has been for many years.

THE Toronto, Canada, World, is very much alarmed for fear the United States will reach out and annex the Dominion. The World's fears are based on the speech made, recently, by Major General James H. Wilson in Macon, Georgia, in which he said he hoped he would soon see the day when our starry flag shall float everywhere in the frozen North to the sunny clime of Central America. The World says: "We are nearer absorption than ever we were. Do Canadians realize it?"

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY has been very successful, so far, in preventing a modification of the Civil Service rules, which has kept many Democrats in possession of offices much desired by Republicans. The expression of the last Republican national platform on Civil Service has held in check the President's desires to oust Democrats, but the demands for office are becoming so loud that he is beginning to grow uneasy for fear of results if something is not done to pacify those with whom Civil Service interferes.

O. S. WATTS, of Bullittsville, was among the first to go upon record as an anti-expansionist, and it was an adherence to his interpretation of Democratic tenets, that caused him to make his record in regard to the question when it was yet young. It was at the County Democratic Convention last fall that he introduced a resolution opposing national expansion. It was adopted, and now he has the pleasure of seeing party leaders throughout the country declaring in favor of the principle enunciated by his resolution, while the indications are that the next National Democratic Convention will have a plank in its platform in complete accord with the Watts resolution.

ACCORDING to the reports from the towns throughout the State the holiday trade of 1898 was unprecedented. Nearly every local paper says that the crowds that thronged the stores of its town surpassed anything of the kind in the business history of the merchants, whose goods were sought for.

POSTMASTER BAKER, of Louisville, is one of the ins who is being annoyed by the Civil Service. While he is at the head of postal affairs in that city, his subordinates are not to be of his own selection, as appears from the manner in which he is surprised by the removal of members of his force to make room for persons unknown to him.

ACCORDING to some of the reports that come from Frankfort since Trimble's nomination for reelection to the legislature, represent his victory as meaning anti-everything done by the last legislature. Trimble supported the Bronston prison reform law, but if reports are true his vote for the measure was the result of a purely selfish motive.

THE Confederate Veteran Camp in New York adopted a resolution severely criticising Senator Butler, of North Carolina, for seeking to obtain pensions for ex-Confederate soldiers from the United States. The resolution says that any similar effort by any Southern member of Congress will be abhorrent to the camp and meet with unqualified condemnation.

MR. BARKER, Carrollton's tobacco dealer, tells the Democrat that he has three buyers out but they are only able to buy a crop here and there. He says that he simply can not afford to pay much for tobacco, owing to its damaged condition and the unsettled state of things among the manufacturers. He must wait until the farmers can see their way clear to name a right price.

IMMEDIATELY upon the ratification of the peace treaty by the Senate the President will recommend to Congress the enactment of legislation looking to the settlement of the claims of American citizens for damages sustained in Cuba, Porto Rico and other Spanish possessions which formed the seat of war. Claims to the amount of $26.000,000 on this score have already been lodged with the State Department. Such legislation will open up a fruitful field for fraudulent claims, and the already long list which Uncle Sam is paying will be increased immensely.

W. J. Bryan has the utterances of all the party leaders of the present and the past down pat, and in the matter of expansion he very often throws a club that some eminent Republican has made use of in opposition to that policy. Only a few days ago he made the teeth of the expansionists chatter when he quoted James G. Blaine's and the President's declarations in opposition to the policy, and when he refered to a message of President McKinley in which he declared "forcible annexation is criminal aggression," the President was somewhat astonished himself. Bryan is one of these fellows who carries a full supply of amunition.

DR. BUTLER, colored, of Atlanta, Georgia, calls upon the colored people to appeal to the Powers to interfere in this country in the interest of the negroes. He has published a card in which he says:

"Let us lay the case of our 12,000,000 wronged people before England, Germany, Spain, Russia, France, Mexico, Turkey and other Powers and urge them to use their good offices in the interest of humanity in the United States, and I firmly believe something will be done to check this mob rule, injustice and inhumanity practiced upon the colored people only in the United States of America."

If Dr. Butler will read a recent article from the pen of a Mr. Washington, also colored, he will find outlined therein a remedy for the troubles of which he complains, but as Washington's plans are such as would not hasten Butler's advent to the office of chief magistrate of Georgia he would not accept them as the proper thing.

VALUABLE FOOD.

For Cattle Successfully Made From Cornstalks.

The new corn products, upon which investigations have been conducted at the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station to determine its value as a stock food, has been given much consideration by the farming community of the State; in fact, many States have taken up the subject and are conducting experiments to ascertain its relative feeding value. In the process of the extraction of the pith, the blades and husk are first removed and the stalks are cut up in small pieces. After the extraction of the pith from the stalk the balance is ground up into meal, which in general appearance resembles coarse bran. This ground material is termed the "new corn product." The new corn product contains 11 pounds per 100 more digestible matter and two pounds per 100 more digestible protein than the whole fodder shredded. During the past few years much has been done in the way of testing methods for preparing corn fodder for feeding, with most of the results in favor of some method of shredding the stalk. Shredding possesses many points which makes it superior to the ordinary old way of cutting fodder, the principal one of which is that the shredded fodder is almost wholly eaten by the animals.

It is found that the new corn product contains within one pound as much total digestible matter as wheat brand, but less than one-third as much digestible protein, consequently the nutrive ratio is wider. It was further observed that animals fed with a fattening ration with the new corn product base made more gain in live weight and upon less feed than with a fattening ration of the same grain and corn blades. The keeping qualities of the new corn product are as good as linseed meal, cottonseed meal or wheat bran, and rations made up with this material can be fed with less labor and less waste of feed than when hay and fodder are fed separately, as ordinarily practiced.—Baltimore Sun.

DURING the past year there has been a very large per cent of increase in male births over female in this country. Anthropological, students say this increase is the result of the martial spirit that has pervaded the country, and that the increase will be maintained for at least a year after the close of the war.

DEWEY wants a first-class statesman sent to Manila to ascertain the wishes of the Philippinos. The Admiral has had experience enough with those people to convince him that none but an expert statesman will be able to arrive at their desires in the matter of government. There are several unemployed statesmen in the country who would like to be given the job suggested by Dewey.

THE administration is not so cock-sure as it was that its bill for the increase and reorganization of the regular army, which, if it becomes a law, will increase our military expenditures, including pensions, to an amount largely exceeding that paid by any European government to maintain a great army on a war footing, and which is masquerading in the House as the Hull bill, can be put through the Senate. Consequently it is become more than a suspicion that the carrying out of the recent decision to muster out 50,000 of the volunteers is to be postponed and manipulated so as to get votes in the Senate for the army bill; and no large number of volunteers are likely to be mustered out until Senatorial pledges enough have been secured to make the passage of the bill certain, and it may be impossible to obtain those pledges, as strong endorsement of the Democratic opposition to the bill is coming from every direction. Of course, this sort of thing is hard on the volunteers, but the administration isn't worrying about that.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, W. J. Davidson, gives the following educational statistics for Kentucky: Number of pupils enrolled 400,126, number of teachers 10,209; number of High Schools 56, number of private schools 84; total school expenditures $2,919,045.

CHURCH NEWS.

Eld. D. G. Combs closed a meeting at Antioch church, Estill county, with 95 additions.

Elder J. W. B. Smith, of Winchester, has received a call to take charge of the First Christian Church of Evansville, Ind.

The Lancaster Baptist church has called the Rev. J. C. Massey, of Orlando, Fla., to become the pastor for the coming year.

Rev. J. M. Roddy, pastor of the Midway Baptist church, has accepted a call to the First Baptist church at Eureka Springs, Ark.

The standing committee of the diocese of Nebraska has decided to refuse its canonical consent to the consecration of Dr. Morrison as bishop of Iowa.

The Baptist church at Danville has unanimously called Rev. Jno. A. Wray, of Milledgeville, Ga., to succeed Rev. J. W. Lynch, resigned. It is belived he will accept.

The session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held in 1900 in the Auditorium, Chicago, that city guaranteeing $50,000 to meet the expenses of the session.

The Presbyterian church at Hodgenville, has called the Rev. S. Williams to preach for that church during this year, and the Christian church has called Elder Payne to take charge of it.

There is a Bible in the Royal Library in Stockholm twenty by thirty-five inches in size. The pages are made of the skins of 160 asses. The covers are made of oak plank four inches thick. It is said to be worth a fortune.

Outside the walls, and lying between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives, is the Valley of Jehoshaphat. In going through it you pass, by narrow paths, between irregular rows upon rows of flat, rude stones bearing Hebrew inscriptions. These are the tombstones of the Jews, who wander thither in the evening of their days from all parts of the world to lie in death close to their city's wall. It is the most solemn, the most pathetic of sights.

"I ran across a new religious clan while on a recent trip through Eastern Kentucky," said a well-known traveling man. "I refer to the sect known as the 'Come-outers,' and I think it is the oddest band of worshipers I ever came in contact with.

"There are but five persons in the locality I visited who believe in this peculiar idea of Christianity, but they say three proselyte seekers will go to work in this State next week and hope to be much more successful than the Mormons have been.

"The 'Come-outers' profess to believe that the Saviour of man will return to earth in 1900. He will also select 144,000 people to be transferred to heaven, none of whom will suffer the pangs of death. Those selections will not be made from the churches, nor, in fact, from any organization, and so they are withdrawing from all earthly affiliations in order to be prepared for the coming of the Lord.

"This is why they style themselves the 'Come-outers.' They also have a theory that hades is 6,000 acres across, and located somewhere in the bowels of the earth. The other place, meanwhile, as they believe, hangs in midheaven, where the sun shines seven times brighter than it does on earth, while the moon is equally resplendent.

"Strange to say, the 'Come-outers' claim no scriptural or other divine authority for their belief, but hold that it is a matter wholly of faith."—Louisville Post.

THE grand jury in Chicago is making it warm for the boodle aldermen, and the future looks dark for several of the city's law-makers. Corruption in high places in the Windy City's lawmaking department came near precipitating a riot. A few days ago it looked like the leading Chicago citizens had turned anarchists, and the necks of the boodle officials were in great danger of having to submit to the stretching process.

Chas. D. Jacobs, of Louisville, carried $125,000 insurance on his life.

[Courier-Journal.]

A shrewd chap in Chicago is working a very clever blackmailing scheme on unsuspecting country postmasters. Ten days ago the postmaster at Anchorage received a letter from Chicago to this effect: "I have positive evidence that a postal order was mailed to me from your office in 1896. It was for seventy-five cents. I have evidence that you opened the letter, abstracted the order and put a two-cent stamp in its place. If you will send me $50 I will drop the matter. If I don't hear from you in a few days I will put the postal authorities in possession of the fact." This particular postmaster, who, by the way, is a very estimable young lady, was absent from the office on account of illness and the first letter remained unopened until Tuesday. Yesterday a second letter was received urging an immediate response to save prosecution. The two letters were forwarded last night to a post-office inspector at Chicago, and unless the would-be-black-mailer has changed his address he will doubtless be behind the bars at an early hour to day. The probabilities are that hundreds of these letters were mailed to small offices over the country in the hope of scaring rural postmasters into some kind of a compromise and thereby extracting small sums of money from them. Many schemes have been worked on unsuspecting ruralists, but this is an entirely new one and worthy of a Chicago genius.

W. J. BRYAN will be in Cincinnati on the 8th inst, to deliver a Jackson day address for one of the Democratic clubs in that city.

AS THE YEARS GO BY

Dr. Talmage Preaches a Sermon Suitable to New Year's.

He Proposes a New Way of Measuring Earthly Existence—From the Text "How Old Art Thou."

Appropriate to the exit of one year and the entrance of another year are the practical suggestions which Dr. Talmage puts in this discourse, which propose a different mode of measuring time from that ordinarily employed; text, Genesis 47:8: "How old art thou?"

The Egyptian capital was the focus of the world's wealth. Its ships and barges there had been brought to it from India frankincense and cinnamon and ivory and diamonds; from the north marble and iron; from Syria, purple and silk; from Greece, some of the finest horses of the world and some of the most brilliant chariots, and from all the earth that which could best please the eye and charm the ear and gratify the taste. There were temples aflame with red saudstone, entered by the gateways that were guarded by pillars bewildering with hieroglyphics and wound with brazen serpents and adorned with winged creatures—their eyes and beaks and pinions glittering with precious stones. There were marble columns blooming into white flower beds. There were stone pillars, at the top bursting into the shape of the lotus when in full bloom.

Along the avenues, lined with sphinx and fane and obelisk there were princes who came in gorgeously upholstered palanquins, carried by servants in scarlet or elsewhere drawn by vehicles, the snow white horses, golden bitted and six abreast, dashing at full run. On the floors of mosaic the glories of Pharaoh were spelled out in letters of porphyry and beryl and flame. There were ornaments twisted from the wood of tamarisk, embossed with silver breaking into foam. There were footstools made out of a single precious stone. There were beds fashioned out of a crouched lion in bronze. There were chairs spotted with the sleek hides of leopards. There were sofas footed with the claws of wild beasts and armed with the beaks of birds. As you stand on the level beach of the sea on a summer day and look either way, and there are miles of breakers, white with the ocean foam, dashing shoreward, so it seemed as if the sea of the world's pomp and wealth in the Egyptian capital for miles and miles flung itself up into white breakers of marble temple, mausoleum and obelisk.

It was to this capital and the palace of Pharaoh that Jacob, the plain shepherd, came to meet his son Joseph, who had become prime minister in the royal apartment. Pharaoh and Jacob met, dignity and rusticity, the gracefulness of the court and the plain manners of the field. The king, wanting to make the old countryman at ease and seeing how white his beard is and how feeble his step, looks familiarly into his face and says to the aged man: "How old art thou?"

Last night the gate of eternity opened to let in, amid the great throng of departed centuries, the soul of the dying year. Under the twelfth stroke of the brazen hammer of the city clock the patriarch fell dead, and the stars of the night were the funeral torches. It is most fortunate that on this road of life there are so many milestones, on which we can read just how fast we are going toward the journey's end. I feel that it is not an inappropriate question that I ask to-day when I look into your faces and say, as Pharaoh did to Jacob, the patriarch: "How old art thou?"

People who are truthful on every other subject lie about their ages, so that I do not solicit from you any literal response to the question I have asked. I would put no one under temptation; but I simply want this morning to see by what rod it is we are measuring our earthly existence. There is a right way and a wrong way of measuring our earthly existence. There is a right way and a wrong way of measuring a door, or a wall, or an arch, or a tower, and so there is a right way and a wrong way of measuring our earthly existence. It is with reference to the higher meaning that I confront you this morning with the stupendous question of the text, and ask: "How old art thou?"

Again, I remark that there are many who estimate their life on earth by their sorrows and misfortunes. Through a great many of your lives the plowshare hath gone very deep, turning up a terrible furrow. You have been betrayed and misrepresented and set upon and slapped of impertinence and pounded of misfortune. The brightest life must have its shadows and the smoothest path its thorns. On the happiest brood the hawk pounces. No escape from trouble of some kind. While glorious John Milton was losing his eyesight he heard that Salmasius was glad of it. While Sheridan's comedy was being enacted in Drury Lane theater, London, his enemy was growling at it in the stage box. While Bishop Cooper was surrounded by the favor of learned men, his wife took his lexicon manuscript, the result of a long life of anxiety and toil, and threw it into the fire. Misfortune, trial, vexation for almost everyone. Pope, applaudrd of all the world, has a stoop in the shoulder that annoys him so much that he has a tunnel dug so that he may go unobserved from garden to grotto and from grotto to garden. Cano, the famous Spanish artist, is disgusted with the crucifix that the priest holds before him because it is such a poor specimen of sculpture. And so, sometimes through taste and sometimes through learned meanor and sometimes through physical distresses—aye, in 10,000 ways—troubles come to harass and annoy.

And yet it is unfair to measure a man's life by his misfortunes, because where there is one stalk of nightshade there are 50 marigolds and harebells; where there is one cloud thunder charged there are hundreds that stray across the heavens, the glory of land and sky salens in their bosom. Because death came and took your child away, did you immediately forget all the five years, or the ten years, or the 15 years, in which she came every night for a kiss, all the tones of your heart pealing forth at the sound of her voice or the soft touch of her hand? Because in some financial Eurocly don your fortune went into the breakers, did you forget all those years in which the luxuries and extravagances of life showered on your path? Alas, that is an unwise man, an ungrateful man, an unfair man, an unphilosophic man, and, most of all, an un-Christian man, who measures his life on earth by groans and tears and dyspeptic fit and abuse and scorn and terror and neuralgic thrust.

Again, I remark that there are many people who estimate their life on earth by the amount of money they have accumulated. They say: "The year 1866, or 1870, or 1898, was wasted." Why? "Made no money." Now it is all cant and insincerity to talk against money, as though it had no value. It may represent refinement and education and 10,000 blessed surroundings. It is the spreading of the table that feeds the children's hunger. It is the lighting of the furnace that keeps you warm. It is the making of the bed on which you rest from care and anxiety. It is the carrying of you out at last to decent sepulcher and the putting up of the slab on which is chiseled the story of your Christian hope. It is simply hypocrisy, this tirade in pulpit and lecture hall against money.

But while all this is so, he who uses money or thinks of money as anything but a means to an end will find out his mistake when the glittering treasures slip out of his nerveless grasp and he goes out of this world without a shilling of money or a certificate of stock. He might better have been the Christian porter that opened his gate, or the begrimed workman who last night heaved the coal into his cellar. Bonds and mortgages and leases have their use, but they make a poor yardstick with which to measure life. "They that boast themselves in their wealth and trust in the multitude of their riches, none of them can, by any means, redeem his brother or give to God a ransom for him that he should not see corruption."

But I remark there are many—I wish there were more—who estimate their life by the moral and spiritual development.

I remark again, there are many—and I wish there were more—who are estimating life by the good they can do.

John Bradford said he counted that day nothing at all in which he had not, by pen or tongue, done some good. If a man begin right, I cannot tell how many tears he may wipe away, how many burdens he may lift, how many orphans he may comfort, how many outcasts he may reclaim. There have been men who have given their whole life in the right direction, concentrating all their wit and ingenuity and mental acumen and physical force and enthusiasm for Christ. They climbed the mountain and delved into the mine and crossed the sea and dropped at last into martyrs' graves waiting for the resurrection of the just. They measured their lives by the chains they broke off, by the garments they put upon nakedness, by the miles they traveled to alleviate every kind of sufferings. They felt in the thrill of every nerve, in the motion of every muscle, in every throb of their heart, in every respiration of their lungs the magnificent truth, "No man liveth unto himself." They went through cold and through heat, foot blistered, cheek smitten, back scourged, tempest lashed, to do their whole duty. That is the way they measured life—by the amount of good they could do.

Do you want to know how old Luther was; how old Richard Baxter was; how old Philip Doddridge was? Why, you cannot calculate the length of their lives by any human arithmetic! Add to their lives 10,000 times 10,000 years and you have not expressed it—what they have lived or will live. Oh, what a standard that is to measure a man's life by! There are those in this house who think they have only lived 30 years. They will have lived 1,000—they have lived 1,000. There are those who think they are 80 years of age. They have not even entered upon their infancy, for one must become a babe in Christ to begin at all.

Now, I do not know what your advantages or disadvantages are; I do not know what your tact or talent is; I do not know what may be the fascination of your manners or the repulsiveness of them; but I know this—there is for you my hearer, a field to culture, a harvest to reap, a tear to wipe away, a soul to save. If you have worldly means, consecrate them to Christ. If you have eloquence, use it on the side that Paul and Wilberforce used theirs. If you have learning, put it all into the poor box of the world's suffering. But if you have none of these—neither wealth, nor eloquence, nor learning—you, at any rate, have a smile with which you can encourage the disheartened; a frown with which you may blast injustice; a voice with which you may call the wanderer back to God. "Oh," you say, "that is a very sanctimonious view of life!" It is not. It is the only bright view of life, and it is the only bright view of death. Contrast the death scene of a man who has measured life by the worldly standard with the death scene of a man who has measured life by the Christian standard. Quin, the actor, in his last moments, said: "I hope this tragic scene will soon be over, and I hope to keep my dignity to the last. Molesherbes said in his last moments to the confessor: "Hold your tongue! Your miserable style puts me out of conceit with Heaven." Lord Chesterfield in his last moments, when he ought to have been praying for his soul, bothered himself about the proprieties of the sickroom and said: "Give Dayboles a chair." Godfrey Kneller spent his last hours on earth in drawing a diagram of his own monument.

Compare the silly and horrible departure of such men with the seraphic glow on the face of Edward Payson, as he said in his last moment: "The breezes of Heaven fan me. I float in a sea of glory." Or with Paul, the apostle, who said in his last hour: "I am now ready to be offered up, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought the good fight, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will give me." Or compare it with the Christian illustrated that you witnessed in your own household. Oh, my friends, this world is a false god! It will consume you with the blaze in which it accepts your sacrifice, while the righteous shall be held in everlasting remembrance, and when the thrones have fallen and the monuments have crumbled and the world has perished they shall banquet with the conquerors of earth and the hierarchs of Heaven.

This is a good day in which to begin a new style of measurement. How old are you? You see the Christian way of measuring life and the worldly way of measuring it. I leave it to you to say which is the wisest and best way. The wheel of time has turned very swiftly, and it has hurled us on. The old year has gone. The new year has come. For what you and I have been launched upon it God only knows. Now let me ask you all, have you made any preparation for the future? You have made preparation for time, my dear brother; have you made any preparation for eternity? Do you wonder that when that man on the Hudson river, in indignation tore up the tract which was handed to him and just one word landed on his coat sleeve—the rest of the tract being pitched into the river—that one word aroused his soul? It was that one word, so long, so broad, so high, so deep—"eternity!" A dying woman in her last moments said: "Call it buck." They said: "What do you want?" "Time," she said; "call it back!" Oh, it cannot be called back! We might lose our fortunes and call them back, we might lose our health and perhaps recover it, we might lose our good name and get that back, but time gone is gone forever.

Some of you during the past year made preparation for eternity, and it makes no difference to you really, as to the matter of safety whether you go now or go some other year—whether this year or the next year. Both your feet on the rock the waves may dash around you. You can say: "God is our refuge and strength—a very present help." You are on the rock, and you may defy all earth and hell to overthrow you. I congratulate you. I give you great joy. It is a happy new year to you.

I can see no sorrow at all in the fact that our years are going. You hear some people say: "I wish I could go back again to boyhood." I would not want to go back again to boyhood. I am afraid I might make a worse life out of it than I have made. You could not afford to go back to boyhood if it were possible. You might do a great deal worse than you have done. The past is gone! Look out for the future! To all Christians it is a time of gladness. I am glad the years are going. You are coming on nearer home. Let your countenance light up with the thought. Nearer home!

Now, when one can sooner get to the center of things, is he not to be congratulated? Who wants to be always in the freshman class? We study God in this world by the Biblical photograph of Him; but we all know we can in five minutes of interview with a friend get a more accurate idea of Him than we can by studying Him 59 years through pictures or words. The little child that died at six months of age knows more of God than all Andover and all Princeton and all New Brunswick.

Does not our common sense teach us that it is better to be at the center than to be clear out on the rim of the wheel, holding nervously fast to the tire lest we be suddenly hurled into right and eternal felicity? Through all kinds of optical instruments trying to peer in through the cracks and the keyholes of Heaven—afraid that both doors of the celestial mansion will be swung wide open before our entranced vision—rushing about among the apothecary shops of this world, wondering if this is good for rheumatism, and that is good for neuralgia, and something else is good for a bad cough, lest we be suddenly ushered into a land of everlasting health where the inhabitant never says: "I am sick."

In 1835 the French resolved that at Ghent they would have a kind of musical demonstration that had never been heard of. It would be made up of the chimes of bells and the discharge of cannon. The experiment was a perfect success. What with the ringing of the bells and the report of the ordnance, the city trembled, and the hills shook with the triumphal march that was as strange as it was overwhelming. With a most glorious accompaniment will God's dear children go into their high residence when the trumpets shall sound and the last day has come. At the signal given, the bells of the towers, and of the lighthouses, and of the cities will strike their sweetness into a last chime that shall ring into the heavens and float off upon the sea, joined by the boom of bursting mine and magazine, augmented by all the cathedral towers of Heaven—the harmonies of earth and the symphonies of the celestial realm making up one great triumphal march, fit to celebrate the ascent of the redeemed to where they shall shine as the stars forever and ever.

NOT GOOD AT QUOTATIONS.

He Was Called Down for Springing Something He Didn't Know the Authority Of.

He came home in a bad temper.

"Jane," he gruffly asked, "have we such a thing as the constitution of the United States on the premises?"

"Why, yes, William," she cheerfully answered, "I'll get it for you."

She came back presently with a thin volumne and handed it to him.

He took it up, glanced at it, and flung it to the floor.

"There you go, too," he snarled. "That's the declaration of independence! By Jove!" he bitterly added, "here I came home to study up the constitution, and the wife of my bosom tries to palm off the declaration of independence on me!"

"What's gone wrong, William?" she asked.

"Why, this very morning," he angrily cried, "I was quoting at length from the constitution, as I supposed, when a fellow yelled out: 'That ain't th' constitution.' This took me aback, but I rallied and cried: 'I mean the declaration of independence.' 'Ain't that, neither,' he roared. 'What is it, then?' I howled. 'It's the Bible!' he shrieked. Say, Jane, have we got a Bible in the house?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

May Bring Leprosy to This Country.

It is pointed out that the United States soldiers in Hawaii may contract leprosy there, and bring it to this country when they return. While leprosy is much to be dreaded, there are a thousand times as many victims to stomach disorders and blood diseases, but there is a cure for them in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Other common ailments that the Bitters are a specific for are malaria, fever and ague. Sold at all drug stores.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is often ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Mrs. Hoffman Describes How She Wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for Advice, and Is Now Well.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before using your Vegetable Compound I was a great sufferer. I have been sick for months, was troubled with severe pain in both sides of abdomen, sore feeling in lower part of bowels, also suffered with dizziness, headache, and could not sleep. I wrote you a letter describing my case and asking your advice. You replied telling me just what to do. I followed your directions, and cannot praise your medicine enough for what it has done for me. Many thanks to you for your advice. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me, and I will recommend it to my friends.—Mrs. FLORENCE B. HOFFMAN, 512 Roland St., Canton, O.

The condition described by Mrs. Hoffman will appeal to many women, yet lots of sick women struggle on with their daily tasks disregarding the urgent warnings until overtaken by actual collapse.

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometimes past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women dring a single year.

Just a Cough

Not worth paying attention to, you say. Perhaps you have had it for weeks.

It's annoying because you have a constant desire to cough. It annoys you also because you remember that weak lungs is a family failing.

At first it is a slight cough. At last it is a hemorrhage. At first it is easy to cure. At last, extremely difficult.

quickly conquers your little hacking cough.

There is no doubt about the cure now. Doubt comes from neglect.

For over half a century Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been curing colds and coughs and preventing consumption. It cures Consumption also if taken in time.

Neighborhood News.

Hathaway.

Jan. 2nd.—A new year—a good time to quit all bad habits.

Miss Sallie Dolph was visiting in this vicinity, one day last week.

Mr. Elijah Ryle, of the Beech Grove neighborhood, is confined to his bed.

Will Sebree and wife were the guests of Ben Rue and family, last Thursday.

Mrs. Emily Presser dined several of her friends and relatives, last Thursday.

L. J. Riley lost a valuable horse, one day last week. It had the blind staggers.

Mr. Claud Ryle and wife spent the holidays with T. J. Stephens and wife, of Buffalo.

Mr. Raymond Smith and Miss Stella Rice were the guests of Jas. Rice and wife, of this place, last Tuesday.

B. H. Stephens and family spent last Thursday with Marcus Ryle and family, of the Beech Grove neighborhood.

G. L. Smith and wife and Mrs. Cynthia Mason, spent last Wednesday with the aged couple, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Mason.

Miss Percie Ryle, Louie Williamson, Edna Meatee, Minnie Sullivan and Miss Stella Rice, called on Miss Fannie Smith and spent quite a pleasant day last Tuesday.

Miss Ollie Rector had quite an accident happened to her. One night last week while going to a party her horse scared and threw her, causing her to break one of her arms.

Hal Presser and wife gave the young folks a party, last Thursday night. It was enjoyed by all present until a late hour, when they departed for their several homes, thanking Mr. and Mrs. Presser for their kind hospitality during the evening.

Rabbit Hash.

B. H. Ryle is some better.

Boru, on the 25th, to William Hodges and wife, a 9 pound girl.

B. W. Nelson, of Petersburg, spent christmas with his father.

Mrs. Ella Aylor, of Lawrenceburg, is visiting her father at this place.

The K. of P. conferred the Rank of Knight on Lewis Stephens Saturday night.

Jay Calvert has come back from Kansas city. Could not stand the climate he says.

Ben Harris gave the young folks an oyster supper Thursday night. All had a good time.

Kenneth Aylor gave the young folks a play party Wednesday night. All report a fine time.

Z. T. Kelly presented each of his daughters a nice sewing machine for a christmas present.

Miss Mamie Vaness, of Cincinnati, spent the holidays with her parents, N. E. Vaness and wife.

Miss Josie Walton and her cousin, Miss Nellie Rabin, of Plymouth, Ill., are visiting James R. Stephens and wife.

Fred Bodie, who moved from East Bend over the river, last spring, dropped dead while at work in a warehouse, christmas day.

We would like for some good man, who is a good Bryan Democrat, with a free silver voice, to make the race for Representative.

James A. Wilson, while going to his store Friday morning, slipped and fell on his face, and broke a rib, which has pained him considerbly.

Walton.

Master Herman W. Arnold, of Covington, is visiting his grand mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Arnold.

A. C. Johnson, of Metcalfe's Pharmacy, paid a visit to his mother at Dillsboro, Indiana, last week, and got back safe.

On Christmas eve a lady entered Edward Bros.' store to buy a saddle as a present for her husband. There was not one in the house. A. M., the junior member of the firm, realizing the situation, finally induced the lady to defer buying until in the evening, guaranteeing that he would have the best saddle in the city for the money she was willing to pay for it. He boarded the 11 o'clock car, and returned on the 5. A. M. brought the saddle which so pleased the lady that she bought another like it for her son. "Dolph" knew she would buy one in Crittenden, and he did not want any good customer to get in the way of buying at prices other than Walton.

Dr. Johston, the distinguished Cincinnati surgeon, performed a difficult opperation for Mrs. C. Y. Dyas, last Friday. She is getting along very nicely. Her sister, Mrs. Nannie Vest, of Dry Ridge, who is conceded to be the best nurse ever in this place, will remain with her for some time.

Twin brother and sister, Thomas and Lizzie Pendry, of Foster, Ohio, are visiting their schoolmate, Miss Lizzie Kipp. They were fast friends at the Normal School some years ago, and that friendship has been the more strongly cemented as time with noiseless wings wafts them along on the troubled river of life. The fair visitor is the fore-lady in a cartridge factory at Foster, and her brother is an operator on the Pennsylvania railroad.

Mr. N. M. Northcutt has for the past two weeks been employed in the great shoe house of D. Cohen in Covington. Last week his wife, who could no longer bear separation, accompauled him. Saturday evening they came home—Manie with a very pronounced case of the grippe, and his wife with equally as pronounced case of the blues, consequence of her husband's illness.

Eddie Mann has been knocked completely out of his job. This about the way it was: Mrs. James Metcalfe spent the Christmas holiday with her mother in Mildale. Her husband, his clerk A. C. Johnson and Eddie Mann, kept "bach" with Eddie as cook. All had different appetites, one could not eat anything that was palatable to the others, and there was danger of the household kerflummuxing, when Mrs. Metcalfe saw fit to come home, and resume domestic supremacy. Eddie gracefully retired. "Bones," (a soubriquet given Jas. Metcalfe, on account of the striking resemblance of his anatomical structure to that of a walking skeleton) will not dare to protest against the menu Mrs. M. provides—too good a husband for that.

"Oh! A man that is married has a house full of joys,
Like a small boy with a box of new toys."

Tomorrow night the town council will have an unusual feature: Mr. J. R. Craven, chairman of the "Board" will resign his position and also his membership. Mr. Craven sees no prospect of attaining distinction for himself or benefit to the town by remaining any longer a member of a body which he not inappropriately likens to a "bump on a log." And he has never yet deluded himself with the idea that there is any picturesque exultation in being the figure-head of any "bump on a log."

Utzinger.

Our popular correspondent in speaking of our little village failed to do it justice. It is one of the most picturesque as well as one of the most remarkable we have ever seen. Nature has planted it in a valley surrounded by a circular hill, divided by nature into five divisions. Five public roads diverge from the valley, leading to the several points of the compass. Five streams meet here and form themselves into a spirited brook that goes babbling over its pebbly bed to the Ohio, singing the praises of Utzinger. We have five dwellings occupied by five families, who follow five different vocations—blacksmith, machanic, merchant, agriculturist and toll-gatherer. Five different firms have conducted our mercantile business. The five families raise turkeys, chickens and geese. The fowls forage in perfect harmony upon the surrounding country in the day time and repair at night to the five roosting places. The most remarkable feature is all is the perfect harmony that exists between the five families. No disorder disturbs the even tenor of the social relations of our little village.

Dec. 30—Mr. J. T. Gaines is sick with lagrippe.

Richard Acra is seriously ill with heart trouble.

Mrs. Chester Davis, of Hebron, spent a portion of the holidays with her parents here.

W. L. Cropper and wife spent Thursday with Mr and Mrs. W. O. Kirtley, of North Bend.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Clore entertained a number of friends, Sunday, in their usual good style.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Cropper, of North Beud, were visiting friends and relatives here during the holidays.

Miss Beulah Gaines will return to her school in Georgetown on Monday, very much to the regret of her many friends and admirers.

A saw and grist mill will be located here in the spring by a party from Indiana. Already the preliminaries are being arranged.

There is said to be a case of "injected" chills on Ashbys Fork. A new form that will probably baffle the skill of our physicians.

We are informed that Edward Rice will start in a few days for some health giving spring's in Indiana. We hope that he may soon return, fully restored.

Mr. Enoch White, of Gallatin county, son-in-law of the late W. P. Holton will move to and operate the farm occupied by Mr. Holton at the time of his death, in the spring.

Several members of the family of Mr. J. A. Gaines have been sick. Mr. and Mrs. Gaines and Geo. Kreylich. We regret that the merry Christmas season found them in such affliction and hope they will very soon recover.

Mr. A. E. Chambers, Jr., will begin the study of dentistry with the coming year in one of the colleges of Cincinnati. This will make five dentists who have sprung up from this immediate neighborhood. There is always room at the top, however, and we hope our boys will get there.

Mr. Editor, I know I but speak the sentiments of your correspondents one and all, when I say that your words to us in last week's issue were pleasing, and will stimulate us to even greater efforts than ever, during the new year upon which we have just entered, which we hope has in store many good things for you and for us.

We will be excused for making no mention of the Ladies Aid Society's entertainment at the church, as we feel sure that the Bullittsville correspondent will do ample justice to the occasion. We could write a lengthy article on it and every word in praise, but prefer to read of it in words of silver, and will be disappointed if we do not.

Despite the inclement weather on Friday, a large party of friends and relatives responded to an invitation to dine with Mr. and Mrs. George Walton. The day was spent in feasting on seasonable table delicacies, in spirited conversation and the discussion of the foremost topics of the times. The day will be remembered by all present as one of rare enjoyment. Besides a general turnout of the immediate neighbors, Mrs. Dr. Grant and Mrs. T. B. Mathews, of Petersbug, graced the occasion with their presence and lent fully their share to its enjoyment.

Bullittsville.

Your Utzinger correspondent pays us a very high compliment in the following sentence in his last communication: "The Bullittsville correspondent takes the cake over all of us as a writer, but he gets a whole lot of it off our plate." It occurs to us that the Utzinger correspondent is rather assuming the position of host in this case. In taking up the work of correspondent from this place we established the boundary of Bullittsville by a circle inscribed with a radius of three miles, taking Mr. James T. Grant's home (the original site of Bullittsville) as a center. Utzinger being within this boundary is considered a part of Bullittsville, hence we are the host and your correspondent from Utzinger is our guest, and in each of the interesting and beautifully written communications he sends you, he is eating of our cake from our plate. Like the generous host that we have always tried to be, we extend a hearty welcome to Bro. Porter, and invite him to remain with us at his pleasure and eat heartily of our cake—we have enough to share bountifully with him.

In our last communication we promised to tell your readers how we enjoy the holidays in this highly favored quarter of the earth, but as the festivities are now in full blast and may last to the close of the week, we have concluded to defer the fulfillment of that promise till the next issue of your paper.

For fear that our communication next week may be to lengthy we have decided to divide the account of our social enjoyments during christmas week by illuminating and describing an entertainment given by the ladies of the Ladies Aid Society on the afternoon of the 28th of December.

Agreeable to an announcement we made in our last communication, the Hon. W. W. Masterson delivered his popular lecture, "A Tour Around the World, to a very attentive and appreciative audience in the Bullittsburg church. Mr. Masterson, though comparatively a young man, being only 35, has acquired more of the unwritten history of the World than many men who have reached double his age. His deportment on the rostrum is easy and dignified. His description of the many historic land marks that he visited are instructive and impressive. His portrayal of the character, life and habits of the many different species of humanity that he met in his travels brings you so completely in touch with them that you seem to understand at once their feelings, ideas and natural disposition. His perceptions and thoughts are expressed in beautiful language.

He begins his tour at New York, crosses the Atlantic to Liverpool, grows eloquent in his description of Chester and Stratford-on-Avon. His recital of the glory and majesty of London, the greatest city in the world; he then carries you across the eastern seas through the Suez Canal to Aden at the mouth of the Red Sea. After spending four years in that tropical city where it never rains and never gets cooler than 115 between sunrise and sunset, he starts on his return to his native home. On his return he visits India, China and Japan, with a graphic description of his observations on these historic land marks. Mr. Masterson has the honor of being the only Consul the Sixth Congressional District has ever produced, and received his appointment from the only Democrat in thirty-five years has grown large enough and broad enough to fill the chair of the Chief Executive of our nation. The lecture was a grand success and every one present left singing his praises and thanking him for the valuable information he imparted.

Richwood.

Uncle Sam Hudson is on the sick list.

Jesse Delahunty was in Union, Sunday evening.

Dr. Meuifee was visiting friends and relatives in Grant county, last week.

Mr. James Delahunty entertained a number of friends at dinner, Thursday.

Misses Fannie and Effie Cleek were visiting their cousin, Miss Annie Rice, of Covington, last week.

Henry, Virginia, Addie and Jack Conner, of Union, were visiting friends here during the holidays.

Mr. E. W. Robinson, proprietor of the Cedar Lawn herd of thoroughbred Poland China, Labelle, Lewis county, Mo., is visiting his brothers, Gaines and Frank Robinson, of this place. Mr. Robinson is lecturing in this place in the interest of the Farmers' Institute.

Mr. Jerry Carpenter got an electric belt sometime ago, known as an "anti-expansion" belt, as he thought it would reduce his large avordupoise. A few months after Jerry got his "magic belt" John Goodridge invested in an "expansion" belt, the interest to have the opposite effect, and he claims it worked wonders. "Dick" Lampton borrowed John's belt and after wearing it for one night, he claimed that he was restored to his youth. If this story needs an explanation call on Cees Buck.

But, alas! W. Hudson, aged 81 years, died at his residence near Richwood church, the 27th ult., and was buried in the family cemetery. Mr. Hudson was born and raised in Boone county and was the last of his father's family, Elisha Hudson, who came from Virginia with his wife and two brothers, John H. and James. He was a prosperous farmer and leaves a wife and five children—J. J., Elisha, Martha, Kate and Rebacca Hudson. He was a member of the M. E. Church for over forty years.

Florence

Miss Jennie Hogan is the guest of Miss Annie Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ryle, of Erlanger, spent Sunday with his parents.

Owen Bradford and wife spent Sunday with her sisters, the Misses Corbin.

Miss Maud Bratton, of Lockland, O., is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Jacob Rice.

Miss Genie Berkshire, of Petersburg, is the guest of her brother, J. B. Berkshire.

Stanley Clutterbuck and wife, of Burlington, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. J. H. Ryle.

Miss Marie Korn, of Richwood, is spending a few days here with her sister, Mrs. Robert Rouse.

Miss Ada C. Latham, of Oak Park, Ill., is spending the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Mary Latham.

John Oelsner, Jr., and wife have returned from a two weeks visit with relatives and friends in Canada.

Mrs. Mary Latham and daughters, Misses Nanuie, were visiting Mrs. Albert Couner, near Burlington, last week.

One of the most pleasant events of the season was a social given by Mrs. Clinger near Dixon Station to about 20 couples Saturday night. Games and music were indulged in until 12 o'clock, when a bountiful repast was served. Several of the guests were from Covington, Cincinnati and Indiana. About 2 o'clock they all departed, wishing their hostess a happy New Year.

Died—Monday evening, Dec. 26th at one o'clock, Mrs. Eliza Morgan, aged 81 years, at her home in Florence. She had been suffering with consumption for sometime and the end came Monday evening. Mrs. Morgan was a faithful member of the Christian church up to the time of her death. She leaves two sons—Samuel Morgan, of Greenfield, Ind., and James Morgan, of Cincinnati. The fueneral services took place at the residence at 2 o'clock Wednesday evening by Rev. G. N. Buffington, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Florence cemetery.

Bellevue.

Jany. 2—Willie Deck remains quite sick.

Mrs. Michael Clore is quite poorly.

Bro. T. L. Utz and family are yet poorly with colds.

Miss Eva Botts returned, last Monday, to her school at Georgetown.

Al Rogers and family were down Thursday and Friday visiting their parents.

Mrs. America Conner, of Cincinnati, was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Clore, last week.

Mrs. Laura Marshall and children were visiting her uncle and aunt, Reuben and Permelia Acra on Middle creek, last Sunday.

Bro. Utz wishes to thank the members of his church here for their indulgence in allowing him an unlimited vacation without a reduction of salary.

If Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Acra live until next Saturday they will celebrate the 52d anniversary of their wedding. We were visiting them last Sunday.

When your boots, shoes or harness need repairing, all you have to do is to stop at the toll-gate and call on Charlie. He will wait upon you with pleasure.

Albert Snyder left, Monday, to attend school in Petersburg, under the instruction of Rev. Leslie Early. It is a select school and some who have been attending the Aurora school will leave it to attend Mr. Early's school.

J. J. Huey returned home, Friday night, from a week's visit in Louisville. Johnnie has resigned as postmaster here and O. N. Graut has been recommended to fill his place. Otta will, no doubt, fill the position with a credit to himself.

Albert Clore, Miss Alice Wilson, Bob Piatt and W. B. Ryle, of Rabbit Hash, attended the dance at Hubert Brady's, last Wednesday night. Bobbie said they had no Christmas down at the Hash, and had to come up her to borrow Curistmas of the folks here.

Union.

James H. Fall spent several days in Union, last week.

T. A. Huey and son, Tom, of Covington, were in town, Wednesday.

Mrs. Anselm Bristow and Mrs. Moses Lane each had an arm broken, last week.

Mr. Gullion, of Carrollton, was the guest of Miss Mary Hedges during the holidays.

Messrs. Otis and Elbert Rouse entertained quite a number of friends Wednesday evening at their home. Music and games made the evening one long to be remembered by those present.

Miss Martha Lassing entertained the Essence Club of Beaver, and also the Young Ladie's Club of Union, Thursday night. Both came out in full force and vied with each other in having a good time. Delightful refreshments were served at 11 o'clock. Here's wishing we may all meet again soon.

The school house was packed last Friday, with visitors, who had come to hear the Christmas recitations. The children had been well trained and the program was a very interesting one. At the close Prof. Collins invited all to partake of a bountiful treat, consisting of all kinds of caudies. Great interest is manifested in the school and it is progressing nicely under the wise management of Prof. Collins.

From far and near came the people on Friday night to the entertainment given by the Missionary Band. Great credit is due Miss Iuez Quisenberry for the good work she is doing. Songs and recitations were rendered by these children with perfect ease. The solo sang by Miss Sallie Fane with a chorus of 30 voices was heartily applauded. At the close a collection was taken up for the benefit of a child in China.

The reception given by the Young Ladie's Club at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Rachal's, on Tuesday night, was a perfect success. Several guests from a distance present, among them Lug. Myers, Ryle, Jas. Cor. Tom Huey, of Covington; James Fall, of Alexandria, Ind.; Chas. Bradford, of Florence; Donnely, of Richwood; Cleek, of Beaver, and Gullion, of Carrollton. The prizes for conundrums were won by Miss Nannie Bristow and Marshall Hedges. The luncheon consisted of pickles, sandwiches, salad and confectionery. Miss May Norman wore an evening waist of buff organdie relieved with touches of white; Miss Marietta Riley, white crepe; Miss Lillian Corbin, pink silk, garniture of lace and ribbon; Miss Mary Hedges, white henrietta with tulle trimmings; Miss Nannie Burkett, amber satin with relief of jet and chiffon; Miss Riley, pink crepe with black ribbons; Miss Cleek, costume of green and gold; Miss Lottie Fall, pink silk, valiencienues and ribbon.

Gunpowder.

J. S. Surface and wife are on the sick list.

William Graves and wife, of Bullittsville, were visiting relatives in this neighborhood last Saturday and Sunday.

The carpenters took advantage of the nice weather last week, and succeeded in getting the roof on Perry Aylor's barn.

The holidays passed off very quietly, so much so that one would hardly know that it was Christmas without looking at the calendar.

Uncle Frederic Mering, of Clays Praire, Illinois, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Rachael Tanner. The meeting of the aged couple was one of great joy to each, as they had not met for about 40 years.

We are sorry to report the death of Miss Ida Dixon, of near Dixon station. It occurred Dec. 26th. She bore her long and severe suffering very patiently. Though she was called to her reward early in life, she had won the love and respect of all who knew her, and her gentle and kind disposition will be cherished by the host of friends she has left to mourn her departure. The funeral services were held at Hopeful church on Thursday, conducted by Revs. Lentz and Buffington. After the services the remains were interred in Hopeful cemetery, in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends.

J. H. Rogers, of Walton, came down last Saturday, bringing two large wagon loads of supplies for Judge Roberts. The Judge will start in with the new year with all departments replenished with the necessaries of life.

As Mr. Eddins was returning from Erlanger one evening last week with the mail, the horse attached to the conveyance caught one of its fore feet with the shoe on the hind foot, throwing the animal, and in its struggles to get up it broke the shafts badly. The horse's front quarter received an ugly gash.

A maiden from the city tripped lightly midst the trees and sniffed the pungent odor that floated on the breeze. "Oh, tell me, ancient farmer, with arms so brown and bare, what is the wonderous flower that scents the morning air?" Loud laughed the ancient farmer till tears rolled down his cheek, "Why, bless me, that's a polecat; I've smelled it for a week."

Last Friday, Mr. F. A. Hall, of this office received a copy of Freedom, a four column, eight page paper published at Manila, Island of Luzon. It was dated October 19, 1898. Dou C. W. Musser, editor, Frank T. Hines, managing editor. It carries the advertisement of several Americans who are doing business in Manila. Freedom is published twice a week—subscription price $8 per year.

Rabenstine, Harris & Conner write the RECORDER, "Boone county furnished the highest price cattle of the season. We shipped to Pittsburg and sold to Deuhohn Bros. a load of cattle last week, weighing less than 1,450 lbs. average, selling for $5 67½, the finest and highest price load of cattle leaving Kentucky last year. Eight head were raised by H. A. Hicks, and nine by Rice Bros."

Our rural friend, Ben Vaughn, was going home one night last week, thinking of the present, content to let the past take care of the past and the future provide for itself, when old lunar darted from behind a cloud, and Ben discoved he was in close proximity to a coffin box that was leanlug against the fence. Ben shied to the opposite side of the road without breaking any of his harness, and passed the gruesome object. He proceeded on his way but thereafter he had detected every object along his route before he was as near as 100 yards to it. The coffin box had been left on the side of the road after he came to town that afternoon.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. A. G. Winston, of Hebron, was in town Thursday.

J. J. Huey, of Bell[illegible], was visiting his relatives here Sunday.

Mrs. Hogan and her daughter, Miss Anna, are visiting in Missouri.

John Crisler, one of the RECORDER'S staunchest friends was in town Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kite, of Waterloo, were visiting Mr. R. S. Cowen, last week.

W. O. B. Rich, of Big Bone, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Clore Sunday night.

Mrs. Belle Brady spent a pleasant Christmas with Miss Julia Dinsmore, of Bellevue.

Mr. Work, President of the Tilnrind Association, made us a pleasant call, Monday.

Miss Artie Hughes entertained her cousin, Miss Bessie Hughes, of Nebraska, last week.

B. W. Adams and wife spent a few days, last week, with Dr. Sam Adams and family in Walton.

Miss Josie Bentler and her aunt, Miss Emma Bentler, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Bentler, last week.

Misses Sallie and Lizzie Rogers, of Walton, were visiting their sister, Mrs. Judge Roberts, a few days last week.

Mrs. J. M. Lasslug has scarlet fever. Master Warren Lasslug has about recovered from an attack of that disease.

Mrs. B. B. Allphin and son, Master Jimmie, spent the holidays with their relatives in the Mudlick neighborhood.

Wallace Tanner, of Limaburg, called Monday to see the Recorder. Wallace is pleased with his school—Wittenburg College.

Misses Sidney White, Mamie Porter and Alma Carpenter, each entertained several of their young friends at dinner, last week.

Jeff Eddins, the popular mail carrier, was so much indisposed a few days last week, that his son, Jessie, had to drive the buss for him.

Our young friend, Harry Roberts, has bought of R. S. Cowen, 17 acres of land out on the Bullittsville road, being a portion of the land owned by the late John H. Smith. It is suggested that it will not be many moons before Harry will begin the construction of a residence on his purchase.

MATHEWS-HENKE WEDDING.

A Great Society Event.

The most elaborate wedding that has taken place in this community occurred Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock, when Miss Carrie, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henke, was united in marriage to Mr. Edward S. Mathews, of Madison, Indiana. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. Watkins at Pt. Pleasant church, which was crowded to overflowing, although the large gathering was only admitted by cards which accompanied each invitation. The church was decorated with holly and evergreen. The bride was attired in a white silk gown, wore a crescent of roses in her hair and carried a buuch of white roses. Miss Maggie Yonell, organist of the church, rendered Voss's Wedding March as the bridal party entered the church and Maddlesohn's March as the party departed after the ceremony. Miss Lula Souther was maid of honor and Mr. Lloyd McGlasson acted as best man. The ushers for the occasion were Messrs. Albert Riggs and Howard Tanner.

Mr. Mathews, who is from one of Madison's best families, has been employed as principal of one the district schools near Hebron for a number of years. He is highly esteemed by all who know him. The bride is from one of the most represeutative families in Boone county. She is beautiful and accomplished, a leader in society, and an ardent worker in the Christian church; she belug a charter member of Pt. Pleasant Y. P. S. C. E.

After the ceremony there was a grand reception given at the hospitable home of the bride's parents. The dining room was very fittingly decorated with carnations, roses, chrysanthmums and smilax. Among the luuumerable presents received were some very costly ones.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Riggs, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Vickers, Rev. G. W. Watkins; Misses L. Souther, F. and M. Youell and Eva Riggs; Mr. Keene Souther of Lexington; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rodgers, of Cincinnati; Miss K. White, of Birmingham, Ala.; Messrs. A. Riggs, H. Tanner, P. J. Allen, L. McGlasson, A. England and S. Riggs.

Dr. Jonas Terrill, for many years a prominent citizen and physician of this county, died at his home in Covington last Saturday morning after several months' illness with consumption of the spinal column.

Dr. Terrill was a son of the Rev. Benjamine Terrill, and was born in Randolph county, Missouri, November 11, 1843. He was a graduate of the Cincinnati college of medicine, beginning the practice of his profession in 1865, and was soon one of the most prominent physicians and surgeons in this part of the country, where, for many years, he commanded a very extensive practice. Several years ago Dr. Terrill moved to Covington and was at once recognized as one of the leadiug physicians of that city.

Dr. Terrill and Miss Sophia Smith Crisler were married May 1st, 1863, and to them were born four children, three boys, Benjamiu, Smith, and James, and one daughter, Mary, all of whom are living.

The funeral was conducted at the residence last Monday.

Dr Terrill had a very large number of frieuds in this county who deplore his death, and sympathize with his family in their bereavement.

People in this part of the State have always supposed that the inhabitauts of the blue grass had been blessed above those of other sections of the State in that they possessed the fluest country that God gave to man—one in which farming and money making are a pleasure, but judging from the long list of sales for taxes the Sheriff of Woodford county has advertised, it looks as though the blue grassers are not making enough above a living to pay their taxes without being forced to come to the scratch.

The custom of ringiug the old year out and the new year in, was observed last Saturday night. Some of the inanimate objects on the streets seemed to have taken part in the festivities, as they had changed their positions during the night, some disappearing entirely.

Bentler's grist mill will be runniug next Friday.

TO ENFORCE LAWS IN CUBA.

Creation of Taxes and Customs Duties, and Administration of Laws Relating to Postal Matters.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The cabinet meeting Friday was not concluded until nearly 2 o'clock, nearly the entire session being consumed in discussing matters in connection with the administration of the law in Cuba. It was pointed out that the collection of the taxes and customs dues, the administration of the laws relating to postal matters, and the courts and many other important branches of the government of the island would be a burden too heavy to be borne by the military governor assisted only by a small staff all more or less experienced in such matters. Practically a new government had to be established and it was agreed that the multitudinous affairs incident to such an undertaking could be successfully administered only by the creation of several bureaus at the head of which would be placed men of wide experience in the particular work to which they would be assigned, all to be under the general direction of the military governor. These matters were gone over at some length, and it is expected that the several cabinet members will take up the details of the proposed plan at once as far as their respective departments are concerned, and submit their conclusions to the president at an early date.

It is proposed to duplicate in a small way and as far as practicable the systems now in force in the United States, the collectors of customs and of taxes being directly responsible to the military governor the same as our secretary of the treasury, who is charged with these functions, is to the president. It is proposed, too, to employ citizens of the island in every subordinate capacity if this can be done without detriment to the service. This course, it is contended, would promote a friendly feeling toward the United States and avoid the friction that necessarily would result from sending among them men who are strangers to their customs and traditions.

THE CONFEDERACY'S DEAD.

An Order Issued to Ascertain the Location of All the Confederate Burying Grounds in the South.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 31.—The memorable sentiment regarding the nation's care of confederate dead, expressed in President McKinley's now famous fraternizing speech before the Georgia legislature, has crystallized into an order to ascertain the location of all the confederate burying grounds in the south and this work has already begun.

Georgia has been called for a list of these places, the adjutant general of the state having received an official letter from Washington requesting that a full list of the confederate cemeteries be forwarded to Washington. This communication came to the state officials from Gen. Marcus W. Wright, agent of the war records office. Asst. Adjt. Gen. Obear laid the matter before Gov. Candler. There is no official record in this state of the number of location of confederate cemeteries, but Gov. Candler has directed that a circular letter be issued to all the county ordinaries of the state, requesting them to obtain the information in their respective counties and report to him. It is understood Gen. Wright has addressed similar letters to the adjutant general of all southern states.

GOLD IN NORTHERN MEXICO.

Authentic Information Received of a Strike That Was Made of Ore That Will Yield 18 Ounces of Gold to the Ton.

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 31.—Considerable excitement was caused in mining and smelting circles here Friday by the arrival of authentic information of one of the biggest gold strikes yet made in northern Mexico.

E. U. Beauchamp, who arrived Friday from Baecrac, Sonoro, by way of Casas Grandes, Chihuahua, reports the discovery of an immense fissure vein of free milling ore 20 miles south of Baecrac. The ore is reported to contain 18 ounces of gold to the ton, and the vein has been traced for several miles. American prospectors in Casas Grandes and the surrounding districts are arriving on the scene in large numbers.

MRS. BOTKIN GOES FOR LIFE.

The Jury, After a Few Hours' Deliberation, Returns a Verdict of Murder in the First Degree.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—Rather to the general surprise of those who have followed the Botkin trial and to the entire dismay of the defendant and her attorneys, Mrs. Cordelia Botkin was Friday night found guilty of murder in the first degree for causing the death of Mrs. John P. Dunning by sending a box of poisoned candy to her temporary home in Dover, Del. The condemned murderess will be spared the ignominious death on the gallows, however, the jury that found her guilty imposing also the penalty of life imprisonment. The verdict was unexpected. An acquittal was confidently awaited by the defense, while the prosecution feared a disagreement. Rumors had been in circulation that several of the jurors strongly favored the defense, and that their opinions were too firmly grounded to be capable of a change. Although the jury was only out four hours, more than one of which was devoted to a dinner, it was currently reported Friday night that the verdict was the result of a compromise. The sex of the prisoner made such a conclusion satisfactory to the jurors.

Considering the unexpectedness of the verdict, Mrs. Botkin kept herself well in hand when her fate was announced. Not until the jurymen and most of the spectators had left the court room did she give evidence of collapse. Then she sank back half fainting, but speedily recovered when given a glass of water.

The jury retired at 5:55 p. m., but soon after was taken to dinner in charge of a deput from the sheriff's office. During the meal hour no reference was made to the case by any of the men in whose hands lay the fate of Mrs. Botkin.

On returning to the jury room the evidence was carefully gone over and prolonged discussion followed. It is not known how many ballots were taken before a final agreement was reached, but there are rumors that at first the opinions of the 12 jurymen were not in accord and that before unanimity was arrived at a compromise was effected.

At just about 9 o'clock word was sent to Judge Carroll Cook that the jury was prepared to make a report. Court was immediately convened, and at 9:15 o'clock, just four hours after the case had been placed in its hands, the jury stated, through its foreman, that an agreement had been reached, the verdict being that Mrs. Botkin, accused of killing Mrs. John P. Dunning by means of poisoned candy, sent through the mails, was guilty of murder in the first degree. In accordance with the laws of California, which empowers the jury to decide between hanging and imprisonment in such cases, the penalty was fixed at imprisonment for life.

While at no time during the trial had Mrs. Botkin expressed herself as anticipating such a verdict, she received it with remarkable calmness, exhibiting no trace of emotion, though she sat close to her sister, Mrs. Roberts, and seemed to look to her for sympathy. After the jury had been polled in the usual manner, Judge Cook announced that sentence would be pronounced on Saturday, January 7. He then remanded her to the custody of the sheriff to be imprisoned in the branch county jail until called to receive sentence, when she will be transferred to the state penitentiary.

THE NEW BATTLE SHIP OHIO.

Work Has Commenced on the Largest and Fastest Vessel Ever Built on the Pacific Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—Work on the battle ship Ohio has been commenced at the Union Iron works. The Ohio will be the largest ship ever built on the coast and one of the three largest ever built in the American navy. She will have a displacement of 12,500 tons and her dimensions will be as follows:

Length, 388 feet; breadth, 72 feet 3 inches; draught, 23 feet 9 inches.

The new battle ship will be 20 feet longer than the Wisconsin and 40 feet longer than the Oregon. She will have a greater displacement than the Wisconsin by 1,000 tons and 2,000 tons more than the Oregon. The Ohio's contract speed is two knots faster than the Wisconsin and three knots faster than the Oregon.

A Soldier Asphyxiated.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 31.—Corporal Marshall Williams, of Company F, 9th Illinois regiment, was found dead in a house on Broad street Friday, asphyxiated by gas. His companion, Corporal James Newman, of the same company, is unconscious. He is now at the hospital. The men went to the room at midnight Thursday night.

Fire in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 31.—Fire Friday, which started from spontaneous combustion in the dry kiln of the north side yards of the John Schroeder Lumber Co., caused a loss of about $70,000.

Faith in Otis and Dewey.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The war department feels no alarm concerning the situation in the Philippines, and it is confidently believed that Gen. Otis and Adm. Dewey are fully able to cope with the insurgents.

CUBAN JUNTA PATRIOTICA.

It Issues an Address Regarding Abandonment of the Proposed Demonstration in Havana.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The address of the junta patriotica regarding the abandonment of the proposed demonstrations were widely circulated Friday. It is as follows:

"To the people of Havana.

"In accordance with the wishes of the American authorities, the directory of the junta patriotica, after consultation with the main committee, has agreed to suspend the festivities planned to celebrate the independence of the island. In a reasonable letter to the commission charged with presenting the festival programme, Gen. Ludlow has indicated the desirability of suspending for the present public demonstrations, owing to a rumor that at the present moment, when the Cuban police are not yet organized, there might be some interruption of public order, in the preservation of which all citizens, and especially all Cubans, are deeply interested.

"At the same time Gen. Ludlow declares that the American authorities are in full sympathy with the joyous feeling of the Cubans and that when the situation becomes more settled they will take pleasure in promoting such festivals as have been proposed and will even participate in them. But the American authorities are convinced that the present moment is not opportune for celebrations.

"In view of the fact that the considerations thus urged are quite in accord with obvious good judgment, the representatives of the directory have determined to suspend the festivals arranged for the coming week, which will be carried out as soon as circumstances permit. The directory regrets the existence of such doubts and misgivings as prevent the carrying out of the programme as projected; but they have agreed to recommend to the Cubans to co-operate in maintaining order during the change of flags and in the days following, because they are convinced that the moderation and orderly behavior of the Cuban people at these moments will powerfully influence the future destiny of our country.

THE DEATH OF MRS. ADAMS.

A Druggist Suggests That the Poison Might Have Developed From Bromo Seltzer in Process of Decomposition.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Mr. McIntyre has received a letter to which he attaches a certain amount of importance. It suggests that the poison that killed Mrs. Adams might have developed from bromo seltzer in the process of decomposition.

"This letter may shed light on this mysterious affair," he said. "It may prove that Mrs. Adams' death was an unfortunate accident, and that there is no crime back of it."

The letter in question was sent to Mr. McIntyre by S. J. Russell, a druggist of Jersey City. While reading the account of the Adams poisoning case in the newspapers, Mr. Russell's attention was attracted by the statement that the glass bottle containing the supposed bromo seltzer bore the label of a drug company in Baltimore, Md. This recalled to his mind an invoice of bromo seltzer which he had received from that company, but which he sent back as unfit for sale. He then received from the company a letter saying that the company had tried granulating bromo seltzer, but, finding that it did not keep well in that form, decided to abandon it.

"The question raised by this letter is, whether the decomposition of the granulated bromo seltzer that was manufactured by the Baltimore company is likely to produce a poisonous substance, and if so, whether that substance is the same poison which killed Mrs. Adams."

UNITED STATES TROOPS SAIL.

Nearly Three Thousand Leave Charleston, S. C., for Cuba on the Transports Minnewaska and Manitoba.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 31.—Nearly 3,000 United States troops sailed from Charleston to Cuba Friday. The transports Minnewaska and Manitoba went out on the morning tide and the Ward line steamer Saratoga went to sea later in the day. On the first named ship there were Gen. Bates, his headquarters staff, the brigade hospital and the 6th regiment Ohio volunteers, bound for Cienfuegos. The Manitoba carried Gen. Sanger, his headquarters staff and the 12th regiment of New York volunteers, while the Saratoga carried 450 men of the 1st regular infantry. In addition to the troops each vessel carried an immense quantity of supplies, provisions, baggage, lumber, etc. The Saratoga goes to Havana, while the Manitoba takes Gen. Sanger and his staff to Matanzas, of which city and district he will have military charge.

THE SENATORIAL INSTINCT.

A Detroit Cat That Was Likened Unto the Luxurious Statesman.

"I guess I just about have the blue-ribbon cat story," declared one of the employes at a Detroit depot. "We had a big tom here that was a favorite for months. He never did anything worse than to whip an occasional dog that came prowling about, or scratch some kid that wanted to carry him off. But he became fat, lazy, self-important and impudent. He asserted a right to be on top of the desks, and resented the noise of a typewriter when he wanted to take his afternoon nap.

"So another of the boys and myself slipped Tom into a box car, and sent him to Chicago. There was no chance for him to escape, for it was a tight box car, with the doors sealed, and billed through.

"Two weeks later there came a carload of furniture from Chicago, and after it had been shunted to a side track the work of unloading was begun. The men scattered when they saw a pair of fiery eyes working toward them through chair legs and over carpet rolls. While they were arming themselves with coupling pins in order to resist the attack of some wild critter, a long, lean and hungry-looking cat sprang out, blinked till he became accustomed to the light and then trotted to my office. There he gave me an ugly leer, winked at the clerks and curled up on a window sill in the sun. I accepted old Tom and now call him 'Senator.'"

"Why Senator?"

"Because he knew a good thing and was so anxious to get back."—Detroit Free Press.

Guarding Against Twin Germs.

A village clergyman tells this story: He was walking through the outskirts of his parish one evening, when he saw one of his parishioners very busy whitewashing his cottage. Pleased at these somewhat novel signs of cleanliness, he called out: "Well, Jones, I see you are making your house nice and smart." With a mysterious air Jones, who had recently taken the cottage, descended from the ladder, and slowly walked to the hedge which separated the garden from the road. "That's not exactly the reason why I'm a doing of this 'ere job," he whispered, "but the last two couples as lived in this 'ere cottage 'ad twins; so I says to my missus, I'll take an' whitewash the place, so as there mayn't be no infection. Ye see, sir, as 'ow we got ten children already."—Cornhill Magazine.

How It Happened.

The police magistrate eyed the prisoner sternly.

"You were arrested," he said, "for assaulting the player of a street piano. What is your defense?"

"Well, your honor, I was just getting home after having been out all night with a sick friend. My wife was waiting for me in no friendly frame of mind. The dago came along and started playing 'There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight,' so I took it as a personal matter and proceeded to put a dent in his features. The cops hurried up and pinched the dago and his piano, and I—"

"Well, you?" urged his honor.

"I was carried away with the music," said the prisoner, sadly.—Baltimore American.

Question of Values.

He knew that she was a cleaver business woman, and therefore he thought his scheme a good one. But he did not realize that she was such a good judge of values.

"I have made a bet that I will marry you," he said.

"Money up!" she asked.

"Yes," he answered, pleased at the businesslike way she took hold of the proposition.

"How much?"

"Five hundred dollars."

She looked him over critically.

"Too low," she said at last. "You'll have to get it raised to $5,000 or you'll lose."

And at that, as she afterward explained, she was giving him a bargain-day price.—Chicago Post.

How a Colored Boy Knew Joseph Jefferson Was Not a Circus Rider.

Joseph Jefferson and his son Tom were walking home from a duck hunt on his plantation in Louisiana one evening, when one of the colored boys asked Tom what he did in the show. Tom said:

"Go up, John, and ask him! he'll tell you."

The colored boy went up to Mr. Jefferson and said:

"Mr. Joe, will you be mad if I axed you somethin'?"

"No, John, what it is?" said Mr. Jefferson.

"What do you do in de show?"

Mr. Jefferson replied that it would be rather difficult for him to explain to him what his particular line of business was.

"Well," said John, "dus yer swallow knives?"

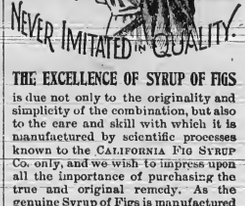
Mr. Jefferson told him he had no talent whatever in that direction.

"Well, yer son told me yed swallowed knives and forks and fire, and de Lor' knows what all, and I believe he was jest foolin' me."

Mr. Jefferson agreed with him, saying that his son was quite capable of it.

"Well, dere's one thing certain," said John, "yer don' act in de circus."

Mr. Jefferson asked him how he could be sure of that. John burst into an immoderate fit of laughter.



"O, no; no sir! Yer can't fool me on dat. I've seen yer get on a horse—yer ain't no circus actor."—Boston Globe.

often. From no apparent cause, become languid and despondent in the early days of their womanhood. They drag along always tired, never hungry, breathless and with a palpitating heart after slight exercise so that merely to walk up stairs is exhausting. Sometimes a short, dry cough leads to the fear that they are going into consumption. They are anæmic, doctors tell them, which means that they have too little blood. Are you like that? Have you too little blood? More anæmic people have been made strong, hungry, energetic men and women by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People than by any other means They are the best tonic in the world.

Miss Lulu Stevens, of Gasport, Niagara Co., N. Y., had been a very healthy girl until about a year ago, when she grew weak and pale. She lost her appetite, was as tired in the morning as on retiring, and lost flesh until she became so emaciated that her friends hardly knew her. The doctors declared the disease anæmia, and gave her up to die. A physician who was visiting in Gasport prevailed upon her to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. FEAR TROUBLE.

Gen. Menocal and Cuban Forces Refuse to Take the Oath of Allegiance.

The Feeling in Havana is Intense and Many Flags Torn Down From Houses—Upper Cubans Ask President McKinley to Modify Order.

HAVANA, Dec. 30.—Startling rumors were flying about Thursday night and are given credence by excited crowds thronging the streets. It was reported early Thursday evening that Gen. Mariano Menocal and his Cuban forces at La Paya had been asked to take the oath of allegiance to the United States and had refused.

The news that Cuban soldiers had refused to take the oath of allegiance was cheered by the crowd, and mounted insurgents clattered through the town, telling the people in the streets that Gen. Menocal had withdrawn his troops from La Paya and taken to the field.

This story, regardless of its truth or falsity, is chiefly worthy of serious attention, because of the eagerness with which it was received by the crowds who insisted upon its truth. It justified Gen. Menocal's reported sensational action.

The situation grows out of the refusal of Gen. Brooke's permit for the participation of Cuban troops in the exercises on evacution day. The feeling in Havana Thursday night was intense.

The United States flag was torn down from many houses in the lower districts of the city Thursday night.

Upper class Cubans sent cablegrams without number to President McKinley Thursday begging him to interfere. Cablegrams have been sent broadcast over the United States asking for public meetings and appealing to the common sense and justice of the American people.

The Cuban leaders here are doing everything possible to prevent an outburst, but say that if Gen. Brooke's command is carried out not only will they be helpless, but they will think whatever happens, to have been caused by what they consider the arbitrary and unjust action of the United States.

Judge Advocate Charles Gould, of the American commission, Thursday called to President McKinley that there is intense uneasiness in the situation here and advising that the Cubans be permitted to participate in the evacuation ceremonies. Late Thursday night no word had been received from the president regarding the matter.

The more excitable of the population of Havana's lower districts are beginning to hoot the American soldiers. The higher class Cubans are bitterly chagrined and disappointed at the turn affairs have taken. They hardly know what to say or do. Their plans are to have 1,000 picked men, the flower of the insurgent army, march into Havana January 1. The Cuban soldiers came into camp at La Paya and Mariano with the understanding that they were marching to Havana for evacuation day. They bought new uniforms in honor of the occasion.

The streets of Havana have been most lavishly decorated. The people intended to meet the insurgent soldiers at the outskirts and escort them with music and cheering to the Prado. The soldiers are the popular ideal of the people of Havana. The entrance of the Cuban soldiers into Havana has been the dream of the people of the unhappy island for 50 years. During the late war Havana has ever been the objective point. Now Spain has been driven out, but the Cuban soldier must not enter.

The Cubans compromised on the original plans two days ago. It was said the soldiers might enter on the 2d prox. Five days of rejoicing was planned. The people of Havana planned a great feast for the soldiers.

Gen. Brooke, who is supposed to act under instructions from Washington, said this arrangement could not be carried out.

The developments of the next few days may mean peace or war between the United States and Cuba. Havana citizens say they beg not to be driven away from the United States.

The 2d battalion of the 2d Illinois has been ordered to Santa Clara province, 200 miles from Havana. Companies G, E, H and F left early Friday morning for that place under command of Maj. Duzenberry. The Illinois soldiers are to preserve order as the Spaniards withdraw. There has been some rioting in that district and the Illinois troops were given hurry-up orders. One battalion of the 49th Iowa is ordered to Cienfuegos.

HAVANA IS ALL EXCITEMENT.

Brooke's Order Forbidding the Presence of Cuban Insurgents Evacuation Day the Cause—Cubans Will Not Decorate.

HAVANA, Dec. 29.—Cuban residents of Havana declared Wednesday night if Gen. Brooke does not rescind his order barring representatives of the Cuban insurgent army from being present at the evacuation day ceremonies on New Year's day they will close their houses on that occasion, tear down their flags and decorations and remain indoors.

The Cuban peace commission, after a stormy interview with Gen. Brooke, Wednesday night telegraphed Gen. Gomez not to come to Havana, as he intended, as no courtesy could be shown him.

The Cubans are greatly excited. Wednesday night they stood on every corner of the city discussing the situation in a half frenzied manner. "We have not fought for a change of masters. We have fought for liberty and not for a new ownership," declared Juan Frederico Centellas, one of the most prominent Cubans in Havana.

Our army is still in the field. They shall not lay down their arms until we find out whether we are to be slaves or free."

Two nights ago Gen. Ludlow notified the commission that Gen. Gomez and other prominent Cuban army leaders could be present at the ceremonies and that the Cuban army might enter Havana.

Wednesday night Gen. Brooke told the commission that the Cuban army is not to be recognized and is to have no part in the demonstrations of January 1.

This action at once caused the Cuban's to declare that they would stay in their houses, and the day of rejoicing over the raisng of the Stars and Stripes would be turned into a day of gloom and that the city should have the appearance of a town in mourning.

Americans in Havana are much alarmed at the increased mortality in the city. The civil register Wednesday night shows that three persons died of Asiatic cholera and four of malarial fever. Tuesday four deaths were reported of yellow fever and 11 of malarial fever out of a total death roll of 57.

Smallpox is on the increase. Three or four deaths are reported every day. Yellow fever cases are increasing.

Americans expect, by hurried sanitary work, to improve conditions rapidly after January 1. The thing that alarms, or at least disgusts, the Americans more than any other disease that flourishes here is leprosy.

Tuesday night was one of alarm. It was feared that Wednesday the riots would assume a graver aspect. The insurgents who have not been permitted in the city since the affair at the Hotel Inglaterra, were allowed to come in and act as police.

The effect of their presence in Maria, Monserrate, San Juan de Dios and other districts where rioting has occurred was magical. The insurgents would ride into a half frenzied crowd of paraders and, after leading the shouting for a few moments, would disperse the crowd. The insurgents' word is law with the simple people of the lower districts of the city and they were implicitly obeyed.

Only a few riots occurred Wednesday afternoon. Several people were wounded and one man will die from wounds received.

The city was quiet Wednesday night. Four companies of the 10th United States infantry kept guard.

Reina, a formidable battery opposite Morro and Regla, was Wednesday occupied by United States troops. Cabanas is also occupied with a detail of our troops.

THE GOVERNMENT OF GUAM.

It Will Differ From Other Colonial Possessions in Having a Naval Instead of a Military Governor.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The island of Guam will probably be different from the other colonial possessions or dependencies of the United States in having a naval instead of a military governor. The reason is that the sole reason for the selection and acquirement of the island was to obtain a conveniently located naval station for our war ships, and that being the case, the navy should have exclusive control. The command will be of importance, for the island has a population of more than 8,000 people, and so far from these being barbarians about 1,400 of them are of European extraction.

CANAL ROUTES.

Two of Them Investigated by the Nicaraguan Commission.

Its Cost Will Approximate $134,000,000—The Other, Known as the Mari-Caral Route Will Cost $125,000,000—Full Report Soon.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—The full text of the preliminary report of the Nicaragua canal commission was Thursday made public. It is as follows;

NICARAGUA CANAL COMMISSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 28.

The Honorable, the Secretary of State, Washington, D. C. Sir—We have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 19th instant, enclosing a copy of a resolution of the senate of the 15th of December, requesting a report of the progress made by this commission in investigating the question of the proper route, the feasibility and cost of constructing the Nicaragua canal. This commission has understood the law, by which it was constituted, approved June 4, 1897, to require that all routes heretofore proposed, having any merit, are to be considered, new routes that appear to have merit are to be developed and the entire region of the canal possibilities to be examined with sufficient thoroughness as to enable a just and comprehensive comparison of the various routes to be made and the most desirable one selected. In short, to enable this commission to make a complete and exhaustive report.

With this in view, the commission visited Nicaragua, personally examined the entire canal region from ocean to ocean, and employed some 30 engineers, with their laborers and helpers for ten months, in making careful surveys and examinations of the canal region. Some meteorological and hydrological observers are still continued in Nicaragua with a view to obtain a full year of observations of that nature.

The required field work has been obtained. The reduction of this field work, together with the compilation and comparison of former surveys going back nearly fifty years, has been in progress for more than two months.

The commission believes that the construction of a canal across Nicaragua is entirely feasible.

The estimates for two of the best known characteristic routes have been nearly completed. These routes are known as the Maritime Canal Co.'s route and the Lull route. Their estimated cost is approximately $121,000,000 and $125,000,000 respectively.

The assumed dimensions are considerably greater than ever before proposed, both in length of locks and in width, depth and radius of curvature of canal. These increased dimensions have been made necessary by the demands of modern commerce, size and draft of modern ships, etc. This has necessarily made a corresponding increase in the estimated cost and is in no way inconsistent with the estimates made from former surveys which contemplated a much smaller and cheaper canal.

A canal of smaller dimensions, just sufficient for present needs, is being estimated for. Such canal would cost considerably less than the estimate for a canal suitable for modern necessities which is referred to above.

It is the opinion of this commission that, of the two routes herewith estimated for, the one called the Lull route is the more desirable, because its easier of construction, presents no problems not well within good engineering precedents, and will be a safer and more reliable canal when completed. It also believes that the dimensions and form of construction preferred by the commission are better than the cheaper form with smaller dimensions which would undoubtedly call for expensive improvements within a short time after its completion.

Both of the routes referred to above admit of variants, which may reduce the cost. These are now being considered by the commission as necessary for an exhaustive discussion of, and report upon, the entire canal problem is being pushed as rapidly as its great magnitude permits, and, when completed, the report will be submitted without delay.

We are, sir, with great respect,

Your obedient servants,

J. E. WALKER,
Rear Admiral U. S. Navy, President of the Commission.

LEWIS M. HAUPT,
Civil Engineer, Member.

I concur with the other members of the commission in respect to the progress of the work and the feasibility of the canal, but I think in view of the increased size of the canal estimated for and the difficulties incident to work in tropical countries, that the estimate is lower than it should be by about 20 per cent.

PETER C. HAINS,
Colonel Corps of Engineers, Member.

OUR DEAD SOLDIER BOYS.

Gen. Ludington Has Completed Arrangements for Bringing Their Bodies to the United States.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Gen. Ludington, quartermaster general of the army, has completed arrangements for bringing back to this country the bodies of American officers and soldiers interred at and in the vicinity of Santiago, Cuba, Ponce and other points in Porto Rico, Manila and Honolulu. The graves have been carefully marked by officials of the quartermaster's department who have gone over the several fields and have succeeded in identifying nearly all of the American dead. A large number of metallic caskets are now being manufactured. The shipments of the caskets will begin about January 10 and a force of skilled men will go with them to attend, to the work of disinterment, hermetically sealing the caskets, and shipping them back to this country.

ONLY ONE FLAG IN CUBA.

Armed Bodies of Men Will Be Considered as Disturbers of the Peace—Cubans Should Hold a Convention.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—The war department learned Thursday morning that Gen. Brooke had carried out the instructions given him before he left Washington to notify the Cubans that they should not display their flag on January 1, or after that date, or parade as military organizations. This requires the permission already accorded to the armed insurgents in Havana province by Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, which, in the opinion of the authorities here, was calculated to foster insurrection and rioting.

The Cubans will therefore not be allowed to participate officially in the ceremonies incidental to the termination of Spanish sovereignty nor to take any part in the administration of the island until they undertake the formation of a civil government. This determination is fully in accord with the president's declaration on his recent southern tour, that only one flag should float over a country and that the responsibilities of government were indivisible.

It is explained that the United States is compelled to consider the Cuban flag at this time simply as a standard of revolution, representing a disorganized army without a governmental status.

Cuban leaders have been advised that they ought to proceed at once to hold popular elections for choosing delegates to a constitutional convention, to be followed by the inauguration of civil administration.

Then they can organize an army to support such a government, and to relieve the United States from the responsibility of maintaining order. Until that is done the United States will look upon armed bodies of men as disturbers of the peace and treat them accordingly.

ORDER FROM THE EXECUTIVE.

The President Issues Instructions in Regard to Customs Taxes, Public and Postal Dues in Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—The president has issued the following executive order:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.

"It is hereby ordered that on and after January 1, 1899, and until otherwise provided, all customs taxes, public and postal dues in the island of Cuba shall be paid in the United States money, or in foreign gold coin, such as the Spanish Alphonsinos (centen) and the French Louis, which will be accepted in payment of such customs, taxes, public and postal dues at the following rates;

"Alphonsinos (25 peseta piece), $4.82.

Louis (20 franc piece) $3.86.

That all existing contracts for the payments of money shall be payable in the money denominated in such contracts and where French and Spanish gold shall be the stipulated money of payment they shall be received in their present decreed inflated values, i.e. Alphonsinos (25 peseta piece) $5.30; Louis (20 franc piece) $4.24, or in United States money at the relative value set forth in the above table, namely, $4.82 for Alphonsinos (25 pesets piece), and $3.86 for Louis (20 franc piece).

"It is further ordered that on and after January 1, 1899, and until further provided, the following Spanish silver coins now in circulation in the island of Cuba shall be received for customs, taxes, public and postal dues at the following fixed rates in American money:

"The peso—$0.60; the medio peso, $0.30; the peseta, $0.12; the real, $0.06; the medio real, $0.03.

"Bronze and copper coins now current in the island of Cuba will be received at their face value for fractional parts of a dollar, in a single payment to an amount not exceeding 12 cents (one peseta).

WILLIAM MCKINLEY."

BRIDGE JUMPER'S PLUNGE.

Harry Harmon Leaps From the Top of a Six-Story Building Into the Chicago River—Not Seriously Hurt.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—Harry Harmon, a bridge jumper, plunged from the top of a six-story building into the Chicago river Thursday afternoon. Pedestrians crossing Rush street bridge at 1 o'clock saw a man walk to the end of a plank extended from the roof of the building at 4 River street and deliberately fall backward toward the water. The feat was performed privately to settle a wager.

The man fell almost perpendicularly from the plank. It seemed he would strike the dock and be crushed. The spectators stood speechless, but the diver fell safely. A few seconds later he was hauled to the landing by means of a rope. Harmon was slightly injured by the fall. Small pieces of ice partially submerged struck his face when the water closed over him and cut a deep gash under his right eye.

The Corpse Was Petrified.

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Dec. 30.—Two laborers, in preparing for the foundation of a new high-school building, have dug up the remains of a man named Richard Snowden. The trunk was complete and the features almost perfect. The site of the high-school was formerly used as a burying ground, and Snowden was buried there in 1865.

Bench Fires in Indiana.

WARSAW, Ind., Dec. 30.—The marsh and woodland along the Tippecanoe river caught fire Thursday and a great deal of valuable property is being destroyed. THE NATION IN DANGER.

Col. Bryan's Return—Talks on Expansion and the American Flag.

Upon his return to his home in Lincoln, Neb., a few days ago Col W. J. Bryan was given a royal welcome by the members of the Women's Bimetallic league, and at a banquet given in his honor Col. Bryan said:

"I had five months of peace in the army and resigned in order to take part in a fight. I am as much interested in the people of the United States as I am in the people of Cuba, and unless I am mistaken in judging we are called upon to meet more important problems in the United States just now than will confront our army in Cuba.

"The American people have not accepted the gold standard as final. It has wrought more injustice in our country during the last 25 years than Spain has wrought in all her colonies, and opposition to it will grow until the gold and silver coinage of the constitution is fully restored. The trusts which now flourish in defiance of law are more merciless than Weyler was, and the new trust—the paper money trust which is seeking to obtain control of all the paper money of the nation—is a greater menace to the country's welfare than any foreign foe.

"There are, however, two new questions which demand immediate attention because congress is asked to act upon them at once. The president recommends that the regular army be permanently increased to 100,000 men. This question must be met now or not at all."

On the subject of imperialism, Mr. Bryan said: "The president has misinterpreted the sentiment of the people. They are opposed to giving the Philippine islands back to Spain, but they have not as yet declared in favor of embarking upon a colonial policy. So great a change, he said, could not be undertaken without more investigation and deliberation than the people had yet given to the subject. The principal part of Mr. Bryan's speech was devoted to the Philippine question. In this connection he referred to President McKinley's inquiry: "Who will haul down the flag?" and replied:

"The flag is a national emblem and is obedient to the national will. It was made for the people; not the people for the flag. When the American people want the flag raised, they raise it; when they want it hauled down, they haul it down. The flag was raised upon Canadian soil during the war of 1812, and it was hauled down when peace was restored. The flag was planted upon Chapultepec during the war with Mexico, and it was hauled down when the war was over. The morning papers announce that Gen. Lee ordered the flag hauled down in Cuba the other day because it was raised too soon. The flag will be hauled in Cuba again on the 1st of January, but the president declares in his message that it will be hauled down as soon as a stable government is established. Who will deny to the people the right to haul the flag down in the Philippines, if they so desire, when a stable government is established there?

"Our flag stands for an indissoluble union of indestructible states.

"Shall we keep the Philippines and amend our flag? Shall we add a new star—the blood star, Mars—to indicate that we have entered upon a career of conquest? Or shall we borrow the yellow, which in 1898 was the badge of gold and greed, and paint Saturn and his rings, to suggest a carpet-bag government with its schemes of spoliation? Or shall we adorn our flag with a milky way composed of a multitude of minor stars representing remote and insignificant dependencies?

"A thousand times better to haul down the stars and stripes and substitute the flag of an independent republic than to surrender the doctrines that give glory to 'Old Glory.' It was the flag of our fathers in years that are gone; it is the flag of a reunited country to-day; let it be the flag of our nation in the years that are to come. Its stripes of red tell of the blood that was shed to purchase liberty; its stripes of white proclaim the pure and heaven-born purpose of a government which derives its just powers from consent of the governed. The mission of that flag is to float—not over a conglomeration of commonwealths—but over the land of the free and the home of the brave,' and to that mission it must remain 'forever true—forever true.'"

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

The West and South Are Awakening to the Evils of Expansion.

The American peace commissioners have played their part; but that does not mean that the senate and the people must, or will, repeat after them, without variation, the lines which they have just prepared.

So far as the Philippine matter is concerned, the indications are that congress (for both houses will have to act on the money stipulation) will not even take its cue from the commissioners. These men have said to Spain: "We will buy of you the Philippines." The probability is increasing that the senate will say: "No, we will not; we do not believe in borrowing trouble, much less in buying it."

And it is not inconceivable that that body should doubt the wisdom of taking trouble as a gift. For not even the most dizzy-headed imperialist believes that the United States can control those islands in a sharp contest with the insurgents.

Without reviewing the increasing opposition in the south and east to the policy of expansion, it is becoming evident that the wave of wisdom now sweeping over the Pacific coast must be alarming to the administration. From an editor in San Francisco, the hotbed of imperialism, come these words: "The American people are now wondering why the American peace commissioners should offer to Spain any number of millions for the Philippines. For the portion conquered from Spain is already ours, and the portion not conquered from her may have to be conquered from the insurgents. Therefore, according to the usual rule of such transactions, if we pay Spain $20,000,000 for the rest of the Philippines, she ought to give us a good title by delivering goods."

Finally, the trades unions throughout the country are resisting the annexation policy, because of the cheap labor which must come with the new possessions. "The administration fears," says a western paper, "that Philippine annexation may deprive the republican party of the votes of organized workingmen."

Altogether, the navigation of the administration ship in and around the reefs and shoals of the tropical islands is becoming difficult and perilous. —St. Paul Globe.

THE ARMY AND SPOILSMEN.

Secretary Alger's Plan for Dispensing Patronage in the War Department.

That was very straight and very sound talk of Mr. Bonaparte, at the meeting of the Civil Service Reform league. Ever since the beginning of the agitation for the reform of the civil service the military service has been its model. If we could bring the civil service up to the level of the military service, including the naval service, we should be sure of a high-minded class of public servants, capable of meeting all new exigencies as they arose, including even the exigency of imperialism, of remote foreign possessions upon the government of which American public opinion could not be brought to bear.

We have once more, in the war with Spain, had great cause to be proud of the officers of the army and the navy. Every intelligent and disinterested citizen feels that if we were as sure of the civil service as we are of the military service we could "go forth to meet the future without fear and with a manly heart." But it is just at this time that it is brought to our notice that the politicians not only have no intention of improving the civil service, but that they have an intention of degrading the military service to its level, and this at the very time when it is proposed to quadruple the size of the army. Mr. Bonaparte takes Secretary Alger as the embodiment of the spirit which seeks to degrade the army. His remarks may perhaps, to those who have not duly considered the question, seem unduly severe. In fact, they are circumspect and well considered. If we are to open all the new commissions to be bestowed in the army to "patronage," the result will be appalling. It will be worse than a failure to reform the civil service at home, inasmuch as it will degrade us in the eyes of all mankind.

And yet it is a grave fact that no proposition has been made of a rational method of appointment for the new officers. Not one of the bills before congress for the enlargement of the army contains any safeguard against the abuse of patronage. Of course, nobody expected any such safeguard in the official bill of the war department. What political future or present has the secretary of war, except through the abuse of patronage? But such a safeguard is almost equally conspicuous by its absence from the bill favored by Gen. Wiles. If it be thought necessary to provide patronage in order to lubricate the passage of a bill for the enlargement of the army through congress, it is certain that a measure prepared and passed under such auspices will reflect not credit but disgrace upon the country. Mr. Bonaparte's words of warning are words of truth and soberness.—N. Y. Times.

THE TRUSTS TO FIGHT.

An Evil That Is Being Fostered by the Policy of the Republican Administration.

The periodical trade wars between the trusts and their unattached competitors are coming rapidly into the category with fake pugilism and bogus horse races. The recent set-to between the sugar trust and the so-called "rival" refineries was quite a lively affair, but it lasted only long enough to enable the insiders to place their money on the winner.

Having started in to cut rates for the purpose of beating down the profitable schedules of its puny rivals, the sugar trust permitted the world to know that the fight was to be an expensive one. Its stock took a corresponding slump and continued to depreciate as the ruinous competitive prices continued. After trust stock had fallen about 22 points it was discovered that timid holders had been letting go, while the smart speculators on the inside had been loading up at low prices.

Then the obliging competitors of the trust suddenly weakened. The war was over. Sugar stocks have jumped these from 103 to 124. The small investors who hadn't the nerve to hang on to their holdings is bemoaning his bad judgment and the sure-thing operators who knew what was coming are counting an estimated profit of $22,000,000 Sugar and sugar trust stocks may be expected to remain at firm prices until the small ones get ready for another hippodrome.

These false combats between trusts of all sorts and powerful individual firms never fail to be most profitable to the former. The American people are growing dangerously accustomed to them. There has always been a tacit sympathy for the house which offers battle to the pooled corporations because of the belief that the contest were "on the square." The complaisant demeanor of the defeated party in the latest fight, however, has established a well-founded suspicion that the contest was "fixed" and that the principals divided the purse and the gate money. It's too bad there wasn't at least one honest referee to call all bets off.—St. Louis Republic.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

STATE NEWS.

Leitchfield had a $100,000 holiday fire.

Beggars were never so numerous in towns out in the State.

Kenton county paid $152,000 in to the State treasury for 1898.

A huckster sold a load of 1,400 rabbits in Owensboro at five cents each.

Ed Howard, a negro desperado, was killed at Eminence while resisting arrest.

T. P. Waddell has just finished slaughtering 7,000 turkeys at Millersburg.

Boyle county will sell $46,000 turnpike bonds at public auction in a few days.

The Odd Fellows' entertainment at Lexington, last week, netted about $500.

A Louisville couple who were married, last week, will spend their honey-moon in Cuba.

The Garrard county fiscal court sold to a Chicago firm $33,000 worth of turnpike bonds at 104½.

A Kentucky man has just patented a fire escape. What Kentucky needs more is a fire water escape.

The mill to which Abraham Lincoln took corn too have it ground is standing in Larue county.

William Day, 82 years old, and Minnie Williams, aged 17, were married at Prestonburg, during the holidays.

Numerous matrimonial contracts throughout the State were closed and ratified by parents during the holidays.

John Rousey, aged 70, died at Junction city, last week. He was the only one of seven brothers who died a natural death.

A mechanic fell from the top of a 60 foot smoke stack, at Paris, the other day, and strange to relate only bruised one of his arms slightly.

At Lawrenceburg a boy was playing with an old gun barrel, which was discharged, the contents making an ugly wound in his neck.

At the Democratic primary election in Franklin county, held last Wednesday, South Trimble was nominated for re-election to the Legislature.

In a saloon quarrel at Ball's Landing, Owen county, last week, Tom Cleek, colored, shot and killed Joe Smith, colored, and wounded Otis Wilson white.

The Owen County Democratic Committee has ordered a primary election to nominate a candidate for the Legislature to be held on the first Saturday in March.

The Louisville pool rooms have closed up. Judge Barker was making it so hot for them they decided a discontinuance of their business was the best thing to do.

Mrs. James Swayne is in jail at Williamsburg, having permitted her husband to don her clothes and leave his cell, when she went to visit him. Swayne was in prison for stealing.

In Jackson county Andy Combs was shot and killed by Frank Cornelius over a turkey at a shooting match. In Clay county Arle Turner was shot and killed by Thomas Parker.

In a quarrel over some hogs near Foxtown, Madison county, Zeno Cobb, a prominent farmer, was stabbed in the abdomen by Ravena A. Harris, perhaps fatally. Harris lives on the adjoining farm.

Louie E. Dodd, editor of the Benton Tribune and deputy sheriff, while helping to arrest Barnett Duncan, wanted at Mayfield for arson and forgery, was painfully shot by Bob Holmes, a member of the posse. The shooting was accidental.

Frank Hern, aged 10, of Christian county, was riding, and leading a stallion, which seized Hern by the leg and lacerated it so [illegible] It was with difficulty that the vicious animal was beaten off before the boy was killed.

The Sheriff of Fayette county attached $6,000 in the Pheonix National Bank to the credit of Col. Jack Chinn to satisfy a judgment of $4,500 in favor of Mrs. Bettie Crawford. The money was the proceeds of the sale of Col. Chinn's thoroughbreds in the sale of Woodard & Shanklin some weeks ago.

Amos Riggs, of Mason county, was received at the Frankfort penitentiary, last week, sent up for 21 years. He is said to have killed five men, is only 46 years old and his wife 40, yet they have 17 children, none of whom can read or write, and one of his oldest boys is now in Maysville jail charged with stealing.

Eleven Breckinridge county boys were enlisted this week by Recruiting Officer Johnston of the United States army, for service in the army at Manila. The young men are promised a voyage via the Suez canal, thus giving them a trip around the world. They enlisted with the Twenty-second Regiment of regulars at Ft. C[illegible] Neb.

Santa Claus came near meeting an untimely end at a Christmas entertainment in the Presbyterian church at Sturgis. His cotton make-up caught fire by an overturned lamp, and it required heroic efforts on the part of cool heads to save him and the church from burning. Considerable damage was done to the interior. The audience, panic stricken, rushed from the building.

Coleman Moffett, an aged and esteemed farmer, 80 years old, near Sharpsburg, cut his throat from ear to ear, the head being almost severed from the body, a razor being the deadly weapon. The suicide was one of the most terrible ever known in the locality. Moffett's home had burned, and it is supposed this loss at his advanced age had driven the unfortunate old gentleman insane, and that while mentally unbalanced he took his life.

A colored debating society in Jones' precinct had this weighty subject under discussion the other night: "Which is the most useful, the sun or the moon?" After considerable wrangling on both sides, during which they waxed warm and eloquent, the judge, an old negro, promptly decided the moon was the most useful, as it "shined at night when people needed light, while the sun, he only shined in the daytime when they could do without it.–Shelbyville Sentinel.

CROP AND STOCK.

The Denver Field and Farm says, "if the waste on farms could be stopped farmers would get rich in a few years. It is a waste to keep a calf or colt, whether weanling, yearling or two-year-old, through a long, cold winter and it weighs less in the spring than it did in the fall, but the loss in growth and weight usually more than makes up the difference and all the farmer has to show for the feed wasted and the useless exposure in feeding, to say nothing of the risk or loss, is a pile of manure instead of grain or hay. We have never favored forcing your stock during the winter season, unless they were being especially fitted for m[illegible]ket."

A Frankfort dispatch to the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune says:

"Kentucky will have prohibition as an issue in the State election next year. It will be made on the Roberts local option measure, which the temperance people and the churches of the State hope to pass through both houses of the Legislature. It was introduced last session by Senator Roberts, of Owsley county, and passed through the Senate, where the opposition was led by Senator Shanks, of Newport. It was finally killed in the House by indefinite postponement in the session, so that it never came to a vote in that body, though it would have passed had the issue been clearly drawn. The measure makes the county instead of the precinct, the unit in local option elections and would mean prohibition in nearly every county in the State. The advocates of the law are already beginning to organize for the campaign next year and are sending out literature advocating the election to the Legislature of men favoring local option. Rev. H. Kerfoot, of Louisville; Prof. Rucker, of Georgetown, and other prominent temperance workers are heading the organization work. An effort will be made to make both of the political parties take position on it by some sort of reference to the question in their platforms next year."

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier.]

Williamstown will blossom out at the beginning of the year with several new business enterprises.

Mr. R. A. Shaw, agent for the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, has bought up to date 35,000 pounds of tobacco at prices ranging from $3 to $8 per hundred pounds.

Mount Collins and Marshal E. B. Clark were at Poplar Grove, in Owen county, last week taking a hunt, and after two days returned with more than 100 quails. They are two of the best shots in this part of the country.

It is rumored that one of Grant county's prominent Court officials will take unto himself a wife in the early part of the coming year. As there is but one old bachelor in office at the present time guessing ought to be easy.

The Christmas trade last Friday and Saturday was phenomenal and a revelation to Williamstown. From early in the morning until late at night every store in town was worked to its full capacity, and then all of the people could not be waited upon. There was not hitching room in the town for the horses and vehicles and the streets at times became blocked. Tol Dickerson said the enormous crowd was the result of free 'pikes and Ezra Webster said it was due to the gold standard, and there you are. Anyway, the crowd was here and spent their money, and that is what counts.

Limaburg.

Wallace Tanner spent the holidays at home.

There was a social at John P. Utz's Saturday night.

Milton Beemon had a fat possum for his christmas dinner.

Milton Beemon had a fat 'opossum for his Christmas feast.

Wallace Tanner came home from college to spend the holidays.

E. E. Utz and wife dined several of their friends Christmas day.

Henry Taylor has been badly afflicted with rheumatism for some time.

Lewis Beemon came in contact with a skunk a few days ago, and was somewhat worsted by the meeting.

Henry Clore and wife entertained a large number of friends on Christmas day with an elegant dinner. The water melon Henry expected to serve on that occassion was frozen a few days before.

The following persons entertained during the holidays with turkey dinners: Legrand and James W. Utz and wives, Robert W. Rouse and wife, Geo. E. Rouse and wife, Sam Cumins and wife, Henry Clore and wife, and James Kelly and wife.

Harvey L. Tanner, 23, and Miss May Brown, 21, both of this neighborhood, secured marriage licenses in Covington and came back to Erlanger, where they were united in marriage by Esq. T. J. Childress, on the 28th ult. May they live long and prosper.

A very large number of their friends spent a most delightful evening with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Tanner on the 26th ult. It was a surprise party, but a more enjoyable affair never occurred in this neighborhood. Space forbids the naming of those composing the very large crowd.

Jany. 2—John Ernst is enjoying a $5 boil on his cheek.

Goe. Hafer is suffering with an acute attack of lagrippe.

Our local astronomers here made some important discoveries during the eclipse of the moon, Thursday night.

Our veteran saddle and harness maker, Robert Bradford, has made some extensive sales of his stock during the holidays.

Chester Davis has presented all of his customers that have called on him with a New Year's gift, in the way of a copy of F. & M.'s almanac for 1899.

We received a handsome box for a New Year's gift, filled with the different kinds of Mr. and Mrs. Garnett's wedding cake, for which we are under obligations.

Dr. Frank Sayre had a new Rankin grate put in at his residence, last week. We are told that the draft is so great that it is impossible to keep a lamp lit in the room.

The citizens of this community join in extending their sympathy to Mrs. Sophia Terrill and family in the loss of the distinguished husband and father, Dr. Jonas Terrill.

We are informed that our local hay merchant, Fred Moor, will have a sale of his personal property, next week. He will move to the city, where he has accepted the position of engineer on an electric car.

Clifford Shannon, a nephew of Chas. Clore, was attacked by Abe Clore's dog, one day last week. The dog made a grab for the boy's face, but, luckily, did not draw blood. However, he left the imprint of his teeth on the boy's nose and cheek.

One of the most enjoyable home weddings of the winter in this vicinity, was the ceremony which united Miss Beulah Clore and Mr. Arthur Garnett, and which took place at high noon last Wednesday, Rev. Max Lentz pronouncing the binding words. Only the immediate relatives of the young couple were in attendance. Following the ceremony, accompanied by Rev. Lentz and wife, the wedding party adjourned to the residence of Robt. Rouse (an uncle of the bride) where a sumptuous supper was served in honor of the occasion. Miss Beulah wore a handsome blue cloth suit, trimmed in silk with hat and gloves to match, while the groom wore the conventional black. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents, which our limited space will not permit us to mention. After dispensing with the delicious refreshments, the guests spent a few hours with the bride and groom, when they departed with the best wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Garnett.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1899. NO. 12.

THE President allowed the Senate to read the peace treaty last week.

THERE is not a toll-gate in Grant county, the last one having been thrown open last week.

GOV. HOLCOMB'S farewell message to the Nebraska legislature contained twenty-five thousand words.

THE Spanish newspapers continue to charge the Americans with all kinds of atrocities in the Philippines.

EDWARD F. MCGRATH, deputy warden of the Frankfort penitentiary, and prominent Democratic politician, died on the 8th inst.

IT looks very much like many of the Governors think the public gauges their ability by the length of the message they write.

A FULL outfit for the Democratic nomination for State officers are now before the people, making their wants in that direction known.

AND the treaty of peace with Spain went to the Senate without any comments from the President. Is he going to desert it in a time when it most needs friends?

THAT Louisville paper that has nominated several Democratic candidates for President in the last month has exhausted its list—it has not made a nomination for two weeks last past.

THE Fiscal Court has eased up on the bills presented against the county by constables for exofficio services rendered in Commonwealth cases, and compromised the matter by scaling a bill down one-half.

OWENTON people want the electric railway built from Carrollton to their neat little city in the hills. They think the road is the only thing needed to make Owenton one of the leading cities in Northern Kentucky.

THE War Investigation Committee is expected to report some time during next month, but the public has lost interest in the investigation, because it is believed that the Committee's report will be a whitewash from start to finish.

THOMAS JERROLL, of La Porte county, Indiana, was elected as representative in the legislature, by the laboring men, he claims, and to emphasize his appreciation of their support, he wears blue overalls in the House during its session.

GEN. MILES has not been scared into a belief that he was mistaken about that embalmed beef which he charged was furnished for the soldiers, but on the contrary he is making life a burden for some who were interested in the beef contracts.

THE Republicans of the Indiana legislature held a caucus, last night, to nominate a candidate for United States Senator. It looks very much like the Indiana Republicans have dropped the old stagers, and will draft a comparatively political stranger for the office.

DAY by day it grows more apparent that Spain is to get twenty millions of dollars for a piece of property which she can not deliver to the purchaser, and that Uncle Sam will have to institute ejectment proceedings for possession of his real estate on the other side of the world.

IT is predicted that Union will come to the front with two and possibly three candidates for the Legislature, while Florence, Walton and Beaver will present one each, and Petersburg anywhere from one to four; Rabbit Hash has her favorite son, also. Would not such a brigade make Rome howl?

THERE is but one Populist member of the Indiana State Senate, and when the legislature met, he called a party caucus to nominate candidates for the offices to be chosen by the Senate. He nominated himself for each and every office to elect, and in the election received every vote of his party for each of the several offices.

AGAIN the report comes from Louisville that ex-Governor John Young Brown will, in a few days, announce himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. This report has been launched at Louisville periodically until no attention is paid to it, although Brown would make a strong candidate.

THE Tobacco Growers' State League advises the farmers to hold their crops, for which they will surely receive better prices. Unless the farmers heed the league's advice, the time has arrived when the crop will begin to move, as it is desired to have it out of the way of the work that has to be looked after henceforth.

GOV. MOUNT, of Indiana, like Gov. Bradley, advocates making a county in which a lynching occurs liable in damages to the nearest of kin to the party lynched. The laws against mob violence are now sufficient if enforced, and a new law like the one above mentioned, if enforced, would be a punishment of a lot of innocent persons for the acts of the guilty.

THE Democrats in Congress will not oppose the ratification of the treaty of peace with Spain, but they will fight the proposition to keep the Philippine Islands to the last. Democracy is unalterably opposed to a military government and that is the only way by which it is believed that the mixed population of those islands can be controlled.

FRANCE has 400,000 officeholders, called functionaries, who draw each year in salaries 615,000,000 frances, or about $123,000,000. The sober-minded people of the country are alarmed over the annual increase in the number of these office-holders, but the problem is difficult, owing to the universal desire of the French to secure Government places even at small salaries.

THERE is now every indication that this country will have to engage in a war with the Philippinos, and compel their submission. If they are determined to resist this country's possession of the islands, they will make a more serious contest than that put up by Spain, and the war which Spain transferred to America for a large money consideration will cost many lives and an additional large amount of money.

IN his message to the Michigan Legislature Gov. Pingree took a decided stand in his opposition to the annexation of the Philippines, on the grounds that they are in no way necessary to our safety. He says of the annexation scheme: "It is simply a weak imitation of the policy of European monarchies, conceived in apparent ignorance or indifference respecting the vastly different conditions which have forced those Powers into distant colonization."

THE Ohio newspaper that took the judgment of its readers on the question "Who is the greatest living American?" received some interesting answers. Mark Hanna did not get a vote. Admiral Dewey ran first with 9,500 votes out of 70,000 cast. William Jennings Bryan ran second, with 7,866 votes, and William McKinley ran third with 7,758, and this in Ohio. Hobson, Schley, Sampson and Roosevelt also ran, with others, male and female. Grover Cleveland was left at the post.

SOUTHERN men who go to Washington these days nearly all have something to say about the propositions to admit Confederate veterans to government Soldiers' Homes and the pension roll, and the substance of the opinions of nine-tenths of them is, if any one supposes that the southern people have the romotest idea that the veterans of the Confederate Army or their friends expect pensions of the U. S. Government or even reception into the Soldiers' Homes, a grievously mistaken notion is cherished. The people are not dreaming of any such idea, for they are too sensible to entertain any proposition so utterly romantic, not to say absurb. The old Johnnies are doing first-rate without any bounty from Washington. The pension list is already big enough, and there is no need for further burdens.

FISCAL COURT.

The Fiscal Court convened on Tuesday morning of last week, Judge Roberts presiding, and Esquires Gaines, Green, Noell, Byland and Walton, being present, Esq. Ryle not in attendance on account of illness. Sidney Gaines kept the record for the court.

Tuesday the court put in a good part of the day trying to adjust the salary of the County Superintendent of schools. The result was the Superintendent was allowed 400 for services during the year 1898, and his salary for 1899 fixed at $500. There was considerable feeling displayed in the matter before it was finally settled. Atty. O. M. Rogers appeared for Mr. Voshell and made a strong argument in his behalf.

The Sheriff was allowed 798 delinquent poll tax payers, being 60 less than were allowed last year. This allowance gives him a credit of $1,197 against the whole amount of poll-tax charged against him.

The following amounts were ordered paid the doctors for the pauper practice done by them last year: M. J. Crouch, $50; Wm. Clore, $25; Dr. Moffett, $25; Jones & Duncan, $25; Finnell, Menifee and McCormick, $25; Elijah Ryle, $25; J. M. Grant, $25; H. A. Williamson, $24; A. A. Murat, $25; J. F. Smith, $250. The same amount was appropriated for the pauper practice in 1899, less $50 deducted from the amount allowed Dr. J. F. Smith for last year. The salary of the county Judge and county attorney was fixed at $400 each for 1899.

There were three applicants for the position of superintendent of the county infirmary—J. F. Blyth, F. P. Bruce and W. T. German. Mr. Blyth was the successful applicant.

County levy for general purposes 5 cents on each $100 worth of taxable property, $1,50 on each poll.

The roads will be worked this year under the same law as last year.

The levy for road purposes for next year is fixed at 10 cents on each $100 worth of taxable property, but no poll tax for road purposes will be collected for this year.

The court has decided that beginning January 1, 1900, that the roads of this county shall be worked by both hands and taxation. All hands subject to road work shall be required to work not less than two days on the public roads of the county.

Atty. Lassing, Judge Roberts and Sheriff Beall spent considerable time in the preparation of the statement showing the financial condition of the county, and they say it is a thing of beauty and will be a joy forever.

Atty. G. G. Hughes appeared before the court Friday morning to urge it to have the court house rodded; and also to have it to take some steps to remedy the public privy which he charges is a nuisance.

A rule was ordered to be issued against H. Bannister, delinquent tax collector, requiring him to appear before the court on the first day of its next regular term and show cause why he should be required to settle his accounts as such collector.

The committee which has been superintending the repairs on the court house was continued, and empowered to have done any and all repairs that in the judgment of the members of the committee are necessary to the building.

John Watson, constable of Walton, presented a claim of a class that has heretofore been rejected by the court on the grounds of it being exofficio, but at this term he was allowed one-half of the claim, six dollars and fifty cents.

Don't disfigure any of the rooms in the Court-house by tearing out the mantles. There is not a mantle about the building that is not used more or less.

The list of claims allowed by this Court and the County Court during the past year are found in another column, and furnishes considerable information for the public.

SOME of the Cubans are not showing a disposition to submit to this country's rule just yet.

Work of Equalization Board.

The Board of Equalization met in the grand jury room on the 2d inst., and organized by electing J. R. Clutterbuck, chairman; R. A. Brady, Surgeant-at-Arms; W. M. Rogers, tip-staff; J. N. Pearson, door-keeper. B. W. Adams is exofficio clerk of the board, and T. J. Adams, exofficio coal heaver and water carrier. Messrs. N. S. Walton is an ex-legislator, R. A. Brady, ex-assessor, J. R. Clutterbuck, ex-sheriff, J. N. Pearson, a county election commissioner, and W. M. Rogers a man of large experience in the work of the board. Assessor Wilis and his deputy, Elmo Gaines, were in attendance, [illegible] attentive to the business as it progressed, and the result of the board's deliberation shows that they did their work remarkably well for new men in the business. The following shows what the board did by precincts:

CARLTON—

The following lists were given an increase in this precinct:

Lewis Clore. $400 on 153 acres of land; J. R. Stephens, $200 on 40 acres, and $200 on 118 acres; R. T. Stephens, $50 on 25 acres; O. J. Harris, $1,000 on 440 acres. No list in this precinct was reduced.

HAMILTON—

The following lists were increased:

A. A. Allphin, $500 on 150 acres; Mrs. M. J. Hume, $575 on 38 acres; J. C. Miller, $100 on 6 acres; H. J. Harris, $500 on 175 acres. The following list was reduced. Harry Adams, $1,000 on store.

BEAVER—

Lists were increased as follows in this precinct:

B. C. Bedinger, $400 on 118 acres; C. C. Sleet, $1,000 on 204 acres. No reductions for any of the Beaverites.

VERONA—

Only two lists were disturbed in this precinct:

J. H. Callahan was raised $115 two town lots, and Mary Dempsey was reduced $300 on 47 acres of land.

WALTON—

This precinct got a considerable shaking up, and each of the following persons drew an increase for his list:

Bagby & Tomlin, $300 on 170 acres; James Delahaunty, $300 on 218 acres; Dean, Richard & Co., $500 on store; T. F. Curley, $400 on store; Brittenhelm Bros., $300 on store, and $340 on town lot; Edwards Bros., on hearse, etc., $500; W. N. Hind, $100 on town lot; Elijah Northcutt, $70 town lot; Geo. Richey, $100 on 9 acres. The following Walton people will be surprised to learn that they are not as wealthy as they thought they were, and as a consequence their lists were reduced. Jane E. Johnson, 400 on 42 acres; Wm. O. Richey, 100 on 12 acres; John A. Roberts' estate, 750 on 110 acres.

UNION—

Only four persons in this precinct, who, in the opinion of the supervisors, were off in the valuation of their property for taxation, and they were each given a raise. J. W. Conner, 515 on 98½ acres; H. A. Hicks, 1,000 on 475 acres, and 250 on cattle and sheep; R. T. Clemnets, onstore, 200.

FLORENCE—

The following list were increased: Geo. N. Buffington, $1,905 on 91 acres; W. P. Carpenter, $700 on 135 acres; Fernando Carpenter, $250 on 83 acres; C. W. Myers, $300 on store, house and dwelling; Mrs. Mary S. Nead, $300 on 2 lots; W. Eli Rouse, $200 on 10 acres; Ben Stephens, sr., $560 on 64 acres; Linville Souther's estate, $150 on 12 acres.

The following lists were reduced: Miss Fannie Hampton, on lot; $200; Jas. O'Kane, $1,000 on 60 acres; Marion Stephens, $200 on 47 acres.

BELLEVUE—

Every list that was disturbed in the Bellevue precinct was given a "hist," and they are as follows:

Davis Clore, $100 on down lot in McVille; Eugene Kelly, $180 on 76 acres; J. H. Lawell, $380 on 66 acres; Evaline Rice, $150 on 50 acres; Wm. Walton, $2,000 on 400 acres; J. J. Walton, $1,000 on 340 acres.

BURLINGTON—

The following lists were increased: Geo. Blyth, $340 on 30 acres; D. E. Castleman, $150 on 8 acres; W. B. Craven, $400 on 140 acres; J. G. Furnish, $500 on 93 acres; Legrand Gaines, $500 on 90 acres; A. O. Hall, $100 on lot in Burlington; J. G. Furnish, $500 on 20 acres at Bellevue; F. Riddell, $500 on house occupied by S. Gaines; J. C. Revill, $500 on house and lot; F. & W. L. Riddell, $500 on 152 acres of land; Charles Uutz, colored, $100 on two acres; Wm. Utz, $100 on 4 acres.

CONSTANCE—

Only two lists were changed in this precinct. The Coney Island Co., was increased $3,850 on 86 acres, Chas. Kotmeyer's ferry property was raised $2,500.

BULLITTSVILLE—

The supervisors made few changes in this precinct. A. W. Corn was increased $500 on 265 acres; W. G. Graves, $500 on 169 acres; listed for M. T. Graves, guardian for Lewis Gaines, $300 omitted; Benj. Wainscott ordered summoned to appear before the board to show why he had failed to list $1,700 surplus he gave in last year; Webb Bros. increased $500 on 270 acres of land; Eva Webb released from four acres, same being listed twice.

PETERSBURG—

Elihu Alden, raised $350 on valuation of steamdoat; Elijah Grant, $100 on town lot; J. M. Grant, on 10 town lots, $200; Edward Gaines, $500 on 295 acres; Elijah Holton, $300 on household goods, etc. Arthur Walton, colored, $150 on lot.

The board adjourned until the fourteenth of this month, by which time the sheriff will have notified all those whose property has been raised, to appear before the board on that day to that day to interpose objections, if any they have.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Jan. 7th, 1899.

The treaty of peace will be taken up by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, this week. Opinions differs as to how soon a vote will be reached. In fact, there will be nothing tangible upon which to base an opinion until the opponents of the treaty indicate their intentions. It is claimed that 70 Senators have promised to vote for ratification. Even if that claim be correct, enough Senators would be left against the treaty to prevent, if they are so disposed, its being voted upon at this session, as the appropriation bills, not one of which has yet been passed by the Senate, the Nicaragua Canal bill and other measures will all be pressing for action, with the probability that an extra session will be necessary growing stronger every day.

Jerry Simpson was in his seat when Congress reassembled, for the first time this session. He is the same old Jerry; defeat hasn't soured him at all. He says he is still in politics and expects to be as long as he lives. He is strongly opposed to the large standing army provided for by the Hull bill, and will be heard from before the bill is jamed through the House.

IT EXPLAINS ITSELF.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT, BOONE CO.

Commonwealth of Kentucky, vs. George Howard, Frank Howard and Albert Howard. | Statement.

Comes A. R. Hance, the same person who made oath to the affidavit upon which a warrant was issued in the above styled case, charging the said Geo. Howard, Frank Howard and Albert Howard with the crime of horse-stealing, and says that he made said affidavit under a mistake; that he does not now and did not at the time he made said affidavit, intend to accuse said Howard of the crime of horse-stealing, and did not intend to convey to the public the statement that said Howards were guilty of said offence; and now corrects his statement and retacts any of his statements contained in said affidavit charging the said Howards of the crime alleged in said affidavit.

WANT MORE DAVIDS.

Dr. Talmage Says Every Community Should Have One.

The People Need Energetic Christian Leaders in Their Fight Against Satan—Lesson from the Old Prophet.

From a text probably never before discoursed upon Dr. Talmage in this sermon shows how some people multiply their resources for usefulness and in a novel way urges the putting forth of more energy in right directions: text, II. Samuel 18:3: "Thou art worth 10,000 of us."

One of the most wondrous characters of his time was David. A red-haired boy, he could shepherd a flock or carry "ten loaves and ten slices of milk cheese to his brothers in the regiment," or with leathern thong, stone-loaded, bring down a giant whose armor weighed two hundredweight of metal, or cause a lion which roured at him in rage to roar with pain as he flung it dying, to the roadside, or could marshal a host or rule an empire, or thumb a harp so successfully that it cured Saul's dementia—a harp from whose strings dripped pastorals, elegies, lyrics, triumphal marches, benedictions. Now, this man, a combination of music and heroics, of dithyrambs and battlefields, of country quietudes and statesmanship, is to fit out a military expedition. Four thousand troops, according to Josephus, were sent into the field. The captains were put in command of the companies and the colonels in command of the regiments, which were disposed into right wing, left wing and center. Gen. Joab, Gen. Abishai and Gen. Ittai are to lead these three divisions. But who shall take the field as commander in chief? David offers his services, and proposes to go to the front. He will lead them in the awful charge, for he has not a cowardly nerve in all his body. He did not propose to have his troops go into perils which he himself would not brave, and the battlefield required as much courage then as now, for the opposing forces must, in order to do any execution at all, come up to within positive reach of saber and spear. But there came up from the troops and the civilians a mighty protest against David's taking the field. His life was too important to the nation. If he went down, the empire went down, whereas if the whole 4,000 of the ranks were slain another army might be furnished and the defeat turned into victory. The army and the nation practically cried out: "No! No! You cannot go to the front. We estimate you as 10,000 men. Thou art worth 10,000 of us!"

That army and that nation then and there reminded David, and now remind us, of the fact which we forget or never appreciate at all: that some people are morally or spiritually worth far more than others and some worth far less. The census and statistics of neighborhoods, of churches, of nations, serve their purpose, but they can never accurately express the real state of things. The practical subject that I want to present to-day is that those who have especial opportunity, especial graces, especial wealth, especial talent, especial eloquence, ought to make up by especial assiduity and consecration for those who have less opportunities and less gifts. You ought to do ten times more for God and human uplifting than those who have only a tenth of your equipment. The rank and the file of the 4,000 of the text told the truth when they said: "Thou art worth 10,000 of us."

In no city of its size are there so many men of talent as are gathered in this capital of the American nation. Some of the states are at times represented by men who have neither talents nor good morals. Their political party compensates them for partisan services by sending them to congress, or by securing for them positions in the war or navy or pension or printing departments. They were nobodies before they left home, and they are nobodies here. But they are exceptional. All the states of the Union generally send their most talented men and men of exemplary lives and noble purposes. Some of them have the gifts and qualifications of ten men, of 100 men—yea, of 1,000 men—and their constituents could truthfully employ the words of my text and say: "Thou art worth 10,000 of us."

With such opportunity are they augmenting their usefulness in every possible direction? It is a stupendous thing to have power—political power, social power, official power. It has often been printed and often quoted as one of the wise sayings of the ancients: "Knowledge is power." Yet, it may as certainly be power for evil as for good. The lightning express rail train has power for good if it is on the track, but horrible power for disaster if it leaves the track and plunges down the embankment. The ocean steamer has power for good sailing in right direction and in safe waters and under good helmsmen and wide awake watchmen on the lookout, but indescribable power for evil if under full headway it strikes the breakers. As steam power or electricity or water forces may be stored in boilers, in dynamos, in reservoirs, to be employed all over a town or city, so God sometimes puts in one man enough faith to supply thousands of men with courage. If a man happens to be thus endowed, let him realize his opportunity and improve it. At this time millions of men are a-tremble lest this nation make a mistake, and enter upon some policy of government for the islands of the sea that will founder the republic. God will give to a few men on both sides of this question faith and courage for all the rest. There are two false positions many are now taking, false as false can be. The one is that if we decline to take under full charge Cuba and Porto Rico and the Philippines we make a declaration that will be disastrous to our nation, and other nations will take control of those archipelagoes and rule them, and perhaps to our humiliation and destruction. The other theory is that if we take possession of those once Spanish colonies we invite foreign interference, and enter upon a career that will finally be the demolition of this government. Both positions are immeasurable mistakes. God has set apart this continent for free government, and the triumphs of Christianity, and we may take either the first or the second course without ruin. We may say to those islands, "We do not want you, but we have set you free; now stay free, while we see that the Spanish panther never again puts its paw on your neck," or we may invite the annexation of Cuba and Porto Rico, and say to the Philippines: "Get ready, by education and good morals, for free government, and at the right time you shall be one of our territories, on the way to be one of our states."

And there is no power in Europe, Asia or Africa or all combined that could harm this nation in its worldwide endeavor. God is on the side of the right, and by earnest imploration for Divine guidance on the part of this nation we will be led to do the right. We are on the brink of nothing. There is no frightful crisis. This train of republican and democratic institutions is a through train, and all we want is to have the engineer and the brakeman and the conductor attend to their business and the passengers keep their places. We want men in this nation with faith enough for all. We want here and there a David worth 10,000 men.

A vast majority of men have no surplus of confidence for others and hardly enough confidence for themselves. They go through life saying depressing things and doing depressing things. They chill prayer meetings, discourage charitable institutions, injure commerce and kill churches. They blow out lights when they ought to be kindling them. They hover around n dull fire on their own hearth and take up so much room that no one can catch the least caloric, instead of stirring the hearth into a blaze, the crackles of whose backlog would invite the whole neighborhood to come in to feel the abounding warmth and see the transfiguration of the faces. As we all have to guess a great deal about the future, let us guess something good, for it will be more encouraging and the guess will be just as apt to come true. What a lot of ingraters the Lord has at His table—people who have had three meals a day for 50 years and yet fear that they will soon have to rattle their knife and fork on an empty dinner plate! How many have had, winter and spring and summer and fall, clothing for 60 years, but expect an empty wardrobe shortly! How many have lived under free institutions all their days, but fear that the United States may be telescoped in some foreign collision! Oh, but the taxes have gone up! Yes, but, thank God, it is easier, with money, to pay the taxes now that they are up than it was without money to pay the taxes when they were down. We want a few men who have faith in God and that mighty future which holds several things, among them a millennium. Columbanus said to his friend: "Deicolus, why are you always smiling?" The reply was: "Because no one can take my God from me!" We want more men to feel that they have a mission to cheer others and to draw up the corners of people's mouths which have long while been drawn down—more Davids who can shepherd whole flocks of bright hopes and play a harp of encouragement and strike down a Goliath of despair, and of whom we can say: "Thou art worth 100,000 of us."

I admit that this thought of my text, fully carried out, would change many of the world's statistics. Suppose a village is said to have 1,000 inhabitants and that one-half of them—namely, 500—have for years been becoming less in body, and through niggardliness and grumbling, less in soul. Each one of these is only one-half of what he once was, or one-half of what he once was. The original 500 have been reduced one-half in moral quality, and are really only 250. Suppose that the other 500 have maintained their original status and are neither better nor worse. Then the entire population of that village is 750. But suppose another village of 1,000, and 500 of them as the years go by, through mental and spiritual culture, augment themselves until they are really twice the men and women they originally were, and the other 500 remain unchanged and are neither better nor worse, then the population of that village is 1,500. Meanness is subtraction and nobility is addition. According as you rise in the scale of holiness and generosity and consecration, you are worth 5 or 10 or 50 or 100 or 1,000 or 10,000.

Notice, my friend, that this David, warrior, strategist, minstrel, master of blank verse and stone slinger at the giant, whom the soldiers of the text estimated clear up into the thousandfold of usefulness, on this particular occasion staid at home or in his place of temporary residence. Gen. Joab, Gen. Abishai and Gen. Ittai, who commanded the boys in the right wing and left wing and center, did their work bravely and left 25,000 of the Lord's enemies dead on the field, and many of the survivors got entangled in the woods of Ephrnim, and mixed up in the bushes, and stumbled over the stumps of trees, and fell into bogs, and were devoured by wild beasts which seized them in the thickets. But David did his work at home. We all buzza for heroes who have been in battle, and on their return what processions we form, and what triumphal arches we spring, and what banquets we spread, and what garlands we wreathe, and what orations we deliver, and what bells we ring, and what cannonades we fire! But do we do justice to the stay at homes? David, who was worth 10,000 of those who went out to meet the Lord's enemies in the woods of Ephraim that day did his work in retirement.

Oh, the world needs a day of judgment to give many of the stay at homes proper recognition, in the different wars the sons went to the front and on ship's deck or battlefield exposed their lives and earned the admiration of the country. But how about the mothers and fathers who through long years taught those sons the noble sentiments that inspired them to succeed then gave them up, when perhaps a few words of earnest protest would have kept them on the farm and in the homestead? The day of final reward will reveal the self-sacrifice and the fidelity of thousands who never in all their lives received one word of praise. Oh, ye unknown, ye faithful and Christian and all enduring stay at homes! I have no power now to do you justice, but I tell you of one who has the power, and of the day when He will put it forth. It will be the day when the thluble, and the ladle, and the darning needle, and the washtub, and the spinning wheel, and the scythe, and the thrashing machine, and the hammer, and the trowel, and the plow, will come to as high an appreciation as a 74-pounder, or the sword, or the battering ram that pounded down the wall, or the flag that was hoisted on the scaled parapets.

The warrior David of my text needed more self-control and moral prowess in staying at home than he could have shown commanding in the field. He was a natural warrior. Martial airs stirred him. The glitter of opposing shields fired him. He was one of those men who feel at home in the saddle, patting the neck of a pawing cavalry horse. But he suppressed himself. He obeyed the command of the troops whom he would like to have commanded.

Some of the greatest Sedans and Austerlitzes have been in buckwoods kitchens or in nursery with three children down with scarlet fever, soon to join the two already in the churchyard, or amid domestic wrongs and outrages enough to transform angels into devils, or in commercial life within their own counting-rooms in time of Black Friday panics, or in mechanical life in their own carpenter shop, or on the scaffolding of walls swept by cold or smitten by heat. No telegraphic wires reported the crisis of the conflict, no banner was ever waved to celebrate their victory, but God knows and God will remember, and God will adjust, and by Him the falling of a tear is as certainly noticed as the burning of a world and the flutter of a sparrow's wing as the flight of the apocalyptic archangel.

Oh, what a God we have for small things as well as big things! David no more helped at the front than helped at home. The four regiments mobilized for the defense of the throne of Israel were right in protesting against David's exposure of his life at the front. Had he been pierced of an arrow, or cloven down with a battleax, or fatally slung from snorting war charger, what a disaster to the throne of Israel! Absolom, his son, was a low fellow and unfit to reign; his two chief characteristics were his handsome face and his long hair—so long that when he had it cut that which was scissored off weighed "200 shekels after the king's weight," and when a man has nothing but a handsome face and an exuberance of hair, there is not much of him. The capture and slaying of David would have been a calamity irreparable. Unnecessary exposure would have been a crime for David, as it is a crime for you.

In nine cases out of ten in fatalities every day reported are not the fault of engineers or brakemen or conductors or cab drivers, but of the stupidity and recklessness of people at street or railroad crossings. They would like to have the Chicago limited express train, with 300 passengers, advertised to arrive at a certain hour in a certain city, slow up to let them get two minutes sooner to their destination, not one farthing of their own or any one else's welfare dependent on whether they arrive one minute before 12 o'clock or one minute after. You ought to get permission from a railroad superintendent to mount beside the engineer on a locomotive to realize how many evils of recklessness there are in the world—funeral processions whipping up to get across before the cowcatcher strikes the hearse; man of family, with wife and children beside him in a wagon, evidently having made close calculation as to whether a stroke from the locomotive would put them backward or forward in the journey to the village grocery; traveler on a railroad bridge hoping that he could get to the end of the bridge before the train reaches it. You have no right to put your life in peril unless by such exposure some thing is to be gained for others. What imbecility in thousands of Americans during our recent Americo-Spanish war disappointed because the surrender came so soon, and they could not have the advantage of being shot at San Juan hill, or brought down with the yellow fever and carried on a litter to transport steamers, already so many floating lazarettos, instead of thanking God that they got no nearer to the slaughter than Tampa or Chattanooga or the encampment at their own state capital, mad at the government, mad at God, because they could not get to the front in time to join the 4,000 corpses that are now being transported from the tropics to the national cemeteries of the United States! Exposure and daring are admirable when duty calls, but keep out of peril when nothing practical and useful is to be gained for your family or your country or your God. I admire the David of my text as he suppresses himself and enters the gate of his castle as much as I admire him when with his four fingers and thumb clutched into the grizzly locks of Goliath's head, which he had decapitated, and Saul admiringly asks: "Whose son art thou, young man?" and David, blushing with genuine modesty, responds: "I am the son of thy servant, Jesse, the Bethlehemite."

TROUT COOKED ON THE HOOK.

Conclusion of One Fishy Story Told About the Wonders of Yellowstone Park.

"You needn't think that just because I have been out there I am going to give you all the details of a surprise which I did not feel at the stock tales of the Yellowstone park," said the critical tourist. "Anybody knows that boiling water will cook fish, and so long as you know that the Yellowstone is full of geysers and boiling springs I don't see what there is wonderful about catching a trout and then turning around and dangling it in a boiling spring until it is cooked. It would begin to be wonderful if boiling water didn't cook fish every where.

"But I wish when they are telling this old story they'd finish it up—make it complete. The next time you hear anybody tell that story just you watch out for the way it ends. It never ends. The man tells how he caught the trout. Well and good; anybody can catch hundreds of trout in those overstocked waters. Then he tells how he swung around on his heel and, without taking the fish from the hook, lowered it into a pool of boiling water and cooked it. Well, what's the end of the story? There isn't any end. He just chortles about how he was overcome by the marvels of nature and that sort of thing. He doesn't say another word about the fish. Now, if you will only let the marvels of nature come and keep your eye fixed on the fish with which the story began it will look mighty different.

"There is the pool of boiling water pretty handy, but not by any means to be reached by pivoting on the fisherman's heel. Then just so's to have something to talk about when he gets home the fisherman souses his live trout into the boiling water. If it's cruelty to broil a live lobster there ought to be something done to a man who will boil a trout alive. And it spoils the fish; the man has to throw it away after he has shoved it through nature's marvels for the sake of his miserable little story. Nobody can eat a trout that has been boiled with all its scales on and all the machinery in place; it's got to be thrown away. There's another thing, too, about this story. The next time you hear it ask the man if he took the trout out of the pool of boiling water. If he says he did, then the fish didn't begin to be cooked, for anybody who has ever seen a boiled fish of any sort knows that when it's done it won't hold together tight enough to be lifted unless it's wrapped in a napkin before it's cooked.

"So there you have the plain facts about cooking trout on the hook. I know, because I thought it was such a great marvel of nature that I had to go and try it. Then I saw what happened, and I haven't yet got through feeling disgusted with myself."—N. Y. Sun.

THE MUFF IN HISTORY.

It Has Been Carried by Fair Women in All Lands for Many Centuries.

In many sixteenth century portraits one sees wound around the wrist of a noble dame a piece of rich, soft fur, which was used to cover the neck or to fulfill the functions of a muff. To this is often attached some little fantasy, an animal's head, a skull, perhaps, cleverly wrought and adorned with precious stones.

Like many another article of dress, the muff was at first the exclusive property of the nobility, but when it appeared in Venice it was carried by courtesans as well as by women of the highest rank. The first Venetian muffs were very small, made of a single piece of velvet, brocade or silk, lined with fur, the openings fastening with exquisite buttons of gold and silver enriched with precious stones.

By 1662 the muff seems to have been recognized as a necessary adjunct of the wardrobe of a lady of fashion. In Evelyn's "Mundus Mulierbris," written at this time, numbers of gowns, "boddices," shoe buckles; of perfumed gloves, "jonquil, tube rose, frangipan, orange, violet, narcissus, jessamin, ambrett, and some of chicken skin for night to keep her hands plump, soft and white," are enumerated, and also "three muffs of ermine, sable, gray." It will be noticed that my lady has no black muff. Many years before Charles IX., "Fidgety Killjoy" as he was called, regulated the costumes of the classes—the bourgeoise to use black muffs, and only the women of rank to carry those of various colors.

At the time of the national convention in Paris the muffs were large and flat, fantastic as were all the fashions of that time. In colonial days in America they were also very large, but round.

About 1830 the muffs were principally of chinchilla, of moderate size, and were often used with what would seem to us an incongruous combination of straw bonnets and thin slippers.

In an old "Dictionaire Amoureux" the muff is defined as "a letter box lined with white satin."—Cosmopolitan.

Venom in Snakes.

By remembering two simple facts anyone can distinguish a poisonous serpent from a harmless one. The venomous reptile invariably possesses a triangularly shaped head and a blunt nose, while his tail is correspondingly blunt and stubby. Any snake that tapers smoothly from the middle of its body to the tip of its nose and to the tip of his tail as well, growing slender in a gradual and regular manner, is absolutely devoid of venom.—N. Y. Journal.

"Perhaps he only said that so you would be sure to believe he was blind!"—Lustige Blaetter.

IN THE TIME TO COME.

Prosperity is Present, Naturally, But Inflated Values Will Result and Panic Follow.

Unquestionably the people of the United States were more prosperous on the whole during the year which has just closed than they were in 1897 or in any year since 1892. The bank clearings were greater than in any previous year, indicating a greater aggregate of transactions. The foreign demand for our products of agriculture, extraordinary as it was in 1897, was not less, though prices were somewhat lower, in 1898. The cotton crop of the year was the largest ever produced and growers were fairly prosperous, though they received less per pound for their product than in previous years. The exports of manufactured articles were of greater value than ever before, and for the first time in the history of the country exceeded the value of like imports. Business failures were fewer and the liabilities of the failed concerns were less than for a number of years. In short, there were abundant evidences of recovery from depression and a return of general prosperity.

Partisans of a certain variety lay it all to the republican party—to the Dingley law, which was a republican measure; to the triumph of an alleged gold standard candidate in 1896; who has done not a thing to insure the maintenance of that standard, and even to the war with Spain, for which President McKinley has not yet claimed all the credit and which has been a considerable tax upon the earnings of the people.

Such is the politician's view. The business view, as expressed by Bradstreet's and other commercial agencies, is that the country has been prosperous not because of but in spite of the war; not because of anything that party politicians have done, but because of favoring conditions upon which party policies and schemes have had no influence—abundant crops and extraordinary foreign demand for our surplus and the natural processes of recuperation after a period of depression.

And the business view is the right one. The time had come for recovery from the prostrating effects of the collapse of 1893, and recovery began. It began, indeed, in 1897, having been hastened by an unusual shortage in the production of foodstuffs abroad. It was continued in 1898 with further acceleration from the same source.

How little the politicians have had to do with it we may gather from the parallelism between the periods of 1893-98 and 1873-78. In 1873 there was a panic as disastrous as that of 1893. It was followed by depression and distress so great that many despaired of recovery and came to believe that the country had passed beyond the stage of rapid development and would have to settle down to the slow pace of the older countries. But in 1877 signs of recovery appeared, and in 1878, when congress sent out a commission to find out why times were so hard, the discovery was made that times were not hard, but that the people were doing very well indeed.

In like manner we heard despairing cries in 1895 and 1896, and many seemed really to have given way to the conviction that the country could never more be prosperous. But recovery began, as above stated, in 1897 and continued until now, just as in 1877 and 1878, when there was no war and no shifting of party power.

If the parallel holds for the future as it has done so far the new year will be happier than the old. The country will grow more prosperous until 1902; then a pause, ending in semipanic in 1904; from that on a fluctuating but generally improving condition leading up to inflated values, and another panic about 1913. But let us hope that some economic discoverer will arise to save us from another catastrophe at that time.—Chicago Chronicle.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

—Since using the McKinley brand of soft soap, the south will have no other.—Albany Argus.

—The people must abolish the trusts or the trusts will reduce the masses to bankruptcy and slavery.—Houston (Tex.) Post.

—When it becomes generally known that Mark Hanna has this expansion business fixed, a whole lot of people will quit sitting up nights over it.—St. Louis Republic.

—The new secretary of the interior was not born in Ohio, but as he did not have the choosing of his birthplace the people of that state may forgive him with the caution that it must not occur again.—Denver Post.

—"If H. H. Hanna," says Mark Hanna, "expects any currency legislation, or any extra session, he had better bang up his fiddle." Apropos whereof, the Waterbury American observes that as Mark generally suggests to Duty and Destiny what they had better whisper in the president's ear, H. H., the currency reformer, should get his pointer in time.—Albany Argus.

—Republican capitalists themselves are beginning to see that if we are to derive the greatest possible good from our enlargement of territory we must be in a position to both buy and sell; that we cannot continue to exclude other people's goods and sell our own in foreign markets. The free traders have had a long wait, but their time is coming.—Rochester Herald.

—Every job, every extravagance that the hangers-on at Washington can devise is flaunting itself in the name of expansion. A petty, but insignificant, instance of this spirit is afforded by the act of the house last week increasing the police force of the capitol building from 49 to 67. In vain did dissenting members call attention to the notorious fact that these police have only nominal duties and only nominally attend to them. The job went through the house like lightning.—Boston Globe.

BREEDS IMPERIALISM.

A Natural and Certain Result of the Policy of Expansion Advocated by Republicans.

The San Francisco Chronicle grandiloquently remarks that there will be no imperialism to combat, but that if the democratic party proposes to fight expansion it will not only have to contend with the republican party, but with the patriotic and far-sighted voters in its own ranks, and with the Jeffersonian and Jacksonian principles as well. Fiddlesticks. An acre of such "words, words, words," is not worth a rush. Jeffersonian and Jacksonian principles never contemplated the acquisition of vassal states, and that is what so distinguished a republican as Senator Hoar says we will get if we take the Philippines. The association of the name of Thomas Jefferson with expansion is in connection with the Louisiana purchase. That was not a case of imperialism. We took in a large piece of territory with a primitive population incapable of advancement. We proceeded to exterminate it. Or, rather, it has almost disappeared in front of the march of civilization. We got a lot of territory from Mexico, with some miserable people who have not counted in the general development. The older portion of the country has furnished the thriving population for the new. With the Philippine Islands we get a population that will not be so easily disposed of. It will have to be preserved and governed by military rule. Just now there seems to be nothing in sight but holding the archipelago as a vassal state.

It is too soon to boast of what the republican or any other party is going to do about expansion or imperialism. The mind of President McKinley is not necessarily made up. The ratification of the treaty with Spain would not make it necessary for the United States to annex the Philippines. The way would still be open for the establishment of an independent government, such as is contemplated for Cuba. This country has jumped at several conclusions during the last nine or ten months, but it will be well to study the prime conclusions awhile. The policy of possible oriental acquisition was one of very sudden development. The thinking period will come before we get through with the entire action. Some of those who are now crying out for radical expansion, and denouncing as pessimists and traitors those who hesitate, may see the time when they will acknowledge that they only thought they wanted a widening of the borders. On the other hand, those who advise the government to proceed cautiously, and not without the closest examination of the conditions, may turn out in the end to be the best expansionists of all. The notion that we must grab something merely to show for Dewey's victory is an idle one.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ALGER THE AUTOCRAT.

The Republican Magnate Has His Eye on All the "Good Things" in Sight.

If any investor, syndicate or trust wants a franchise in Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines, the proper person to approach is Secretary Alger, of the war department. An order has been issued by Alger which makes the case clear and which reads as follows:

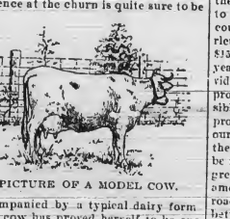
"Until otherwise ordered no grants or concessions of public or corporate rights or franchises for the construction of public or quasi-public works, such as railroads, tramways, telegraph and telephone lines, etc., shall be made by any municipal or other local governmental authority in Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines, except upon the approval of the major general commanding the military forces of the United States in Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines, who shall, before approving any such grant or concession, be specially authorized by the secretary of war."

It is evident from this that the lumber dealer of Michigan, the multi-millionaire who bought his way into the cabinet and who bungled so badly the business of his department that a whitewashing committee had to be appointed in his interests, has resolved that no "soft snaps" in "the colonies" shall escape him. What is congress going to do about it? There concessions are worth many millions of dollars. Is the secretary of war to be allowed the sole and autocratic control in these matters? As a matter of record it may be stated that in the United States franchises on the public domain can only be granted by securing the assent of the house, the senate and the president. But, so far as our new possessions are concerned, Alger is king. His word is law. He can favor his friends and refuse to favor those who have no especial "pull." What is congress going to do about it?—Chicago Democrat.

A Banker's View.

A country banker subscribing to the fund of the ways and means committee, expresses himself as follows: "Enclosed please find my subscription. When the time for action arrives I may do more. The cause of bimetallism must speedily triumph or the mass of our population will be reduced to a condition little better than the peasantry of feudal times. The sturdy manhood of a few decades ago is giving away rapidly to servility. I have been a bimetallist a long time—notwithstanding that for the last 17 years I have been a director of a national bank. Let me make this prediction, that in the fight of 1900 we will have over half of the country bankers with us, for the reason, that they are now simply the custodians of money that cannot be safely or profitably invested. Congestion will even kill a country banker."

—Some of our good protectionist friends are already shivering at the prospect that expansion will necessarily destroy their pet docotrine of protection. A Chinese wall that is punched so full of holes as expansion would punch, isn't worth much for protection purposes.—Utica Observer.



AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

MODEL DAIRY COW.

The Relation Between Form and Performance, Says Webb Donnell, Is Very Close.

Those best qualified to judge in such matters have long taught that there are certain outward marks by which a good dairy cow can be told. None of these teachers, so far as I know, have claimed that one can invariably pick a good cow by her outward form. There are exceptions to all rules, but it is certain that a great majority of the best dairy cows of the world possess in large measure the outward signs that, grouped together, have given us what is called "dairy form."

An instance confirmatory of this came under my notice recently. It was my good fortune to be able thoroughly to examine that wonderful Jersey cow, Signal's Lily Flag, with her championship record of 1,047 pounds nine ounces of butter in one year, now owned at Hood farm. I present herewith a sketch of this cow, made from life, and offer it as another evidence that the highest excellence at the churn is quite sure to be accompanied by a typical dairy form. This cow has proved herself to be one of the greatest dairy cows living, and at the same time she captivates the eye by her wonderful beauty of form. She has the general wedge shape of body, the round barrel, the loose, soft skin and golden color, the clean-cut head and waxy horns, and, above all, perhaps, a wonderful development of udder—not so remarkable in size as in a splendid shape, particularly in the forepart. Note the exceeding fullness in the forepart of the udder, in distinction to the pinched appearance so often seen in that part. Her teats are large and finely placed, and in general there is the look of the almost perfect cow about her, take her where you will.

Perfection of form will not guarantee excellence at the pail and churn, but the possession of it goes a long way toward giving confidence that the possessor of it has the best dairy qualities, as well as the possession of dairy shape. On the other hand, I have rarely seen a cow with an absence of the outward marks which are accepted as indicating quality that has proved to be of any particular merit. Others may have found merit occasionally in cow-teat are without dairy form or feature, but this surely has been exceptional. In buying dairy cows the wise course is to consult the ancestry of the animals, meanwhile comparing the cows, point by point, with the ideal butter cow—an ideal form that to me, at least, is not far away from the shape of Signal's Lily Flag, which is here delineated.

One has only to go about, even through what are called our best dairy districts, to note the great prevalence of cows with small, pinched udders, small, irregularly-placed teats, flat sides and light hindquarters. Some herds seem hardly to be relieved by the presence of even one cow that carries in her body the signs of excellence at the churn. It is small wonder then that we find such herds averaging 200 to 250 pounds of butter a year, with some of the cows probably not producing more than 150 pounds a year—if as much as that. There are thousands of cows in every state that are being kept at an actual loss, the owners not knowing it, because they never test their cows, either scientifically with a Babcock tester, or practically by setting the measured milk of each cow by itself for seven days, or even for one day, and noting the result in cream and butter. This would show at once the cows that are "queering" the dairy business. And when the owner of a herd has thus weeded out the poor cows I am quite sure he will find that practically all of these discredited animals are markedly deficient in the accepted "dairy form."—Webb Donnell, in Country Gentleman.

FRESH DAIRY NOTES.

Timothy hay is a poor milk producer.

The stables in which cows are kept should be light.

Never feed while milking. It is better to feed just after milking.

The cow will not drink as much ice cold water as she should drink.

Cows ought not be kept in a temperature below 50 or above 60 degrees.

Winter dairying gives the farmer and his help employment in a dull season.

These feeds have a tendency to loosen the bowels: Alfalfa, sorghum hay, ensilage, roots, bran and linseed meal.

The milch cow must have plenty of water and the reader knows that we think it should be warmed in winter.

Succulent foods in winter have as much value as medicine as they do as food. They keep the system healthy.

The fall calf can have the advantage of receiving abundant care, for the farmer in winter has time to bestow it.—Western Plowman.

The great value of grafting and budding is that when a choice fruit is obtained it may be continued in all of its excellence.

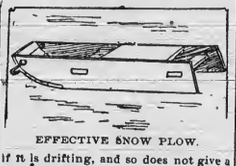
CONGRESSIONAL AID.

Why the National Government Should Take a Money Interest in Road Improvement.

Another expression in favor of having congress take action on the subject of road improvement appears in the Greenville (Mich.) Democrat, in an interview with Dr. A. W. Nichols. The doctor speaks of the necessity of having better roads, and then continues:

"I believe that this country will never have good roads until the government has adopted the policy of supervision and construction of the same. Most of the civilized governments of the old world have built their roads by government appropriations. * * * Government appropriations for good roads would not be felt, but would be a benefit by way of clearing farms of stone and giving employment to labor. * * * The importance of roads for military purposes, leading into the interior territories and to the frontier was early appreciated, and some important routes were opened by the general government; as the national road from Baltimore through Wheeling and Cincinnati to St. Louis, and that from Bangor to Houlton, in Maine.' * * *

"It has been estimated that $20,000,000 are appropriated by the government among the several states in proportion to their agricultural population, and that sub-divided and distributed among the counties of each state in proportion to the agricultural population of each county, would give the average agricultural counties of this state from $15,000 to $25,000 each, and in 12 or 15 years' time the counties would be provided with good macadamized roads, provided stone were reasonably accessible. * * * I believe in liberal appropriations for all the departments of our government, but I cannot see why the great agricultural interests should be neglected. If our billion-dollar congresses would appropriate the small amount of $20,000,000 a year for good roads, it could not, in my judgment, be better applied in developing our country and, at the same time, meet the wants of our people, especially in the agricultural districts.



"The importance of good roads is becoming so well recognized that they are a probability of the near future, and their cause should be championed in congress as soon as possible. Thus far, of late years, all moneys used in the construction of good roads have been secured by a direct tax upon the people living along the lines of such roads, or those living in the counties or states where such roads are located, and has proven a heavy burden upon those people. * * * The government can conduct this matter much better than states, and the revenue required to meet the expenditure would be so small that it would not be even felt by the people. * * * The coffers of the government are now being filled to overflowing under the present system of revenue, and the war taxes could be reduced many times and yet have sufficient funds to meet this appropriation of $20,000,000 annually for good roads, and, at the same time, leave all other departments of the government well provided for. * * *

"I believe that if a member of congress would champion governmental appropriations for good roads, that he would find no difficulty in securing petitions signed by a large majority of the people, urging the enactment of such a law. * * * Let the people wake up on the subject of good roads and national appropriations for the same, for it will benefit the farmer more than any other improvement that I know of, and give employment to labor and would likewise prove advantageous to all interests of the country especially to interior cities and villages."

EFFECTIVE SNOW PLOW.

Although Easily Made at Home, It Has No Superior for Breaking County Highways.

Breaking roads in winter is always laborious work, and, worst of all, it not infrequently happens that a great deal of the energy expended is wasted. To push the snow, for example, out at the sides of the road simply results in a deep cut which soon fills up, especially if it is drifting, and so does not give a hard track for travel. The accompanying illustration shows a kind of plow that is homemade and not easily surpassed for breaking out country highways when the snow is waist deep. It is constructed entirely of planks and nails (large wire ones), as can be seen, except that there is a board on top for the arrangement of a seat, and two staples in front (one on each side) for the attachment of the drawing chains. The machine rides over the drifts and packs them down, thus giving a firm road bed without piling up snow at the sides, and as any amount of weight almost can readily be placed upon it the good it is capable of achieving is perfectly marvelous. Providing the snow will "pack," this is emphatically true. Just try it some time and see.—Frederick O. Sibley, in N. Y. Tribune.

When a development of fruit buds is wanted, pruning the tree when in a dormant state will best secure this result. Pruning during growth produces growth of wood.

The first six or seven years in the life of a fruit tree are usually spent best in growth. Too early fruit bearing is injurious.

HARD TO COLLECT THE BILL.

Mr. Tincup Got Tired of His Name, and Put It and His Debts Behind Him.

There are some Indians, not many, keeping stores in the territory. Most of the merchandising is done by white men. Formerly, when the wholesale house of the city supplied an Indian storekeeper on credit, it took long odds on his honesty, for until recently the red man could not be sued. Nevertheless in the past the losses were not so heavy as might have been supposed. A lawyer who had marked success with hard collections in the territory told this as fairly illustrative of his strange experiences when Indians belonged to other nationalities and could not be reached by court processes:

"A certain house in St. Louis had been selling goods on credit to an Indian who went by the name of Mr. Tincup. Suddenly it lost track of the customer. At that time the St. Louis firm had credited him to the amount of nearly $3,000. But while Tincup dropped out of the firm's knowledge, orders from the same place in the territory began to come in from a customer who had never been heard of before, and who gave his name as Littlepidge. I was called upon to investigate the matter and to see what I could do with that claim of about $2,800. When I arrived at the place I discovered that Tincup and Littlepidge were the same individual. I inquired what it meant. The Indian said he had got tired of Tincup and had adopted the new name.

"But don't you know you can't change your name that way?' I asked him. 'Don't you know you are likely to get into the penitentiary for such a thing as that?'

"The Indian said he didn't know he had violated any law. On investigation I learned that he hadn't. The law of his nation permitted him to change his name at will. I dropped that branch of the subject and got around to the question of collecting what the late Mr. Tincup owed. It was a hard job. The Indian couldn't be sued. I knew that, and so did he. I had nothing to stand upon but moral suasion. I tried bluffing. I went in on one line, and when I found I was making no impression upon the debtor there I tried another. I threatened and argued and coaxed. That was all I could do. I just kept at it until I persuaded Mr. Indian to make a settlement. The result was I carried back to my clients the bulk of the debt, but I got it through no help of the law. It was just a case of talking the Indian into the payment of part of his obligation. And that was the way we had to do business down here until the United States courts were given civil jurisdiction over the Indians."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE BRAVE TO THE BRAVE

How Lieut. Hobson Was Received by His Compatriots in the Rifle Pits.

On some days we were told he was dead, but at last we were assured he was alive. Between his iron bars he could watch our men moving along the yellow trenches or peering toward him through a field glass, and the sentries—those tall, gaunt regulars who had taken the hills with their blood and who were now creeping up on him by night nearer and nearer, winning the ground between him and themselves by the sweat of their brows. And late one afternoon, in the sight of thousands of the enemy and of his own countrymen he rode out a free man and into his inheritance. Few men certainly very few young men, have ever tasted such a triumph. The men who had made it possible for him to leave his cell and to breathe free air again had waited for his coming for many hours, crouched by the hundreds along the high banks of the narrow trail through which he must come. They were not of his branch of the service, they were not even brother officers, their attitude toward him was one of attention and salute, they were the men who had been gathered from every point of the union to be drilled and hammered and fashioned into the thing called a regular. They were without local or political friends or conditions, they had no staff of artists and reporters at their heels to make them heroes in spite of themselves, but they were the backbone of the war—the professional fighting machines, the grumbling, self-respecting, working regulars. Hobson rode down into this mob in fresh white duck, pale with the pallor of the prison, and touching his cap with grave gratitude. And they dashed at him with a roar of ecstasy, with a wild welcome of friendly cheers. As brave men they honored a brave man, and this sun-tanned, dirty, half-starved, fever racked mob of regulars danced about the educated, clever engineer as though the moment was his, and forgot that at the risk of their lives they had set him free, that the ground he rode over had been splashed with their blood.—Richard Harding Davis, in Scribner's.

POLICEMAN PAINTED GREEN.

Servant Girl's Lover Shows Anger at Her Discharge in a Peculiar Way.

George Patterson loved a young woman named Berry, who worked for Dr. Eugene O. Backman, of 312 West Thirty-fourth street, New York. She was discharged two months ago, but Patterson did not know it. He used to come every night and hang around outside the house, casting lover's glances at the windows. Finally he found out that his sweethearts had been disobeyed. He apparently kept away from the house thereafter, but his displeasure was made abundantly manifest.

The doctor's steps and areaway began to look nearly every morning like a garbage dump. Decayed fruit and vegetables and dead cats were plentifully deposited in the area. Occasionally the doctor would find a fresh coat of green paint on his basement windows.

Two weeks ago Policeman Gutnecht was detailed to watch the doctor's house, and the other night he saw a man coming along the street with a paint pot. He sneaked into the area of Dr. Backman's house and began work on the basement windows. Gutnecht crept up on the man and caught him.

"You won't do any more painting," the officer cried.

"Oh, I don't know," Patterson answered, and, swinging the paint brush, which he still had in his hand, he brought it down on the officer's face. With that the fight began. When they got through the policeman was green and the man was red, but the policeman was not green enough to let his prisoner go, and took him to the station-house, where he was identified as Miss Berry's former suitor. He was locked up.

QUEEN WILHELMINA.

The Young Sovereign Makes It Her Custom to Personally Inspect All Cabinet Business and Petitions.

That Queen Wilhelmina is determined not to be a simple figurehead in the government of the Netherlands has recently been evinced in numerous instances.

The officers of a prominent society of The Hague, having occasion to submit a new constitution for royal approval, were counseled by a lawyer to address themselves to the secretary of the ministry. As it is her majesty's custom to daily inspect the business before her cabinet and to confer with her ministers, she instructed the secretary to return the document to the society with the following notice for publication:

"It is the expressed wish of her majesty, Queen Wilhelmina, that all business of importance and all requests for royal aid shall be sent direct to her majesty. Furthermore, the queen announces herewith that her subjects may rest assured that all reasonable petitions will receive her prompt consideration.

"All letters are to bear this simple address: 'To her majesty, Queen Wilhelmina.'

"The secretary of the cabinet has been instructed to return in future all letters and documents intended for the queen personally and not addressed as directed."

Paper Bananas to Fool Hoodlums.

Bunches of bananas made of papier mache have been introduced as signs on the wharves of New York, where the depredations of hoodlums are frequent. It is proposed to add wooden peanuts for the benefit of policemen and other friendly samplers of the stock in trade.

PEACE VERSUS PAIN

We have peace, and those who are sorely afflicted with

NEURALGIA

will have peace from pain and a perfect cure by using

ST. JACOBS OIL.

Devious Definitions.

Play—The work we do that isn't compulsory.

Bachelor—A pair of scissors with one blade missing.

Sleep—The only satisfactory substitute for insomnia.

Rivals—One pointing with pride to what another views with alarm.

Immune—A man who has been married so long that he doesn't mind it.

Woman—A labor-saving device that helps a man make a fool of himself.

Flirt—A girl who makes a fellow want to kiss her and then won't let him.

Conceited—The woman who dubs a man a woman hater just because he doesn't admire her.

Autopsy—A method employed by doctors to determine the nature of the patient's ailment.

A Double Crop of Apples.

On a Long Island farm is an apple tree which bore two crops of fruit the past year, and the farmers are taking unusual interest in this peculiarity of nature. Just as much interest has been shown in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has the peculiarity of curing dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation and blood disorders that other remedies fail to benefit. In chronic cases it rarely fails, and it cures whenever a cure is possible.

When True Love Quits.

If the engagement lasts long enough, the girl grows careless and makes her appearance before her steady in her kitchen clothes, and with her hair uncombed. Then Love, in the man's heart, folds its tired hands on its breast and he [illegible] last.—Atchison Globe.

Feminine Sisterliness.

"What made you lose your place in the line?"

"Because I wasn't going to be kissed by the lieutenant right after he had smacked that odious, peppermint chewing Bagley girl!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Keep Coughing

We know of nothing better to tear the lining of your throat and lungs. It is better than wet feet to cause bronchitis and pneumonia. Only keep it up long enough and you will succeed in reducing your weight, losing your appetite, bringing on a slow fever and making everything exactly right for the germs of consumption.

Stop coughing and you will get well.

cures coughs of every kind. An ordinary cough disappears in a single night. The racking coughs of bronchitis are soon completely mastered. And, if not too far along, the coughs of consumption are completely cured.

Mrs. Robert Houston has a severe attack of grippe.

The infant daughter of Jas. Rouse is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Rev. Lentz and family dined with Mrs Florence Floyd, last Friday.

R. P. Rice was in our burg, one day last week, explaining the good points of the Deering harvesting machinery.

J. S Surface and wife, who were reported on the sick list last week, are improving slowly, but are still confined to their room.

Mrs. Ell Carpenter, of near Richwood, while on her way from her father's, Mr. Jeff Carpenter, took seriously sick, and had to stop with her sister Mrs. Frank Robinson. She immediately became unconscious, and her friends thought the end had come, but she revived and is improving slowly. Her physician pronounced the case la-grippe in its worst form.

On account of the inclement weather, there was rather a small attendance at the meeting at Hopeful church, last Friday, although the usual interest which always characterizes the meetings of that body, was manifested. After hearing the reports of the various officers and committees, the following officers were elected: N. C. Tanner, Elder; J. S. Surface and B. A. Floyd, Deacons; H. F. Utz, Trustee; Mrs. Minta Utz, Organist; B. A. Floyd, Secretary. John Swing was awarded the office of sexton for the ensuing year.

Mrs. T. S. Whitaker has been on the sick list, but is better.

John Barnes, the groom of only a fortnight, is very low with typhoid fever.

Mrs. Matilda Goodridge, of Bullittsville, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Clore.

The wind has been blowing so violently of late to greatly interfere with many kinds of farm work. I wonder if the abundance of newspaper correspondents has anything to do with it.

Stevens Bros. delivered eleven cattle to J. M. Conner at Bullittsville, Tuesday last. They were very large, but we failed to learn their weight. Price, $4.35 That part of the country certainly produces fine cattle, fine stock and fine people.

A strange and fatal disease has been prevailing among the horses of this neighborhood recently. S. E. Terrill lost one, A. E. Chambers, 1; Lystra Smith, 2, and others have lost one or more. They are taken with a general stiffness and in a few hours die in great pain.

Our very popular and efficient Assessor, Mr. R. L. Willis, has by carefully doing his duty in regard to listing the dogs of the county, paved the way for a sheep fund that will immortalize him with those who have sheep killed by dogs during his term of office. Mr. Willis has but done his duty in this matter and he is made of suitable material for a county official.

Our esteemed co-worker in the matter of chronicling events of interest as they transpire in these parts has described a circle whose diameter is six miles and whose center is Mr. James T. Grant's. This is a great big plate and sure enough includes me in his jurisdiction and also includes most of the territory which I had claimed, but preferring to be the guest of a generous host to being the generous host of any guest, we are both satisfied and will harmoniously dispense good things from his big plate.

Mr. N. S. Walton recently gave a tramp his breakfast, and after leaving he missed a pair of gloves he remembered were lying near where the tramp sat. So he made haste and overtook his trampship and asked him for his gloves. He denied having them when Mr. W. asked him to turn his pockets, which he did, but no gloves were there. Mr. W. said, I will now ask you to show me the cause of that enlargement under your shirt front. Mr. tramp rather reluctuantly unbuttoned his shirt and there were the gloves which he handed over to the owner.

The suburban hill tops should not have been forgotten in previous communications from this place. There are also five of them, and, like some other great cities, they are the main sustenance of the town. These are occupied by the most aristocratic and hospitable farmers Boone county affords. True friendship and sociability reign with them and all are in perfect harmony, especially so with them and the citizens of the town proper. Some of these hill tops are adorned with the most beautiful belles this State or any other can produce, and we all know that these are very essential in making up a desirable neighborhood. Generally speaking, our hill top friends are blessed with prosperity and wealth and this is by no means objectionable to their servants under the hill. We can only say to our readers that if they doubt any part of the principles held out in this or other communications from this place to please give us a call.

Walton.

B. S. Johnson, a native of Boone Co., received the congratulations of his numerous friends, January 6th, on the anniversary of his 83d birthday. Harvey Eads, of Harrison county, 82 years, spent the day with him, and John S. Ransom, 84, was expected, but did not come. The three are members of Old Salem, Regular Baptist Church, and would have proved an interesting trio to any one like the writer, who can not remember the time when it was the predominant church in Northern Kentucky.

Miss Edna Ransler received an elegant three-set opal ring for a Christmas present, and there is quite a mystery as to who was the donor. Her family and all her near relatives plead ignorance of the costly present. Probably the young lady may have an idea of the person, but if she does not want to tell who sent it, she wont and that's the end of it.

Mrs. Myers, of the Walton Academy, was so much pleased with the progress made by the graduating class in their studies that she led off in the round of parties by giving her scholars the first one in the Academy building. Perhaps she thought that she might have been somewhat too severe in the remarks she made to them about their watching the wreckers of the train instead of attending to their recitations and studies on that occasion.

The name of Miss Lucy Fields, one of the Academy's best students, was by mistake omitted from the roll of honor. But to return to the jollifications. Miss Graham Roberts gave the second one, which was most heartily enjoyed by all present. Miss Ida Vallandingham was the presiding genius of the third. Mrs. Epp Morman in honor of her youthful daughter, was the fourth on the list. Miss Pearl Byrd came next, while Mrs. Dr. Bagby wound up the business with what she avers was the swell event of the festal season.

Among those in attendance at Mrs. Epp Norman's, and it may be taken as about the same for the events at the other houses, were: Misses Pearl Byrd, Graham Roberts, Stella Wright, Lizzie Vest, Blanch Dyas, Ida Vallandingham, Mary Percival, Lida Percival, Myrtle Wade, Gertrude Curley, Myrtle Jones, Mabel Bagby, Grace Johuson, Mary Vernon Jones, Mary Rouse, Julia Adams, Lallie Herndon, Lena Hedges and Maitlie Rouse. The young men were: Clayton Percival, Charles and Walter Breill, Charles Chambers, Will Percival, Fleming Hedges, Walter Rouse, Edwin Johnson, Leon Pryor, Robert Breland, Clifford Sawyers, John Adams, Wayne Hind, Clarence Byrd, Julius Sawyers, John Crow and Geo. Arnold.

Miss Lora Diers and Miss Gelcha King attended the ball at Independence on Friday night the 30th ult. Miss Lora went to the city on Saturday to remain a week to finish some music lessons under her cousin, Dr. Eisenhelmer, and reports says she will give music lessons here in Walton after her return. She is an accomplished musician and is very highly spoken of by those who had the pleasure of listening to her music.

J. W. Hughes, President of the Hollmes College, at Wilmore, Ky., preached at the Methodist Church, last Sunday morning and evening.

A portion of the foundation of the big corn crib at the distillery gave way one night last week, and 500 bushels of corn ran out into the coal yard.

Allie Delph was introduced to the mysteries of the mash floor the other day, by having a bile of warm slop dumped on him. Allie said he did not see the sign on the door, "keep out."

Mr. John Barnes and Miss Nettie Fleek were married in the parlors of the Grand Hotel, Lawrenceburg, last Thursday. Mr. Barnes has secured for a wife one of the prettiest and best young ladies in this community.

Mr. Foster Hensley and Miss Emma Fogle were married in Lawrenceburg, last Wednesday evening. They returned to the bride's parents, and that night their many friends gathered in and the mazy dance was engaged in till midnight.

Kassebaum & Son, of Aurora, erected on S. G. Bott's lot in the cemetery here, one day last week, one of the nicest monuments in the cemetery. It is of granite, and massive in shape, with the letters F. L. T. in three links, standing out in bold relief.

Doctor Gill Rice, jr., pilot on the Pauline, and Miss Brennie Cave, daughter of Manlieus Cave, were married at the parsonage by Rev. J. W. Harris, last Shnesday, at 7:30 p. m. John McWethy, of Greensburg, Ind., and Miss Fannie Cave, sister of the bride, were the attendants. The Mandolin Club gave them a serenade that night.

Bullittsville.

Agreeable to a promise made in a former issue of your paper, we shall undertake to give a brief account of the manner in which we spent the holidays. We feel incapable of doing justice to the work we have undertaken, since we have been, for several days, in the throes of that aggravating influenza, the Russian Grippe. With the marrow in our bones freezing, and the brains in our skull boiling, it is hardly expected that we shall give a true color to the account we may give of the social events of Christmas week. Since our promise is out, we shall undertake to fulfill it as best we can under the circumstances.

The festivities were initiated on Christmas morning at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. T. Gaines, in a sumptuous dinner in honor of their charming and accomplished daughter, Miss Beulah, who is at home from Georgetown college. Seventy of Miss Beulah's young friends were the honored guests, who greeted her, and a merrier day did never yet greet the return of one to our social circle. Miss Beulah was assisted in entertaining her friends by her beautiful sister, the wife of that prince of good fellows, Mr. Chester Davis.

Monday evening Mr. O. W. Gaines entertained several of his male friends at cards, and a delightful evening was spent by all who were fortunate enough to be present. At 10 o'clock his agreeable and hospitable wife, assisted by her accomplished and intelligent daughter, served a very delightful lunch, consisting of fragrant coffee—that most wholesome beverage, which exhilerated our spirits, and counteracted any tendency to drowsiness; delicious ham sandwitches were served with the coffee, followed by fruit and cake. After this delightful lunch we returned to the card table and continued the game with zeal and interest until the small hours in the morning.

Tuesday a most remarkable dinner party was given by Miss Lutie Gaines to eighteen of her young lady friends. It was termed a dove party. We are at a loss to know why it was called a dove party. Dove is frequently used as a term of endearment or affection. "My little dovie," for instance. Then, again, it is used to express meekness, mildness, and innocence. We have been unable to ascertain in which sense the ladies wish the name of their party to be used. If they wish to be addressed in terms of endearment, they must open their doors to their gentlemen friends, and grant them an opportunity. If they wish to be considered meek, mild and innocent they must never lose their temper—be kind and compassionate to their male friends, and never deceive them with promises they cannot fulfill. From personal motives we cannot approve the advent of such parties in our social circle. We endorse, heartily, the following sentiment of the poet, Longfellow:

"As unto the bow the cord is,
So unto the man is woman,
Though she bends him, she obeys him,
Though she draws, yet she follows,
Useless each without the other."

Tuesday evening Miss Mary Gaines entertained a number of her young friends. We were unable to be present, but have been informed that it was a delightful affair.

Wednesday afternoon we had the lecture we described laft week. That evening Miss Bernice Duncan, assisted by her handsome young sister, just attaining that interesting age of sweet sixteen, entertained forty of her young friends in her usual graceful and charming manner. Miss Bernice is one of those energetic little bodies that never tires in her efforts to make her guests enjoy themselves. She succeeded admirably at this party. It developed into a card party and every one present seemed to enjoy themselves. At ten o'clock a most delightful lunch was served. The Hon. W. W. Masterson was present and went away singing the praises of Mrs. Duncau as well as every lady present.

Thursday evening Miss Zayda Gaines gave a delightful party to about forty of her friends. Miss Zayda always entertains beautifully and with the assistance of her interesting mother as hostess and her hospitable father as host, her guests are assured a hearty welcome and a delightful time in attending any of her social entertainments. The forepart of the evening was devoted to card playing, after partaking of a feast of icecream, cakes, candies, etc., the guests repaired to the parlor, resolved themselves into a mock court—with Thornton Snyder as judge and Temp Graves as prosecuting attorney, and began the arraignment of certain parties present that had been paying marked attention to a certain lady. It was rather embarrassing to the lady, but very amusing to the guests who were not personally interested. The jury decided that the three gentlemeu before the court were innocent victims of an hallucination, that the guilty cupid had been overlooked by the court.

Friday morning an unwelcome visitor made his appearance in our social circle in the form of the Russian Grip and brought our festivities to a sudden end.

Mr. Carlton Chrisler, of Ludlow, spent Christmas with Squire Clintou Gaines.

Miss Bessie Cropper, of North Bend, was the guest of Miss Zayda Gaines during the holidays.

Mr. Winston Gaines divided his time between his father's and Squire Clinton Gaines' home Christmas week. The two cousins, Carlton and Winston, are so congenial and devoted to each other that whithersoever one goes the other is sure to follow. The link that binds them in one common pursuit is beautiful and lovely to contemplate.

Mr. Tom Baisly, of North Bend, spent a greater portion of Christmas week with Mr. H. C. Duncan. Tom has been for several weeks taking a thorough course of instruction from the beautiful, accomplished and facinating teacher of a certain school He is so untiring in the prosecution of his ambitious purposes that he could not forego the privilege granted all students of taking a holiday during Christmas week.

Mound Field Farm.

Dr. Frank Sayre is on the go day and night attending his many patients.

Mr. Bert Bradford, of Connersville, Ind., is visiting at his uncle Roberts.

Mrs. Frank Clayton is reported as dangerously sick with la grippe and pneumonia.

Eliza Harper is having a commodious poultry house built to use in connection with his incubator.

The youngsters had a fine time the first few days of last week shooting the chutes on skates at Hafer's Lagoon.

Miller & Batterson contemplate going west in the near future, where they intend to engage in their chosen vocation—husking corn.

Notwithstanding the close attention that Henry Quick has given his shop trade, he has built Bart Ayior a new barn at odd spells this winter.

One of the enjoyable events of the week was the quilting B, given by Mrs. Harvey Aylor. Notwithstanding the terrible condition of the roads, quite a number was present,

The principal part of Mike Clore's mail of late consists of seed-catalogues from different firms. It is surprising that Mike's notoriety as a gardener and horticulturist has got so far from home.

Mr. Frank Gordon was prostrated very suddenly, last week with grippe. It was reported on Friday that he was dangerously ill; but we are pleased to say that we have since learned that he is convalescing.

Saw Billy Cloud at the harness shop, the other day, having some work done preparatory to beginning spring plowing. He reports everything lovely over in his bailiwick, and was boasting wonderfully about the crop of pumpkins they produced over there in '98.

On the 2nd, inst., the Hebron Building & Loan Association held its annual election of officers for the ensuing year. All the old officers were reelected by their respective places. Several new members began the year by taking stock in the institution, which seems to be in a flourishing condition.

Mike Clore was stepping around in Davis' store, with his hands in his pants' pockets, one afternoon last week, when he remarked: "I had a mess of greens for dinner, to-day, out of my garden." We all passed, and someone was heard to say: "Remember the Maine," and we all lighted our pipes and had a silent smoke.

There is a favorable prospect now that the K. P.'s will organize a lodge at Hebron in the near future. The prime movers in the affair are hustlers from away back, and have about secured a complement of members to organize. There will be a meeting at Hebron next, Saturday night, for making further arrangements, and all those that it may interest are respectively invited to attend.

The Hebron Evangelical Lutheran church, held the annual election of officers last Saturday, and the following is the result: Elder—Thomas Crisler; Deacons—John Crigler and William Graves; Trustees—G. O. Hafer, T. A. Crigler and Robert Rouse; Sunday-school Superintendent—Dr. O. Rouse, with Walter Hafer, Assistant; Treasurer—Clyde Hafer; Chorister—Walter Crigler, with Miss Alice Crigler, Assistant. Jacob Crigler was awarded the Janitorship There was a large attendance and the day was pleasantly spent. The ladies served a bountiful dinner at the church, which was appreciated by all.

Local News.

Zero weather came direct from the south Friday night.

The Boone County Deposit Bank re-elected the old board.

The owners of empty ice-bins are beginning to get uneasy.

John T. Craven, of Erlanger, has a good dairy farm for rent.

The snow sweepers' brigade was on duty early Friday morning, and did good service.

The crop of tobacco being cultivated around the fire this winter is not so large as usual.

The boys got their skates and coasting sleds out again Saturday, and had a genuine picnic.

B. W. Adams' bay saddle horse that was kicked during Circuit Court, died last Friday night.

Lost—On Union street, near the drug-store a small, gold finger ring. The finder will please return it to Master Joe Revill Furnish.

The four inch snow that fell last Thursday night came just in time to protect the wheat from the severe weather that followed.

Occasionally, r have to curtail communications sent in by our worthy reporters, and very often retain some of their items for the next week.

The attention of our readers is called to the card of W. H. Hoshal & Co. commission merchants, Union Stock Yards, Cincinnati. This firm succeeds Silmer & Hosbal, whose card has appeared in the RECORDER for some time.

Weak Eyes are Made Strong, dim vision made clear, styes removed and granulated lids or sore eyes of any kind speedily and effectually cured by the use of Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve. It's put up in tubes, and sold on a guarantee by all good druggists.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Drinkeburg gave the young people a dance, last Friday night. It was attended by a very large crowd, and the entire night was devoted to the festivities. About midnight elegant refreshments were served. Mr. D. has moved to his farm near the first toll-gate on the Florence-Union pike.

John Sleet Howlett, of Big Boue Springs, Boone county, Ky., died at the home of John W. Willis on East Center street, last Thursday morning, of consumption. His remains were taken to Kentucky on Friday for burial. He was aged about 37 years, and leaves a wife and five children.—Lawrenceburg Register.

The young people, instead of surprising Mrs. W. F. McKim, one night last week, were surprised by her. She was advised of their plans, and at the proper hour that evening the "happeninners" were served with delightful refreshments prepared for the occasion, of which they desired she should know nothing until they assembled.

John Duncan's three-year old mare, by Oscar Williams, died of inflammation of the kidneys, last Thursday night. She was a very promising animal and had showed considerable speed. Horse men regarded her as sure to make a fast trotter, owing to the fact that she was bred for speed on both sides, and was handling as nicely as could be desired.

R. C. Rice, Ottawa, Kansas, in renewing his subscription, writes: "I see Jay Calvert's constitution did not suit Kansas. I expect that down in one corner of his liver he got sick to see his girl. Tell the boys if they are coming west not to leave their girls behind, for if they do they cannot stay. We are well and well satisfied. A happy New Year to all."

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Clutterbuck entertained with a euchre party, last Thursday night. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Berkshire, of Florence, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Riddell, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hughes, Misses Mary and Katharine Furlong, Annie and Lottie Garrison, Katie Smith, Messrs. E. S. McKim, Jack Sandford and others. A delightful time was had, and the game was continued until a late hour.

The Slayback boys have caught over 100 polecats this winter. They do not trap them—they locate a den and then dig the cats out. There are some farmers who will not permit a cat den on their premises, it is claimed. They claim that the cats are very destructive to the moles and ground mice, and they say they are willing to contribute a few eggs and a chicken, occasionally, to remunerate the felines for their valuable services.

Oscar Ryle sojourned in the Kloudyke (Hathaway) neighborhood a few days last week. He says the trappers in that section are having great success this winter. Duke Adams, one of the most successful trappers related to Oscar the following experience he had with a 'possum not long since. Adams says on visiting his traps one morning a few weeks ago, in one he found a 'possum which he shot between the eyes with his rifle. The animal was thrown to one side. When Mr. A. went to that trap the next morning he was surprised to find that the 'possum had disappeared, but he was more surprised when he arrived at another trap some distance away to find that it had captured the 'possum which he had shot only the day before. The 'possum was taken out of trap No. 2, and beaten into a jelly with a club and the carcass carefully laid on a stump near by to be preyed upon by the fowls of the air. Upon his arrival at trap No. 2 when making his rounds on the third day, Mr. Adams was astounded by the discovery that the 'possum had vacated the top of the stump and gone to parts unknown. He expects to capture the "varmint" again in a few days, in which event he will pull up his traps and move his outfit to a territory where dead animals will cease to trouble him. Oscar says Duke has never been a superstitious man, but he thinks he is going that way now, and if he captures that 'possum once more he will be anchored in a belief in ghosts, witches, &c.

A destructive fire occurred down on Elijah's creek, Sunday night, a week ago, almost totally destroyed the smoke house on the premises occupied by Mrs. Dude Boston (colored). The supposition is that spontaneous combustion caused the fire, as there was considerable bacon packed in the building. Fortunately the fire was discovered and got under control before the adjacent building took fire.

Gasburg.

Jany. 2.—Hardin has the pull for Governor in this Gibraiter of Democracy.

Wm. T. Berkshire has rented the Capt. Terrill farm, and will move to it in the spring.

Paris Parker, who is attending business college in Indianapolis, Ind., spent the holidays at home.

Rumor has it that a gentleman from Cincinnati will shortly lead one of Gasburg's fairest daughters to the altar.

Chas. Klopp and wife will go to housekeeping in the house now occupied by Jack Cook, who will move to Bellevue.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Terrill gave an elegant dinner during the holidays to a large number of cousins, of whom your correspondent was one.

Mr. Wm. Crisler will start, in a few days, for Greater New York, to join her husband, who has a good position with a storage and commission company.

Frank Smith has purchased a fourth interest in the Aurora ferry. Frank is fast coming to the front as a substantial business man and allround good citizen.

Not the usual amount of moving will be done by the tenants this spring, most of them remaining on the same places they have occupied for the last year or so.

This place has two ex-confederate and one federal soldier of the war between the States, one of the Spanish war, one Mexican war veteran, and one Cuban filibuster of 1849.

Clifford Terrill, who went into the army at Mobile, Ala., last summer, has returned to this place, the regiment to which he belonged having been mustered out of the service.

Miss Mamie Buchanan, who has resided with Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Berkshire for several years, has gone to Osgood, Ind., to live with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Norris, much to the regret of a certain young widower of this place.

Verona.

Jan. 9—The roads leading to this place are getting to be very bad to travel over.

The present snow is a great benefit to the small grain.

The League Institute is progressing nicely, since the holidays.

Health of the neighborhood moderately good, except a few cases of grippe.

Bro. J. G. Hudson is working hard to establish a Bible Reading Circle in our midst.

Wm. Washer has purchased the Geo. McEntire lot and house, and will move, soon.

Dan Vest, who has been visiting here for two weeks, has returned to his home at Elwood, Ind.

Hodge Hudson, one of the boys attending Willmore College, left one day last week for that Institution.

The Miller brothers' string band met at L. C. Robert's last Thursday night, and rendered some excellent music.

Prayer meeting Wednesday night at 7 o'clock at the M. E. Church. Come out and give the good work your presence.

Chas. Harrell was scared out of his wits, one day last week. He heard a roaring in the ceiling, and thought his house was on fire, and he yelled, "fire! fire!" Mr. Powers, who lives on the opposit street and Mr. Nute Dickerson, were soon on the scene, and were glad to find that the burning out of a flue caused the alarm.

Lung Irritation

is the forerunner to consumption. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey will cure it, and give such strength to the lungs that a cough or a cold will not settle there. Twenty-five cents at all good druggists.

THE Venezuelan Herald announces that the natives of Cucutta, on the frontier of Venezuela and Colombia, have discovered a cure for elephantiasis in an herb called tautua, or frailejon. This dreadful disease has hitherto been regarded as incurable, and if there be any truth in the report from Cucutta, which is vouched for by a priest, the information may prove of great value to the medical world.

A MR. BICKNELL has obtained a patent for a bootblacking machine. The model shows a suitable frame work, a rest for the foot, a reservoir to contain liquid blacking, brushes that automatically apply it to the boot and then give way to polishing brushes and go back to their places. The machine can be worked by electric power or by a spring and can be used with a nickel in the slot arrangement.

It has been reserved for enterprising lovers of chess in Hungary to evolve the most novel form of the game. The game was played on a billiard table marked off into 64 squares. The game was played by four young men, two on each side, and whenever a piece was taken the mover had to empty the bottle of wine so removed. The game did not last very long. In fact, by the time the pawns were advanced two of the four players were incapacitated.

THE bite of the Tsetse fly, so deadly to the horse, ox or dog, has been found by a committee of the British Royal society to affect other creatures as well. No remedy has been found. This little insect is playing a surprising part in the world's development, as, although man is strangely immune to the poison, large districts in Africa, notably the Limpopo and Zambesi valleys, must remain uninhabitable until the pest shall have been destroyed.

CYCLISTS in France are not only taxed, but are obliged to carry a plate on their machines bearing their name and address. In order to prevent people avoiding payment of the tax, the government is about to introduce another plate, which cyclists will also have to carry on their machines. This plate, issued annually when the tax is paid, will constitute a receipt for the same. The cyclist has then to fix it to his machine, and will be free from molestation.

WHILE Mrs. D. Y. Van Dyne, of St. Louis, was entertaining her fashionable friends a well dressed stranger appeared at the door, and without ceremony said he desired to use the parlor while he had a fit. Somewhat astonished, Mrs. Van Dyne ushered the stranger in and then retired from the room, wondering if she were being made the victim of a practical joke. The stranger entered a side parlor, lay down on the floor and had his fit. When it was over he thanked his hostess and departed without giving his name.

THE Canadian government is trying the experiment of using dogs to carry the mails in the Klondike. A cargo of these animals, bought at the average cost of $30 each, having been landed at Quebec from Greenland and Labrador, was immediately dispatched by the Canadian Pacific to the other side of the continent. The prospective mail carriers, 140 in number, were picked for their superiority in speed, training and weight. They will, of course, be harnessed to sledges. The Eskimo breed is not hard to manage, but if the dog suffers sufficiently from hunger he is likely to make a meal of his master.

EXCAVATIONS by the Surrey Archæological society of Waverley Abbey, near Farnham, have disclosed the foundation of a church and the outline of the monk's dormitories, as well as the kitchens and disciplinary cells. In the cloister, opposite the chapter house door, the coffin was found of William Vandult, the third baron of Hanslape, and king's chamberlain, whose burial took place in 1194, as recorded in the annals of Waverley. Several others were also uncovered. These coffins were not of stone, as is usual in English abbeys, but of oak, and the wood was almost as sound as on the day it was laid in the earth.

It is estimated that there are 199,000,000 old style copper pennies somewhere. Nobody knows what has become of them, except that once in a while a specimen turns up in change. A few years ago 4,500,000 bronze two-cent pieces were set afloat. Three million of them are still outstanding, but are never seen. A million of three-cent silver pieces are scattered over the United States, but it is very seldom that one comes across any of them. Of the 800,000 one-half cent pieces not one has been returned to the government for coinage or is held by the treasury.

HORRIBLE FIND IN HAVANA.

A Torture Room in the Spanish Military Governor's Residence Near the Palace—The Maine.

HAVANA, Jan. 5.—The afternoon papers Wednesday sent a thrill through the city with a report that a torture and execution chamber had been found at the residence of the Spanish military governor, adjoining the palace. The papers declared that there the Spanish officials questioned and murdered political prisoners. According to their accounts the floor of the chamber was covered with dried blood and its walls were indented with machete strokes.

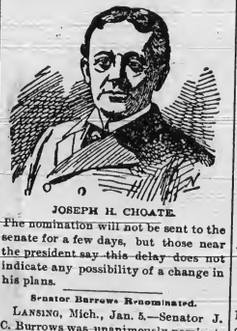
An excited crowd soon gathered outside the residence which was last occupied by Gen. Parrado. The reported torture chamber is a room about eight feet square just off the dining room. As a matter of fact it was probably used as a pantry. In the wall there is a dirty iron bar, evidently used to hang meat, and a piece of discolored rope is suspended from it. It is inconceivable that Gen. Parrado practiced torture next to his dining room.

Senor Racido Arnauta y Hernander, editor of El Reconcentrado, issued Wednesday a third attack upon his old enemy Zacarias Bresnes, whom with three others, he accuses of blowing up the United States battle ship Maine. Bresnes who is a lawyer and politician sailed for Spain about two weeks ago. The installments of the story thus far have been devoted to the alleged felonies and treacheries of Bresnes. The editor tells his readers to be patient, as in due time they will get the facts regarding the Maine explosion. He describes his proof as "largely moral."

NOW BEFORE THE SENATE.

Peace Treaty Presented to That Body by Senator Frye Wednesday—Referred to Committee on Foreign Relations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—When the senate went into executive session Wednesday the peace treaty which has been received from the president was laid before the senate by Senator Frye, who occupied the chair in the absence of the vice president. The treaty was not read but the president's message accompanying it was. This was a simple letter of transmittal without any word of recommendation or suggestion and was only a few lines in length. On motion of Senator Davis the treaty was referred to the committee on foreign relations and ordered printed for the use of the senate. No order was made looking to making the treaty public, but it is understood that this will be done after the treaty is passed upon by the committee.



Senator Davis entered a motion Wednesday to make the treaty and the proceedings of the commission public, but upon the suggestion of Senator Allison he withdrew that motion for the purpose of allowing the committee to act upon it.

A meeting of the committee on foreign relations has been called for Friday, and it is probable that the committee will then bring in a resolution for the publication of both the treaty and the proceedings.

JOSEPH H. CHOATE, NEW YORK

His Name Will Be Sent to the Senate as Ambassador to Great Britain in a Few Days.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The announcement was made Wednesday on the highest authority that Hon. Joseph H. Choate, of New York, would be nominated ambassador to Great Britain.

JOSEPH H. CHOATE.

The nomination will not be sent to the senate for a few days, but those near the president say this delay does not indicate any possibility of a change in his plans.

Senator Burrows Renominated.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 5.—Senator J. C. Burrows was unanimously nominated Wednesday night by the republican caucus to succeed himself. After the nomination the senator and his late opponent, Albert Pack, of Alpena, came to the capitol together, which elicited great enthusiasm from the legislators. Both addressed the caucus. As the republicans have a large majority on joint ballot the re-election of Senator Burrows is assured.

Ferocious Beast Seen.

AUGUSTA, Ky., Jan. 5.—A ferocious beast killed 13 hogs on George Harrison's farm, near here, Tuesday night. Sam Gordley saw the animal. He says it was about four feet long and white. A number of men with a pack of hounds are now hot on its trail.

Declared Unconstitutional.

SALEM, Mass., Jan. 5.—The indeterminate sentence act, so called, was declared to be unconstitutional by the full bench of the supreme court in Boston Wednesday.

FILIPINO JUNTA.

In An Interview a Representative Predicts a Serious Crisis on the Islands.

Hostilities Are Probable They Say, Unless What They Characterize as the Unreasonable, Unfair, Overbearing Policy is Modified.

HONG KONG, Jan. 6.—Leading representatives of the Filipino junta in Hong Kong, in the course of an interview with a correspondent Thursday, declared that the serious crisis in the Philippines is due to what they designate as "overt, unfair treatment of the Filipinos by the United States." They said that despite the known fact that the whole of the Visayas group was in possession of the Filipino forces, Gen. Otis was ordered to take possession of the entire archipelago and dispatched troops and war ships to the Southern Visayas. The Filipinos, according to the junta representatives, are determined to prevent the landing of the Americans at Iloilo and may, as a last resort, destroy the city for strategical purposes.

The junta insist that a rupture of the friendly relations existing between the "Filipino national government" and the American executive is imminent, and that hostilities are probable unless what they characterize as the "unreasonable, unfair and overbearing policy of the Americans" is modified. They say the Filipinos "would deeply regret such a rupture, but would accept it as inevitable."

In concluding the interview the spokesman of the junta representatives said: "The Filipinos appeal to the American people to uphold the rights of mankind and to avoid bloodshed, assuring the Americans of our desire to complete a friendly settlement through an impartial commission of inquiry.

"The Filipinos loyally supported the Americans against the common enemy; now we know [illegible] the Americans to fulfill the promises made to Aguinaldo at Singapore before he proceeded to assist Adm. Dewey. All the Filipinos ask is the truest and best rights of mankind."

BY THE FIRST OF FEBRUARY.

It is Predicted By That Time the Peace Treaty Will Be a Law—Enough Votes Already and More Coming.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The peace treaty will be reported back to the senate from the committee on foreign relations next Wednesday. It will not be amended in the slightest, and Chairman Davis, of the committee, will merely make a verbal statement which will be the beginning and ending of speeches by members of the committee. Speeches against ratification will be made by Senator Hoar, who is said to be prepared to talk for three days; Senator Pettigrew, Senator Caffrey Senator Jones, of Arkansas, and a few others.

Friends of the treaty say that the senate now stands 61 for the treaty, 27 against and 2 doubtful. They are claiming daily accessions, and would not be surprised if, when the vote is reached, the yeas went as high as 70. They believe the final vote will be taken by February 1.

CLEARED DECK FOR ACTION.

Revenue Cutter Farnes the Canadian Sealer Enterprise for Leaving San Francisco in Defiance of Law.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—The revenue cutter Richard Rush had an exciting experience Thursday. The Canadian sealer Enterprise attempted to leave the harbor in defiance of the law, and with a customs officer on board, the Rush cleared for action and started in pursuit, overtaking the Enterprise outside the Heads. The Enterprise is liable to seizure and a heavy fine for being in American waters without having made proper entry. She put in here in distress some time ago and sailed, but later returned to port.

ENGLISHMEN WELL PLEASED.

The Appointment of Hon. Joseph H. Choate as Ambassador to Great Britain Very Satisfactory.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Daily News Friday morning, in an editorial welcoming the expected appointment of Joseph H. Choate, of New York, as United States ambassador to the court of St. James, says: "Englishmen will thank President McKinley for his choice. Mr. Choate will have an easy and pleasant task. He comes neither to take part in a quarrel nor to heal one, but to foster a cordial friendship into still more friendly cordiality."

Two Negroes Killed By Cars.

ASHTABULA, O., Jan. 6.—A Lake Shore passenger train Thursday struck two colored men en route from Buffalo to Youngstown, here, killing them instantly. Their necks were broken, and each had a leg broken at the ankle.

Anglo-Egyptians and Dervishes Fight.

CAIRO, Jan. 6.—In the recent battle between the Anglo-Egyptian troops, under Col. Lewis, and the Dervishes, under Emir Fedil, 500 Dervishes were killed and many others taken prisoners. The Emir escaped.

PASTOR HERBST EXPELLED.

He Smoked, Read the Newspapers, Owes a Few Debts and Discussed Current Events Occasionally.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Rev. George R. Herbst has been summarily removed from the pastorate of St. Paul's German Lutheran Evangelical church of Bayonne, N. J., because he smokes, reads newspapers, owes a few small debts and discusses current events occasionally in a neighboring grocery store.

Mr. Herbst was given 23 minutes notice of the trial upon the foregoing charges.

The ecclesiastical court, which sat in judgment upon him consisted of 19 members of the congregation. None of the other members knew of the proceedings until all was over and the pastor dismissed.

The suddenness of the affair almost stunned Mr. Herbst.

In vain he argued against the action. He admitted that he smoked and derived a great deal of pleasure from it, too. He also admitted reading the newspapers. As for owing debts he said the church owed him $64, and this amount would more than cover all his outstanding bills.

BROUGHT BY THE WAVES.

It Indicates the Loss of a Ship and Those on Board Off Yarmouth Cape, Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 6.—A bottle was picked up on the beach at Port Maitland breakwater, Nova Scotia, last Tuesday, containing a slip of paper, on which was written the following:

"November 28, 1898.

"Our ship is in shoal water about 20 miles off Yarmouth Cape. The wind blowing a hurricane and our ship fast breaking up. In a few minutes she will be no more; the captain and wife are sick; he requests me to write farewell to his folks. Mrs. Stewart is past speaking. They belong to Nova Scotia. Farewell. THOMAS HIKINS,

"First Officer."

A boat and a broken spar were picked up not far from the bottle, and it is believed that the message was from a sinking vessel.

SPANIARD'S FAIRY STORY.

They Accuse the Americans in the Philippine Islands of Practicing All Kinds of Atrocities.

MADRID, Jan. 6.—The newspapers here continue to charge the Americans in the Philippine islands with all kinds of atrocities. As a sample of the current fictions the papers Thursday accuse the Americans of delivering up a Spanish naval lieutenant, who is alleged to have surrendered to the United States forces, to the insurgents, who are said to have subjected him to all kinds of torture.

It is alleged that 104 monks were imprisoned at Cagayan and that many of them died of hunger and suffering, that Spanish property has been given over to looters, that the owners have been plundered and often assassinated and that at Suquat a convent was pillaged and the nuns brutally treated.

PRIZES TO BE DISTRIBUTED.

Capt. Sigsbee and Crew of the St. Paul Rewarded for the Capture of the British Ship Restormel.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Auditor Morris, for the navy department, has issued certificates for prize money to Capt. Sigsbee and all the crew of the St. Paul engaged in the capture of the British ship Restormel, the cargo of which brought over $13,000. Capt. Sigsbee receives $976.83. The next largest sums go to the paymaster and chaplain. They get $79 each. The gunners, mate receives $10 and the sailors between $4 and $5 each.

The Great Northern Flyer.

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 6.—The first Great Northern flyer, the new fast mail from the east, which left St. Paul Tuesday at 8:40 a. m., arrived here at 11:05 a. m., Thursday, four hours and five minutes late. It remained but ten minutes, five minutes less than scheduled, and left for Seattle. Heavy headwinds, snow and the worst storm of the season were encountered in North Dakota and Montana and accounts for the delay.

Filipinos Refuse to Liberate Prisoners.

MADRID, Jan. 6.—The following official dispatch has been received from Manila: "The insurgents refuse to liberate the prisoners on the demand of the Americans, claiming that this might be construed as an act of submission to the United States. With regard to liberating the monks the insurgents intend to negotiate with the vatican directly. Gen. Rios has now opened direct negotiations with the insurgents concerning the prisoners."

Stripped by Robbers.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 6.—Thomas Herman, of Defiance, was held up and robbed Thursday night of all his money, $101, a gold watch, together with his coat, shoes, socks, mitts and hat. He was also brutally assaulted.

Prof. Kendall Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—Otis Kendall, former professor of mathematics and astronomy at the University of Pennsylvania and for years one of the foremost educators of the country, died at his home here Thursday, aged 87 years.

THE FILIPINOS.

The Laws Promulgated By President McKinley to Govern the Islands.

Not as Invaders or Conquerors, But as Friends to Protect the Natives in the Enjoyment of Personal and Religious Rights.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—President McKinley's instructions regarding the government of the Philippines, which have been sent to Gen. Otis by cable, are as follows:

"EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—To the Secretary of War—Sir: The destruction of the Spanish fleet in the bay of Manila by the United States squadron commanded by Rr. Adm. Dewey, followed by the reduction of the city and the surrender of the Spanish forces, practically effected the conquest of the Philippine Islands and the suspension of Spanish sovereignty therein.

"With the signature of the treaty of peace the future control of the Philippine islands is ceded to the United States. In fulfillment of the rights of sovereignty thus acquired, the actual occupation of the entire group of the Philippine islands becomes immediately necessary, and the military government heretofore maintained by the United States in the city, harbor and bay of Manila is to be extended with all possible dispatch to the whole of the ceded territory.

"In performing this duty the military commander of the United States is enjoined to make known to the inhabitants that in succeeding to the sovereignty of Spain and in establishing a new political power, the authority of the United States is to be exerted for the security of the persons and property of the people of the islands and for the confirmation of all their private rights and relations. It will be the duty of the commander of the forces of occupation to proclaim that we come, not as invaders or conquerors, but as friends. All persons who, either by active aid or by honest submission, co-operate with the government of the United States to give effect to these beneficient purposes, will receive the reward of its support and protection. All others will be brought within the lawful rule we have assumed, with firmness if need be, but without severity, so far as may be possible.

"Within the absolute domain of military authority the municipal laws in respect to private rights and property and the repression of crime are to be considered as continuing in force. The operations of civil and municipal government are to be performed by such officers as may accept the supremacy of the United States by taking the oath of allegiance, or by officers chosen from the inhabitants.

"While the control of all the public property and the revenues of the state passes with the cession, private property, whether belonging to individuals or corporations, is to be respected.

"The taxes and duties become payable to the United States. If private property be taken for military use it shall be paid for.

"All places in the Philippine islands in the actual possession of the United States will be opened to the commerce of all friendly nations. All goods will be admitted on the payment of such duties and other charges as shall be in force.

"Finally, it should be the earnest and paramount aim of the military administration to win the confidence, respect and affection of the inhabitants. There must be seduously maintained the strong arm of authority, to repress disturbances and to overcome obstacles to the bestowal of the blessings of good and stable government.

"WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

(Signed),

"H. C. CORBIN, Adjutant General."

MANILA, Jan. 5.—A proclamation based on instructions sent by President McKinley by cable, was issued by Gen. Otis, the military commander here, Wednesday. The proclamation says it is the intention of the United States to draw from the Filipinos as much of the military force of the islands as is possible, and to seek the establishment of a most liberal government, in which the Filipinos will have as full representation as the maintenance of law and order will permit.

No mention is made of the kind of government that will be established, or the number of representatives the Filipinos will be allowed to have—two points on which the natives are extremely anxious for information. The proclamation is also indefinite on other points. A demand is made that the Filipinos lay down their arms, but no date is set for them to do so.

FORCE OF HABIT.

He Was Used to Standing in Street Cars and He Grabbed for the Straps.

It was at the Himbish-Mimmikin wedding reception.

The crush was terrible.

People with tender feet uttered half-suppressed groans here and there, and weak women would have fainted if there had been any hope that fainting would have done the least good.

Ever and anon Burbank would make a frantic grab for something above his head, and then looked disappointed.

Lambert watched him reach up half a dozen times, and then edged his way through the crowd to where his friend was being jostled about.

Just as he got there somebody gave a lurch somewhere, and the people began to sway about as they do in crowds where there are nervous or mischievous persons who insist on pushing.

Burbank was almost carried off his feet, and he made a frantic effort to grasp the invisible something that he had previously endeavored to find above his head.

"See here, old man," exclaimed Lambert, "what are you trying to find up there?"

Burbank gave a start, as if he had just been aroused from a trance, looked sheepishly at his friend, and then replied:

"It's force of habit. This crowd makes me think, every little while, that I'm in a street car, and, involuntarily, I reach for the strap, whenever the people begin to lurch."—Cleveland Leader.

She Was Taking No Chances.

The fast-flying elevator in a huge down-town office building hovered for an instant at the third floor, like an impatient and monstrous bird, then, with a clang of the iron gates, flew upward and out of sight.

The citizen from Sassafras Grove looked turned fiercely to his wife.

"What made you hold me back, mother?"

"Why, Eben Dilly, who are you talking to? Don't you stand there and jaw me!"

"Well, you make me feel so foolish."

"Foolish, eh? Foolish! That's all the thanks a woman gits for bein' careful. You come down here to git your life insured, didn't ye?"

"Course I did."

"Ye ain't done it yet, hev ye?"

"Goin' to do it jest as soon as I kin git to that 'leventh floor."

"Yes! Well, when ye've done it ye can ride on all the elevators in creation if ye want to, but not till then."

And the prudent wife began the long and weary ascent of the marble stairs, followed by her humble spouse.—N. Y. Herald.

His Motto.

A New York merchant recently advertised for an office boy. The first lad that went to try for the position was asked what his motto in life was.

"The same as yours, sir," answered the lad.

"How do you know my motto?" asked the manager.

"It tells you on the door, sir; it says push!"

THEY WANT TO TELL.

These Grateful Women Who Have Been Helped by Mrs. Pinkham.

Women who have suffered severely and been relieved of their ills by Mrs. Pinkham's advice and medicine are constantly urging publication of their statements for the benefit of other women. Here are two such letters:

Mrs. LIZZIE BEVERLY, 258 Merrimac St., Lowell, Mass., writes:

"It affords me great pleasure to tell all suffering women of the benefit I have received from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I can hardly find words to express my gratitude for what she has done for me. My trouble was ulceration of the womb. I was under the doctor's care. Upon examination he found fifteen very large ulcers, but he failed to do me good. I took several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, also used the Sanative Wash, and am cured. Mrs. Pinkham's medicine saved my life, and I would recommend it to all suffering women."

Mrs. AMOS TROMBLEAT, Elenburgh Ctr., N. Y., writes:

"I took cold at the time my baby was born, causing me to have milk legs, and was sick in bed for eight weeks. Doctors did me no good. I surely thought I would die. I was also troubled with falling of the womb. I could not eat, had faint spells as often as ten times a day. One day a lady came to see me and told me of the benefit she had derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, and advised me to try it. I did so, and had taken only half a bottle before I was able to sit in a chair. After taking three bottles I could do my own work. I am now in perfect health."

DEWEY'S WANTS.

He Makes a Request For More War Ships and Supplies.

With His Present Vessels, the Captured Spanish Ships and Those Under Way, Dewey Will Have the Largest Fleet in Time of Peace.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The navy department received a long cipher cable dispatch from Adm. Dewey making requisitions for ships and supplies urgently needed on the Asiatic station. The admiral reiterated the request he has made several times in the last few weeks, that additional light draught gunboats should be sent to him, notwithstanding the fact that Secretary Long informed him Friday that the Castine was starting immediately by way of Suez, and other vessels would follow when they could be spared. A reply was sent to the admiral Saturday that the Bennington, now on her way from Honolulu to make surveys at Guam, would be ordered to Manila in the course of a few months, and the Machias, now repairing at Portsmouth, N. H., would follow the Castine through the Mediterranean in a few weeks to join his fleet.

Secretary Long added a request to Adm. Dewey to designate specifically any other gunboats he desired, in order that the department might gratify him, if possible. The authorities recognize the advisability of sending all the gunboats that can be spared to the Asiatic station, on account of their adaptability to service in the archipelago, but in addition to the Concord and Petrel, which are now at Iloilo, the Helena is at Port Said on her way to Manila, and Adm. Dewey now has in commission the Callao, the Manila, the Culgoa and the Barcelo, which he captured from the Spaniards, and in a few weeks the Isla de Luzon and the Isla de Cuba, which he raised and sent to Hong Kong, will be manned by the crews sent out on the Buffalo.

He also has the captured gunboats Leyte and Mindanao awaiting crews, and when the Machias, Castine and Bennington join him he will have 30 vessels under his command, not counting the Oregon and the Iris, which will soon be at Honolulu, awaiting orders to go to his support. Such a large fleet has never in times of peace been under the command of a single American officer, but the department has such confidence in the admiral's judgment that it will not hesitate to send him any further reinforcements that he demands.

In his dispatch Adm. Dewey calls for large quantities of plug tobacco, soap and American food. It will be remembered that soon after the destruction of Montojo's fleet the admiral cabled for 40,000 bars of soap, finding he could buy none in Asiatic waters. This supply has either been exhausted or the admiral is determined to have a fresh supply on hand before it gives out in order that there shall be no uncleanliness in his fleet. His demand for more plug tobacco is explained in letters which have recently reached Washington from officers of the fleet, telling how tired the men are of Philippine cigars, and how they miss their sweetened navy plug and clay pipes.

To carry these needed supplies the department decided Saturday to fit up the auxiliary cruiser Yankee or her sister ship, the Prairie, and load them full of necessities, sending them to Manila by way of the Suez canal. These vessels are now at League island, but one of them can be sent around to New York and made ready to start in the next two weeks.

MISHAPS AND ADVENTURES.

A Wrecked Crew Subsist as Best They Can on a Small Island for Four Months Before They Were Rescued.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Capt. R. R. Shaw and the crew of ten of the British bark Glenhuntley, long given up for lost, are alive and well and on their way to Liverpool. They abandoned the Glenhuntley in a fierce gale on June 4, 1898. For 154 days the 11 sailor men lived on Tristan d'Acunha Isle, more than 1,500 miles south by west of the Cape of Good Hope. They subsisted on penguin eggs and the flesh of sea eaglets and shared with the 72 white inhabitants the scanty stock of provisions that the captain of a passing vessel could spare. After almost four months of such existence the British war ship Thrush, making an annual voyage of inspection through the south Atlantic, rescued the castaways, and late in November last landed them at Simon's bay, South Africa. A letter has been received in this city from Capt. Shaw, by way of Cape Town, which tells his mishaps and adventures.

Columbia River Blocked With Ice.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Jan. 9.—The Columbia river from the mouth of the Willamette to the Cascades, for the second time this winter, is blocked with ice. No boats are now able to navigate the stream above the mouth of the Willamette, six miles below this city.

Declines To Be a Candidate For the Senate.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 9.—Judge John S. Phelps, who served as representative from Fayette in the legislature of 1896, has declined to become a candidate for state senator.

THE BUNKS TOPPLED OVER.

Two Hundred Ohio Soldier Boys Were Rudely Awakened While in Slumber —Several of Them Injured.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 7.—Two hundred members of the 4th Ohio volunteers, gathered here for muster ont, were hurled from their improvised beds at the Auditorium at an early hour Friday morning, and 33 were injured, quite a number being seriously hurt, although no fatalities are expected.

In order to accommodate the men, temporary double-decked bunks had been constructed out of tent floors and scantling, and under the weight of the sleeping soldiers the structure toppled over. All the injured were 2d battalion men. The more seriously hurt were as follows.

John Kashner, Company M, Ashville, injured about the neck and spine; Gordon Withrow, Company M, Hallsville, spine and abdomen injured; Albert Barber, Company H, Portsmouth, lower bowels and lumbar region; Nat. J. Coffman, Company E, Washington, C. H., back; Ed. I. Walker, Company M, Circleville, back and abdomen; Samuel Spangler, Company M, Circleville, hip and back; Charles Neal, Company H, Portsmouth, back and neck; Samuel A. Johnson, Company H, Portsmouth, back and right hip; Albert Messer, Company H, Portsmouth, neck and back of head; French Simms, Company E, Washington C. H., rib broken; George Newhard, Company M, Circleville, rib broken.

There are 13 others who received severe injuries and many more or less bruised. Lack of bracing of the bunks is the reason given for the accident. The men in the lower bunks suffered the most. The extent of the various injuries can not be told yet, but the medical staff are doing all possible for the men. A number were removed to the various hospitals, owing to the severity of their injuries.

THE SEVENTH INFANTRY.

Nine Companies of the Regiment Will Be Sent to Various Points—Balance to Remain at Fort Wayne.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 7.—Company F, 7th United States infantry, left Fort Wayne Friday morning and started for Fort Thomas, Ky., by special train over the Lake Shore railroad. According to the plan of distribution there will be nine companies, or parts of companies of this regiment, stationed at various points and five companies will remain at Fort Wayne. One company will be stationed at Fort Brady, one-half company at Fort Snelling, St. Paul; one-half company at Walker Lake, Minn.; one company at Fort Crook, Omaha; one at Fort Sheridan, Chicago; one at Jefferson barracks, St. Louis; one at Fort Thomas, Ky., and one at Columbus barracks, Columbus.

Lieut. Allison, of Company D, received orders Friday morning to proceed to Columbus as soon as possible. It is contemplated that the small number of men sent to these posts are to act simply as guards while the other regiments proceed to service in the Philippines, Cuba or Porto Rico.

Fatal Gasoline Explosion.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 7.—A special from Pemberville, a town 18 miles south of here, says that by an explosion of gasoline the hardware store of Keil & Son was badly wrecked and Augustus Keil, the junior partner, so badly injured that he died in an hour. His right arm was blown off and the right side of his face torn off. Mr. Keil was a leading citizen and former mayor of the village. He leaves a wife and infant son.

Steamer Catania Reported Safe.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The American steamer Catania is safe. A dispatch from St. Michaels, Azores, to Lloyds, says that the Catania, from Glasgow, December 17, for New York, previously reported in distress by the British steamer Messaba, which spoke and endeavored, unsuccessfully, to tow her on December 20, has put into that port. Her funnel had been washed away and her decks swept of everything moveable, including her boats.

Senator Morrill's Successor.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—A special from Montpelier, Vt., says: "Gov. Smith has tendered the place in the United States senate left vacant by the death of Senator Morrill to B. F. Fifield, of this city. Mr. Fifield has not yet accepted."

Houses Under Water.

WESTON, W. Va., Jan. 7.—All the lower portion of Weston is inundated. The water stands eight feet in many homes. The river gauge showed 17 feet and falling at 7 o'clock Friday night.

TERRIFIC CRASH.

Four People Killed and Two Others Injured in a Railroad Wreck.

Fireman, Brakeman and Flagman Were Burned to Death Or Killed Under the Ruins of Three Engines— Loss is Over $100,000.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 9.— Four dead, two injured, one of these perhaps fatally, and the loss of property of the Southern railway to the amount of about $100,000, is the result of a wreck which occurred Sunday morning on the Knoxville and Ohio branch of the Knoxville division of the Southern railway, one and one-half miles west of Elk valley. The dead are:

Engineer J. D. Maxey, Fireman Frank Readdy, colored, Brakeman Ionza Hoover, colored, Flagman W. A. Dillon.

The injured are: Engineer Goff, badly but not fatally cut on the head and bruised; Fireman George Huskinson, badly burned and may die.

Maxey, Readdy, Hoover and Dillon were burned to death or killed under neath the ruins of three engines and a number of cars and coaches of the two wrecked trains.

Sunday morning at 11:30 o'clock a double-header freight train, loaded with coal and merchandise, crashed into a mixed local passenger train while both were running at the rate of 35 miles an hour. The engines met head on, the force of impact being terrific. The coming together of the two trains was so sudden that the trainmen were unable to jump and save their lives.

Passenger train was running 15 minutes late, having waited at Knoxville for connection with a western train and had the right of way. All the freight trains on the Knoxville and Ohio division had been notified that the passenger train was on a late run and the only cause for the accident that can be given is that Engineer Maxey, of the freight train, misread his orders. Immediatidly after the crash the wreckage caught fire. The fire could not be controlled, and this city was asked for a fire engine by the Southern railway. The engine left Knoxville at 5 o'clock p. m., and had the fire under control at about 9:30 o'clock. Travel on the branch on which the wreck occurred has been suspended until Monday. The passenger train carried about 20 passengers. None of these was injured.

HOTEL FIRE IN PITTSBURGH.

Three Persons Lose Their Lives and Five Others Painfully Burned and Injured— Michigan Man's Heroism.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 9.—A fire which broke out in the Hotel Richelieu at 3:15 Sunday morning resulted in a property loss of only about $15,000, but three lives were sacrificed and five people were badly hurt.

The Dead—Amos S. Landis, grapeville, Pa.; George A. Waters, Camden, N. J.; Mrs. Katherine Boyle, Pittsburgh.

The three victims were guests of the hotel, and all were suffocated by the dense smoke.

The injured—Dr. Robert Blacksley, of Plymouth, Pa., fracture of vertebrae, caused by falling from third floor window, will probably die.

Henry Painter, Grapeville, Pa., small blood vessels of lungs ruptured by inhaling smoke; may recover.

John L. Mills, proprietor of the hotel, face and body badly burned.

Miss Mills, his daughter, cut by glass while breaking through the window to escape.

William Garretson, Clearfield, Pa., delegate to miners' national convention, painfully burned about back and hips; returned home.

The fire originated on the second floor from an explosion of gas, and within a few moments the building was a mass of flames and blinding smoke. The noise of the explosion awakened most of the guests, about 20 in number, and a frantic fight for life ensued.

Robert N. Thompson, of Kalaska, Mich., a salesman for the Cadillac Lumber Co., was the means of saving at least six lives. In the first moments after the explosion he rushed into the hallway of the second floor and stumbled over the unconscious form of a woman, whom he dragged into the reception room. Five others, three men and two women, who had been turned back from the stairway by the flames, were shrieking and fighting for some exit. Thompson forced them all into the big room and locked the door. Knowing that it meant death to go into the hall he fought the desperate men back until the arrival of the firemen, when all were rescued.

Dead at the Age of 100 Years.

BEVERLY, Mass., Jan. 9.—Wm. Endicott, aged 100 years, died Sunday. He was an eye-witness of the engagement between the frigates Chesapeake and Shannon, June 1, 1813, and was of the sixth generation from Gov. Endicott, of the Massachusetts bay colony.

Ex-Congressman Stockdale Dead.

SUMMIT, Miss., Jan. 9.—Ex-Congressman Thomas R. Stockdale, formerly judge of the supreme court of Mississippi and a prominent confederate officer, died Sunday, aged 71 years.

MANILA IS THREATENED.

The Flame of Rebellion Spreads Over the Philippine Islands—Natives Fleeing From the City—Fear Attack.

MANILA, Jan. 7.—It is apparent that the situation here has not been improved by the proclamation issued by Gen. Otis Wednesday evening. There is a feeling of unrest among the people, and it is feared by them that the insurgents in arms may attempt some overt act against the Americans.

Some native families here are moving, or preparing to move, to the provinces, believing that Aguinaldo's forces will attack the city. The trains running to interior points are crowded with persons seeking refuge in the country from the anticipated attack.

Excitement here among the Americans increases with every hour's delay in the arrival of definite news from Iloilo.

There is no longer any doubt that the insurgents are in full control of the Visayas group, and it is even probable that they have taken up arms throughout the entire islands. The past few months have been spent by Aguinaldo, it is supposed, passing from island to island and stirring up feeling against the Americans. For a long time the tricky leader was missing from his headquarters at Mololos, and it was then that he planted the seeds of rebellion among the most distant of the islanders. The Americans have awakened to the fact that bloodshed is sure and that a serious job awaits them. The fear that Aguinaldo and his Luzon forces may close in around Manila has gained much headway, although such a move is hardly possible, since the Americans are well fortified and could beat them at every turn.

It is more than likely that Gen. Miller, in command at Iloilo, will hold off until he can learn the number of insurgents centered there, for there must be a chance of defeat with he lands and attempts to retake the city.

NEW ARMY ORDERS ISSUED.

Stringent Regulations for the Sanitary Inspection of Military Camps—This Includes All the Hospitals.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Profiting by the experiences of the recent war, Secretary Alger has issued stringent regulations for the sanitary inspection each Saturday of all the military camps, including regimental, brigade and division hospitals. A special medical inspection also is ordered on the last Saturday of each month. Similar inspections will be made on the last day of each month of all military posts and general hospitals. The senior medical officer present is to make these inspections for detached commands, military posts and general hospitals; brigade surgeons will make them for troops that are organized into and serving as brigades and when special occasion requires and the general commanding orders division, corps or department chief surgeons will make them.

It is directed that a report of these inspections, with such recommendations as are deemed proper, be made to the commanding officer who will return it after endorsing thereon his views. The medical officer is then to forward the report through military channels to the surgeon general of the army. All commanding officers are directed to facilitate the prompt transmission of these reports to their proper destination.

HIGH WATER IN MISSISSIPPI.

All Traffic On the Illinois Central at Jackson City Delayed—The Tracks Eight feet Under Water.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 7.—Heavy rains have caused extensive washouts on railroads in Central Mississippi and the general condition Friday is the worst known in years. Several hundred feet of tracks is completely submerged on the Illinois Central road two miles north of this city and all traffic on that system has been indefinitely delayed. On the Alabama & Vicksburg road between Bolton and Edwards, seven miles of track is eight feet under water. The Yazoo & Mississippi Valley train which left here at 7 o'clock Friday morning was forced back by high water.

Life Imprisonment.

MADRID, Jan. 7.—Col. Julison San Martin, who was in command of the Spanish garrison at Ponce, Porto Rico, when the United States troops under Gen. Miles landed in the island, and who abandoned the place without resistence, has been sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Mail Packages Stolen.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Two packages of mail sent from New York and bound to Grafton, W. Va., over the Jersey Central railroad, are missing. It was at first believed that the packages were lost in transit, but it is now believed that they were stolen.

Wealthy Farmer Missing.

WILMINGTON, O., Jan. 7.—George R. Mitchell, a farmer of this county, is missing. He owns 330 acres of land seven miles south of this city. On October 13, 1898, he left for Cincinnati with live stock. He is said to have written from there that he intended to go to Porto Rico. Several suits have been brought against him on notes ranging from $100 to $1,500. His property is more than ample to pay all indebtedness. His wife has instituted suit for alimony.

AN ACTIVE WEEK

Will Begin in the Senate With a Speech By Senator Hoar.

In the House the Time Will Be Fully Occupied Until the End of the Session— The Appropriation Bills Will Be Kept to the Front.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The week promises to be a busy one in the senate. It will begin with an elaborate and carefully prepared speech by Senator Hoar to be delivered immediately after the transaction of the routine business Monday, in opposition to the extension of American territory.

Tuesday Senator Mason will discuss briefly his resolution in opposition to this country's asserting sovereignty over Cuba and the Philippines, taking strong grounds for the independence of the people of those islands.

Senator Morgan will make an effort early in the week to get the senate to name a date for taking a vote upon his bill for the construction of the Nicaragua canal, and whether he succeeds or not, will press the bill continuously upon the attention of the senate as circumstances will permit. Unanimous consent is necessary to the fixing of a time for a vote, and it is not probable that this will be secured for some time to come.

It is the expectation that the peace treaty will be reported on Wednesday, and also that some of the appropriation bills now in the hands of the committee on appropriations will be brought in towards the close of the week. Immediate consideration will be asked for the appropriation bills, but it is possible that the beginning of senate upon the treaty may be postponed until next week. There is an effort on foot among the opponents of the treaty to have it discussed in open session but the indications are against such a course.

The time of the house will be fully occupied from this time forward until the conclusion of the session. Appropriation bills, which are already in an unusually advanced stage, are to be kept to the fore, but there is a deal of other important legislation which will press for consideration at every opportunity. Perhaps the most important single measure is the bill for the reorganization of the army. It was the general understanding before the recess that this bill would be given consideration immediately after the holidays, but the illness of Chairman Hull, of the military affairs committee, will delay this measure until he is sufficiently recovered to attend the sessions of the house.

His illness will also delay the military academy and army appropriation bills. Meantime the friends of the navy personnel bill are pushing for its consideration and the rules committee may give a day to it during the present week. The bill represents a complete agreement between the line and the staff.

The final vote on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill will be taken Monday.

The opponents of the civil service law succeeded in striking from the bill, while the house was in committee of the whole, the appropriation for the maintenance of the commission.

The diplomatic and consular and naval appropriation bills are the next budgets to be taken up, and either or both of them may be considered this week. Such time as intervenes will be consumed in the consideration of the bill for the codification of the laws of Alaska.

This bill has been made a continuing order. Portions of two days have already been consumed by it and less than 70 of the 232 pages of the bill have been disposed of. The lawyers of the house show an inclination to go over it critically, section by section, and it may be before the house for an indefinite period.

ARE READY FOR THE TORCH.

Principal Buildings in Iloilo Will Be Burned at First Shot From the Americans— McKinley's Proclamation Ridiculed.

MANILA, Jan. 9.—Col. Potter, the special emissary of Gen. Otis between Manila and Iloilo, arrived Sunday afternoon with dispatches from the latter point. The situation when he left there was practically unchanged. The streets were barricaded and it was reported that the principal buildings had been "kerosened," the insurgents having threatened to destroy the whole business section by fire at the first shot of the bombardment. The banks were shipping treasure to the United States transport Newport and other vessels. The family of the American vice consul has gone on board the Newport.

Head Roasted Off.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—As John Ferris, watchman at a lime kiln in Williamsburg, was making his early rounds Sunday, he noticed a man who appeared to be sleeping at the edge of the kiln. Stepping closer to get a better view of the stranger, Ferris was horrified to see that the man had no head, it having been burned off completely. He had wandered to the kiln to get warm, and the gas arising from the furnace overcame him. He probably was dead before the fire reached his head.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—SENATE—The first session of the senate after the holiday recess occupied only 14 minutes, although in that brief time two open sessions and an executive session were held. The galleries were filled with spectators before the senate convened, the general expectation being that the peace treaty would be presented. The senatorial members of the peace commission appeared on the floor and were given a hearty greeting by their colleagues. In the absence of the vice president, Mr. Frye (Me.), the president pro tem, called the senate to order. Mr. Frye, who was in the chair, immediately recognized Maj. Prudens, assistant secretary to the president, who presented a message from the president of the United States. The message contained the treaty of Paris. On motion of Mr. Davis the senate then went into executive session, in order that the treaty might be referred to the committee on foreign relations.

HOUSE—The house spent Wednesday considering the bill to define and punish crimes in Alaska and provide a code of criminal procedure for the territory. Sixty-seven pages were completed Wednesday and the bill was made a continuing order until disposed of, not, however, to interfere with appropriation bills or other special orders. The house adjourned out of respect to the memory of the late Senator Morrill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—SENATE—Little business, except that of a routine character, was transacted by the senate Thursday. A resolution offered by Mr. Hoar (Mass.), directing the committee on foreign relations to report to the senate whether the treaty of Paris makes any pr[illegible] claims of citizens of the United States against Spain which were in existence before the present war and the status of such claims after the ratification of the treaty, was adopted. Mr. Caffery (La.) continued and practically concluded his speech begun before the holiday recess in opposition to the pending Nicaragua canal bill.

HOUSE—The judiciary committee had the right of way in the house for three hours Thursday and quite a number of bills of minor importance reported from the committee were passed. The remainder of the day was occupied in continuing the consideration of the bill to codify the laws of Alaska. Some 21 pages were disposed of, making 83 in all. A section in the bill copied from the statutes of Oregon, providing punishment by fine and imprisonment of persons who prevent or endeavor to prevent employes from working, aroused a protracted debate on the ground that it was an attack on organized labor. It was finally stricken out. The following bills called up by the judiciary committee were passed: To provide additional circuit judges for the Third and Sixth judicial districts, to regulate the terms of court in the eastern district of Tennessee and the district of Butte, Mont.; to amend the revised statutes so as to allow the United States five peremptory challenges in criminal cases; to permit ship owners to file indemnity bonds; to allow legally appointed guardians of insane persons to prosecute patent claims and to release the International Cotton Press Co. of New Orleans, from liability for $3,498 of internal revenue taxes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—SENATE—Immediately after the senate convened Friday the resolution offered Thursday by Mr. Hoar (Mass.) calling on the president for information as to the instructions of the commissioners who negotiated the treaty of Paris together with all correspondence and reports relating to their work, was laid before the senate. Chairman Davis, one of the commissioners, desired that it be referred to the committee on foreign relations, but Mr. Hoar insisted that the senate had as much right to such information as the members of the foreign relations committee and that the president should determine whether the senate should have it. The resolution was adopted in secret session. In support of the resolution offered some time ago by Mr. Vest (Missouri), in opposition to expansion, Mr. Caffery (Louisiana) delivered an extended speech. At the conclusion of Mr. Caffery's argument Mr. Morgan (Ala.) announced on behalf of the Nicaragua canal committee, the acceptance in a modified form of the amendments offered by Mr. Berry before the holidays to the pending canal bill. The amendments were not passed upon by the senate.

HOUSE—The anti-civil service reformers scored a victory in the house Friday. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was taken up for consideration, and when the appropriation for the civil service commission was reached, Mr. Evans (rep., Ky.) made a motion to strike it out. The motion to strike out carried by a narrow majority. This was in committee of the whole, where no record is made of the vote. Mr. Moody (rep. Mass.), gave notice that he would demand a record vote in the house where the friends of the civil service law expect to reverse the decision. Those who advocated the motion to strike out were: Messrs. Evans (rep., Ky.), Grosvenor (rep., O.), Hepburn (rep., Ia.), Linney (rep., N. C.), Brown (rep., O.), and Marsh (rep., Ill.). Its opponents were Messrs. Moody (rep., Mass.), Hopkins (rep., Ill.), Fleming (dem., Ga.), Brosius (rep., Pa.), Henderson (rep., Ia.) and Bolliver (rep., Ia.)

A TREMENDOUS LANDSLIDE.

Fully One Hundred Acres of a Small Mountain Slides Into the Fraser River, Changing Its Course.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 9.—News was received here Sunday of a tremendous landslide near Spences Bridge on the Canadian Pacific railway. The recent thaw had the effect of loosening the sides of a small mountain which overhangs the Frazer river at that point. This mountain has long been an object of curiosity to travelers on account of its peculiar position, its flat summit extending a considerable distance of the river, which is narrow at that point. Shortly after midnight Sunday with a roar that could heard for over a mile fully 100 acres of the hill, anywhere from 30 to 50 feet in depth, crashed into the Frazer, damming it completely and sending the water in torrents over the fertile Nicola valley. The course of the river was changed completely.

Death of Hon. Reuben Goodrich.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Jan. 9.—Hon. Reuben Goodrich died here Sunday, aged 79. In addition to having been prominent in state politics, he was appointed by Lincoln receiver of the United States land office. He was removed by President Johnson, but was reappointed by President Grant when he served eight years.

The court also settled with the Corinth and New Columbus road, paying the stockholders $5,300 for their property. The roads of the county have cost the court about $40,000.

Litigation over the constitutionality of the Goebel law is at an end, if the statement of one of the Republican lawyers and politicians who has been fighting it in the courts can be relied on. This statement was made this afternoon in answer to a question whether or not the Republican attorneys would file a petition in the Court of Appeals for a rehearing of the test case decided in December last by an opinion of Chief Justice Lewis. The time for filing such a petition will not expire for some days yet, but, so this enemy of the new law says, the Republican lawyers have all agreed that no Federal question could be raised that would warrant carrying the case into the Federal Court, and that should such a step be taken they would undoubtedly be demurred out of court. The dissenting opinion of the Republican members of the Appellate Court, which is to be written by Judge DuRelle, has not yet been handed down.—Courier Journal.

[Kansas City News]

The virulence of the attack upon Andrew Carnegie by the organs of the Administration have never been equaled in party hatred. He has been driven out of the McKinley wing of the Republican party and branded "ingrate." Edmonds, Hoar, Hale, Sherman, Boutwell, Reed and many other prominent Republicans have denounced the President's annexation policy as vehemently and unsparingly as Mr. Carnegie, but the ironmonger has grown to be a multi-millionaire under the fostering care of Republican class legislation, which makes him a thankless child of congressional favoritism, and he must quit the party. But Edmonds, Hoar and the other anti-colonial empire statesmen may stay in the party. They have a large political following in their own and in other States, and prudence warns the Administration to let them alone.

It is positively amusing and decidedly refreshing to see how many different kinds of abuse the Administration organs are showering upon Mr. Carnegie. As they picture him, he is about the worst citizen the United States ever had. It is not denied that in a financial way Mr. Carnegie has poured rich blood into the Republican national campaigns in the past. In fact, it is admitted that he could be relied upon to head all lists of the campaign corruption fund, but his Democratic way of criticising the foreign policy of the Administration smells offensively in the nostrils of the imperialists and he must walk the plank, They say he is a monster and point to the "Homestead riot" and the "hiring of Pinkerton mercenaries to shoot down his striking employes," to prove the charge. The sympathy of the Republican party went out to Mr. Carnegie in those dark days, and nearly the entire militia force of Republican Pennsylvania was sent to the "front" to reinforce the "Pinkerton mercenaries." Some of the Republican newspapers went as far as to insinuate that the Homestead riot and the labor strikes in other industrial centers were instigated by the Democracy for political uses. But the Democracy now stands exonerated, Carnegie was the villian.

Of the tobacco market the Western Tobacco Journal of last week says: "The tobacco trade for the year 1899 began on Tuesday with small offerings, as the sellers preferred to see how the market would start before offering too freely. Most of the buyers were on hand, and appeared anxious to get to work after the vacation of the holidays, but we could not see any advance over the last sales of the old year. The demand for colory low grades took the lead and continued firm, but the best grades were neglected. Sales on Wednesday were some larger and some of the shippers thought the market a shade stronger, but we thought there was very little, if any, change. The sales on Thursday consisted of considerable West Virginia tobacco, and for the quality we considered the sales very good and quite an advance over last previous days, and the week closed with a gradual improvement from the first day's sales.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1899. NO. 13.

THEY are having a hot old time in the West Virginia legislature.

ACCORDING to Senator Foraker the Republicans are for an expansion that does not expand.

IT was hard to find a McCoy man the day after he had his fistic interview with Sharkey.

IT appears that the Philippine views of Senator Foraker and W. J. Bryan are somewhat similar.

THE chewing gum manufacturers have formed a combine, involving a capital of over fifteen million dollars.

THIRTY barrels of Kentucky civilizer were shipped from Louisville, one day last week, its destination being Cuba.

THE Louisville politicians are out for all there is in politics. They are all spoilsmen of the most voracious character

GERMANY is threatening to do something ugly, and Uncle Sam had better be shipping some of his army meat over there for their consumption.

THERE are many opinions as to what effect the recent committee meeting at Lexington will have on the prospects of the several candidates and prospective candidates.

A PROPOSITION is now pending in Congress for that body to have an investigation of the late war. It now looks like investigations will cost a sum equal to that required to prosecute the war.

GERMANY has a spite at this country, and shows it on every occasion, and now begins a war on the American bycicle. The hog has been outlawed by that country on two or three occasions.

IT now begins to look as though Aguinaldo to secure Philippine independence will only have to offer Uncle Sam $20,000,000 with which to pay Spain the amount she recently buncoed him out of.

THE Covington Commonwealth changed owners again a few days ago. With all due respect possible the RECORDER suggests to its esteemed contemporary that it change its name to "The Moon."

SENATOR FORAKER'S speech, in which he proclaimed with a repeat, that no one wants to hold the Philippines permanently, was a surprise. Has he come to the conclusion that "forcible annexation is criminal aggression?"

THE war investigation has developed one thing that is beyond dispute, to wit: That great is the jealousy that exists among the commanding officers. That much is true, no matter to what length the beard grew on the army beef.

IT is now pretty evident that there will be some new material offering for county representative this time, and the older fellows will have to get a move on if they expect to lead the youngsters. Interesting times, politically, are just adhead.

A LEXINGTON man is one of the most accomplished smellers in the country. That sense has been so thoroughly developed that it is no trouble for him to tell the age of whisky by its smell. He has looked down his nose into many a glass of the critter.

THE Kentucky Prohibitionists will take an active part in the election of the next General Assembly, their aim being to have the local option law so amended as to make the county, instead of the voting precinct or town, the unit in local option elections.

JUST as the Republicans throughout the country had discovered that they are expansionists and want the Philippine islands, along comes Senator Foraker, and demoralizes everything by declaring that no one wants the Philippines permanently.

MR. HOAR ought not to ask such impertinent and vexing questions as, "who will pull the flag down?" Senator Foraker was not discussing the hauling down problem, and to try to compel him to cross a river before he gets to it is very unparliamentary in Senator Hoar.

THE Foraker speech of last Wednesday created a great stir in the administration circles, where the Senator was repudiated as the President's mouth piece. Foraker has a way of stirring up the leaders of his party quite often.

IN another column will be found the RECORDER'S proposition to make somebody a present of a handsome watch, for securing subscribers for it. If you do not succeed in winning the watch you get fifteen cents on each subscriber you obtain.

THE Standard Oil Company has advanced the price of oil one and a half cents a gallon since the first of this year, and a still further rise is predicted. The Standard Company controls the oil market and can fix prices to suit itself, the advantage a trust has over consumers.

SENATOR FAIRBANKS, of Indiana, sees in the recent Senatorial election at Indianapolis, trouble a head for him. Beveridge is a townsman of the Senator and that fact will be a stumbling block for him in case the Republicans control the legislature that will choose his successor.

THE fellow who claims to have kept Kentucky from seceding during the civil war, died in New York last week. His name was Geo. P. Webster. It has been understood all along that there was more than one man in the Kentucky legislature at that time who opposed secession.

THIS country is now about to undertake a job of civilizing for which she is to pay $2,000,000, and to accomplish which she will be compelled to sustain an army and navy at a cost of nearly $200,000,000 annually. It cost considerable to bring the mongrel heathen into civilization.

THE Indiana Republicans gave shop-worn politicians the go-by in selecting a United States Senator to succeed Turpie on the 4th of March next. His name is Beveridge, is 36 years old and a native of Ohio, his birth place being in the same county as that of Senator Foraker.

GEN. WHEELER wants the widows and relatives of those who fell at Santiago and other battles in the war with Spain, given more liberal pensions than are provided for under the general pension laws, and in all probability there will be some legislation in response to the General's request.

ANDREW CARNEGIE offers to give two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the construction of a public library in Washington, provided Congress will appropriate not less than ten thousand dollars a year for its maintenance, and the probabilities are Congress will accept his proposition on the terms stipulated.

CALHOON COUNTY, Illinois, has neither a bank nor a negro. A negro went to the county seat, a few days since, to carry a hod for the masons, who were erecting a bank building. A vigilance committeewas soon organized, when the negro took to the woods, and the masons had to secure another hod carrier. This was in Illinois, remember.

THE President will not comply with Senator Hoar's resolution calling on him to furnish the Senate with a copy of the instructions furnished the late peace commission. If the instructions are such as should have been given, why should they be withheld? The country is entitled to know every act of its servants, of which the President is the chief.

THEY have some peculiar jurymen down in Tennessee. A few days ago a judge of a criminal court was in the act of sentencing to be hung a fellow who had been found guilty of murder, when one of the jurors who tried the case arose and informed the court the man about to be sentenced was not the one he supposed was on trial, and that he had been mistaken as to the criminal. The juror had sat for five days hearing testimony, and had heard the great speeches of counsel, and yet he had not identified the man who was on trial. The verdict was set aside and the prisoner given a new trial.

IN the eating of meat the United States heads all nations. Not less than 11,000,000,000 pounds of meat is used here every year, or 147 pounds to each person. Five thousand million pounds is beef, 4,000,000,000 pounds is pork and 800,000,000 mutton. The United States uses the most eggs of any land—10,000,000,000 being required during the year, or 133 to each inhabitant. Canada comes next, with 90 eggs per inhabitant; Denmark, 80; France, 78; Germany, 75. the united kingdom, 39, and Italy but 47.

IN their report made a few days ago, the Inter-State Commerce Commissioners maintain that the law in its present shape can not be enforced. Recommendations for amendment of the law previously made are repeated. Rate-cutting, it is said, is still prevalent, but the general public is not benefitted, as only the big shippers, the men of great capital are favored. Smaller dealers are injured, often ruined, by secret rates. These conditions are illustrated by reports on the investigations held during the year.

And now the tin plate combine, having virtually squelched competition, announces an advance of 25 cents on each 100 pound box. Whenever the price of any protected article is controlled absolutely by a trust or combine, it is time to take down the tariff bars. The purpose of protection, as we understand it, is not to foster monopolies, but to maintain a higher standard of living for American workingmen than is possible in Europe under present conditions. —Lawrenceburg Press.

Another good Republican beginning to realize the falacies of the doctine of protection.

THE Boston Post says, "President McKinley is getting on very fast. Starting with the denunciation of forcible annexation as "criminal aggression," he has already reached the point where he orders our army and navy to take the Philippines by force if necessary and to be quick about it." It has been understood in this part of the country that the Philippines were captured some time since by the American navy, and more recently purchased by a commission, and now the President is ordering them captured some more. Will Uncle Sam give another donation party following capture No. 2?

IF the Republican party in Kentucky continues in its present demoralized condition and the Democrats get together, they will have no trouble in winning an old time victory next fall; but, on the other hand, if the Democrats continue to fight among themselves as they are doing at present, and the Republicans succeed in bringing about a reconciliation they will carry the State next November. Neither party is in good shape for going into a campaign, and the indications are that it will require a very large consignment of oil to still the troubled waters in either party.

IT is hard to tell which political party is in the worst demoralized condition in Louisville. The Republicans got into an ugly scrap at the Federal pie counter, while the Democrats are engaged in a knock-down-and-drag-out at the local political refreshment stand. If the emoluments of office were on a plain with those of the laborer, there would not be so much trouble on the hands of the patronage dispenser, and the public service would be equally as efficient as at present. Salaries remain at the figures fixed by war times, and they alone remain undisturbed by the change of times.

SENATOR GOEBEL will begin his campaign, next week, for the Democratic nomination for Governor. The cry of bossism that is being made against Goebel comes from those who would do exactly what they charge him with doing in order to advance their political interests. There is not a candidate for a nomination to be made by the next State convention that does not desire to control that convention, and he wants to control every primary act of the party leading up to that convention. They are each and every one a boss to the extent of his ability to be a boss, and that is all there is of it.

GEN. EGAN was called before the war investigation committee, one day last week, and when the meat question was reached he displayed very bad temper, and had this to say, among other things, in regard to Gen. Miles' statement that canned meat was furnished the army as an experiment:

"He lies! He lies in every hair of his head. He lies wilfully, maliciously. If he lies, and I say he does, he should be drummed out of the army and incarcerated in prison. His statement is an absolute falsehood, a gross libel, and he should be held to account for it."

Now, what will Gen. Miles say to Gen. Egan? Surely not what the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina, on an occasion in the past.

David W. Parker, acolored man who prints a Democratic newspaper at Tuscaloosa, Ala., gives the following reasons for being a Democrat, in response to a query from an ex-Federal soldier:

"I am a Democrat because 90 per cent. of my race work for the whites of the South and I believe that there will be a better feeling should both races vote as one, because the interest of one is the interest of the other.

"I am a Democrat because I want my people to be on good terms with the brain, the power, and the money of the South. I am a Democrat because I want to meet new conditions with new thoughts and ideas. I am a Democrat because a majority of the best white people of the South are Democrats, and I believe it to be to the best interests of my humble race to take a bold, outspoken stand with the whites of the South. They run the courts, own the banks, and control the great interests of the Southland. I am with them because it is to my best interests. I am a Democrat for practical purposes. Lincoln Sumner and Blaine are dead; so is the great Republican party of the past. The party of Mark Hanna is a political machine to make the rich richer and the poor poorer.

"I am a Democrat because the Democrats of the South paid out of their pockets $76,000,000 of the $80,000,000 of money expended for the public schools and education of my race.

"I am a Democrat because the Democratic party is the exponent of the best principles of the best government on earth. I am a Democrat because I believe in liberty and justice and a free press."

Red-headed men and women enjoy a decided advantage over their fellow mortals with hair of other colors in that they are less subject to baldness. Scientists have pondered over this condition without finding a satisfactory explanation for it. Generally speaking, the mental and physical tendencies of the Titian element are not different from those of other people, at all events not sufficiently so to account for the more durable growth of hair.

A physician with a bent for investigation has made a study of the subject and explains that the red-headed person has the advantage because red hairs are thicker than other kinds, and it takes fewer of them to cover a scalp. He finds that one red hair is as thick as five blonde or three brown hairs. Thus, a scalp is well covered with 30,000 red hairs, while it would appear to be bald with the same number of blonde hairs. His investigation shows that it takes 160,000 blonde, or 105,000 brown hairs to cover an average head adequately.

CONGRESSMAN NELSON DINGLEY, after two weeks' illness of pneumonia, died of heart failure at his home in Washington, D. C., last Friday night. Mr. Dingley was the author of the present tariff law.

THE West Virginia legislature is in a good position just now to reenact the secenes that rendered a recent Kentucky General Assembly an interesting body.

IT looks like Eagan's mouth has got him into serious trouble, and some think he may be the general who will have to walk the plank.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, Jan. 14th, 1899.

Signs are plentiful that Mr. McKinley is alarmed by the extent of the Senatorial sentiment against our permanent ownership of the Philippines that has been brought out this week. Senator Foraker tried to answer the constitutional argument made by Senator Hoar against our right to own these islands, and Senator Mason's speech in favor of his resolution declaring that the United States will not attempt to control anyother people without their consent, but the administration would doubtless have preferred another and abler champion. Other disturbing elements to the expansion-or-bust men were [illegible] olution for the recognition of Philipino independence, offered by Senator Bacon, and another that any aggressive action against the Philippines on the part of the administration would be an exercise of constitutional power vested exclusively in Congress, offered by Senator Allen. In addition to these, a number of Senators, by questions interjected in the debate, made it plain that they are opposed to our retaining the Philippines. That things are getting warm in the vicinity of the White House was shown by the giving out of a semi-official statement that Mr. McKinley had never expressed himself in favor of permanent ownership of the Philippines, and that his intentions had gone no further than to give the islands a military government similar to that now in Cuba. The statement intimates, without saying, that if the Philippinos show themselves capable of maintaining a staple government Mr. McKinley would doubtless favor their independence in time. Such statements are not binding on Mr. McKinley, even if they were explicit. He had an opportunity to say just what his intentions are, when he sent the treaty to the Senate, but he didn't do it.

The Democratic and Populist Senators are preparing to make a fight against the Hull army bill, which has been delayed in the House by the illness of Representative Hull, when it reaches the Senate after being jammed through the House by administration influence, and it begins to look as though the bill would fail at this session of Congress, adding another to the numerous things that will increase the probabilities of a spring extra session of the next Congress.

Gen. Leonard Wood, the fortunate gentleman who jumped from an army surgeon with the rank of Captain, detailed to act as the McKinley family physician to be a Major General, during the scrap with Spain, and who is now military commander of the Santiago district, in Cuba, is in Washington, under orders. It is believed that Gen. Wood was sent for by Mr. McKinley in connection with some of the troubles that have already cropped out among the army officers who form the military government of Cuba. He is going right back.

Senator Morgan secured the consent of the Senate to vote upon his Nicaragua Canal bill, next Tuesday, and he is confident that it will pass, with amendments acceptable to him. The House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce is unanimously in favor of the canal, but divided on how it shall be built.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie is in Washington, openly working against the ratification of the treaty of peace. He thinks that if Col. Bryan would revise his advice and try to get Democratic Senators to vote against the treaty, instead of voting for the treaty and afterswards against expansion, its rejection would follow. He said: "All that I hear indicates the increase of the opposition, and I am quite encouraged to believe that the ratification of the treaty can be defeated. According to my opinion, this is the opportune time for those who oppose expansion to do their work. Only a one-third vote is required to defeat the treaty, whereas with the treaty ratified, we will have to secure a majority to make our views effective. Hence, I say that this is the time for Mr. Bryan and other anti-expansionists to make the fight. Hereafter we will not enjoy the advantage over our opponents that we now do, having then to meet them in the open field."

BRYAN WARMS UP.

Says Expansion is Wrong and the 16 to 1 Is Right.

The Free Silver Leader Defends Jeffersonian Principles and Denounces Anything Like Imperialism.

The W. J. Bryan league of Chicago paid tribute to the memory of Andrew Jackson at a banquet held at the Tremont house, Chicago, Saturday night, January 7. Burning speeches were made by Mayor Harrison, Congressman Lentz, of Ohio, and William J. Bryan on the leading issues before the people. Mr. Bryan said:

"The democracy of the nation is still defending Jeffersonian principles with Jacksonian courage and has no thought of departing from the principles enunciated at Chicago in 1896. That platform will live in history and the hour of its adoption will be remembered as the hour when the money changers were driven from the democratic temple. There will be no turning back. The platform will be added to as new conditions arise, but as we go into the arena of politics, but nothing will be subtracted from it. Events have vindicated every position taken by the platform. Arbitration was advocated in that platform, and arbitration is stronger today than it was in 1896.

"That platform denounced government by injunction and the sentiment against government by injunction is increasing. That platform denounced the trusts and declared them to be a menace; that menace is greater to-day than ever before. That platform warned the people that a conspiracy was on foot by which the national banks a monopoly of the issue and supply of paper money; that conspiracy is now known to everyone.

"That platform denounced international bimetallism as a delusion and a snare, and its condemnation has been justified. That platform pointed to independent free coinage as the only means of securing the double standard. Who doubts it now? That platform named sixteen to one as the proper ratio, and that ratio stands to-day as the only ratio at which bimetallism is possible.

"Other platforms have been forgotten, but that platform is fresh in the memory of friend and foe, because it was clear and positive upon every public question. To those who believe in equality before the law the Chicago platform is still an inspiration; it is a terror only to those who seek to use the government for personal and private ends.

Does Not Fear Attacks.

"It has been attacked at two points, but the attacks will not harm it. Some who opposed the platform in 1896 have promised to return to the party on condition that the party will drop the money question, and confine the fight to the trusts. The offer will not be accepted. What confidence would the people have in our sincerity if we should declare against trusts in general but enter into a treaty of peace with the greatest of all trusts—the money trust? If we should attempt to center the fight upon the trusts the republicans would adopt as strong an anti-trust plank as we, because no party would dare to defend the trusts. In such a fight the magnates would be found supporting both parties and contributing liberally to both campaign funds, provided the trusts were guaranteed the privilege of naming the attorney-general and the judges. The trusts opposed the democratic party in 1896 because the Chicago convention took the party out of the hands of the Wall street crowd and adopted a platform which precipitated the plutocracy which the party had held in solution for several years.

"The gold democrats had a chance to crush out the trusts during Mr. Cleveland's administration, but they did not do it. The gold republicans are having their opportunity now, but they are not improving it. The trusts will rule when the gold standard is overthrown, and not until then. The gold standard means falling prices, and falling prices will create trusts more rapidly than any gold-standard party can destroy them.

Defends the Ratio.

"The second point of attack is the ratio. Why insist upon sixteen to one, they ask? I reply, first, because it is the best ratio; and, second, because its opponents have no other ratio to offer. No free coinage law can be enacted until a ratio is agreed upon, because the ratio is a part of the law. Suppose we had a majority in congress favorable to bimetallism, but differing as to the ratio. Some would favor sixteen to one, some twenty-four to one, some thirty-two to one, and some even higher ratios; how could we make progress under such conditions? Affirm that relief is necessary, and those who favor remedial legislation must secure a majority in both house and senate for some definite proposition. The gold men understand this; they know that an ambiguous platform is equivalent to a gold-standard platform. Mr. Cleveland was elected in 1892 upon a platform which declared for the use of gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and for the coinage of both gold and silver without discrimination against either metal, or charge for mintage, and yet Mr. Cleveland found no difficulty in interpreting the single-gold standard. The democratic party will not return to the days of uncertainty and evasion. When the opponents of sixteen to one agree upon another ratio it will be time enough to compare the merits of the new ratio with the merits of the old ratio. But they will not be permitted to suspend the party in midair, out of the reach of sixteen to one, and out of sight of anything else. To surrender the ratio is to accept the gold standard as final.

"The Chicago platform was good when it was adopted, and it grows better with age. It was strong in 1896; it is stronger now.

Takes Up the New Issues.

"But enough of old issues; what of the new questions? Our party cannot ignore the issues raised by the war. It must speak out against militarism now or forever hold its peace. A large standing army is not only an expense to the people, but it is a menace to liberty, and the democratic party will be a unit in opposing it.

"A word in regard to imperialism. Those who advocate the annexation of the Philippines call themselves expansionists, but they are really imperialists. The word expansion would describe the acquisition of territory to be populated by homogeneous people and to be carved into states like those now in existence. An empire suggests a variety in race and diversity in government. The imperialists do not declare to clothe the Filipinos with all the rights and privileges of American citizenship; they want to exercise sovereignty over an alien race, and they expect to rule the new subjects upon a theory entirely at variance with constitutional government. Victoria is queen of Great Britain and empress of India; shall we change the title of our executive and call him the president of the United States and emperor of the Philippines?

"The democratic party stood for the money of the constitution in 1896; it stands for the government of the constitution now. It opposed the English financial policy in 1896; it opposes an English colonial policy now. Those who in 1896 were in favor of turning the American people over to the greed of foreign financiers and domestic trusts may now be willing to turn the Filipinos over to the tender mercies of military governors and carpet bag officials.

"Those who in 1896 thought the people of the United States too weak to attend to their own business may now think them strong enough to attend to the business of the remote and alien races; but those who in 1896 fought for independence for the American people will not now withhold independence from those who desire it elsewhere.

Says Filipinos Can Govern.

"We say that the Filipinos are not capable of self-government; that has a familiar ring. Only two years ago I heard the same argument made against a very respectable minority of the people of this country. The money loaners who coerced borrowers did it upon that theory; the employers who coerced their employes did it for the same reason. Self-government increases with participation in government. The Filipinos are not far enough advanced to share in the government of the people of the United States, but they are competent to govern themselves. It is not fair to compare them with our own citizens, because the American people have been educating themselves in the science of government for nearly three centuries, and while we have much to learn we have already made great improvements. No Filipino will not establish a perfect government, but they will establish a government as nearly perfect as they are competent to enjoy, and the United States can protect them from molestation from without.

"The republicans of Illinois, of course, will not expect the Filipinos to secure a legislature equal to the last republican legislature in fidelity to the public welfare. Illinois became a state nearly a century ago, and that legislature which enacted the Allen law was a state. The ripened fruit of long experience. Give the Filipinos time and opportunity, and while they will not be civilized in a day unless we cease to improve, yet they may some day stand where we stand now.

"What excuse can be given for the adoption of a colonial policy? Secretary Gage disclosed the secret in his Savannah speech. I think we might be justified in quitting Mr. Gage the keynote of the administration, because we look through him to learn what is going on in the cabinet council chamber. He suggested that philanthropy and five per cent. would go hand in hand in the new venture. These are the two arguments which are always used in favor of conquest. The one chloroforms the conscience of the conqueror and the other picks the pockets of the conquered.

Denounces Expansion.

"Some say that philanthropy demands that we govern the Filipinos for their own good, while others assert that we must hold the islands because of the pecuniary profit to be derived from them. I deny the soundness of both arguments. Forcible annexation will not only be criminal aggression (to borrow Mr. McKinley's own language of a year ago) but it will cost more than it is worth, and the whole people will pay the cost while a few will reap all the benefits.

"Still weaker is the argument based upon religious duty. The Christian religion rests upon the doctrine of the vicarious suffering of the innocent; the colonial party rests upon the doctrine of vicarious enjoyment.

"When the desire to steal becomes uncontrollable in an individual he is declared to be a kleptomaniac and is sent to an asylum; when the desire to grab land becomes uncontrollable in a nation we are told that the currents of destiny are flowing through the hearts of men, and that the American people are executing upon their manifest mission.

"Shame upon a logic which locks up the petty offender and releases grasping larceny. Have the people returned to the worship of the golden calf? Have they bowed unto themselves a new commandment consistent with the spirit of conquest and the lust for empire? Is 'Thou shalt not steal upon a small scale' to be substituted for the law of the land?

"Awake, O ancient Law-Giver, awake. Break forth from thine unmarked sepulcher and speed thee back to the cloud-capped summit of Mount Sinai; commune once more with the God of our fathers, and proclaim again the words engraven upon the tables of stone—the law that was, the law that is to-day—the law that neither individual nor nation can violate with impunity."

Work and Play of Crow Indians.

There are about 2,100 Indians on the Crow reservation. The Crows are still "Blanket Indians," but they come nearer being self-supporting than any other of the western tribes. They raised 60,000 bushels of grain this year, and they have 40,000 head of horses. They also have a great many cattle, from which they get their own beef supply. An Indian does not love to work, and consequently it requires a lot of persistent urging to keep them engaged in labor. For instance, they will not like to give a dance, which is a big function among the Crows, but I tell them that they can't have the dance until a certain amount of farmwork has been done. Then they go off and are as industrious a lot of beings as exist till that particular job has been finished.—Maj. E. H. Becker, Indian Agent.

Poor Pups.

Astrakhan is supposed to be a nice black goat skin, smoother than Persian lamb, and much more glossy. But it is really in most cases the rind of a puppy dog, and the furrier in his confident bulletins will confess that it is caracol, a sort of Australian dog with a very short tail and long hind legs. You can get a complete puppy-skin for one dollar, and a whole dog for $1.75. The principal thing is to see that one gets the paws, because puppy paws sewn together into a cape make "real" astrakhan, which is very expensive indeed. See that you are not defrauded of the paws.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——Time was when a United States senator was expected to be above suspicion, to say nothing of being beyond indictment. But here is a man (Quay) who has been under suspicion for 20 years and has not even tried to dispel the cloud of dishonor that surrounds him. The senate must full still lower in the public esteem if it does not take some notice of this case. If Quay is permitted to go on "bossing things" the only possible conclusion is that the senate cannot, or will not, take care of its own character.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

——The appointment of such a man as Wimberly to the most important federal office in the metropolis of Louisiana illustrates very clearly why the republican party is nothing more than a close corporation for electing delegates and securing "plums" in exchange, not only in Louisiana, but throughout the south, for the same system prevails in all parts of that section.—N. Y. Post.

Several important retirements in the army will occur during the current year. Brig. Gen. Stanton, paymaster general, will retire on the 30th inst.; Brig. Gen. Flagler, chief of ordnance, June 4; Brig. Gen. Sumner, in August next, and Brig. Gen. Shafter, October 16.

CIVIL SERVICE ASSAULTED.

Republican Spoilsmen Stop the Appointment Commission.

When President McKinley wrote his recent message to congress he neglected to say a single word for civil service reform. Was the subject crowded out by the new issues created by the late war, or was the omission intentional? At one time the president was an ardent civil service reformer. Has his new love for imperialism extinguished his old faith in the efficacy of a movement designed to overthrow the time-honored spoils system? He must have known that his silence upon this question would encourage the enemies of this reform to renew their attacks with fresh energy. If the republican president shows so little interest in the maintenance of the civil service law, why should the republican spoilsmen in congress hesitate to attack the measure?

And this is what they have done. These eminent friends of good government scored a glorious victory when they succeeded in having the appropriation for the civil service commission struck out from the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, during debate in committee of the whole. Emboldened by Mr. McKinley's indifference such distinguished politicians as Grosvenor, of Ohio; Evans, of Kentucky, and Hepburn, of Iowa, dared to make a bold assault upon the iniquitous law that interferes so exasperatingly with the glorious prerogative of dispensing the spoils that goes with the congressional office.

Especially timely is this attack. Thanks to the president's indifference and the broad-minded congressmen who are working for the overthrow of this outrageous law, there is a possibility of returning to the good old way of treating a public office as a private snap. When we think of the new colonial career upon which we are about entering, the timeliness of this onslaught upon civil service reform becomes most apparent. We are taking upon ourselves the administration of government in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. There will be a lot of nice, fat places in the colonial department. Shall we fill them under the absurd, impractical civil service rules which insist upon placing merit and fitness ahead of "pull" and partisanship? Certainly not, if the Grosvenors and Hepburns in congress can help it.

Spain did not so govern the islands which she has just turned over to us, and everybody knows how successfully she managed them, and what a glorious opportunity her colonial service offered to her impoverished aristocracy and worn-out politicians to recuperate their shattered fortunes at the colonists' expense. All the world knows how much purer and better Spain's colonial system, founded upon the doctrine of the spoilsmen, has been, than England's, based upon stringent civil service laws.

By all means let us rid ourselves of the odious merit system, before we fill the colonial offices, in order that we may make the same brilliant success of imperialism as Spain has made, instead of following Great Britain's sad example. And let us be thankful that we have statesmen in congress who are shrewd enough to see the danger which lies concealed in the deadly merit system, and who are brave enough to attack it, even though the people, misguided creatures who do not know what is good for the country, are strongly in favor of sticking to a plan that makes "a public office a public trust."—Detroit Free Press.

Trusts Bred by the Tariff.

The great manufacturing industries of New England would be the most difficult of all to ring together in trust combinations, but present tendencies are squinting toward some measure of consolidation even here. The envelope trust is being followed by a combination of writing paper manufacturers, and there is talk at Haverhill of a shoe manufacturers' combination. In cotton manufacturing some pooling of interests has already been effected in the sale of print cloths, and the movement is likely to extend. It will doubtless soon include the woolen manufacturers who have found that relief through high tariff is not what was bargained for. The forces of competition are working more and more through vast aggregations of capital so far as consolidation in industry is permitting them to work at all.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

A NOBLE WOMANHOOD

Dr. Talmage Draws Lessons from an Unnamed Bible Character.

Her Good Qualities Set Forth — The Hand on the Shuttle—The Greatness of Christian Characteristics.

A Scripture character whose name is not given becomes the subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon, in which he sets forth the qualities of good and noble womanhood; text, II Kings 4:8, "Elisha passed to Shunem, where was a great woman."

The hotel of our time had no counterpart in any entertainment of olden time. The vast majority of travelers must then be entertained at private abode. Here comes Elisha, a servant of the Lord, on a Divine mission, and he must find shelter. A balcony overlooking the valley of Esdraelon is offered him in a private house, and it is especially furnished for his occupancy—a chair to sit on, a table from which to eat, a candlestick by which to read and a bed on which to slumber, the whole establishment belonging to a great and good woman. Her husband, it seems, was a godly man, but he was entirely overshadowed by his wife's excellences, just as now you sometimes find in a household the wife the center of dignity and influence and power, not by any arrogance or presumption, but by superior intellect and force of moral nature wielding domestic affairs and at the same time supervising all financial business affairs. The wife's hand on the shuttle, or the banking house, or the worldly business.

You see hundreds of men who are successful only because there is a reason at home why they are successful. If a man marry a good, honest soul, he makes his fortune. If he marry a fool, the Lord help him! The wife may be the silent partner in the firm, there may be only masculine voices down on exchange, but there oftentimes comes from the home circle a potential and elevating influence. This woman of my text was the superior of her husband. He as far as I can understand, was what we often see in our day, a man of large fortune and only a modicum of brain, contentedly quiet, sitting a long while in the same place, without moving hand or foot; if you say "Yes," responding "Yes;" if you say "No," responding "No"—inane, eyes half shut, mouth wide open, maintaining his position in society only because he has a large patrimony. But his wife, my text says, was a great woman. Her name is not come down to us. She belonged to that collection of people who need no name to distinguish them. What would title of duchess or princess or queen—what would escutcheon or gleaming diadem be to this woman of my text, who, by her intelligence and her behavior, challenges the admiration of all ages? Long after the brilliant women of the court of Louis XV. have been forgotten, and the brilliant women of the court of Spain have been forgotten, and the brilliant woman who sat on the throne of Russia have been forgotten, some grandfather will put on his spectacles and, holding the book the other side the light, read to his grandchildren the story of this great woman of Shunem who was so kind and courteous and Christian to the good prophet Elisha. Yes, she was a great woman.

In the first place, she was great in her hospitalities. Uncivilized and barbarous nations have this virtue. Jupiter had the surname of the Hospitable, and he was said especially to avenge the wrongs of strangers. Homer extolled it in his verse. The Arabs are punctilious on this subject, and among some of their tribes it is not until the ninth day of tarrying that the occupant has a right to ask his guest: "Who and whence art thou?" If this virtue is so honored among barbarians, how ought it to be honored among those of us who believe in the Bible, which commands us to use hospitality one toward another without grudging?

Of course, I do not mean under this cover to give any idea that I approve of that vagrant class who go around from place to place, ranging their whole lifetime perhaps under the auspices of some benevolenst or philanthropic society, quartering themselves on Christian families with a great pile of trunks in the hall and carpetbag portentous of tarrying. There is many a country parsonage that looks out week by week upon the ominous arrival of wagon with creaking wheel and lank horse and dilapidated driver, come under the auspices of some charitable institution to spend a few weeks and canvass the neighborhood. Let no such religious tramps take advantage of this beautiful virtue of Christian hospitality. Not so much the sumptuousness of your diet and the regality of your abode will impress the friend or the stranger that steps across your threshold as the warmth of your greeting, the informality of your reception, the reiteration by grasp and by look and by a thousand attentions, insignificant attentions, of your earnestness of welcome. There will be high appreciation of your welcome though you have nothing but the brazen candlestick and the plain chair to offer Elisha when he comes to Shunem. Most beautiful is this grace of hospitality when shown in the house of God. I am thankful that I have always been pastor of churches where strangers are welcome. But I have entered churches where there was no hospitality. A stranger would stand in the vestibule for awhile and then make a pilgrimage up the long aisle. No door opened to him until, flushed and excited and embarrassed, he started back again, and coming to some half filled pew with apologetic air entered it, while the occupant glared on him with a look which seemed to say: "Well, if I must, I must." Away with such accursed indecency from the house of God! Let every church that would maintain large Christian influence in community culture Sabbath by Sabbath this beautiful grace of Christian hospitality.

A good man traveling in the far west in the wilderness was overtaken by night and storm, and he put in at a cabin. He saw firearms along the beams of the cabin, and he felt alarmed. He had not know but that he had fallen into a den of thieves. He sat there greatly perturbed. After awhile the man of the house came home with a gun on his shoulder and set it down in a corner. The stranger was still more alarmed. After awhile the man of the house whispered with his wife, and the stranger thought his destruction was being planned. Then the man of the house came forward and said to the stranger: "Stranger, we are a rough and rude people out here, and we work hard for a living. We make our living by hunting, and when we come to the nightfall we are tired and we are apt to go to bed early, and before retiring we are always in the habit of reading a chapter from the Word of God and making a prayer. If you don't like such things, if you will just step outside the door until we get through, I'll be grently obliged to you." Of course the stranger tarried in the room, and the old hunter took hold of the horns of the altar and brought down the blessing of God upon his household and upon the stranger within their gates. Rude but glorious Christian hospitality!

Again, this woman of my text was great in her kindness toward God's messenger. Elisha may have been a stranger in that household, but as the found out he had come on a Divine mission he was cordially welcomed. We have a great many books in our day about the hardships of ministers and the trials of Christian ministers. I wish somebody would write a book about the joys of the Christian minister, about the sympathies all around him, about the kindness, about the genial considerations of him. Does sorrow come to our home, and is there a shadow on the cradle, there are hundreds of hands to help, and many who weary not through the night watching, and hundreds of prayers going up that God would restore the sick. Is there a burning, brimming cup of calamity placed on the pastor's table? Are there not many to help him drink of the cup, and who will not be comforted because he is stricken? Oh, for somebody to write a book about the rewards of the Christian ministry—about his surroundings of Christian sympathy!

This woman of the text was only a type of thousands of men and women who come down from mansion and from cot to do kindness to the Lord's servant's. I could tell you of something that you might think a romance. A young man graduated from New Brunswick theological seminary was called to a village church. He had not the means to furnish the parsonage. After three or four weeks of preaching a committee of the officers of the church waited on him and told him he looked tired and thought he had better take a vacation of a few days. The young pastor took it as an intimation that his work was done or not acceptable. He took the vacation, and at the end of a few days came back, when an old elder said: "There is the key of the parsonage. We have been cleaning it up. You had better go up and look at it." So the young pastor took the key, went up to the parsonage, opened the door, and lo! it was carpeted, and there was a hatrack all ready for the canes and umbrellas and the overcoats, and on the left hand of the hall was the parlor, sofaed, chaired, pictured. He passed on to the other side of the hall, and there was the study table in the center of the floor with stationery upon it, bookshelves built, long ranges of new volumes, far beyond the reach of the means of the young pastor many of these volumes. The young pastor went upstairs and found all the sleeping apartments furnished, came downstairs and entered the pantry, and there were the spices and the coffees and the sugars, and the groceries for six months. He went down into the cellar, and there was the coal for the coming winter. He went into the dining hall, and there was the table already set—the glass and the silver ware. He went into the kitchen, and there were all the culinary implements and a great stove. The young pastor lifted one lid of the stove and he found the fuel all ready for ignition. Putting back the cover of the stove, he saw in another part of it a lucifer match, and all that young man had to do in starting to keep house was to strike the match. You tell me that is apocryphal. Oh, no! that was my own experience. Oh, the kindness, the enlarged sympathies sometimes clustering around those who enter the Gospel ministry. I suppose the man of Shunem had to pay the bills, but it was the large-hearted Christian woman of Shunem that looked after the Lord's messenger.

Again, this woman of the text was great in her behavior under trouble. Her only son had died on her lap. A very bright light went out in that household. The sacred writer puts it very tersely when he says: "He sat on her knee until noon and then he died." Yet the writer goes on to say that she exclaimed: "It is well!" Great in prosperity, this woman was great in trouble.

Where are the feet that have not been blistered on the hot sands of this great Sahara? Where are the soldiers that have not bent under the burden of grief? Where is the ship sailing over glassy sea that has not after awhile been caught in a cyclone? Where is the garden of earthly comfort but trouble hath hitched up its fiery and panting team and gone through it with burning plowshare of disaster? Under the pelting of ages of suffering the great heart of the world has burst with woe. Navigators tell us about the rivers, and the Amazon and the Danube and the Mississippi have been explored, but who can tell the depth or the length of tears and blood, rolling through all lands and all ages, bearing the wreck of families and of communities and of empires, foaming, writhing, boiling with the agonies of 6,000 years? Etna Cotopaxi and Vesuvius have been described, but who ever has sketched the volcano of suffering reaching up from the depths the lava and scoria and pouring them down the sides to whelm nations? Oh, if I could gather all the heartstrings, the broken heartstrings, into a harp, I would play on it a dirge such as was never sounded! Mythologists tell us of gorgon and centaur and Titan and geologists tell us of extinct species of monsters, but greater than gorgon or megatherium and not belonging to the realm of fable and not of an extinct species, a monster with an iron jaw and a hundred iron hoofs has walked across the nations, and history and poetry and sculpture, in their attempt to sketch it and describe it, have seemed to sweat great drops of blood. But, thank God, there are those who can conquer as this woman of the text conquered and say: "It is well, though my property be gone, though my children be gone, though my home be broken up, though my health be sacrificed, it is well, it is well!" There is no storm on the sea but Christ is ready to rise in the hinder part of the ship and hush it. There is no darkness but the constellation of God's eternal love can illumine it, and, though the winter comes out of the northern sky, you have sometimes seen that northern sky all ablaze with auroras which seem to say: "Come up this way; up this way are thrones of light and seas of sapphire and the splendor of an eternal heaven. Come up this way."

Again, this woman of my text was great in her application to domestic duties. Every picture is a home picture, whether she is entertaining an Elisha or whether she is giving careful attention to her sick boy or whether she is appealing for the restoration of her property. Every picture in her case is one of domesticity. Those are not disciples of the Shunemite woman who, going out to attend to outside charities, neglect the duty of home—the duty of wife, of mother, of daughter. No faithfulness in public benefaction can ever atone for domestic negligence. There has been many a mother who by indefatigable toil has reared a large family of children, equipping them for the duties of life with good manners and large intelligence and Christian principle, starting them out, who has done more for the world than many a woman whose name has sounded through the centuries. I remember when Kossuth was in this country there were some ladies who got honorable reputations by presenting him very gracefully with bouquets of flowers on public occasions. But what was all that compared with the plain Hungarian mother who gave to truth and civilization and the cause of universal liberty a Kossuth? Yes, this woman of my text was great in her simplicity. When this prophet wanted to reward her for her hospitality by asking some preferment from the king, what did she say? She declined it. She said: "I dwell among my own people," as much as to say: "I am satisfied with my lot. All I want is my family and my friends around me. I dwell among my own people."

Oh, what a rebuke to the strife for precedence in all ages! How many there are who want to get great architecture and homes furnished with all art, all paintlag, all statuary, who have not enough taste to distinguish between Gothic and Byzantine, and who could not tell a figure in plaster of paris from Palmer's "White Captive," and would not know a boy's penciling from Bierstadt's "Yosemite." Men who buy large libraries by the square foot, buying these libraries when they have scarcely enough education to pick out the day of the month in the almanac! Oh, how many there are striving to have things as well as their neighbors, and in the struggle vast fortunes are exhausted and business firms thrown into bankruptcy and men of reputed honesty rush into astounding forgeries! Of course I say nothing against refinement or culture. Splendor of abode, sumptuousness of diet, lavishness in art, neatness in apparel, there is nothing against them in the Bible or out of the Bible. God does not want us to prefer mud hovel to English cottage, or untanned sheepskin to French broadcloth, or husks to pineapple, or the clumsiness of a boor to the manners of a gentleman. God, who strung the beach with tinted shell, and the grass of the field with the dews of the night, and hath exquisitely tinged morning cloud and robin redbreast, wants us to keep our eye open to all beautiful sights, and our ear open to all beautiful cadences, and our heart open to all elevating sentiments.

Sold like cattle on the shambles. Slave of all work, and, at last, her body fuel for the funeral pyre of her husband. Above the shriek of the fire worshipers in India and above the rumbling of the juggernauts, I hear the million voiced groan of wronged, insulted, broken-hearted, down-trodden woman. Her tears have fallen in the Nile and Tigris, the La Plata, and on the steppes of Tartary. She has been dishonored in Turkish garden and Persian palace and Spanish Alhambra. Her little ones have been sacrificed in the Indus and the Ganges. There is not a groan, or a dungeon, or an island, or a mountain, or a river, or a lake, or a sea, but could tell a story of the outrages heaped upon her. But, thanks to God, this glorious Christianity comes forth, and all the chains of this vassalage are snapped, and she rises from ignominy to exalted sphere and becomes the affectionate daughter, the gentle wife, the honored mother, the useful Christian. Oh, if Christianity has done so much for woman, surely woman will become its most ardent advocate and its sublimest exemplification.

The Ex-American Citizen Gets Badly Snubbed in His Intercourse with the English.

William Waldorf Astor, the expatriated American millionaire, who now resides in London, is the subject of a lengthy biographical sketch in Tit-Bits, a publication issued in the British capital. Incidental to the sketch it is related how the duchess of Cleveland gently set him down on one occasion. When his grand estate offices on the Thames embankment were finished he gave a magnificent banquet to a number of swells. Showing one of the staircases in the building to the duchess, Mr. Astor is alleged to have asked:

"Isn't that handsome, your grace?"

"Yes, it certainly is," replied the duchess.

"Isn't it more so than any other staircase you ever saw?" Mr. Astor is reported to have persisted.

At this the duchess' back very naturally got up.

"Yes," she said, gently, "I admire it very much. It is much finer than our old staircase at Battle abbey, which has been spoiled these 200 or 300 years by the spura of those stupid old knights."

Battle abbey is probably the grandest old place in England and compared with Cliveden, Mr. Astor's country house, is like a battleship to a torpedo boat.

Another story with a similar point is related in the same sketch. Mr. Astor, it is averred, was lost in admiration of the duke of Westminster's lawn at Cliveden when he first saw it and, it is said, asked the gardener:

"How do you grow turf like that?"

"Well, sir," says the gardener, rubbing his chin and looking very innocent, "you just sows yer seed and then as it rolled every day for 100 years or so, sir."—Chicago Chronicle.

Georgie's Raise.

There are several children in the family, and they were talking of their garden.

"I am going to plant the seeds Uncle John gave me," said one, "and raise the most beautiful flowers."

"I am going to raise pinks and violets," said another.

"And I'm going to raise tube roses," said the third.

But the little boy said nothing.

He had no seeds to plant.

And presently his mother noticed that he took no part in the chatter, and her heart smote her.

"And what is Georgie going to raise?" she asked.

Perhaps Georgie's lip trembled, but his voice didn't.

"O," he said, stoutly, "I guess I can raise a worm or two."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Employer (irascibly)—"Confound that boy! He's never around when he is wanted." Clerk—"I think it must be hereditary with him, sir. His father is a policeman."—Golden Days.

She—"You played poker again last night." He (who lost all he had)—"No, my dear; I was merely an onlooker at the game."—Philadelphia North American.

TWO GRATEFUL WOMEN

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Can Do My Own Work."

Mrs. PATRICK DANEHY, West Winsted, Conn., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It is with pleasure that I write to you of the benefit I have derived from using your wonderful Vegetable Compound. I was very ill, suffered with female weakness and displacement of the womb.

"I could not sleep at night, had to walk the floor, I suffered so with pain in my side and small of my back. Was troubled with bloating, and at times would faint away; had a terrible pain in my heart, a bad taste in my mouth all the time and would vomit; but now, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound, I feel well and sleep well, can do my work without feeling tired; do not bloat or have any trouble whatever.

"I sincerely thank you for the good advice you gave me and for what your medicine has done for me."

"Cannot Praise It Enough."

Miss GERTIE DUNKIN, Franklin, Neb., writes:

"I suffered for some time with painful and irregular menstruation, falling of the womb and pain in the back. I tried physicians, but found no relief.

"I was at last persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and cannot praise it enough for what it has done for me. I feel like a new person, and would not part with your medicine. I have recommended it to several of my friends."

Neighborhood News.

Erlanger.

Good Faith Lodge will have work in Master's degree on the 28th inst.

Miss Anna Bedinger, of Bloomington, Illinois, is visiting her sister, Mrs. R. J. Scott.

The genial Capt. Harry Baker has made his appearance at the bank again having recovered from a long spell of sickness

A fire that threatened to be quite serious was discovered just in time at Al Cates' saloon the other night. It looked like the work of an incendiary.

Rabbit Hash.

Jas. A. Wilson is still confined to his home.

There is a good deal of grippe in this neighborhood.

H. C. Stephens and wife gave a dance on Monday night.

Mrs R. P. Berkshire lost a fine calf from eating too much fodder.

Rev. T. L. Utz has resigned as pastor of the East Bend Baptist church.

Rev. J. B. Fosher filled his regular appointment Sunday evening, at the hall.

The people of this vicinity are greatly pleased at the prospect of an electric road to Rising Sun, as it will be a great convenience to them.

We see in the columns of the Recorder that Rabbit Hash has a candidate for Representative. It is news to the people here, or he is keeping himself in the dark.

Gunpowder.

The storm last Friday night blew down considerable fencing.

J. W. Hogan and family visited J. S. Surface, last Wednesday.

Mrs. Binds, of Maysville, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Calvin Tanner.

J. C. Hankins and family spent the day with J. H. Tanner, last Sunday.

Rumor says we are to have a wedding in this neighborhood in the near future.

All the sick in the neighborhood are improving, and we wish them a speedy recovery.

The wheat crop is in excellent condition, and, with favorable weather in the future, we may expect a good crop.

L. H. Busby has bought of William Kirk his interest in the blacksmith shop, and it will be run by Busby alone in the future.

The tobacco raisers were busy stripping tobacco during the rainy days of last week, and there is considerable of the weed to strip yet.

Florence

John Oelsner is on the sick list.

O. M. Ryle is recovering from a spell of grippe.

Robert Pearson, of Erlanger, spent Sunday, with his parents at this place.

Robert Rice, who is representing the Deering Machine Co., has been laid up with grippe the past week.

Miss Ruey Dulaney, who is attending High school at Covington spent from Friday until Monday visiting homefolks.

Venus Lodge I. O. O. F., installed the following officers, Saturday night: E. O. Rouse, N. G.; A. M. Thomas, V. G.; John L. Fulton, Secty.; Ban Stephen, Treas.; David Brown, W. J. Cody and A. M. Thomas, finance committee. The appointment of other officers was deferred until next Saturday night, when we hope to have a full attendance. We take this means of urging the members of Venus lodge to attend as often as possibe. We will have many things of importance to discuss during the next few weeks.

Fickertown.

Tom Nettles has had five hogs to die with cholera.

Your correspondent was taking xmas for two weeks. Hence no news.

Arthur Houston, of Union, was visiting Charley Hensley and wife a few days ago.

Ben Hensley was visiting Dr. Geo. F. Smith, of Weisburg, Indiana, two weeks since.

A certain young lady in Petersburg says she wants to go to heaven on a steamboat, and she wants Willie Kenton to be pilot.

Marshall Terrill was kicked by a horse, a few days since. He started to pass behind the horse when it kicked him in the stomach, knocking the breath out of him. It was thought for a day or two that he was very badly hurt, but he is able to be out again.

I think Bro. Utzinger is mistaken about Frank Cason moving back to his farm. Mr. C. has no intention of moving back. He will not rent his house because he has no land for cultivation.

Parties in the neighborhood during Christmas week were given by Misses Bessie and Ada Rue, Miss Edith Smith, Miss May Smith, Foster Hensley and wife, and John Kinney and wife. Mr. Kinney's party was given on New Year's eve. Mr. Kinney says he danced the old year out and the new year in.

Limaburg.

Jan. 16.—Wheat looks fine.

Hubert Beemon is preparing to build a barn.

Chas. Crigler is on the sick list, with grippe.

James W. Utz purchased a new shot gun as a Christmas present for himself.

Bert Rouse hurt his back very badly, last week by lifting a crushroll. He is getting better.

John Aylor was taken with a severe pain in his back, last week, that used him up very badly.

Everett Dixon's family were nearly all sick of the grippe, last week. They are getting some better.

Spring-like weather on Sunday and der storm of Friday night.

Mr. Bird Anderson, of Louisville, was visiting his sister, Mrs. Mary Clore, and J. W. Rouse on the 12th inst.

When the bottom dropped out of the egg market, it made Chas. Garnett look like he had lost his best friend.

Dr. Rouse, L. S. Beemon and Geo. Baker, claim to be champion checker players, and are ready, any time, for a game.

Sam Conrad and Abe Davis have a contract to split 1,000 rails for S. J. Rouse. They began work Monday morning.

Walton.

Jan. 15.—Our genial dentist, Dr. J. L. Adams, is a constant newspaper reader, nevertheless he had an experience in Crittenden which he will not soon forget. He has a branch office there, and while attending to the teeth of a lady patient, a solemn, steady looking old fellow came in and seated himself. He gave the Doctor a packet of some sort and said that he wished to get back to his family, and to get money to do so would have to part with his watch, which he would sell for $6. The Doctor told him he had no use for it, having already a good timekeeper. The aged rooster said he would take $3. Doc. asked him if it would run. The man replied that he had let it fall on a wheel, but any watchmaker could fix it in a few minutes. Finally he offered to take $1, and the Doctor bought it. Showing it to our watchmaker, Sanding, the Doctor learned that it had but two wheels in it and that the article was worth at least what it would bring as old brass.

The grippe (some newspaper folks say the la grippe, not knowing that the prefix "la" itself stands for our article "the,") is raging here so violently the Walton folks are greatly exercised about it. Mr. Sawyer, who recently moved her from Lexington, went down to his farm near that place the other day, and took to his bed immediately. Mrs. Sawyer and the youngest boy are down in bed. The oldest son, Julius, is up and trying to wait on the others. The twelve year old daughter, Virginia, is the only well member of the family. Being strangers here it goes pretty hard with them. Happily they have good neighbors in Mrs. W. M. Byrd and daughter, Pearl, of that good old Campbell county Shaw family, or their suffering might have been worse. As yet there has been no fatality, but the convalescents are not skipping around like rabbits after the first October frost.

Herbert Glenn rather surprised his mother, Mrs. Joe Glenn. He had intimated in a letter that he would send her some little Christmas present. Well the other day came a big envelope containing a certificate of membership in the Eudowmeut Rank of the Knights of Macabees for $2,000, in her favor.

No one that knows Sam C. Johnson, one of the most thorough business-like farmers in the county, would think of his joking about a serious matter, yet when Dr. Gaines asked him the other day if he could give him a chew of leaf tobacco Mr. Johnson replied, "Certainly, Doctor, what kind will you have, some of what is said to be good or some that I have tried myself?" "Oh, give me some that you have used yourself, and I know it will be good." "Here goes then," said Sam, and he emptied his mouth of a large quid and held it out to the Doctor, whose only exclamation was, "sold, by Jupiter!" and then joined the crowd in uproarious hilarity.

Our worthy postmaster, Mr. Jas. Metcalfe, took a little fall the other evening as easily and gracefully as could be. Speaking of Roosevelt, he said very earnestly, "Teddy will just about be elected Governor of New York." Eddie Mann said, "Why, he is already Governor, and has been inaugurated some little time." Jim looked somewhat confused and asked if there had been an election. He also joined in with great heartiness.

Union.

Mrs. Harriet Taliaferro has been poorly this winter.

Golden Grange has initiated some new members recently.

Elbert Rice hauled a load of nice porkers to market recently.

Earnest Clements has been visiting in Kenton county for several days.

J. W. Conner can build a bridge in less time than any man we know of.

There is a good joke going the rounds about Mr. Perry Weaver. Ask him to tell you all about it.

Mr Kirby Crisler was in town shopping, Friday, and entertained the boys for a couple of hours.

R. T. Clements was taken dangerously ill a few days since, but came around all right the next morning.

C. P Baker has a full supply of hogs on hand and when they get to 56, he will have 50 or 100 nice ones to sell.

La grippe seems to have the day in Union and vicinity at present. Mr. Lane and B. L. Norman had the worst cases.

Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Bristow are recovering slowly from their hurts and it is hoped all the sick and wounded will soon be restored to health.

Goforth & Fane is the style of a new business firm. They are hustlers and guarantee to put up more wood and better wood in a week than anybody would.

Mr. Fane, whose digestion has at all times been first class, ate some candy in Covington, not long since, that required several days treatment for him in St. Elizabeth's hospital to bring him around all right. The Colonel will be careful how he eats Covington candy hereafter.

The boys have been picking up a good many shekels this winter by catching the festive and interesting bird they call the skunk. The bird is in no wise remarkable for its beauty, and neither would it be mistaken for a package of French Cologne, but the cash its hide brings to the hunter is useful and handy as if it were secured by gathering oranges.

Miss Nannie Burkett, after a week's illness is convalescent.

H. G. Blanton's smiling face was seen in our midst, last Sunday.

Ben Norman, after suffering several days with the grippe, is able to be out.

Mrs. B. L. Rice has been visiting her son, Elbert, on the farm for several days.

Drs. Lassing and Crouch are on the go day and night attending their many patients.

Mrs. W. M. Rachal, Miss May Nor with grippe.

Dr. Adams filled his regular appointment, Saturday and Sunday, at the Baptist church.

Mr. Walter Lane, of Ohio, is visiting his father, Mr. Moses Lane, who has been quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Rogers, of Independence, spent the day with the Misses Riley, Sunday.

Little Miss Sarah Quisenberry, of Hamilton, Ohio, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. A. Huey.

Mrs. Lane, who was reported dangerously ill with a broken arm and pneumonia, is very much better.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huey entertained Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Oneman, of Beaver, and Mrs. B. W. Adams and Mrs. Allphin, of Burlington, one day last week.

Mr. Ben Houston and Miss Ella Norman, on their way to Union Saturday afternoon, while attempting to cross Mud Lick, came very near losing their lives, but fortune smiled on them and they came across alright.

Miss Mary Hedges entertained the the "Young Ladies Club" on the night of the 6th inst., all the members being present except one. This club consists of eight of our most popular young ladies, no more, no less. I suppose this would be what the Bullittsville correspondent would call "A Dove Club."

Bellevue.

Jan. 16.—Bro. Utz and family are improving slowly.

Mrs. Mike Clore has been very poorly the past week.

Ed Maurer and uncle, Lewis Snyder, are on the sick list.

Miss Permelia Corbin has about recovered from an attack of grippe.

J. H. Lawell returned, Wednesday, from a business trip to Lexington.

Duly Beall and J. M. Lassing were here, Friday, on official business.

O. N. Grant received his appointment as postmaster at this place, last week.

J. N. Pearsou, of Florence, was the guest of Rev. T. L. Utz and family, last Saturday and Sunday.

Wesley Kelly, of the Middle creek heights, was the guest of his brother, Cy, a couple of days last week.

Miss Julia Dinsmore weighed and delivered 48 hogs to Mrs. Patty Selmes and Miss Sallie Wooley, last Saturday.

Mr. Deck's family is recovering from an attack of the grippe. Will is still confined to his bed with typhoid fever.

Albert Snyder arrived home Saturday morning to remain over Sunday with his parents. He is well pleased with his school.

John H. Ryle and wife passed here, Saturday, with a load of furniture for John Wingate, who was recently burned out.

Mr. Scott Willett and wife, of Lexington, are expected here in the near future. We are glad to meet with them at any and all times.

The thunder storm shook up some of the natives so badly last Friday night, that they left the upper floors and sought the basements.

You would have been amused, last Saturday, to have seen John Sandford and W. W. Grant on a fox chase. They were so excited they could not halloo.

Prof. D. M. Snyder is one of our busy men on Saturday, gathering up provisions, food and fuel for his family and stock while he is gone to school through the week.

James Rogers shipped 67 hogs, last Tuesday night, that averaged 277 lbs., for which he received $3 80 per 100. Jim gets the best prices because he makes his stock good.

Ben Corbin drives the banner team in Bellevue now. He gave John and Dick a hug and a farewell kiss when he delivered them to their new master in Aurora, one day last week.

Mound Field Farm.

Enoch Mannin is just regaining his appetite after a close call with the grip.

Fred Moore's sale, last Wednesday, was well attended, and property brought fair prices.

Judging from the way that Ed Ernste was bidding in bedsteads and other furniture at the sale the other day, something unusual is likely to happen.

A young Miss Smith arrived at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Smith, a few days sluce, where she contemplates making her future home. All parties doing well.

On last Weduesday Mrs. Hattie Aylor caught James Bullock's Australian hound dog (Hobson) running their sheep. She deliberately went to the house and got a gun and shot the dog dead in his tracks.

We are told that any evening after sundown, at Rushville, (a suburb of Hebron) on the North Bend road, Walter Sweeney can be heard singing at the top of his voice, "I am the father of a bouncing baby boy."

The members of Sand Run church appointed a committee at their last meeting for the purpose of having some repairs done on the church building. The foundation, which was built in the year 1819, seems to be giving away to such an extent that there is danger of the brick walls falling in.

Henry Quick has invented and about completed one of the best alarms for arousing sleepy-headed boys in the morning that we have ever seen or heard of. It is simply a light platform or mattress adjustable to any sized bedstead, automatically arranged on a pivot from which there is a time piece connected by a spring; the time piece is wound up the same as any alarm clock and at the hour set the bed turns bottom side up, dumping the occupant out on the floor. Henry claims it will wake 19 out of 20 that uses one. Parties having sleepy-headed boys should try one.

Last Friday coming on the 13th making a combination of two unlucky days in one, came near being a Jonah in this vicinity sure enough. The day was dark and gloomy with occasional showers, when at night an unusual violent, electric storm set in, with a terrible down-pour of rain followed with a destructive wind, blowing down fences, hay stacks, corn shocks, and among other things, it blew the well-curb, bucket and chain at Mound Field some thirty yards, leaving them hanging on a wire fence. At first it was thought the well was gone too, but on looking around it was found with the water all blown out of it. We have heard of no fatalities thus far, although for a time things looked desperate.

Utzinger.

Robert Moore had a tobacco strip-

Mr. Buford Terrill is at home from an extensive tour of the West.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cropper were visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Cropper Tuesday.

Mr. John Lassing passed through town Saturday afternoon in company with Mr. J. A. Duncan

Mr. and Mrs. Jerre Scott, of Rushville Alabama, are lupending the winter with their son-in-law, Mr. A. C. Chambers.

The suburban hill top item of last week appeared in this column, but was the production of a gifted young writer in Utzinger, and should not be credited to me.

J. W. Berkshire, of Petersburg, was in our midst Monday, and made a few purchases of tobacco at 5 and 6 cents around. He was accompanied by Mr. A. B. Parker, who is wintering finely and who is a "Democrat in all kinds of weather."

We were sleeping with one ear open a few nights since, when the sound of a distant bell rang out on the midnight stillness. We were somewhat exercised as to the cause of it, and, upon inquiry, found that it was a farm bell in the neighborhood, which rings when the wind blows hard.

When it comes to kissing heroes I think that the poor fellow with a family that he is struggling to support respectably and to provide fuel, clothes and food and schooling at seventy-five cents per day, for his work, and that not over three days out of the week on an average, while he is not always altogether comely in appearance, he is a hero all the same and deserves a full share of the kissing if any hero does.

Richwood.

Mrs. Eli Carpenter is better.

Mr. Jasper Booth is getting better.

Mrs. J. J. Cleek is very sick at this writing.

Mrs. John R. Carpenter is on the sick list.

There is a great deal of sickness in this neighborhood.

A number of farmers have engaged tomatoes to the Sneider Co., at Walton at 18 cents per bushell.

Master Tom Carpenter is spending the winter with his grandmother, Mrs. Booth, on account of the illness of his uncle, Jasper.

The people of this community are opposed to Anglo-Saxon alliance. They think Uncle Sam can go alone. There are too many Tories in the U. S. yet to suit the notion of true Democrats.

BULLITTSVILLE, KY., Jan. 7th, '99.

After a sumptuous repast pepared by the ladies, the Teachers' Association was called to order, with Mr. Haun as Chairman.

Mrs. Kirtley favored the Association with a talk on Square and Cube Root. This was followed by a general discussion of Grammar Composition and Language.

An animated discussion on Spelling followed Miss Gaines' talk on that subject.

Mr. Gaines entertained the Association with a talk on Arithmetic in general.

The programme concluded with a very entertaining reading by Miss Duncan.

On motion the following committee on resolutions was appointed: Misses Mary Gaines, Lacy Kirtley and Mr. Chas. Courtland. Said committee reported the following resolutions, and they were adopted by acclamation:

We, the Teachers of the Boone Co. Association, desire to thank the citizens of Bullittsville and vicinity for their kind hospitality and most delightful lunch.

The Association regrets the absence of their worthy Superintendent, but extend their thanks to Prof. Haun for the kind, courteous and efficient manner in which he conducted the Association as Chairman.

We, as an Association, thank Mrs. Kirtley for the courtesy extended as local teacher, and wish her success in her work at this place.

OTTO GRADY, Secretary.

At each meeting of the Teacher's Association, the teachers voted by ballot to decide where the next session of the Institute is to be held, the Superintendent leaving the matter entirely to the teachers. When the ballots, a meeting were prepared, they were placed in an envelope, which was sealed and delivered to the Superintendent, and thus the voting was conducted in the most secret manner possible. The votes all being in, last Monday, Supt. Voshell called us into his office, and requested us to assist him to count these ballots, all of which were yet under seal. The envelopes being opend the vote was found to be as follows: Petersburg, 21; Florence, 6; Walton, 8; Verona, 2; Burlington, 4; Union, 3; So it will be seen that Pettersburg will get the next Institute.

The next examination for Common School Graduates will be held at the County Superintendent's office in Burlington, on the last Thursday in this month.

Several of those whose lists of taxable property were increased by the supervisors of tax appeared before the board, last Friday, to show it wherein it was mistaken, but only in a few instances did the board recede from its work of the week before.

In the case of the Parlor Grove property which was increased $3,850, two thousand dollars was taken off, leaving the increase $1,850.

Dr. Furnish had been raised $500 on his farm at McVille. Of this $200 was taken off after the Doctor's speech to the board, leaving his increase $300.

William Walton had been increased $2,000 on his farm. After hearing Mr. Walton, $1,000 of this lucrease was taken off.

D. T. Buffington, who had been increased $1,850, was relieved of $400 of that increase.

The $50 increase on lot of Arthur Watson, colored was taken off.

Mr. Walnscott reported $1,000 for listing.

This was all that was done by the board, and it adjourned sine die.

Col. Berry captivated the House, the other day, with his speech in which he proclaimed Schley the hero of Santiago.

Local News.

Dirt roads are getting very bad.

Last Friday night was a very busy time with the elements.

The last week has been very favorable weather for la grippe.

For Sale—Two fresh cows—any two out of seven. H. R. Hearn, Richwood.

Everyone coming into town over the dirt roads say they are becoming terrible.

Mr. Legrand Gaines drove a lot of nice, young cattle through town, Monday.

The rain Friday night filled all the ravines, and removed many watergates.

The Aurora Independent issued a very handsome carrier's New Year's Address.

Roy Clutterbuck was out about 3 a. m. Tuesday, inviting hands to his slaughtering tee.

O. P. Conner is hauling his tobacco to Bullittsville, where Riley & Hogan will prize it for him.

Deputy County Clerk Garnett is very busy making corrections and balancing the Assessor's book.

Al Rogers has a beautiful field of wheat. It looks as green as that crop generally does in the latter part of March.

Miss Anna Beemon will teach a three months school in the Cason schoolhouse, District No. 4, beginning on April 3d, 1899.

Rising Sunners propose to give $2,500 towards securing the right of way for the electric road from Laughery creek to their city.

In a woods near town is a beech-tree that is being swallowed by an oak. The oak is about four feet and the beech about two feet through.

J. M. Eddins has had an improvement put on his mail wagon that makes it proof against the cold winds that have heretofore blowed through his whiskers.

We have received the News, published at Ghent, Carroll county, by Messrs. Waldo & Steel. It is a newsy, six column, four page paper. Here's hoping it success.

So far there have been no cases of scarlet fever outside of County Attorney Lassing's family, and there is no fear of any new cases. His youngest child did not contract the disease.

We desire to thus publicly thank those who have been so kind and liberal in their assistance rendered us since our recent misfortune, occasioned by fire. MR. AND MRS. JNO. WINGATE.

Everybody over in Dearborn county, Indiana, will hunt foxes today by township commands. The command capturing the largest number of foxes in a twelve hours chase is to be banqueted by the other hunters.

O. P. Conner came to town, one day last week, and returned home with a large number of sacks of grass seed. It looks like Owen is desirous of plowing less than heretofore, and wants to produce more cattle and grass, and he has a farm well adapted to that business.

Prof. Taft, of the Michigan agricultural college, says the spraying of peach trees while they are in dormant condition, say before the first of April, will kill the deadly curl leaf, and thus save the peach crop. Use a pound of sulphate of copper to 25 gallons of water.

Joseph Huey colored, died at his home, near Big Bone church last Saturday. Uncle Joe, as he was called by all, was a good, honest old colored man, respected by all who knew him, as was attested by the very large number of white people who followed him to his last resting place.

Last fall when the watermelon season was about at an end Blythe Buffington gathered a number of melons from his patch and placed them in his cellar. He left a short portion of the vine attached to each melon and they kept so well that when he cut the last one on Sunday, January 8, he found it very good to eat, except that it was a little bit mealy from being over ripe. It was a Democrat and survived until Jackson Day.—Aurora Independent.

In our report of the proceedings of the Fiscal Court, last week, by some means the report of J. F. Blyth, Superintendent of the County Infirmary, was omitted. That report shows that the daily average of inmates at the Infirmary for the year 1898, was 31½, and that the cost of maintaining the institution for the year was $1,903 52, being $60 43 per inmate. Mr. Blyth was chosen Superintendent again, and his salary fixed at $200, being $50 less than it was last year.

Bro. Underhill, from out on Gunpowder, called on the RECORDER, one afternoon last week, when Bros. Smith and Ryle were dissecting some very knotty theological problems, and becoming very much interested in the discussion, but not having time to hear it through, he requested that the proceedings be published in this issue, which he was promised would be done, but the stenographer was utterly unable to take down their speeches as they both talked very rapidly and at the same time. It is regretted that Bro. Underhill will have to be disappointed.

O. P. Conner, William Clore and Chas. Stephens propose opening a road commencing in front of Mr. Conner's residence; to run thence along what has been a private passway for many years until it passes Mr. Stephens' residence, when it will follow a westerly course to the Big Bone and Garnett's mill road near the Locust Grove school house. They will give the road to the county, and only ask assistance in putting up the additional fence they will be required to build. This will make a splendid grade from Burlington to Rabbit Hash, and these gentlemen should be encouraged in their good work.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Sallie Clutterbuck is on the sick list—la grippe.

Atty. John Vest, of Walton, was in town yesterday.

J. C. Revill made a business trip to the city yesterday.

Mrs. Bailey, of the Florence neighborhood, is yet very sick.

Get your farming implements ready—you will want to begin using them soon.

J. W. Sebree, a long-time subscriber, called on us yesterday, bringing a new subscriber.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blyth dined quite a number of their friends, last Thursday.

H. W. Blyth and wife entertained several of their friends at dinner last Thursday.

The river reached considerable proportions Sunday, and that night it began receding.

Edwin Gaines went to Louisville, last Friday, to visit his mother and sisters at that place.

We are glad to report Chas. Clore as about well again, after a very serious spell of illness.

John Herndon, of Louisville, was calling on the officials at the court house, yesterday.

Albert Kelly, of the Middle creek neighborhood, has recovered from several weeks' sickness.

J. J. Rucker, J. J. Huey and J. M. Lassing left for Tennessee, on a business trip, Tuesday night.

Deputy Sheriff Allphin was called to the bedside of his father, B. B. Allphin, who was very ill with the grippe, last week.

H. G. Blanton and O. M. Rogers, of Erlanger, and Hugh Arnold, of Bellevue, helped swell the congregation at church here, Sunday night.

It would be hard to convince Master Joe Furnish that it does not pay to advertise, since his ring was found immediately after the advertisement appeared last week.

Wm. Graves, of Bullittsville, made this office a call, Saturday. He said that Mr. Templeton Gaines, who got his leg broken a few weeks ago, is getting along nicely.

Perry Clore and J. J. Huey, of Bellevue, were in town Monday morning. The latter was delivering a lot of lard which he had contracted to parties here at 6¼ cents a pound.

Sheriff Beall, went to Georgetown Monday, to take a young man named Evans, whom he arrested at Petersburg, charged with violating the local option law in Scott county.

Eston Snyder, and R. L. Bradford and his cousin, called on the RECORDER Monday. Eston and Robert appear to be determined to be found on hand when next leap year comes around.

The many friends of Henry Lassing, in this county, are glad to hear that he has rapidly come to the front in his new home, Nashville, Tennessee, both as a private citizen and a public man. In the Tennessee legislature, last week, he made a ringing speech, putting Senator Bate in nomination.

Ex-Gov. John Young Brown has written a card in which he declines to become a candidate for Governor.

The event of the new year, in this part of the country, was the musicale at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Blyth, last Monday night. About eighty guests were present and each and every one entered into the pleasures of the evening with a zest, that rendered the occasion one of unusual mirth. Numerous parlor games were introduced and participated in until a late hour, when the social event of the season was closed, and the guests took their departure, but not to forget soon the hours so delightfully spent with the genial host and hostess.

Leases of some 300 acres of land in Washington and Clay townships have been recorded in the Recorder's office, in which John P. Walker and Harrison Abbott granted to Dr. James H. Sale the "exclusive right of drilling, digging, mining, excavating and removing all gas and minerals, gold, silver, zinc, lead, iron, and precious metals; also diamonds, gems and precious stones lying on or below the surface." The owners of the land are to receive ten per cent of the net of precious minerals and stones. Other leases have been given which are not yet recorded. It has been known for a number of years that gold existed in small quantities in the county. Dr. Sale thinks it can be made to pay.—Lawrenceburg Register.

The State League of Tobacco Growers, is at work, and has asked the following concessions of the Cincinnati and the Louisville warehouses. The first two concessions have been made by the Cincinnati houses, but the Louisville men have made none as yet, but it is bellved they will. These concessions are:

1. A rebate of $1 50 on each hogshead, making a net cost of 50 cents a hogshead.

2. Settle with the seller at outgoing weights.

3. Each hogshead is to be sold on its merits by the warehouse number, name of the owner not being given.

Those concessions will amount to about $4 per hogshead, or $1,000,000 annually saved to Kentucky tobacco growers.

John C. Mitchell, who lives over on Gunpowder, was out hunting one day a week or two since, and the first thing he did upon reaching home was to open the door to the sitting room, hang his foot on the door step, and plunge head foremost into the room, discharging both barrels of his gun, the shot tearing a door facing into smithereens, and frightening Mrs. Mitchell very badly. Upon regaining his perpendicular, Mr. Mitchell discovered his wife was badly frightened, when he informed her there was no use in being scared as the danger was all over, but Mrs. M. was not so certain about it, as she did not know what to expect of a man who would come into the house turning hand-springs and firing a double barrel shot gun in as reckless a manner as that of which he had just been guilty.

CRLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

A curious display is evident in the authoritative estimation of the heat of the sun. Pouillet places it at 1,400 to 2,000 degrees (centigrade), Ste. Claire-Deville at 2,300 degrees, Lord Kelvin and Prof. Langley at 5,000 degrees, Secchi at 8,700 degrees, and Pater Leconte at 10,000,000 degrees.

It has been demonstrated that from the stalk of the cotton plant can be produced a fiber which is just the thing for cotton bagging. The stalks yield 15 per cent. of their weight in fiber, much more than enough for bagging the crop. The Scientific American predicts that the new industry will soon take on great proportions.

A Kansas City grocer, who lost $2,800 by the failure of a bank, decided to be his own banker. In the ground, six feet below the floor of his store, he buried an iron box. He ran a two-inch iron tube from the floor through the top of the box, and through this tube he drops his profits of ten dollars a day. The top of the tube he plugs with a wooden cork, which looks like an ordinary knob.

According to the Etoile Belge, the health of Princess Louise, of Coburg, daughter of the king of the Belgians, who has been for many months shut up in a lunatic asylum in Austria, is beginning to decline. Her memory is, it is said, completely gone, and she never asks for any news of her parents or other relatives. She passes her time in walking up and down her apartment, where she is always strictly watched, and in cutting little paper patterns.

Prince George of Greece, the new high commissioner of the powers in Crete, is a big, handsome fellow, powerfully built, standing six feet four and one-half inches in his stockings and weighing over 19 stone. Despite his weight, he is said to be very active, and a fine boxer and wrestler. The prince, who was born in 1869, is the favorite nephew of the Prince of Wales, and is on terms of the most affectionate friendship with his cousins of the British court.

Jacob Fontz, a gentleman who resides at St. Michaels, Md., a little town not far from Washington, on the banks of the Potomac, makes a business of raising bull frogs for the market, and ships them in crates containing a dozen each and plenty of sea weed to the hotels and restaurants of New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and other cities of the east. It is a profitable business. No farmer in that part of the state makes half as much money with double the labor as Mr. Fontz.

Dean & Shibley, brokers and bankers, have taken charge of the arrangements to consolidate the paper manufacturers of this country. The deal will involve about $40,000,000, and will include the mills making fine writing paper, bond paper, wrapping, ledger, envelope and news paper. There are important mills in the United States, being in New England, within a radius of 70 miles. These mills have been making an average of 350 tons of paper a day, which is said to be from 30 to 40 tons over production.

When the senate met on the first Monday of December its membership is complete for the first time in a number of years. The death of Senator Morrill makes another break in the list, and there are some people who argue from this fact that it is unlucky for the senate to have its list of membership filled. They claim that the record of the past shows that whenever there has been a full senate death has followed shortly afterward. This fact, however, will not probably prevent a general scramble for Senator Morrill's shoes.

H. Aggers has discovered near Wyllins, Wyo., a perfect petrification, in good state of preservation, of a monster saurian (lizard), which measures 180 feet in length. The body is about 140 feet long, and a section 60 feet long can be taken out as a whole. The fossil lies close to the top of the ground, and the head tapers to the point of the nose. This is an important discovery, and fortifies the well-known scientific fact that Wyoming and the grave yard par excellence of gigantic animals of the past geological epochs.

The countless generations spiders have practiced the art of sailing through the air on tiny parachutes which they make from woven strands of gossamer. Now, however, the tables have been turned, and instead of wearing parachutes for themselves the poor spiders are set to spin ropes for human aeronauts. This novel idea has been put into operation at Chalais-Meudon, near Paris, where a spider factory for the special manufacture of balloon ropes for the military aeronautic section is now in full swing. Each little spider is made to spin 30 or 40 yards of thread before it is allowed to have a meal.

The recent protest of J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska, against the cutting of Christmas trees is warmly combated in the west. In his protest he said: "The trees selected for slaughter at this anniversary are always the prettiest and most symmetrical. There were last year more than 20,000,000 Christmas trees cut down and sold in the market. The absurdity of celebrating the birth of the Saviour of the world by a wanton waste and extravagance which jeopardizes the welfare of millions of human beings yet unborn is obvious to every thinking mind."

THE LONDON DAILY PAPERS.

Their Comments on the Speech Delivered by Senator Foraker in the Senate—Considered McKinley's Spokesman.

London, Jan. 12.—Most of the morning papers comment Thursday upon the situation in the Philippines, drawing the inference that Senator Foraker's remarks in the senate chamber Wednesday were made by him as the spokesman of the president and expressing disappointment and their disapproval of a possible relinquishment of the Philippines by the United States.

The Times says: That the senator appears to leave the subject in an unpleasantly ambiguous state. It is in the Philippines that the new system of government will be brought to a test and no resolutions passed in the senate can solve the problem. The claims of the insurgent to national recognition can hardly hold water, but there is no power in the world that would be more embarrassed by the raising of a question of this sort as the United States. To announce that the occupation of the Philippines is only temporary would be scarcely prudent. Although some precedents are furnished in our own policy during the last 20 years, the results are unsatisfactory. All the governments of the continent have acquiesced, willingly or unwillingly, in the fact that the islands, with all their advantages and responsibilities, are American acquisitions and they are bound to hold aloof except in the inconceivable event of the failure of the American government.

The Standard says:

It is a little startling to find the liberators of Cuba engaged in suppressing a youthful republic which claims the sacred right of self-government. Yet to withdraw would create another Cuba off the coast of Asia for which naval stations would scramble.

The Daily Chronicle says:

We believe that, so soon as it can safely be done, the United States will give the Filipinos virtual home rule under responsible government.

The Daily News, in referring to Senator Foraker's speech in the senate, says:

After this, the whole truth can not long be delayed, and it will be awaited with great interest on both sides of the Atlantic.

FOUR PERSONS WERE KILLED

A Train Dashed Into a Group of Unfortunates at Larimer, Pa.—Their Bodies Terribly Mangled.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 12.—Four persons were run down and instantly killed by express train No. 18, near Larimer station, on the Pennsylvania, 25 miles east of Pittsburgh. The list of dead is as follows: Mary Miller, Thomas Miller, Albert Wilson, Walter Brown.

The train dashed into the group of unfortunates at full speed and the bodies were terribly mangled. After being gathered up the remains were taken in charge by friends. On account of a freight wreck near Larimer, it was necessary to switch the westbound passenger trains to the eastbound track. The express was running at full speed and the engineer blew the whistle, but the alarm was unheard, as the victims evidently thought that the train would run on the westbound track as usual. They are all residents of Larimer.

THE VERMONT SENATORSHIP.

Jonathan Ross, of St. Johnsbury, Has Been Appointed Senator to Succeed Senator Morrill—He Accepts.

St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 12.—Wednesday Hon. B. F. Fifield notified Gov. Smith that owing to business reasons he would be unable to accept the appointment of United States senator to succeed Senator Morrill.

The appointment was immediately tendered to Hon. Jonathan Ross, of St. Johnsbury, chief justice of the supreme court of Vermont.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Jan. 12.—Jonathan Ross has accepted the appointment as United States senator, vice Morrill, deceased, and will resign as chief justice of the supreme court of Vermont.

NORTH CAROLINA LYNCHING.

He Confessed to Outrage and Murder—He Was Taken to the Scene of His Crime and Hanged.

Gulf, N. C., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Nancy Welch, a white widow and mother of five children, residing about three miles from Harper's Cross Roads, in Chatham county, was outraged and murdered Tuesday afternoon by Henry Jones, a Negro.

The Negro was found at his home near Richmond Wednesday morning about 3 o'clock. He confessed his guilt and was carried back to the scene of the murder and hanged by a crowd of about 50 men.

MEMPHIS FIRE.

Largest Wholesale and Retail Dry Goods House in the South Burned.

The Building Adjoins the Gayoso Hotel, and at One Time the Hotel Was Endangered—The Guests Made a Hasty Exit From the Structure.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 13.—A fire which broke out at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening in the wholesale and retail dry goods house of the J. S. Menken Co., one of the largest establishments of its kind in the south, had caused an estimated loss of $400,000 up to midnight and the fire was not under control.

The Menken building occupied a frontage of 125 feet on Main street and extends 150 feet on Gayoso street. It is a five story building and adjoins the Gayoso hotel.

No harder fight was ever made by the Memphis department and they never fought under greater difficulties. The fire, which originated in the basement, was by 9 o'clock, beyond all control, and that part of the building under the first floor was a seething mass of flames. The basement had been built in compartments with the view in case of fire to confining it to the starting point. This could not be done Thursday night for the reason that for half an hour after the arrival of the fire companies they could not reach the compartments. When an opening was finally made it was found that the fire had spread to all the compartments, and as fast as progress was made in one place, the flames would multiply in another. The smoke was so dense that the firemen were unable to get an entrance to the building for a time and they fought it entirely from the outside, pouring stream after stream through small windows into the basement.

At 11 o'clock the fire was still burning briskly but it looked more like the firemen would get it under control for a while. Soon after this the flames began to leap suddenly from the basement and it was evident that the basement was a seething mass of flames. The fire now began to burn furiously in the center of the building and the situation grew more critical. Then with a crash the center portion of the first floor fell. The flames beneath had been eating away the foundations and the firemen were forced to retire hurriedly.

At midnight the fire was not under control and the loss will probably be total. The building is valued at $150,000, with insurance of $70,000. The stock was valued at about $300,000, with insurance of $275,000.

Assistant Fire Chief Ryan was badly burned about the eyes in forcing an entrance to the building. He was taken home.

About 9 o'clock another fire started in the residence portion of the city on Poplar street, which destroyed two residences and three store buildings, with a probable loss of $15,000.

At 2 a. m., Friday, the fire was still raging and guests of the Gayoso hotel began to move out, as the fire threatens to spread to that building.

At 2:05 a. m. the Gayoso hotel was in imminent peril and seemed doomed to destruction by the fire, which was rapidly spreading beyond all possible control.

The walls of the Menkin building fell at 2:15. High wind prevailed and the fire was spreading. Windows within radius of a block all breaking from intense heat.

At 3:30 the guests were all out of the Gayoso hotel. The wind changed in the opposite direction and the hotel was not threatened.

THE REBELLION IN YEMEN.

A Battle Fought in Which the Turks Stormed and Captured the Insurgent Position at Shanel—Heavy Loss on Both Sides.

Constantinople, Jan. 13.—A great battle has been fought in the Yemen division of Arabia. The Turkish troops stormed and captured the insurgent position at Shanel on November 30. About 4,000 insurgents and 2,000 Turks were killed or wounded.

London, Jan. 13.—Special dispatches from Constantinople say that after the battle at Shanel, a further Turkish advance was ordered. Abdullah Pasha, commanding the Turkish troops, was directed to capture Sasbeh, the headquarters of an important insurgent leader, 150 miles northwest of Sana. All the commanding positions in that vicinity are occupied by rebels and as the Turkish troops are deserting the operations are likely to be prolonged and difficult.

The trouble in Yemen is one of old standing and the rebellion against Turkish rule has spread throughout Hadse and in other districts.

HON. NELSON DINGLEY DEAD.

Succumbs to Heart Failure—His Family at His Bedside.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Hon. Nelson Dingley, of Maine, leader of the republicans on the floor of the house of representatives and representing the Second congressional district of Maine is that body, died here Friday night at half-past 10 of heart failure, resulting from extreme weakness due to double pneumonia. He was unconscious during most of the day and death came quietly without consciousness being regained. There were present Mrs. Dingley, Miss Edith Dingley, Messrs. E. N. and A. H. Dingley, sons of the deceased, Mr. James C. Hooe, an intimate friend of the family, Dr. Deale, one of the physicians who has been attending him throughout his illness, and the two nurses. To within a few hours before his death, the family firmly believed, as they have throughout his illness, that Mr. Dingley would recover and it was only when it became apparent that he was dying that they gathered at his bedside.

While the past few days have given great hopes of recovery, the progress of the disease had made the patient dangerously weak, and had seriously affected his heart. Late Thursday night and again Friday morning Mr. Dingley had a bad sinking spell, from which he slightly rallied. There were further evidences of heart failure as the day progressed and the strongest stimulants were administered, but without effect. He failed perceptibly during the afternoon and as night came hope was abandoned. Mrs. Dingley is very much prostrated by her husband's death, and is now under the care of a physician.

Sergeant-at-Arms Russell, of the house of representatives, was notified of the death, which will be announced in both houses of congress Saturday and committees will be appointed to attend the funeral, after which adjournment for the day will be had.

Representative Dingley's illness dated back to December 29, when he complained that he was not well. The physicians diagnosed his case as one of grip, so commonly prevailing here, and cautioned the patient to keep to his room. The following Saturday pneumonia developed in the left lung, complicated with great irregularity of the heart. Skillful treatment brought good results and on Thursday there were signs that the lung was beginning to clear. The next day, however, the disease took an alarming turn and the two sons in Michigan were telegraphed for.

In speaking of Mr. Dingley Friday night, Senator Hale said:

"In the present condition of public affairs, Gov. Dingley's death is a very great national loss. In all questions relating to finance, to the revenues of the country and to the adjustment of great fiscal questions, Mr. Dingley was above all others an authority. It is difficult to say who can take his place. He had the confidence of his associates in the house, the confidence of the senate, the confidence of the president and the confidence of the entire country. Maine will specially lament him. Early and late he had devoted himself to the interests of the state and without distinction of party and her people believed in his fidelity, patriotism and wisdom.

The funeral will be conducted at the house of representatives on Monday next. The body will be taken to the house at 10 o'clock and there lie in state until noon, when services will be conducted in the presence of the house and senate.

At 4:30 in the afternoon the funeral party will leave over the Pennsylvania railroad for Lewiston, Me., arriving there at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Further services will be held at the family residence in Lewiston on Wednesday. The interment will be in that city. The services in the house of representatives probably will be conducted by Rev. S. M. Newman, pastor of the First Congregational church, which Mr. Dingley was accustomed to attend while residing in Washington.

TO BUY THE PHILIPPINES.

Andrew Carnegie Authorizes Two Friends in the United States Senate to Offer the President $20,000,000 For Them.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Andrew Carnegie has authorized two friends in the United States senate to offer the president $20,000,000 for the Philippine islands. He says that the offer is made in good faith and that the money will be forthcoming within 30 days after the formal acceptance of the proposition, or he will assume the responsibility of paying the indemnity to Spain, thus making an appropriation by congress unnecessary. Mr. Carnegie says that his only purpose in buying the islands is to set them free.

THE WEAKER VESSEL.

Agent Who Anticipated a Chilly Reception.

"That's another agent," said Mrs. Waples as she heard the bell ring. Now, I'm going to open the door myself and give him a freeze-out he'll remember."

She went to the door with a stony look of determination on her face, and confronted a man carrying a satchel, and before he had time to speak she snapped out: "Well, what do you want?"

For the first time in his experience that agent lost his cue. He had intended to ask her if her eldest sister was at home, and was ready to address her as "My dear young lady," that being his formula for any woman under 50, but one look into that frozen countenance made him forget his own name. He cast his eyes on the doormat, and they took in a gray and black tabby reposing there. He was saved.

"Beautiful cat!" he murmured, stooping to caress it. "Marked like a tiger. Never saw one just like it!"

"You did not call to see the cat, did you?" asked Mrs. W——, in a petrified voice.

"My dear lady, I did not know that you had a cat, much less such a magnificent feline specimen as that! May I ask its age?"

Mrs. W—— gave the first sign of a thaw. "I think Marc is three years old now; he was a kitten when he came to us."

"Oh, have you his pedigree?"

"No, indeed; he is only an ordinary cat. We love him for his gentleness and because we raised him."

"Noble creature! Beautiful cat! Excuse me, but you have a treasure there, and he should have a historic pedigree," and he smoothed down the old doorstep loafer and said he reminded him of his home far away in Maine.

Then he sold Mrs. Waples four bottles of a new kind of silver polish, and asked her permission to call some day with a kodak to take a picture of the beautiful cat, and she has been heard to say that the freezing-out process was a dead failure.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

A Young Philosopher.

"Now, Gladys," said a mother, "if you wake up early Sunday be a good girl and lie still. Perhaps you'll go to sleep again." But early Sunday morning the child was out of bed as usual and came pattering into her mother's room. "Gladys," cried mamma, reproachfully, "you're a naughty girl. Now go right back to bed again. Here, I'll tuck you in." So the mother arose and escorted the wakeful child back to her bed. Gladys crawled under the covers, and her mother made her as comfortable as possible. "Now," said the child, "give me something to read, please." Her mother turned to the bookshelves. "What do you want?" she said. "Give me 'Aesop's Fables,' said Gladys. She took the book with a happy smile and held it tightly in her arms. "Now," she said, with a long-drawn sigh, "I'll read till you call me. And I know what I'll read—I'll read 'The Contented Ass.'" And the little philosopher opened the magic book.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CUBAN CABINET.

Gen. Brooke Considering the Formation of a Board of Civil Advisors.

The Exclusive Control, of Course, Will Remain Entirely in the Hands of Gen. Brooke, the Secretaries Being a Council of Administration.

HAVANA, Jan. 13.—Gov. Gen. Brooke has been carefully considering the formation of a cabinet of civil advisors and has decided to have four secretaries—the first, of state and government; the second of finance, the third of justice and public instruction and the fourth of agriculture and industry, commerce and public works. Only prominent residents of the island will be invited to join the cabinet.

Thursday the governor general received acceptances from two, whose names are reserved until all four can be announced.

The executive control, of course, will remain entirely in the hands of Gen. Brooke, the secretaries being to him a council of administration. Under his direction the various departments will be conducted on the broad principle of wise and honest government carried out into details. In this way the Cubans will be prepared for self-government.

Gen. Lindlow, military governor of the department of Havana, announced Thursday evening the following civil appointments:

Mayor, Perfecto La Coste.

First assistant mayor, Juan H. Barriero.

Second assistant mayor, Nicasio Estrada y Mora.

Fourth assistant mayor, Alfredo Zayas y Alfonso.

Fifth assistant mayor, Jose M. Berriz.

Councillors: Manuel M. Corronado, Angelo Cowley, Theodore de Zaldo, Raimundo Menocal, Antonio Rodriguez, Antonio Parra, Fernandez de Castro, Luis de Arosarona, Julio San Martin, Juan Orus y Presno, Angelo J. Parraga, Jose M. Auguirre, Jose V. Zequeira, Thomas Mederos, Aristides Aguero, Jorge Ajuria, Marianao Artis, Jose Somoza, Juan M. Dihigo, Francisco Mestre, Gustavo Duplesis, Matias Infanzon, Jose Baracdi, Onefre Gomez, Francisco Justiniani.

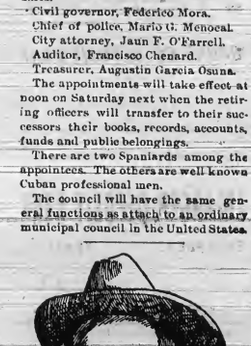
Secretary of the council, Felix Yznaga y Ruiz.

Secretary to the mayor, Balbino Gonzales.

Civil governor, Federico Mora.

Chief of police, Mario G. Menocal.

City attorney, Jaun F. O'Farrell.



Auditor, Francisco Chenard.

Treasurer, Augustin Garcia Osuna.

The appointments will take effect at noon on Saturday next when the retiring officers will transfer to their successors their books, records, accounts, funds and public belongings.

There are two Spaniards among the appointees. The others are well known Cuban professional men.

The council will have the same general functions as attach to an ordinary municipal council in the United States.

CABINET OF CIVIL ADVISORS.

Two of the Members Selected By Gen. Brooke—It is Desirable That One Be Selected Outside Havana.

HAVANA, Jan. 14.—Two of the members of the cabinet of civil advisers which Gen. Brooke will form will be Senor Dosino Mendez Capote, former vice president of the Cuban revolutionary government and now president of the special Cuban commission in Washington, and Dr. Jose Gonzalez Lanuza, a member of the commission. Dr. Lanuza wired from Washington Friday that he would probably be detained there for several days. Seven or eight names are on the list of possibilities for the other two positions in the cabinet, among them Senor Pablo Desvernine and Senor Adolfo Vanz. Thus far only Havana men have been considered, but it seems desirable to make one selection from outside the capitol.

ARE ON THE WAY TO CUBA.

The Third Kentucky Regiment and an Indiana Batallion Leave Columbus, Ga., for the Island Saturday.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 14.—Ten hundred and fifty-six men of the 3d Kentucky, commanded by Col. Smith, one battalion of the 160th Indiana, Maj. Backman commanding, and the brigade hospital leave Saturday for Cuba. The Kentucky regiment and hospital take transports at Savannah, the Indiana troops at Charleston. The different commands were notified at a late hour that the transports Minnewaska and Saratoga had arrived and the order for the final movement issued, after a delay of over a week. It has rained here five days, and the movement of regiments will be difficult. Col. H. C. Demuth, of the 3d Missouri, has resigned from the volunteer service.

Spaniards Say the American Troops Mutinied and Refused to Go to Iloilo—Miller to Abandon the City.

MADRID, Jan. 14.—The government has received the following official dispatch from Manila:

"The American troops here which were ordered to Iloilo mutinied and refused to start. Gen. Miller has been ordered to abandon Iloilo and return to Manila. All the American troops have been ordered to concentrate here, the situation being of the gravest character."

According to dispatches received here the American domination in the Philippines is "limited to Manila Bay." All the other points, except Mindinao, where the Spaniards remain, are in the hands of the insurgents. One dispatch says:

"The American volunteers are disheartened by the climate and bad food, and are anxious to return home."

STUDENTS AS ROWDIES.

A Crowd of Nearly 1,000 Attempt to Break Up a Play in an Opera House Five of Them Arrested.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 14.—A crowd of nearly 1,000 students of the University of Wisconsin attempted to break up the play of "Fra Diavolo," given at the Fuller opera house Friday night, and in consequence five were locked up in the police station. The officers attempted to arrest a number in the opera house, but they were rescued by their fellows after a fierce struggle. The opera house was crowded at the time and many women were severely handled in attempting to escape from the building. After the play the students gathered in the streets and threatened all manner of violence. They refused to disperse at the command of the chief of police and five were arrested.

THE CONGRESS.

The Peace Treaty Will Be Called Up in the Senate During the Week.

The Work in the House During the Week Will Be Overcast With the Sad Rites Attending the Final Tributes to Congressman Dingley.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—It is the purpose of Senator Davis, in charge of the peace treaty, to again call it up as soon as it can be reached without displacing other measures which take precedence under the existing orders of the senate. The questions are the Indian appropriation bill and the Nicaragua canal bill.

Under the agreement made last week the canal bill will be taken up at 3 o'clock Tuesday for discussion in speeches not to exceed 15 minutes in duration. There is no agreement for a vote on the bill, but the belief is general that the understanding already reached will lead to an early vote. The senators opposed to the pending bill express no intention of trying to prevent a vote, and the friends of the bill are very confident that this culmination will not be postponed beyond Wednesday.

The senate attended the funeral of Representative Dingley Monday at noon. After this ceremony the senators returned to their desks and resumed consideration of the Indian bill. This bill may continue to hold attention until Tuesday, and if such should prove to be the case, the further consideration of the treaty would be postponed until after action upon the Nicaragua bill. In the meantime the pension and Diplomatic appropriation bills will have been reported from the committee on appropriations, but it is not the purpose at present to give them precedence over the treaty. Senator Davis, chairman of the foreign relations committee, and Senator Allison, chairman of the appropriation committee, are working in perfect harmony, so that no clash between the treaty and the supply bills is probable.

Senator Bacon has given notice of a speech on the general question of extension of territory on Wednesday. His address will be based upon the resolutions regarding the status of the Filippines introduced by himself some time since and its delivery may lead to considerable debate particularly on the treaty in open session.

The opponents of the treaty profess great confidence in being able to defeat it, upon a vote, and to believe that the friends of the agreement will seek to postpone a vote until next session. They claim 34 votes in opposition, or three more than necessary to defeat. They say they will be satisfied to have the treaty ratified providing an amendment is engrafted upon it declaring against the maintenance of sovereignty in the Philippines, but the supporters of the treaty decline so far to grant any such concessions. Some of them indicate a willingness to adopt a separate resolution to this end and it is not impossible that this course may be pursued. The supporters of the treaty do not claim to be in the least disturbed over the outlook. They count upon considerable delay in securing action, but still hold to their contention that the treaty will be ratified just as it came to the senate.

The work of the house during the coming week will be overcast with the sad rites attending the final tributes to Mr. Dingley. These were held in the house of representatives at noon Monday and immediately following them the house adjourned for the day. On Tuesday the legislative work of the house will be resumed with the naval personnel bill coming over from last Friday. The naval personnel bill may be displaced by the contested election case of Brown vs. Swanson, formal notice having been given that it would be called up on Tuesday. An election case has the highest privilege, and if the notice is carried out the personnel bill will go over.

Wednesday has been set aside for the committee on inter-state and foreign commerce, an agreement to that effect having been made before the holidays. The most important bill this committee has on the calendar is that providing for a Pacific cable running to Hawaii and thence to Japan. By Thursday the post office appropriation bill will be reported and ready to take up in the house, and perhaps also the military academy bill.

The main interest attaches to the time when the important bill for the increase of the regular army can be taken up. It is awaiting the recovery of Chairman Hull of the military committee and should he be about by the end of the week this measure will be brought forward.

Died in Her 103d Year.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Mrs. Emily J. Mosely, who would have been 103 years old had she lived until April, died at the Home for the Homeless Sunday night.

IT IS FEARED SHE IS LOST.

The Naptha Launch Paul Jones, With a Pleasure Party From Indianapolis and Chicago, Missing.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Jan. 16.—Dispatches received here from Chicago and Indianapolis indicate that great fear is felt for the safety of the naptha launch Paul Jones, hailing from Louisville, which left the mouth of the Mississippi river January 3 for this port with a party of ladies and gentlemen from Chicago and Indianapolis on board. Nothing has been heard here of the launch and the E. E. Simpson, one of the fastest and best tugs belonging here, left Sunday to make a thorough search on the gulf. She has not yet returned and probably nothing definite will be known before Monday or Tuesday.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 16.—Mayor Taggart received a telegram from Senator Fairbanks Sunday saying he would ask the treasury department to send a revenue cutter in search of the Paul Jones, on which Miss Florence Taggart, of this city, daughter of the mayor, was taking a cruise with a party of friends. Mayor Taggart will leave for Mobile Monday, unless favorable tidings are heard.

THE DINGLEY OBSEQUIES.

Services Were Held in the House Monday at Noon—A Distinguished Audience Was Present.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—In view of the long and distinguished services of the late Representative Dingley, the funeral ceremony was held in the hall of the house and was in the nature of a state funeral. It was held at 12 o'clock noon Monday. Rev. Newman officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. Couden, chaplain of the house. The president and members of the cabinet, the chief justice and justices of the United States supreme court, senatros, representatives and members of the diplomatic corps were present.

There was a constant stream of letters, telegrams of condolence and cards pouring in at the Hamilton hotel all Sunday. They were from public men in all sections and personal friends of the family. President McKinley sent a very feeling letter in his own hand and expressing his grief and that of Mrs. McKinley.

THE GREAT ARMY SCANDAL.

Many Believe Secretary Alger is Behind Gen. Eagan—A Crisis That May Uproot the War Department.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—It is broadly intimated here that Gen. Eagan, in his attack on Gen. Miles, had the tacit backing of Secretary of War Alger. If he did not, why was he not at once placed under arrest?

The public clamor that some official cognizance be taken of the breach of discipline, military law and the proprieties continues. The case promises to become as famous as the army scandals of France. But little else is discussed.

Yet Alger remains passive. When asked whether or not he would take action, he seemed annoyed, and the directness of the question offended him and provoked a snarling answer. Gen. Miles has indulged in no vituperation, but he has made "the galled jade wince." Eagan's pugilistic lexicon is picturesque, but he has overlooked the necessity of presenting facts.

PEACE EXISTS AT MANILA.

A Cablegram Received To That Effect From Gen. Otis at the War Department On Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Secretary Alger received a cable message from Maj. Gen. Otis Saturday morning containing such reassuring news of the situation at Manila that the war department feels justified in denying the reports that the conditions were critical. The war department will not make public the text of the message, but it is similar in character to the one given to the press several days ago, in which Gen. Otis told of the improved conditions. Gen. Otis said that conditions were improving; that he was well satisfied with the situation, and that everything is lovely and the goose hangs high was the free interpretation of the message by a high official. There was nothing in the message from Gen. Otis about a mutiny among the United States troops.

Noted Pioneer Lady.

ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 16.—The death of Mrs. Sarah Ann Patrick occurred here. She was a granddaughter of Col. Van Horne, of revolutionary fame, and was present at her grandfather's home when Presidents Jefferson and Monroe, Gov. Clinton and other distinguished personages were entertaintained. She was 94 years of age.

Death of E. K. O'Brien.

THOMASTON, Me., Jan. 16.—E. K. O'Brien, a well known democratic politician, lime manufacturer and ship builder, died Sunday aged 65 years. He was democratic candidate for congress against James G. Blaine in 1874

Mrs. Draper Honored.

ROME, Jan. 16.—At the banquet given at the palace Sunday evening to the members of the diplomatic corps, Mrs. Draper, wife of the United States ambassador, Gen. Wm. F. Draper, sat on the right of King Humbert.

RACE OF PIGMIES.

English Traveler Marches Three Weeks in the Forest in the Heart of Africa.

The Race Is Sturdy and Fairly Intelligent —On the Aruwimi River He Found a Tribe of Warlike Cannibals, But Never Once Fired in Self-Defense.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Probably there has been no such interest circling around Africa travelers and geographers since the time of Henry M. Stanley's expedition as has been caused by the arrival here of a young and hitherto unknown Englishman, Mr. Albert Bushnill Lloyd, from Central Africa, after a record journey of three months from the heart of Africa to London, traveling over Stanley's route down the Congo to the west coast. His journey was in one respect more remarkable than Stanley's, inasmuch as Mr. Lloyd traveled quite alone, so far as Europeans were concerned, and was only accompanied by two native servants and a small number of carriers. Moreover, although he marched three weeks in the Pigmy forest and then traversed the whole length of the Aruwimi river, the banks of which are lined with warlike cannibals, he never once fired a shot in self-defense. On the contrary, he was on cordial terms with both Pigmies and cannibals.

On entering the great primeval forest, Mr. Lloyd went west for five days without sight of a Pygmy. Suddenly he came to a clearing and stopped at an Arab village, where he ment a great many Pygmies. "They told me," said Mr. Lloyd, "that unknown to me they had been watching me for five days, peeping through the growth of the forest. They appeared very much frightened, and even when speaking covered their faces. I asked a chief to allow me to photograph the dwarfs, and he brought me a dozen together. I was able to secure a snapshot, but I did not succeed in the time exposure, as the Pygmies would not stand still. Then I tried to measure them and found not one over four feet in height. All were fully developed, the women somewhat slighter than the men. I was amazed at their sturdiness. The men have long beards, reaching half way down the chest. They are very timid and will not look a stranger in the face, their head-like eyes constantly shifting. They are, it struck me, fairly intelligent. I had a long talk with a chief, who conversed intelligently about their customs in the forest and the number of the tribesmen. Both men and women, except for a tiny strip of bark, are quite nude. The men were armed with poisoned arrows. The chief told me the tribes were nomadic and never slept two nights in the same place. They just huddled together in hastily thrown up huts. Memories of the white traveler—Mr. Stanley, of course—who crossed the forest years ago, still lingered among them."

Mr. Lloyd then proceeded through the cannibal countries to the coast. He found the cannibals warlike and fierce, but open and straightforward and had no difficulty with them.

At one place he put together a bicycle he had with him and rode around the village. A remarkable scene followed, thousands of cannibals—men, women and children—turning out, dancing and yelling at what they described as "A European riding a snake."

THE SPANISH FLAG STONED.

A Company Of Tenth Regular Infantry Disperse the Crowd of Cubans and Lower the Flag.

HAVANA, Jan. 16.—Sunday morning a Spanish flag having been raised over a hotel on the Calzada del Monte, a crowd of Cubans gathered and began to throw stones at it. Company B, 10th regular iufantry, was called and proceeded to the scene of disturbance at double quick and with fixed bayonets speedily dispersed the crowd, which was fast becoming ugly.

The officers in command explained to the proprietor that the flag ought to be lowered because it was likely to produce further disorder. The proprietor, in reply, assured the officer that no offense had been intended, and that having seen the English and German flags flying, he thought he would be at liberty to raise the flag of Spain. The members of the company lowered the flag.

Was a State Farm Boy.

MORROW, O., Jan. 16.—The boy who was thrown from the front end of the Pennsylvania-New York express here and sustained concussion of the brain is William Baily, aged 13. His mother lives at Xenia, O. He was formerly of the Lancaster State farm. His condition is dangerous.

A Veteran Attempts Suicide.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—John J. Keilogg, of Washington, Iowa, a veteran of the civil war, attempted suicide in Fairmount Park, Sunday, by shooting himself in the head. He was taken to the German hospital in a critical condition. Despondency the cause.

Salmon Trust Forming.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Local dealers are at the head of a movement to form a salmon trust. Negotiations for the purchase of the important Pacific Coast canneries are under way.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—SENATE—Monday proved to be an interesting day in the senate, the principal subject under discussion being the constitutional right of the United States to carry into effect the policy of expansion. The leading speaker was Mr. Hoar (rep., Mass.), who delivered a speech in support of the resolution introduced by Mr. Vest (dem., Mo.), declaring it to be in opposition to the constitution for this country to acquire foreign territory to be governed permanently as colonies. Mr. Platt, at the conclusion of Mr. Hoar's address, briefly replied to some points of the speech which had been directed especially at him. Mr. Caffrey concluded his speech in opposition to the Nicaragua canal bill, but an effort to fix a time for a vote upon it failed.

HOUSE—The house Monday reversed the decision of the committee of the whole last Friday when the appropriation for the support of the civil service commission was stricken out of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. In committee, where members do not go on record, the appropriation was stricken out by a vote of 97 to 61. Monday when the roll was called the appropriation was restored, the motion to strike out being defeated 99 to 118. The house Monday by special order decided to proceed with the consideration of the naval personnel bill as soon as the bill for the codification of the laws of Alaska was out of the way.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—SENATE—Senator Mason (Ill.) occupied the attention of the senate for nearly an hour and a half Tuesday in support of his resolution declaring that the United States will never attempt to govern the people of any country without their consent.

HOUSE—The house devoted its undivided attention again Tuesday to the bill for the codification of the criminal laws of Alaska and when adjournment was had all but ten pages of the bill had been disposed of.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—SENATE—A climax was reached Wednesday in the debate on the question of expansion which is in progress in the senate. Heretofore all of the speeches with the notable exception of that of Mr. Platt (Ct.) have been in opposition to what is presumed to be the policy of the administration with respect to the acquisition of the Philippines. Wednesday Mr. Foraker (O.) addressed the senate in opposition to the declaration of the Vest resolution that the United States has no constitutional power to acquire foreign territory to be maintained as colonies. Mr. Foraker's strong assertion that the acquisition of the Philippines was temporary in character created a sensation in the chamber. He maintained, however, that we have a legal right to hold the islands permanently. Prior to the speech by Mr. Foraker a sharp debate was precipitated by Mr. Allen (Neb.) by some remarks he made upon a resolution he had introduced. Mr. Hoar (Mass.) and Mr. Gray (Del.) were drawn into it.

HOUSE—The house completed and passed the bill for the codification of the criminal laws of Alaska upon which it has been working intermittently for a week. An amendment was adopted providing a high license system in the territory with a species of local option. Liquor dealers by its provisions are to pay a license of $1,000 per year and the consent of a majority of the white citizens residing within two miles of a liquor dealer's establishment must be obtained before a license can be secured. An attempt to recommit the bill for the purpose of securing the adoption of a provision excluding convicts from service on juries was defeated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—SENATE—Little business was transacted by the senate in open session Thursday. Sixteen bills on the private pension calendar were passed and a joint resolution extending the thanks of congress to Miss Clara Barton and other officials of the Red Cross society for their beneficent work in Armenia and Crete was adopted.

HOUSE—The house Thursday passed the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill without amendment. During the general debate two set speeches were made against imperialism by Messrs. C. Brack and Gaines (Tenn.). The diplomatic and consular is the sixth of the regular appropriation bills to pass the house. Seven budgets yet remain to be acted upon. The bill as passed carries $1,703,552.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—SENATE—In the senate, Friday, Mr. McLaurin (dem., S. C.) took strong ground in a carefully prepared speech against a policy of expansion by this country. He cited as one of the principal reasons why the United States should not assume dominion over people who are widely dissimilar to the people of this country, the experience of the south with the negro race. Mr. Sullivan (dem., Miss.) and Mr. Pasco (dem. Fla.) discussed the pending Nicaragua canal bill, the former supporting it and the latter opposing it. The Indian appropriation bill was taken up, but its consideration was not concluded before the hour of adjournment.

HOUSE—The house Friday entered upon the consideration of the personnel bill. As developed much less opposition than was anticipated and the indications are that it will have a large majority when it is placed upon its passage. The last vestige of opposition to the measure from the line officers of the navy was removed Friday when an amendment was adopted designated to prohibit staff officers upon whom the bill confers positive rank from exercising command save in their own corps. The committee also asserted their purpose to offer an amendment Saturday to repeal the law giving prize money to the navy, and this announcement met with warm approval.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—SENATE—At the opening of the senate Saturday morning the blind chaplain paid a tribute to the late Nelson Dingley. A letter was presented from Mr. Frye (Me.) president pro tem. appointing Mr. Gallinger (N.H.) to preside over the senate in the absence of the vice president and himself. Mr. Proctor (Vt.) introduced a joint resolution providing for busts of late Senator Morrill and Senator Voorhees to be placed in the national library. The resolution was referred to the library committee. Senator Hoar introduced a resolution seeking for the freedom of the Filipinos.

HOUSE—The house of representatives assembled Saturday under circumstances of deep and universal sorrow in the death of Representative Nelson Dingley, of Maine. As Speaker Reed entered the chamber a hush fell upon the members, a moment later rose and with bowed heads listened to the eloquent tribute from the chaplain, Rev. Dr. Couden. Mr. Boutelle, the senior member of the Maine delegation, was then recognized for an announcement of the demise of his colleague, which was made in feeling and appreciative words. Mr. Boutelle then offered and the house adopted a series of resolutions providing for funeral ceremonies in the hall of the house Monday and for a committee of nine members to accompany the remains to Maine. The resolutions concluded with a motion to adjourn.

John Hull's Narrow Escape.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 15.—John Hall, a carpenter, had a "head-end" collision with an incoming Chesapeake & Ohio train at Broad and Water streets Sunday night. Though tossed fully 50 feet by the cowcatcher, Hall was not even bruised.

Dispatches From Iloilo.

MANILA, Jan. 16.—Official dispatches just received here from Iloilo, Island of Panay, indicate that the natives are disposed to be friendly, although absolutely opposed to the landing of the United States forces without orders from Malolos, the seat of the so-called Filipino national government. Some officials at Iloilo are not in accord with the revolutionary government, but are willing to accept an American protectorate, and to go to state the case to Aguinaldo if furnished transportation by the American Nine prisoners escaped from the county jail at Bowling Green by overpowering the jailer and his deputy. Two were recapturred.

Rufus White was shot and seriously wounded, in Boyd county, by Elizabeth Canterberry, who charges him with committing an offense against her daughter. She surrendered.

The famous belled buzzard has again appeared in Boyle county. Last week it flew over Mr. H. H. Bourne's place, near Parksville, coming so near that the tinkle of the bell could be easily heard.

Every Sheriff in the State has settled with the Auditor. The total amount paid in by the 119 counties, $2,902,028.28. The total value of all the property equalized for taxation was $552,957,768.

A convict who escaped from the penitentiary at Frankfort, and was captured and returned to the prison, has been indicted for escaping, and will get from one to five years additional time.

Gov. Bradley has decided to make Col. Roger D. Williams the Colonel of the new Second regiment Kentucky State Guards. Col. Williams is the well-known fox-hunter, and is one of the National Fox Hunters' Association.

Citizens of Union and Henderson counties will forward petitions to Gov. Bradley, asking a pardon for Josephine Fritz. The woman is serving a life term in the Frankfort penitentiary as an accomplice of Mose Caton, who was hanged at Morganfield for wife murder many years ago.

Hon. John W. Feland, one of the best known politicians in the State, died at his home in Hopinsville Sunday of the grip, after a short illness. Mr. Feland had held many public offices, and was for many years prominent in the councils of the Republican party.

James Lacy and the 15-year-old daughter of Stephen Collier eloped to Menifee county during a cold spell and Lacy was without an overcoat. They traveled two nights on horseback. Lacy had his ears, hands and feet frozen so badly that he has not been out of bed since. The girl made the journey without injury.

Judge I. A. Spalding has decided that household goods and personal property of a person with a family, not exceeding $250 in value, is not subject to sale for taxes. We have not seen the opinion of the learned Judge, but we suppose the decision is based on the principle that property exempt from taxation, should be protected from sale for taxes on other property.—Argus,

CROP AND STOCK.

Mr. F. D. Spotswood, of Harrodsburg, sold to a Boston party, a pair of fine fast road mares for $2,500.

But little stock at Paris on court day. Sixteen cattle sold at $22.00 per head. Judge J. Q. Ward bought them.

Johnson Aldridge bought last week in Estill county ten heifers, weight 765 pounds, at 3¼ and 2 at 3 cents.—Winchester Democrat.

About 12,000 cattle at Richmond on conrt day and prices ranging from 3 to 4 cents. A few mules were on the market, selling from $40 to $90.

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

McELREE'S

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. I. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it a most excellent preparation for female troubles."

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1899. NO. 14.

HERE is a partial list of trusts that have been organized during the last few years: Leather, tobacco (plug), crackers, starch, corn harvesters, lumber, rubber, dressed beef, sheet copper, tobacco, paper, acids and chemicals, malting, silverware, lead, knit goods, sash and doors, wall-paper cigarettes, typewriters, window-glass, caskets, crockery, windows and doors, smelting, ribbon, gossamer rubber. axes, bolts and nuts, litography, tissue-paper, rock salt, celluloid, saws, rope and twine, thread, furniture, stockyards, matches, ice, plate-glass, cartridges, menhaden, linotypes, strawboard, milling, air-brakes, envelopes, type, soda-fountains, tacks, potteries, marbles, packing and provisions.

SUBSEQUENT events have proven that Mr. Carnegie was correct when he said the President had no Philippine policy. He has appointed a commission to formulate a policy to be pursued in regard to these islands. With all the safe-guards possible Mr. McKinley will not be able to solidify his party on the subject. Sherman, Hoar, Mason, Perkins, Reed and a host of others will not be brought into line by commissions.

WHEN the war investigating committee had Surgeon Daley before it, they had a witness who did not give hearsay testimony. Daley had investigated the beef and analyzed the soup made from it and secured two acids therefrom. Daley ate some of the meat and was made very ill. If Daley's testimony is not repudiated by the commissioners the beef question is settled and somebody is in the hole.

NEWS from Manilla has to be approved by a censor before it is allowed to be telegraphed to this country. This is done to prevent the people of the United States from learning the real condition of affairs in the Philippine islands. Butcher Weyler adopted that course when he was Captain General in Cuba, in order that the people in Spain would not know the facts as they existed there.

THE Havana people are displeased with the rigid sanitary regulations that have been adopted for their city by the Americans. The cleaning of streets is a new departure with them, and their indolence makes any order looking to the cleaning of the city very objectionable to them.

JUDGE DENNY, of Lexington, is going to make another attempt to secure a stool at the federal pie counter, and is applying for the position of commissioner to the Paris exposition.

EX-GOV. BROWN would ease the minds of many people by telling why he changed his notion so suddenly about becoming a candidate for Governor. Some are losing considerable sleep over the matter.

MR. FORAKER told the Senate, last week, that he was not acting as spokesman for the President in his speech of only a few days before. May be the Senator wants to change hands.

BECAUSE of the sudden death of several Arkansas patrons of blind tigers, the output of some of these institutions has been sent to St. Louis for analysis.

IN the second edition of Mr. Foraker on the Philippine question he comes very near confirming Carnegie's statement that the President is minus a policy.

MANY there be who would like to know the name of that Democratic dog who the Dispatch says wears a Courier-Journal collar. Name him, Mr. Enloe.

IN another column will be found an article on the Philippines, written by Mr. David A. Piatt, who is giving the question a close study.

THE fight Wanamaker is putting up against the reelection of Senator Quay is stronger than the Senator anticipated.

GOV. WORTHINGTON is officiating at Frankfort while Governor Bradley is taking a few days vacation.

A CARD.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I will write a few lines in reply to your Bellevue correspondent, who seemed to take a deep interest in the man I caught on the coal bar last summer, taking coal. It seems he was trying to get into the minds of the people of this county that he was proof against doing anything of the kind, and at the same time trying to lead the people to believe that there was some doubt about the case, but I suppose when his man plead guilty to the charge he was at the end of his row. I don't know who he is nor I don't care, so far as I am concerned. I haven't anything to regret in the matter, and when ever I catch a party dead to rights as I did him, and it is my duty to arrest him, I will be found trying and whenever the circumstances are like they were in this case it is hard to tell what the consequences will be. But there is one thing certain — I don't propose for thieves and hobos to bluff me if there is any chance to keep them from doing it. If the honorable and honest people of the county have to give away to that class we had better quit business. I think for the best thing for the county—would be to have a big stone pile and a whipping post for the benefit of such chaps, not only in this case but in any case of theft less than a penitentiary offense. I would have answered your correspondent sooner, but he might have said I did it to arouse the sympathy of the people, thinking it would have some effect in my behalf. I will say to him whenever the people of this county want to impose a punishment on me for protecting myself in such cases I will take it like a man. I don't know anything about Mr. Mauer's past life, only what I have heard.

ADDISON RIDDELL.

CHURCH NEWS.

Church property in New York, exempt from taxation, amounts to $63,000,000.

The American Bible Society has sent 2,500 Spanish New Testaments to Santiago.

Rev. J. E. Elliott, of Lexington, has been called temporarily to fill the pulpit of the Lancaster Christian church.

Elder Joseph Keevil, pastor of the Mt. Olivet Christian church has resigned, and will enter the evangelical field in Canada.

Mrs. Woosley, the female evangelist, is holding a very successful revival at Morgantown, where large crowds are attending every service.

Elder S. D. Dutcher, formerly of Maysville, but now of Cincinnati, has been called to the Mexico, Mo., Christian church at a salary of $1,500.

Rev. W. D. Nolin, of Nicholasville, has been called to the pastoral charge of the Upper Street Baptist church, Lexington, at a salary of $1,500.

The most valuable piece of church property in New York is Plymouth church and the cemetery in which it stands. They are valued at $5,000,000.

There are 500 members of the Christian Endeavor Society, in the Frankfort penitentary. It is fair to say, however, that they were not members when they were sent to the pen, but have since joined.

Rev. M. E. Caldwell, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, on Orchard Street, Cincinnati, has been selected by the Home Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church of the United States to go to Porto Rico as investigator and missionary.

SOME of the friends of Indiana's Senator-elect are claiming that he is the original advocate of the seizure and annexation of the Philippine islands, and that his ideas, as to the conduct of the war as set out in an anti-bellum speech, were practically adopted by President McKinley.

IT is evident that Congressman Berry intends that Schley shall be remembered as the hero of the naval battle at Santiago. Honor to whom honor is due, is not always the rule in war, but in this instance the Colonel wants justice done, and he is very much on the right track.

STATE NEWS.

It is said that Grant county has three lepers.

The Third Kentucky sailed for Manilla, last week.

The Henderson grand jury indicted two women for selling liquor.

The Georgetown Times advocates a whipping post for petty offenders.

John Hefferman, said to have been 107 years old died in Shelby county of grippe.

Henry Lampton, a first cousin of Mark Twain, died in Clark county, last week.

A large bed of asphalt has been found in Rowan county, near the Carter county line.

J. B. Cassidy was killed in getting off a train in Madison county. He was a soldier.

Senator Deboe wants a Soldier's Home established at Lincoln's birth place in this State.

This year more Grant county boys are attending college than ever before in her history.

Every business in Lexington not exempt from the Sunday-closing law was suspended last Sunday.

Only one of Kentucky's many Governors ever was elected twice in succession, that one being Gov. Garrard.

Asa Sphar, of Clark county, sold to Virginia parties 230 walnut trees, standing in the woods, for $2,000.

Franklin county has thirteen candidates for jailer, although the election does not take place until 1901.

While drilling a well in Washington county, John S. Coyle struck oil and a good flow has since kept up.

Owensboro is entitled to be called a city. A lady was assaulted and robbed on one of its streets, the other day.

In Lexington, the Democratic committee has assessed the candidates from $35 for Assessor to $100 for Mayor.

In round numbers the taxable property in Scott county amounts to seven million, six hundred thousand dollars.

The Earlington Bee favors the employment of the inmates of the county jails of the State in the improvement of the roads.

Isaiah Boone, who claimed to be a relative of Daniel Boone, the pioneer, died near Valley View, last week. He was 87 years old.

A Jessamine county farmer is reported to have been swindled out $5,000 by a pair of sharpers, who pretended they wanted to buy his farm.

Since it has been established, 13,345 persons have been buried in the Lexington cemetery. Last year 327 were buried, and of that number 20 were soldiers.

A man who gave his name as G. W. Forder, of Paulding county, O., bought several farms in Mercer county with bogus checks and jumped his board bill.

John Short, engineer at the Panther flouring mills, Daviess county, was fatally injured by being caught by a revolving shaft which he was attempting to cross.

All the civil business pending in the Hart Circuit Court has been continued until the next April term, owing to the fact that the criminal docket will consume all the time.

William Miller, colored, will be hung at LaGrange, Oldham county, February 3d. The scaffold and harness used for the hanging of Dingler, in Louisville, have been borrowed for the occasion.

Smallpox is reported epidemic in Ohio. The report shows cases developed along the route of an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" show which visited a dozen or more towns, leaving cases in each place.

Complaints are going up from all over Madison county of the deplorable condition of the turnpikes under the free road system. Horses and wagons mire in the lob-lollies at frequent intervals, and in some places travel has become really dangerous.

The Appellate Court, in a decision handed down by Judge Paynter in a case appealed from Owensboro, holds that municipal property used for public purposes and necessary for city government is exempt from taxation. Judges Guffy and White dissent from the opinion.

Daniel Jennings and his eight-year-old son, Samuel, were drowned in Cedar Run, in Mercer county, Friday. Some months ago Jenning's wife and two grown daughters were drowned in Kentucky river. The last accident wipes out the family, all having met death by drowning.

Kentucky distillers are still in the dark concerning the [illegible] tions of the Greenbaums and Mr. C. H. Stoll, of New York, in their plans to consolidate the distillery plants of the State. The Greenbaums continue to say that they have secured almost a sufficient number of options to effect their combine.

During the year 1898 there were 130 marriage licenses issued in Logan county to white persons. Thirty-eight of these, or more than one-fourth, were issued in the month of December. Thirty-one of the grooms were not able to sign their names, but made their mark instead.—Russellville Herald.

H. Barnes, a well known citizen of Laurel county, aged 60 years, was found dead. His body was lying in a ditch by the road side, and near it was the body of the horse he was riding. The supposition is that his horse stumbled and fell, throwing the rider to the ground, then rolling over him, causing instant death.

The local option election at Grant's Lick, January 10, when the adherents won out by a majority of 22, will be contested by the "Wets." The grounds for contesting the election are numerous. The claim is made that the order of the County Court that the election was to be held was not regularly made; that the date for holding the election was first given as Jan'y. 10th, 1898, and later changed to Jan. 10th, 1899; that the notices were not posted according to law.

A startling deathbed confession was made by James May, of Floyd county. May while on his bed with typhoid fever, confessed to the murder of an old man and his son, of the name of Garner, who lived in West Virginia. A while before May died he said that himself and two other men had killed the old man and boy by driving sixteen-penny nails in their heads, taking from the man $1,500 and from the boy $10.50. They then buried the bodies in a cave. On search the skeletons of the bodies were found, together with the nails.

POLITICAL.

The Kansas city times is for Senator Cockrell for President in 1900.

It is stated on the authority of Populist leader Jo Parker that the party will have no State ticket this year.

Frances Marion Cockrell, of Missouri, was elected for the fifth time, last week, to the United States Senate.

The Hartford Republican says the Republicans should nominate either Yerkes, Belknap or Taylor for Governor.

Judge W. B. Fleming, of Louisville, has announced himself as a candidate for Attorney-General on the Democratic ticket.

A primary election will be held in Owen county on Saturday, March 4th, to select a Democratic candidate for the Legislature.

It is probable that the Hon. H. K. Hay will make the race for Representative in Boyle county. Mr. J. H. Minor, Republican, an incumbent, is a candidate for reelection.

The friends of Sam Holmes, of Mt. Olivet, are urging him to enter the race for the nomination of State Superintendent of Public Instruction before the next Republican convention.

Dr. Hearne, a former druggist of Georgetown, is a candidate for deputy warden of the Frankfort penitentiary, to fill the vacancy created by the death of Edward McGrath, a few days since.

There are sixty-five Democrats in the lower branch of the Massachusetts Legislature to 165 Republicans, though at last year's election the Republicans carried every county in that State and had a popular plurality of 83,000. —N. Y. Sun.

CROP AND STOCK.

Mercer county farmers are refusing to engage their lambs at 5 cents a pound.

We have sent abroad approximately 45,000,000 bushels of wheat the past year.

Six head of cattle belonging to Turner Hanks of Anderson county, foundered on Millet and died in consequence.

The Tobacco Growers League will ask the Cincinnati tobacco house to grant the concessions refused by the Louisville houses.

Our tobacco merchants have as yet made but small purchases in this vicinity as the farmers are waiting for better prices.—Bracken Chronicle.

Columbus Thompson & Son sold to J. G. Myers, of Iowa, one Wild-Eyes heifer at $300, and one Wild-Eyes bull calf at $110—Winchester Demoerat.

After a conference of buyers, held in Cincinnati it was announced that the Continental Tobacco Company—the plug trust—would buy all its tobacco in the open markets of Louisville and Cincinnati instead of sending buyers through the country.

The Barker Tobacco Co. has bought and received about 350,000 pounds of tobacco this season at prices on graded tobacco at 8½ to 17½ cents. At this time last season this firm had received over 2,900,000 pounds.—Carrollton News.

Tobacco is not starting off at prices that many people thought it would. While quite a number of our local growers have finished stripping, a very small part of the crop has changed hands, the growers as a rule refusing to take prices offered.—Williamstown Courier.

T. C. Wilson, of Wilson Bottom, raised a patch of popcorn last summer and when he came to examine it a few days ago he found that most of the grains had been partially popped by the heat of the sun during the hot days after it had matured.—Maysville Bulletin.

The largest tobacco growers in Kentucky are G. G. Hamilton and J. C. Hamilton of Elgewood farm, in Bath county. Assisted by 100 tenants, they cultivate 460 acres of the "weed" and produce an average of 1,600 pounds of Burley tobacco to the acre making an aggregate of 600 hogsheads.

Cattle raising is becoming to be a big industry in Madison and the neighboring Bluegrass counties. A prominent cattle man estimates that the sum of $2,150,000 was paid last year for export cattle purchased in five Bluegrass counties in Kentucky, namely: Madison, Boyle, Bourbon, Clark and Montgomery; Bourbon leading with $650,000.

Price of Gold Established by Law.

The Bank of England, which is a government institution, is compelled by law since 1844 to buy all gold bullion nine-tenths fine offered it at £317s. 9d. per ounce. This law, known as the Peel act, establishes the price of the gold the world over, for no one would accept less for his product than he could get in England less the cost of transportation there and back. If the English government were to say, "We will give $1 per bushel for all wheat of a certain quality delivered in Liverpool," the price of wheat everywhere of that grade would be equivalent to the English price less the cost of transportation. If such an offer would enhance the price of wheat, why does it not add to the price of gold?

Lung Irritation

is the forerunner to consumption. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey will cure it, and give such strength to the lungs that a cough or a cold will not settle there. Twenty-five cents at all good druggists.

Hebron.

Beautiful spring weather, Sunday.—Mrs. Hardin, our popular gate-keeper, is confined to her bed with the grippe. Her daughter, Martha, has also been afflicted with it.—Dr. Seyre is kept very busy now.——A large crowd was present and listened to an excellent sermon by Rev. Lentz, Sunday afternoon.——Mr. Haun's school will close in a fortnight. He has been an earnest, hard worker and we will regret to see him leave.——Our young folks have enjoyed quite a number of crokonole parties lately. Jas. Bullock and Lewis Harding are the champion players.——A delightful play party was given by Mr. and Mrs. John Ernste, last Friday night, in honor of their lovely young daughters, Miss Zetta and Mamie. Refreshments were served.——Miss Hattie Jackson, of Indiana, is the guest of Miss Maggie Bullock.

Verona.

Jan. 23—Rev. Hughes, Methodist, failed to meet his appointments here last Saturday and Sunday.—J. H. Marshall, our former druggist, and wife are sojourning in Arizona.—Mrs. Letha Anderson, who is in her 84th year, has been quite sick, but is some better. —Russell Taylor will be tried here today (Monday), for attempting to break up a play party.—Geo. Howard and son, who were charged with horse stealing some time since, are straight forward gentlemen and are considered honest and well respected in this community. Mr. Howard owns a farm near Verona, and pays his honest debts. —Little Grover Rice, who had the misfortune to injure his knee while playing at school, about 10 days ago, is not getting along well. His knee, it is feared, will have to be opened before it gets well.

R. O. Powers has recovered from a siege of the grippe.——Rev. Adams, of Walton, filled his appointment here last Saturday and Sunday.——W. H. Dickerson & Bro., are selling out their goods for about one-half the cost price. ——Robt. Waid was expelled from college, one day last week, by the trustees, for making a disturbance among his fellow students.——John Conley, one of our old citizens, passed away, Sunday morning at 5 o'clock, of la grippe. The funeral was preached at New Bethel, Monday morning, after which the remains were interred in the cemetery.

Mound Field Farm.

Jan. 23.—Dr. Sayre and wife entertained some friends from the country, last Sunday.

Charley Clore and family have gone to Cuba.

John Ernste is still suffering with Job's affliction.

Joseph Graham is reported in a critical condition, at Francesville.

Chester Davis and wife entertained a number of Utzinger friends, Sunday.

Everybody look out for chicken thieves. They have begun their spring campaign.

Mr. and Mrs. William Eggleston's youngest child was buried at Sand Run cemetery, last Sunday.

Bert Bradford has returned to his home at Connersville, Ind., after a pleasant visit among relatives here.

Charles Ertle, who lived on James Casey's farm between Burlington and Hebron, has moved out near Harrison, Ohio.

We are authorised to state that on next Sabbath, the 29th inst., no preventing providence, Rev. James Kirtley will preach at Sand Run church.

Casper Ernste is building a sled for Dr. Jacob Tanner, the runners of which are out of a tree that has grown from an acorn since Mr. Tanner owned the premises he now occupies.

The friends of John Kelsey are becoming somewhat alarmed at his continued absence. Some fear that he possibly might have been on board the ill-fated Paul Jones, when she went down.

Of all the squashes of which to make pies, Jordan Beall has the best, if we are to judge. See him and get some seed before they are all gone. He gives a receipt for cooking them with each package of seed.

Jim Beall had a valuable mare to be hooked by a cow, a few days ago, and for a time it was thought she would die, but through the skill of Drs. Crisler and Tom Hafer, the attending veterinaries, she came around all right.

The grippe victims that we mentioned here, two weeks ago, are all convalescing, while others have taken their places. We hear that Mrs. Frank Gordon, Mrs. Elijah Tanner, Mrs. Jane Markland, and, in fact, someone at almost every house is down with the terrible disease.

Mrs. Alice Rouse will move back to her own residence in the near future. When her mother, Mrs. Jameson Aylor, had the misfortune to break her limb, last spring, Mrs. Rouse shut up her house and moved home to attend her mother. Mrs. Aylor has about recovered, consequently Mrs. Rouse will move back.

Quite a number of our friends dropped in on us, a few evenings since, making us an agreeable surprise. The evening was pleasantly and profitably spent discussing the leading topics of the day, and criticising the ways and actions of our neighbors. It was remarkable how well we agreed in our opinions, which made it the more harmonious among us. At a late hour the hostess served a sumptuous repast of pop corn a la balls, with sassafras tea, after which the guests departed with the understanding that we meet often, particularly should anything develop that would require the full board to discuss. As there were no Doves present and it being customary among the 400 class to have some appropriate name for their parties, we will call this a Goose and Gander party.

On the 6th day of next month, Mrs. Johannah D. Morris will sell her livestock and farming implements at public sale. Sale to begin at 1 p. m. See bills for full list of property.

LESSONS FROM EHUD.

Dr. Talmage on the Subject of Israel's Deliverer.

The Divine Commission to Destroy an Oppressor—Denunciation of Worshipers of Mammon, Who Scoff at Sin.

From a scene in ancient story Dr. Talmage in this discourse draws lessons as appropriate for this time as they were appropriate for the time when the event occurred many centuries ago; text, Judges, 3:15. "But when the children of Israel cried unto the Lord, the Lord raised them up a deliverer. Ehud, the son of Gera, a Benjamite, a man left-handed; and by him the children of Israel sent a present unto Eglon, the king of Moab."

Ehud was a ruler in Israel. He was left-handed, and what was peculiar about the tribe of Benjamin, to which he belonged, there were in it 700 left-handed men, and yet so dextrous had they all became in the use of the left hand that the Bible says they could sling stones at a hairbreadth and not miss. Well, there was a king by the name of Eglon, who was an oppressor of Israel. He imposed upon them a most outrageous tax. Ehud, the man of whom I first spoke, had a Divine commission to destroy that oppressor. He came pretending that he was going to pay the tax, and asked to see King Eglon. He was told he was in the summer house, the place to which the king retired when it was too hot to sit in the palace. This summer house was a place surrounded by flowers and trees and springing fountains and warbling birds. Ehud entered the summer house and said to King Eglon that he had a secret errand with him. Immediately all the attendants were waved out of the royal presence. King Eglon rises up to receive the messenger. Ehud, the left-handed man, puts his left hand to his right side, pulls out a dagger and thrusts Eglon through until the haft went in after the blade. Eglon falls and Ehud comes forth to blow a trumpet of liberty amid the mountains of Ephraim, and a great host is marshaled, and proud Moab submits to the conqueror, and Israel is free. So, O Lord, let all Thine enemies perish! So, O Lord, let all Thy friends triumph!

I learn first from this subject the power of left-handed men. There are some men who, by physical organization, have as much strength in their left hand as in their right hand, but there is something in the writing of this text which implies that Ehud had some defect in his right hand which compelled him to use his left. Oh, the power of left-handed men! Genius is often self-observant, careful of itself, not given to much toil, burning incense to its own aggrandizement, while many a man, with no natural endowments, actually defective in physical and mental organization, has an earnestness for the right, patient industry, an all-consuming perseverance, which achieve marvels for the kingdom of Christ. Though left-handed, as Ehud, they can strike down a sin as great and imperial as Eglon.

I have seen men of wealth gathering about them all their treasures, snuffing at the cause of a world lying in wickedness, roughly ordering Lazarus off their doorstep, sending their dogs, not to lick his sores, but to hound him off their premises; catching all the pure rain of God's blessing into the stagnant, ropy, frog-inhabited pool of their own selfishness—right-handed men, worse than useless—while many a man with large heart and little purse has out of his limited means made poverty leap for joy and started an influence that overspans the grave and will swing round and round the throne of God world without end. Amen.

Ah, me! It is high time that you left-handed men, who have been longing for this gift and that eloquence and the other man's wealth, should take your left hand out of your pockets. Who made all these railroads? Who set up all these cities? Who started all these churches and schools and asylums? Who has done the tugging and running and pulling? Men of no wonderful endowments, thousands of them acknowledging themselves to be left-handed, and yet they were earnest, and yet they were determined, and yet they were triumphant.

But I do not suppose that Ehud, the first time he took a sling in his left hand, could throw a stone at a hairbreadth and not miss. I suppose it was practice that gave him the wonderful dexterity. Go forth to your spheres of duty and be not discouraged if, in your first attempts, you miss the mark. Ehud missed it. Take another stone, put it carefully into the sling, swing it around your head, take better aim, and the next time you will strike the center. The first time a mason rings his trowel upon the brick he does not expect to put up a perfect wall. The first time a carpenter sends the plane over a board or drives a bit through a beam he does not expect to make perfect execution. The first time a boy attempts a rhyme he does not expect to chime a "Lalla Rookh" or a "Lady of the Lake." Do not be surprised if in your first efforts at doing good you are not very largely successful. Understand that usefulness is an art, a science, a trade. There was an oculist performing a very difficult operation on the human eye. A young doctor stood by and said: "How easily you do that; it don't seem to cause you any trouble at all." "Ah," said the old oculist, "it is very easy now, but I spoiled a hatful of eyes to learn that." Be not surprised if it takes some practice before we can help men to moral eyesight and bring them to a vision of the cross.

When Garibaldi was going out to battle he told his troops what he wanted them to do, and after he had described what he wanted them to do they said: "Well, general, what are you going to give us for all this?" "Well," he replied, "I don't know what else you will get, but you will get hunger, and cold, and wounds, and death. How do you like it?" His men stood before him for a little while in silence and then they threw up their hands and cried: "We are the men! We are the men!" The Lord Jesus Christ calls you to His service. I do not promise you an easy time in this world. You [illegible] tions, and trials, and misrepresentations, but afterward there comes an eternal weight of glory, and you can hear the wounds, and the bruises, and the misrepresentations, if you have the reward afterward. Have you not enough enthusiasm to cry out: "We are the men! We are the men!"

I learn also from this subject the danger of worldly elevation. This Eglon was what the world called a great man. There were hundreds of people who would have considered it the greatest honor of their life just to have him speak to them, yet, although he is so high up in worldly position, he is not beyond the reach of Ehud's dagger. I see a great many people trying to climb up in social position, having an idea that there is a safe place somewhere far above, not knowing that the mountain of fame has a top like Mont Blanc, covered with perpetual snow.

We laugh at the children of Shinar for trying to build a tower that could reach to the heavens, but I think if our eyesight were only good enough we could see a Babel in many a dooryard. Oh, the struggle is fierce! It is store against store, house against house, street against street, nation against nation. The goal for which men are running is chairs and chandeliers and mirrors and houses and lands and presidential equipments. If they get what they anticipate, what have they? Men are not safe from calumny while they live, and worse than that, they are not safe after they are dead, for I have seen swine root up graveyards. One day a man goes up into publicity, and the world does him honor, and people climb up into sycamore trees to watch him as he passes, and as he goes along on the shoulders of the people there is a waving of hats and a wild huzza. To-morrow the same man is caught between the jaws of the printing press and mangled and bruised, and the very same persons who applauded him before cry: "Down with the traitor! down with him!"

Belshazzar sits at the feast, the mighty men of Babylon sitting all around him. Wit sparkles like the wine and the wine like the wit. Music rolls up among the chandeliers; the chandeliers flash down on the decanters. The breath of hanging gardens floats in on the night air. The voice of revelry floats out. Amid wreaths and tapestry and folded banners a finger writes. The march of a host is heard on the stairs. Laughter catches in the throat. A thousand hearts stop beating. The blow is struck. The blood on the floor is richer hued than the wine on the table. The kingdom has departed. Belshazzer was no worse perhaps than hundreds of people in Babylon, but his position slew him. Oh, be content with just such a position as God has placed you in! It may not be said of us: "He was a great general," or "He was an honored chieftain," or "He was mighty in worldly attainments," but this thing may be said of you and of me: "He was a good citizen, a faithful Christian, a friend of Jesus." And that in the last day will be the highest of all eulogiums.

I learn further from this subject that death comes to the summer house. Eglon did not expect to die in that fine palace. Amid all the flower leaves that drifted like summer snow into the window, in the tinkle and dash of the fountains, in the sound of a thousand leaves fluting on one tree branch, in the cool breeze that came up to shake feverish trouble out of the king's locks—there was nothing that spake of death, but there he died! In the winter, when the snow is a shroud, and when the wind is a dirge, it is easy to think of our mortality, but when the weather is pleasant and all our surroundings are agreeable, how difficult it is for us to appreciate the truth that we are mortal! And yet my text teaches that death does sometimes come to the summer house. He is blind and cannot see the leaves. He is deaf and cannot hear the fountains. Oh, if death would ask us for victims we could point him to hundreds of people who would rejoice to have him come. Push back the door of that hovel. Look at that little child—cold, and sick, and hungry. It has never heard the name of God but in blasphemy. Parents intoxicated, staggering around its straw bed. Oh, death, there is a mark for thee! Up with it into the light! Before those little feet stumble on life's pathway give them rest.

Here is an aged man. He has done his work. He has done it gloriously. The companions of his youth all gone, his children dead, he longs to be at rest, and wearily the days and the nights pass. He says: "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly." Oh, death, there is a mark for thee! Take from him the staff and give him the scepter! Up with him into the light, where eyes never grow dim, and the hair whitens not through the long years of eternity. Ah! death will not do that. Death turns back from the straw bed and from the aged man ready for the skies and comes to the summer house. What does it thou here, thou bony, ghastly monster, amid this waving grass and under this sunlight sifting through the tree branches? Children are at play. How quickly their feet go and their locks toss in the wind. Father and mother stand at the side of the room looking on, enjoying their glee. It does not seem possible that the wolf should ever break into that fold and carry off a lamb. Meanwhile an old archer stands looking through the thicket. He points his arrow at the brightest of the group—he is a sure marksman—the bow bends, the arrow speeds! Hush now. The quick feet have stopped and the locks toss no more in the wind. Laughter has gone out of the hall. Death in the summer house!

Here is a father in midlife. His coming home at night is the signal for mirth. The children rush to the door, and there are hooks on the evening stand, and the hours pass away on glad feet. There is nothing wanting in that home. Religion is there and sacrifices [illegible] look in that household and say: "I cannot think of anything happier. I do not really believe the world is so sad a place as some people describe it to be." The scene changes. Father is sick. The doors must be kept shut. The deathwatch chirps dolefully on the hearth. The children whisper and walk softly where once they romped. Passing the house late at night, you see the quick glancing of lights from room to room. It is all over! Death in the summer house!

Here is an aged mother—aged, but not infirm. You think you will have the joy of caring for her wants a good while yet. As she goes from house to house, to children and grandchildren, her coming is a dropping of sunlight in the dwelling. Your children see her coming through the lane, and they cry: "Grandmother's come!" Care for you has marked up her face with many a deep wrinkle, and her back stoops with carrying your burdens. Some day she is very quiet. She says she is not sick, but something tells you you will not much longer have a mother. She will sit with you no more at the table nor at the hearth. Her soul goes out so gently you do not exactly know the moment of its going. Fold the hands that have done so many kindnesses for you right over the heart that has beat with love toward you since before you were born. Let the pilgrim rest. She is weary. Death in the summer house!

Gather about us what we will of comfort and luxury. When the pale messenger comes he does not stop to look at the architecture of the house before he comes in, nor, entering, does he wait to examine the pictures we have gathered on the wall, or, bending over your pillow, he does not stop to see whether there is color in the cheek or gentleness in the eye or intelligence in the brow. But what of that? Must we stand forever mourning among the graves of our dead? No! No! The people in Bengal bring cages of birds to the graves of their dead, and then they open the cages, and the birds go singing heavenward. So I would bring to the graves of your dead all bright thoughts and congratulations and bid them sing of victory and redemption. I stamp on the bottom of the grave, and it breaks through into the light and the glory of Heaven. The ancients used to think that the straits entering the Red sea were very dangerous places, and they supposed that every ship that went through those straits would be destroyed, and they were in the habit of putting on weeds of mourning for those who had gone on that voyage, as though they were actually dead. Do you know what they called those straits? They called them the "Gate of Tears." I stand at the gate of tears through which many of your loved ones have gone, and I want to tell you that all are not shipwrecked that have gone through those straits into the great ocean stretching out beyond. The sound that comes from that other shore on still nights when we are wrapped in prayer makes me think that the departed are not dead. We are the dead—we who toil, we who weep, we who sin—we are the dead. How my heart aches for human sorrow—this sound of breaking hearts that I hear all about me, this last look of faces that never will brighten again, this last kiss of lips that never will speak again, this widowhood and orphanage! Oh, when will the day of sorrow be gone!

After the sharpest winter the spring dismounts from the shoulder of a southern gale and puts its warm hand upon the earth, and in its palm there comes the grass, and there come the flowers, and God reads over the poetry of bird and brook and bloom and pronounces it very good. What, my friends, if every winter had not its spring, and every night its day, and every gloom its glow, and every bitter now its sweet hereafter! If you have been on the sea, you know, as the ship passes in the night, there is a phosphorescent track left behind it, and as the waters roll up they toss with unimaginable splendor. Well, across this great ocean of human trouble Jesus walks. Oh, that in the phosphorescent track of His feet we might all follow and be illumined!

There was a gentleman in a rail car who saw in that same car three passengers of very different circumstances. The first was a maniac. He was carefully guarded by his attendants. His mind, like a ship dismasted, was beating against a dark, desolate coast, from which no help could come. The train stopped and the man was taken out into the asylum, to waste away perhaps through years of gloom. The second passenger was a culprit. The outraged law had seized on him. As the cars jolted the chains rattled. On his face were crime, depravity and despair. The train halted and he was taken out to the penitentiary, to which he had been condemned. There was the third passenger, under far different circumstances. She was a bride. Every hour was gay as a marriage bell. Life glittered and beckoned. Her companion was taking her to his father's house. The train halted. The old man was there to welcome her to her new home, and his white locks snowed down upon her as he sealed his word with a father's kiss. Quickly we fly toward eternity. We will soon be there. Some leave this life condemned culprits, and they refuse a pardon. Oh, may it be with us that, leaving this fleeting life for the next, we may find our Father ready to greet us to our new home with Him forever! That will be a marriage banquet; Father's welcome! Father's bosom! Father's kiss! Heaven! Heaven!

GOLD AND PROTECTION.

How the Republican Policy Affects the Prices of Our Commodities.

As a rule, eastern protectionists are in favor also of the gold standard. They propose to make prices conform to the gold standard, and seem to think they can, at the same time, by tariffs, maintain a range of prices as much above the prices in other gold-standard countries as they may choose to fix in tariff schedules. In other words, they propose to make prices conform to the gold standard, but they expect that standard to be one thing in the United States and quite another thing in England, France or Germany. If it were desirable to do so, and we could, by tariffs so restrict imports as to require few exports to pay for what we import, and could pay for such imports with commodities in the production of which we had great natural advantages, the purpose of gold standard protectionists might, in some degree, be realized. But our payments abroad are not limited to imports. We are a debtor nation; our people, our states, our municipalities, our corporations, owe large sums abroad, the interest on which, with other charges, amounting probably to not less than a million dollars a day, must be paid with commodities or with gold. We can pay with commodities only by selling them as low as they can be bought anywhere else. We have not in the past, and we cannot in the future, pay this increasing debt and at the same time pay for imports with commodities in the proportion of which we have any important natural advantage. In fact, the natural advantage due to soil, climate, proximity to European markets, etc., have in large measure disappeared by the opening of the Suez canal, the extension of irrigation in India, and by railroads into the interior of India, Australia and South America. The gold standard in the United States must necessarily be the gold standard of the world, and if gold appreciates anywhere it must appreciate everywhere, and as prices go down in one gold standard country they must go down in all. The practical situation is this: During the fiscal year 1896 we exported commodities of the gold value of $882,606,938. We also exported gold to the amount of $30,588,649 more than we imported. Besides the commodities exported and the gold paid away, large sums in bonds of one kind and another are annually sent abroad in lieu of commodities or gold. These help to swell the debt on which interest must afterward be paid. Statistics are wanting to show exactly to what extent securities are entering our international traffic, but at times large amounts are transferred. But the material point in the argument is the fact that the $882,606,938 of commodities which went abroad in 1896, necessarily went at very low prices—enough lower than in other countries to induce people to buy here rather than anywhere else. And not only were the prices of the products exported down to the level of international prices, but the products exported constituted only the surplus not consumed at home, and consequently the whole of anything of which but a part was exported must have been as low as the part exported. If we include, then, as we must, in the schedule of low-priced products, the entire products of the industries of which some part was exported, we shall find that they constitute a very large percentage of the entire productions of the country. It is quite apparent, then, that in order to pay interest on the debts we owe abroad, and for the carrying trade, and pay for what we import, a large part of all the productions of the United States must be kept as low as anywhere else, or gold must go to pay what we lack in paying with commodities; and when gold goes, credit breaks and prices tumble, with all the disastrous consequences that follow every such breakdown.

A. J. WARNER.

Millions for "Improvements."

We hear from Washington that the river and harbor committee of the house has pretty much decided that a "hill carrying millions for internal improvement" shall be passed during the present session. Whether the committee has formally decided anything about it or not, there is no reason to doubt that it will set up the pins for the passage of such a bill, not by providing for the actual needs of the country, but by distributing the "pork" where it will "do the most good." This is the session for this kind of work. During the session immediately preceding a congressional election the house is apt to be a little cautious about appropriating large sums for alleged improvements. But this is not that kind of a session. A new congress was elected a few months ago, and members of the present house do not have to look out for another election just now.

——It is undoubtedly true that at Washington there is no apparent sentiment in favor of economy, and it is also probable that the prevailing recklessness at the national capital meets a favorable response from a portion of the people of the country, but the statesman or politician who mistakes the clamor of the unthinking for the sober, serious judgment of the people as a whole, will find sooner or later that those who are responsible for increasing the burdens of taxation must sometime face a reckoning with the people. —Manchester (N. H.) Union.

——As it is difficult, if not impossible, to reach the trusts by the operation of state laws, the United States congress should take action by adopting legislation to remedy the defects and loopholes in existing law and by amending the revenue laws so as to moderate or repeal the tariff on such articles as are the subject of domestic monopolies. The great prop and bulwark of trusts in the United States is the Dingley tariff act.—Philadelphia Ledger.

McKINLEY'S BLINDNESS.

The President Wasting Time Over His Warring Subordinates in the War Department.

The president of the United States is reported deeply chagrined at the savage and, as he deems it, unseemly conduct of one of his subordinates, who, under the protection of his extraordinary commission of inquiry into the conduct of the war, levels a terrible shaft at the major general commanding the army. That is, at the major general commanding the army so far as it is possible under our plan to have a major general in command. The major's small boys are offensively unruly at times, having, apparently, no fear of his magisterial sword. But, aside from the infraction of good manners and military discipline, whether Engan calls Miles a liar or Miles disturbs the serenity of the commissary general in a matter of small importance to the people of the United States. They do not suffer in purse or person by the un-Turveydrop-like deportment of these distinguished military servants.

If the president will turn his attention for a moment from the unseemly conduct of his shoulder-strapped subordinates he will be deeply and properly concerned about a matter of vast importance to the people whose chief magistrate he is. Not a day passes that information is not conveyed of the formation of new trusts, new combinations in restraint of trade, fresh violations of the antitrust law spread upon the statutes of the United States, a law which the president has not taken a single step toward executing, though the enforcement of law is an obligation of the chief magistracy. It is true that the attorney-general of the United States does not meet opprobrious language from an assistant or from anyone of the district attorneys throughout the whole domain of the republic. The department calls for no executive notice because of the unpleasant, riotous conduct of any of its employes, but if the president had the welfare of the republic at heart and if he were thoroughly imbued with the sanctity of an oath, his obligation thereunder to enforce the laws, he would be more deeply grieved at the state of affairs in the law department than he is reported to be at the contentions of officers in the war department.

Not a district attorney of the United States lifts a hand against daily, open and flagrant violation of the Sherman law. Encouraged by this nonaction, which, manifestly, is the result of an understanding at headquarters, combinations in restraint of trade increase in number until it might seem as though all the commercial activities of the republic were taking that direction. Why is the president, who appears deeply distressed at the bickerings of two general officers, undisturbed by the fact that a statute of the United States which he is bound to enforce is regarded with contempt?

We witness occasional activity of a United States court in condemning, and properly condemning, the illicit conduct of some violator of the postal laws, but there is not anywhere in the country a United States judge who, instructing a grand jury, draws its attention to the far more flagrant and dangerous activities of moneyed men, who snap their fingers at United States statutes and go about their business in serene confidence that, lawless as they may become, they are not in danger of being called to account by the enginery of justice in the United States, an enginery paralyzed by the very man, chief magistrate of the republic, whose constant care it should be to see that it suffer not detriment, but work ceaselessly for justice's sake in the impartial administration of the law.

When will Maj. McKinley, ceasing to weep at the comparatively insignificant breaches of politeness shown by military officers, address himself to what may prove the herculean task of grappling in the name of the people with the trusts that oppress them?—Chicago Chronicle.

HE PROVED IT.

"Bud" Woodsmall Says the World is Level and Will Back His Assertions with His Gun.

"Bud" Woodsmall, the "Terror of Yellow Creek, Ky.," has made the discovery that there is no such thing as the earth's axis. He is ready to back his assertion with a Winchester if necessary. The last is understood, for Bud Woodsmall is the "cock of the walk" in Yellow Creek parts, and when Bud asserts his assertions are quoted as truths.

Until recently Bud had contented himself with drinking whisky, shooting squirrels and fighting; but Bud has now turned scientist. He has substituted his scientific studies for squirrels.

Bud lives around. That is, he just visits when he is close, and he is always welcome. Bud is such a good shot that hospitality is his when he asks it—and he never asks; he "just drops" in and stays.

Some weeks ago "Cockey" Chester, known as "Middlesboro's dude," started out to ride from Middlesboro to Chattanooga, a distance of 87 miles. Cockey is not only a dude, but Cockey went to school in England, so he says, and he knows all sorts of things. When he put up for the night at Dave Fuller's cabin, at the top of Butcher Springs hill, he found Bud on a "visit." Bud was holding forth about the cold weather, the causes thereof, etc.

Then came up the discussion of the causes of night and day. Chester took no part in the talk until then. He explained how the earth moved on its axis around the sun, using a pumpkin to demonstrate his meaning.

Suddenly Bud arose. He was literally spitting fire. For anyone else to be the center of attraction when he was present angered Bud.

"Yer a darned liar!" burst forth the terror of Yellow Creek, and forthwith he reached for his gun. "Yer talk 'bout movin' round like yer twisted that thar pumpkin. Ef yer does yer stan' on yer head at night."

Chester didn't stop to argue. He knew Bud's reputation. He retired to his room—or, at least, to the only room, which was spare room and kitchen, bedroom and parlor. As he entered the house he saw Bud go into the yard.

When Chester awoke next morning he made a hasty toilet and started for the shed where his horse was tied. On the way he met Bud, grinning and spitting between chews.

"I knowed yer was a darn liar," burst out Bud. I knowed yer was a liar."

"How do you know?" asked Chester.

Bud spit furiously. He eyed Chester closely. "'Cause," said the terror. "'Cause I put this hyar rock on the fence, an' ef this hyar earth had a been movin' round it wouldn't shook hit off."

Chester admitted the soundness of Bud's argument, and the latter was so much pleased that he is making a house-to-house canvass, rock in one hand, rifle in the other, proving by fences and posts that the earth is on the level in spite of day and night changes.—N. Y. World.

Successful Domestic Financing.

The secret of domestic finance is to make a little money go a long way. The old axiom about saving the pennies and letting the pounds take care of themselves is not the natural policy of Americans; only the frugal Scotch and French know that rule by heart. But women could learn it better than men, because their minds dwell more naturally upon little things. If they are rarely great financiers they are frequently successful small financiers. Make a woman responsible for an allowance and she feels the interest of a junior partner; pays her bills, and she is put on the footing of an inferior. There is a feeling of ignominy about asking a man for car fare, 50 cents, five dollars, or even a hundred dollars, disagreeable beyond expression, to a woman with any pride or independence. Now that women are thinking more for themselves than in the past, independence is becoming naturally a part of their creed. This independence cannot be choked out.—Frances Evans, in Ladies' Home Journal.

ROAD BUILDING HINTS.

Compiled by Mr. A. W. Campbell, C. E., Canadian Provincial Instructor in Roadmaking.

Roads that "break up" are bad roads.

Make road improvements in such a way that they will be permanent.

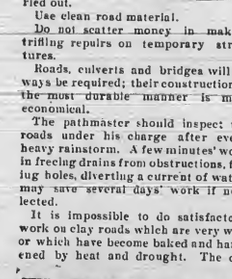
Undertake road work systematically.

Appoint a supervisor who will have charge of all the road work.

Make road beats five miles in length; choose the best men as pathmasters, and keep them in office.

Classify roads according to the nature and extent of the traffic over them.

Specify the width of grade, amount of crown, plan of drainage, kind, width and depth of material to be used, and see that these specifications are carried out.



Use clean road material.

Do not scatter money in making trifling repairs on temporary structures.

Roads, culverts and bridges will always be required; their construction in the most durable manner is most economical.

The pathmaster should inspect the roads under his charge after every heavy rainstorm. A few minutes' work in freeing drains from obstructions, filling holes, diverting a current of water, may save several days' work if neglected.

It is impossible to do satisfactory work on clay roads which are very wet, or which have become baked and hardened by heat and drought. The operator of the grading machine should have instructions to commence work on clay roads as soon as the ground has become sufficiently softened in spring—and not to leave this work until the ground is hard and dry.

With the money which can be spent, build permanent culverts, permanent bridges, buy machinery, buy gravel pits, prepare gravel for hauling, construct drains, operate the machinery.

Do not leave the gravel or broken stone just as it drops from the wagon; spread the metal.

Crown the road with a rise of one inch to the foot, from side to center, so as to shed water from the roadway to the drains.

Give the open drain a good fall to a free outlet. Lay tile under drains where needed.

Drain thoroughly. Keep the road surface dry. Keep the earth underneath the surface dry.

Use road machinery.

Use graders, stone crushers and road rollers.

Improved machinery is as necessary for good and economical work as are self-binders and steam threshers.

Employ one man to take charge of the machine. He will become experienced and do better work.

The same teams should be always employed to operate the gruders. They become accustomed to the work and give better service.

Do not cover an old gravel road with soil and earth from the sides of the road. Turn this earth and sod outward, and raise the center with new gravel.

Adopt every means to secure a hard, smooth, waterproof surface.

Do not let stones roll loosely on the road.

Do not let ruts remain; they make traveling difficult, and spoil the road by holding water.

Make repairs as soon as the defect appears.

Use wide tires.

Improve the drainage of the hills. Make the crown of the roadway higher than on level ground.

Change the location of the road if a steep hill can be avoided.

Do not use wood for culverts. Use concrete, vitrified pipe or stone.

Do not use wooden bridges. Use iron, stone or concrete.

Build good roads.

Saving Garden Fertilizers.

All farm waste should find their way into a compost heap, although real manure can best be spread as soon as made. Laundry, kitchen and other slops, night earth, etc., are all rich in nitrogen. All weed waste should be added to the pile, much of which is rich in fertilizing material, but herein lies danger in spreading the seeds, which the ordinary heat of the pile is not sufficient to kill. If there is suspicion of weed seed in the pile, it should be recomposted in layers, with a covering of fresh unslacked lime on each layer. When the pile is completed, it should be thoroughly drenched and then covered with soil, well firmed to prevent loss of nitrogen. The slaking of the lime will generate great heat which will kill all seeds.—Western Plowman.

DIRT IN THE DAIRY.

Wherever It Is Allowed to Exist Failure Is But a Question of Very Short Time.

When is a dairy clean? The safest answer to this question lies in describing when a dairy is dirty, and dangerously dirty, too, says the New York Farmer. When woodwork in the dairy gives off a smutty, musty, fusty acid, rank and spoiled buttery smell it is dirty. When tin vessels, such as pails, cans, dippers, cups and skimmers, after being "thoroughly washed," give off a sourish smell, or show dark lines of matter in the folds and seams of the tin, they are dirty, and the dirt of just such a sort, and in just such places, as to encourage the bacteria in the air to drop down upon it, to crawl into it, to feed upon it and to multiply in it until they swarm in it and are ready to launch themselves into the milk put into those vessels. When the windows, walls, floors and fixtures in the dairy are unpleasant to the smell when the room is warmed up there is dirt present, enough dirt to have an effect upon the flavor and other qualities of the milk and of the butter made from it. When a vessel from which milk is removed shows a layer of black sediment in the bottom, smelling with unpleasant suggestiveness of the barnyard, there is dirt, plain, straight, unmistakable dirt there, dirt that is unpleasant to think of as a component part of milk that is to be used by humans as food. No dairy showing these things in any degree can really be called "clean" or decently clean, or healthfully clean. Hardly any other occupation on earth makes such demands for cleanliness and offers such difficulties in the work of securing cleanliness as the milk and butter and cheese industry.

WHY WOMEN EXCEL.

It Is Because in the Management of Farm Dairies They Are More Patient Than Men.

P. B. Crosby speaks a great truth when he says: Not long ago, while visiting a friend, the cows were driven up to water just at dinner time. The master asked who had told the boy to drive the cows up, and the mistress said that she had. The cows, she said, had to stay in the field all day without any water, and the milk was falling off in consequence, and she had told the boy to bring them up every day to water at dinner time. I instantly thought of several innovations on this farm inspired by the mistress of it, all of which were to the betterment of the dairy, and it occurred to me that there would be very many better dairies in this country if the better half of the farm were to do mere managing. A man usually has not the patience to attend to all the little details of dairying, and it is just the same little details that make for success. But a woman has the requisite patience and when she has a mind to manage the dairy it is far better if she does it. I know of one man who taught his wife all she knows about butter making, and she now makes a better grade of butter than he did, because she has the patience to attend to all the small items that he in his lordly manner skipped.—Dakota Field and Farm.

LOCATION OF SPRING.

Where the Water Vein Is Near the Surface Changing It Requires Little Labor.

It often happens that a spring is just a trifle too low to permit water to be brought from it to a house or barn by a pipe. It is sometimes possible in such a case to follow the vein of water that supplies the spring back onto higher ground and give it an outlet there, as at x in the illustration. Sufficient height is then afforded for carrying the water to the building desired. This plan is of course only possible where the water vein keeps near the surface.—Orange Judd Farmer.

RELOCATING A SPRING.

FEMININE DAIRY WISDOM.

Much of the profit during the winter depends upon the comfortable quarters given the cows.

Be sure to let the sunshine in the stable—it is sure death to many disease germs, particularly germs of tuberculosis.

If possible, arrange to have water in the stable, so cows can drink whenever they wish. It pays, I know it, for I have tried both ways.

Regular habits, fixed places and times for milking and regular feeding with an occasional change of diet, will do a great deal to keep your product constant and even.

Invest in some boards and shingles and put the stable in livable condition. Col. Curtis said: "It was cheaper to raise the temperature of the cow than that of the barnyard."

In every dairy barn there should be a small room where the milkers can wash their hands before milking, and with a pail and sponge at hand the udders of the cows can be washed. If they have become soiled. Without perfect cleanliness there can be no good butter.—Dorothy Tucker, in Farm Journal.

Bad Roads Have Bad Effects.

One-half of the population of the older states is concentrated in the cities, and the country districts are being deserted in proportion to their lack of facilities for easy and cheap means of transportation.

WORK OF PARASITES.

Snake-Like Organisms That Circulate Through the Arterial System at Night.

"In order to follow the story of diseases in which parasites occur, let us take the bloodworm. In the lymphatic vessels of the human body there may be present a hair-like worm about three inches in length. It pours out young, and these contrive to find access to the blood. They are microscopic, actively-moving snake-like organisms. They circulate with the blood during the night, but during the day they disappear from the general circulation, and lie up in the lungs. Now, the mosquito, an animal of nocturnal habits, attacks man at the time when the young parasites are circulating in the blood."

"It might all be the plot of a story—a tragedy."

"At night the mosquito bites, and with the blood swallows one or more of those parasites. The organism, being once in the mosquito's body, undergoes a remarkable development, increasing in size and acquiring organs of digestion. The mosquito in the ordinary course of nature lays her eggs about the seventh day after feeding. She always does this on the surface of water, and then she dies and falls into the water. The parasite thereupon escapes from the mosquito into the water, and should that water be drunk by a person the parasite is acquired. I have been speaking of the germ of elephantiasis, but a similar thread of history applies to most parasites and to many other diseases."

"Does the man who takes the parasite with the water necessarily develop disease?"

"Oh, no; that all depends on circumstances. It will depend on the general condition of his health, on the part of the body in which the organism locates—on a score of things. You see that the mosquito prepares the parasite to do its deadly work, and then places it where it can do it. The mosquito takes the thing, makes it robust, and then spreads it where it can find a ready passage into the human body. The whole scheme is like a wheel, revolving and revolving, once it has obtained motion."

"That is the process of action of a parasite making a prey of man."

"It is a sample. In the case of malaria the process is probably much more involved. I mean that the journey between the parasite and its very first form, and the development of human disease as a result, may be much longer. My friend Surgeon Major Ross has recently carried out some interesting and valuable experiments in India. He got mosquitoes that had fed on sparrows infected with the organisms of which I have spoken. He kept the insects for five or six days, until he knew the organisms had developed. He then let them loose again on sparrows in the blood of which, as established by examination, there were no organisms. On this lot of sparrows being tested later it was found that they now had received the organisms from the mosquitoes."

"You think distinctly that malaria may be acquired by the bite of a mosquito?"

"Yes; but whether that is the only way I cannot venture to assert. Perhaps not, for malaria multiplies indefinitely outside the human body, quite independently of man. That we know, and, in fact, malaria is most prevalent in places where man is not. Such a state of multiplication must demand something more than a short cycle of from man to mosquito and from mosquito to man. Possibly an infection of mosquito by mosquito is necessary, as in tick disease or in silkworm disease. What we want is a complete story of the various species of mosquito in malarial and other lands, and of their behavior in regard to the different varieties of malarial parasites."—London Chronicle.

THEORIES ABOUT THE "MAINE"

Capt. Sigsbee's Talk with the Spanish Admiral After the Terrible Explosion.

Nothing could be written in better taste and temper than Capt. Sigsbee's "Personal Narrative of the Maine." The captain's personal relations with General Blanco and Admiral Manterola were, he says, undisturbed by the explosion. They remained "cordial to the last." Soon after the catastrophe the admiral called upon Capt. Sigsbee and a conversation occurred which is tersely summarized in these words:

"The admiral assumed from the first that the explosion was from the interior of the vessel. He asked if the dynamo boilers had not exploded. I told him we had no dynamo boilers. He said that the plans of the vessel, as published, showed that the gun-cotton storeroom, or magazine, was forward near the zone of the explosion. He was informed that those plans had been changed, and that the gun cotton was stowed aft, under the captain's cabin, where the vessel was virtually intact. He pointed out that modern gunpowders were sometimes very unstable. This was met by the remark that our powder was of the old and stable brown prismatic kind, and that we had no fancy powder. He referred to the probable presence of boilers, lighted, near the forward coal bunkers, which were adjacent to the magazines. This again was met with the remark that for three months no boiler in the forward boiler compartment had been lighted; that while in port the two aftermost boilers in the ship had been doing service."—Century.

An Advantage of Heat.

A DIFFICULT CASE.

It Was One That the Best Skill of Physicians Could Not Cope With.

"Curious case! Curious case!" exclaimed a Detroit physician who is old enough to have encountered all sorts of experiences in a professional way.

"Anything in the line of surgery?" asked the younger doctor who had been addressed.

"No; insomnia; one of the most difficult maladies with which we have to deal. Very interesting young lady. Very interesting, indeed. Nervous organism entirely too sensitive, however, and apparently proof against the remedies prescribed in the books. Her trouble began after her engagement. She evaded my questions for some time, but at last admitted that she lay awake thinking how much she loved and adored her prospective husband. No sort of will power at her command could put aside her blissful meditations to make way for sleep, and my prescriptions were equally impotent. At last the case became so critical that I consulted with the students, and they induced the young man to make an enormous sacrifice by breaking the engagement."

"You are a marvel," said the younger man, admiringly. "I think that there are often cases in which common sense can supply defects in our progressive but incomplete science of medicine; but it is not always that a doctor has the requisite fund of common sense on which to draw. Your experience is not only exceptional but truly wonderful. I must make a note of it. Of course recovery was immediate?"

"No," with hesitation. "The truth is, she now lies awake thinking how she hates him."—Detroit Free Press.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

Catarrh is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

SISTERS OF ST. FRANCIS

Tell the People of Their Favorite Remedy for La Grippe.

La Grippe is everywhere. Everybody either has it or knows someone else who has it. All charity workers and humanitarians find the prevalence of la grippe very disastrous to their work. The Sisters of St. Francis have a large number of charity subjects under their charge. These good sisters find grippe to be a serious problem. Their favorite remedy is Pe-ru-na. Dr. Hartman recently received the following letter from them:

SISTERS OF ST. FRANCIS.

Columbus, Ohio.

Dr. S. B. Hartman: "Some years ago a friend of our institution recommended to us Dr. Hartman's 'Pe-ru-na' as an excellent remedy for la grippe, of which we then had several cases which threatened to be of a serious character.

"We began to use it and experienced such wonderful results that since then Pe-ru-na has become our favorite medicine for la grippe, catarrh, coughs, colds and bronchitis.

Shall Porto Rico Be a State?

Our public men are trying to decide what action should be taken regarding the status of Porto Rico. We have never before had to deal with a similar condition where nearly a million people of a foreign tongue have been annexed. Neither have we ever had before such a reliable medicine for malaria, fever and ague as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It dryves the poisons out of the system and establishes strength to resist future attacks.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?

It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.

It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness.

It makes a better circulation in the scalp and stops the hair from coming out.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.

It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.

Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.

Ed Hubbard was out last week for the first time since Christmas. He has rheumatism.

Mrs. Sarah E. White and daughter were visiting her son and family in the Woolper neighborhood last Thursday and Friday.

In a recent issue of this paper I see that this place is called Klondyke, of which name we think we would be proud if it was the gold regions sure enough.

Mr. Frank Allen and Miss Nancy Moore, both of Big Bone, went to the city last Tuesday week, and were united in matrimony. We wish Frank and his bride a happy future.

North Bend.

J. L. Riley was in this neighborhood several days ago.

Mrs. Lura Kirtley has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Dodge, of Mildale, Ky.

Miss Hattie Kirtley spent several days of last week with her sister, Mrs. W. O. Kirtley.

C. W. Riley, H. G. Cropper and Jno. Stephens of Bullittsville were the guests of G. M. Riley, Friday.

Every one in this neighborhood has had a spell of the grippe this winter, and some are still suffering from the effects of it.

Earl Cropper has been quite sick for the past week and not able to attend school, where he has been progressing rapidly in his studies since September.

Mrs. Lou Morris returned, last week from a visit to relatives in Staffordsburg, Ky. Miss Laura Cain and Miss Dora Vallor, of Mildale, accompanied her home to make a short visit to friends and relatives. They spent Saturday night with Mrs. Julia Baisley, Sunday night, at W. M. Baisley's and Monday night several of the young folks here met them at G. M. Riley's, and spent the evening. Tuesday morning they left here for their homes in Kenton county, via C. W. Riley's and J. L. Riley's. We were sorry they did not make their visit here of greater length as both were very talented and attractive and their company very agreeable.

Florence

Miss Carrie Latham is on the sick list.

Jas. Ahearn spent Sunday with his mother.

Miss Ada Latham is visiting relatives in Cincinnati.

Dr. C. T. Moffett is the champion horse-trader of this place.

Ben Surface and family spent Sunday with R. P. Rice and family.

Born—On the 19th inst., to James Robert Rouse and wife, a son.

Miss Dollie Lewis, who has been living with her aunt in Covington, has returned home.

Owen Bradford and wife, of Union, spent Saturday and Sunday with the Misses Corbin.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cody, of Indianapolis, were the guests of their son, W. J. Cody, Sunday.

Miss Virginia Finch, of Chicago, is at home on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Finch.

The second ball given here by the Dewey Dancing Club, last Friday night, was a grand success. There were about forty couples present, hailing from different parts of Boone and Kenton counties. They had splendid music and the best of order, and all enjoyed it to the fullest extent.

Gunpowder.

Jan. 23.—Mr. Jasper Blankenbecker, of Shelby county, Ind., spent a few days with friends in the neighborhood, last week.

P. O. Griffin and family, of Erlanger, were the guests of M. R. Tanner, last Sunday.

Joseph Scott, our hustling dairyman, weighed his fine Jersey calf, Beauties Clatalre, H. R. No. 50,852, on Jan. 5th, at which date he was just one year old and he weighed 710 pounds.

At the spelling match at Pleasant Ridge, last Wednesday night, Lelta Floyd and Elva Utz were chosen to divide the house, Elva having first choice, the first round, and Lelia first choice the second round, Lelta's side came out victorious each time. The visitors present who participated were Misses Lottie Fall and Virginia Conner, and Masters Harry Riley and Henry Conner, of Union.

The social given by Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Tanner, last Friday night, in honor of their son, Harry, was a most pleasant affair. The honored guests were Misses Susie Hogan, Una and B. Utz, Hattie, Kittie, Ethel and Linnie Tanner, Eva Rouse, Etta Bushy, Jennie and Mattie Snyder, Leita Floyd, Pearl Phillipe, Rosa Garnett, May Riley, Ina Tanner, Lottie Utz; Messrs. Irvin and Jim Tanner, Eoic Rouse, Clint Blankenbecker, Homer Macrander, Chas. Ayior, Claud and B. A. Rouse, Wm. Kirk, Jeff Rouse, Lewis Clegg, Noah Zimerman and Edgar Graves. Crokonole and dominoes were the games indulged in, and some very beautiful music was rendered by Mrs. Susie Surface and Miss Leila Floyd. At 10 o'clock the guests were invited to the dinning room where the table was richly decorated and laden with good things of which they all partook. While Wm. Kirk was champion at the crokonole board Wm. Surface proved to be champion at the table. At a late hour the crowd dispersed, feeling that it was good to be there, and wishing that Harry's birthday would come twice a year.

Union.

Look out for a wedding in our town soon.

Mr. John Gibson was on the sick list last week.

Rev. Davis filled his regular appointment here, Sunday.

Mrs. John Cleek we are pleased to report is much better.

Miss May Norman has had la grippe, but is able to be out again.

Spencer Smith has been suffering several days with a carbunkle.

Miss Lulu Williams returned, last Thursday, from an extended visit to Cincinnati.

Misses Lillian Corbin and Marietta Riley will finish their schools next Friday, the 27th.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Collins, of Crittenden, were visiting Dr. and Mrs. Lassing, Sunday.

Next Sunday being the 5th Sunday, Rev. Davis will preach at the Presbyterian church in the evening at 6.30.

Tom Judge has been looking for a Plymouth Rock rooster lost between Union and J. S. Houston's toll-gate.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane are expecting their granddaughter, Miss Willie Sander, of Frankfort, to spend some time with him.

Miss Therese Lassing and father lately took a trip to Louisville, and came back by way of Cincinnati, and had a very enjoyable time.

Hon. L. W. Lassing recently purchased a handsome monument, which he will place over his wife's grave after removing her remains from Richwood to Highland cemetery.

Henry Quick, of Hebron, will please forward to our address, C. O. D., one "sleepy boy disturber," as advertised by Ed. M. F. Farm. It must be more effective than a 13-inch cannon or a 24 inch spanker to meet the emergency.

Prof. Collins extended to Charley Cleek and your correspondent a courteous reception one afternoon, recently, and gave us the freedom of the school house. We heard a recitation or so and Charley proved himself a first-class pedagogue. Good order prevailed and everything was working nicely.

Elbert Rice made a trip to Covington Saturday that was both pleasant and unpleasant. Pleasant, because it afforded him an opportunity to congratulate his father as general manager of the Covington Coal Co.; unpleasant because he had to take his mother home and be without the delicious cooking afforded him during her visit of ten days past.

Bellevue.

Pastor Utz and family are much better.

Mrs. Salathiel Beemon is almost blind.

John Huey is home from a trip to Knoxville, Tennessee.

Roland McCarty and James Moreland have moved to Wm. Botts' farm.

Rev. M. J. Hoover will preach at the Baptist church, Sunday the 29th at 11 a. m.

Oscar McMullen, of Cincinnati, has been the guest of his parents several days.

Mrs. Wingate has returned from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Craig, of East Bend.

Geo. Burris moved from Woolper Heights to the Hoosier State, south of Rising Sun.

Robt. Clore and family came up on the Swan for a visit of several days to Mrs. Clore's mother.

The Electric Railway "on yon side" is a go. The contract was to have been signed some time last week.

Mrs Lamora Huey has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Robert Clore, of Clore's Ridge, for several days.

Elmer Atwood, of Georgetown, filled the Baptist pulpit, last Sunday, morning and evening, preaching to large congregations.

Will the brother who took D. M. Snyder's hat at the Baptist church, Sunday, please to return it, for the hat left him is too small?

Elder Watkins preached here on the evenings of the 16th and 17th, and left and appointment for the evenings of the 20th and 21st of February.

John Smith, sr., shipped a quantity of willows to Chicago. Capt. Pepper always has a stock of willows on hand so as to take advantage of the rise in prices.

Dave Williamson grew a pumpkin, last year that welghed 109 pounds. He evidently has some very rich land, as it takes that kind to produce such vegetables.

Hubert Brady, Dick Lightner, Bob Popham and Hubert Parsons went down on the headwaters of Lick creek, on the 11th and killed 51 "cottons," Brady leading with 21.

The news of the sad affliction of Charles Grant, of Waco, Texas, has just reached this place. He has consumption, and his father, J. Frank Grant, will take him to Mexico. The family have our sympathy.

Henry Bradford (col.) has moved to the ford of Woolper, where he proposes to keep a boat for the accommodation of the traveling public. It will make several nickels for Henry, as well as be a great convenience to the public.

On our return from business on Friday last, we met our old friend, Joe Riddell. We were glad to see him looking hale and hearty, but were sorry to learn of the affliction of his wife, who has a bad case of grippe, from which she is slowly recovering.

Our boys and their dogs, with Dony Cook as manager, brought reynard down through the bottom, passing directly back of town, on the night of the 20th. They started the fox on the headwaters of Steep Gut, and run it to Rabbit Hash and back. As the moon shone brightly, it was a beautiful night for the chase.

Walton.

Miss Gertrude Schneider is on a visit to her parents in Crittenden.

There will be preaching at the M. E. Church, morning and evening, on Sunday the 31st inst.

Mr. James Bagby paid a visit to his brother, Dr. Bagby, last week, after an absence of 25 years. He didn't recognize the town, and the town people didn't know him until identified by the Doctor.

One of the best young ladies of our town, and, for that matter, our whole State, had been presented with some of the raisins from the train wrecked some time ago. She must have been raisin hungry, for she ate a pound or two just before going to bed, took a big drink of water, and in the night the raisins swelled in her stomach to such an alarming extent that her life was in danger. She finally obtained relief, and will hereafter be cautious about drinking too much water and going to bed after lunching on dry fruit. Parents of such good little girls cannot be too cautious in letting them satisfy their appetites on raisins, dried apples and "sich trash" at bed time.

Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Northcutt removed to Covington on Saturday. Their many friends regret to part with them, but realize that it is for the good of the young people that a change has been made. Manie has unusual business ability, and he might remain in Walton for a centnry without having an opportunity of exhibiting it.

The Art Club was handsomely entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Tomlin, last Wednesday from 7 to 11 p. m. Lunch was served "a la tete-tete," at 10 o'clock. The dining room was beautifully decorated with palms, Marchiel Niel roses and ferns, and as each of the guests reached the door to the dining room they were presented with a handsome bouquet of cut flowers as a souvenir. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Green, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kennedy, Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. S. Rind, jr. The hostess wore a gown, elegant in its simplicity. It was white china silk, coral jewelry. Mrs. Green was charmingly gowned in green silk, entrain, relieved with red corsage, bouquet of Parma violets. Mrs. Rind was quite handsome in black silk with point lace—flowers, Mrs. Hopkins was attired in a beautiful changeable silk—corsage bouquet. Mrs. Walsh was quite handsome in lavender brocade—flowers. Mrs. Kennedy was stylishly gowned in blue velvet—corsage bouquet. Mrs. Adams wore lilac silk and chiffon—flowers.

Bullittsville.

We are having considerable sickness in our midst at present. Mr. and Mrs. Owen Gaines have been quite sick for several days with the grippe and its accompaning complications. They are improving slowly.

Our energetic constable, J. T. Grant, is recovering from a very severe attack of the prevailing disease. Notwithstanding he is not yet released from its throes he has been attending his official duties. Jim is one of those conscientious officials that will not permit anything but death to interfere with the faithful discharge of his duty to his country.

Mrs. Kirtley has been quite sick for several days with what the doctors call catarrhal-fever, which is nothing more than an aggravated form of the grippe. She was compelled to dismiss her school two weeks ago, but it is to be hoped she will be permitted to return to her duties in a few days.

Mr. Robert White, who lives with C. W. Riley, is a very sick man. His doctor is unable to decide just what his sickness will develop into yet.

There are many other cases of sickness in the neighborhood. In fact there is scarcely a family that is not entertaining that unwelcome visitor, the Russian Grippe.

It was our privilege and pleasure on the 7th Inst., to attend a session of the Teachers' Association in this school district. I was sorry to see so little interest in the meeting manifested by the trustees, patrons and neighbors, there being only one trustee and four other visitors present. The ladies had prepared a bountiful and most appetising dinner, sufficient to satisfy the desires of ten times as many as were present. After lunch, the County Superintendent being absent the Association organized by electing Prof. Hann chairman. The nine teachers present then entertained us for two hours with a very interesting interchange of views as to how the different branches should be taught. I was sorry to see so little stress placed upon two topics that were discussed, that of language and composition. These two branches are too much neglected by all teachers. The creative faculty of the mind should be cultivated as well as the retentive. The child should be encouraged to create its own language in answer to all questions and not be made parrots by repeating by note or memory the language of others. I would not give one original idea expressed in original language for an hundred borrowed ideas expressed in borrowed language. Children should be taught to write instantaneous compositions and not send home to have their parents write them for them. They should be taught in composition to begin at the root of all subjects upon which they write and ascend, instead of beginning at the top and descend—or beginning in the middle and branching out.

I was especially interested in the teacher's meeting since I was once a teacher myself. I taught one school twelve months and during that time made a record that no other teacher has ever approximated much less eclipsed. In this school I prepared one for Congress, one for the penitentiary, one to be hung by a mob for stealing horses, one to commit suicide, and three to die with their boots on in bar-room broils.

One day last week one of our large land owners went to our Squire for a writ of attachment to secure a note he held against one of his tenants. The Squire, being absent from home, the writ was not obtained. Early the next morning our peace making Squire shouldered his law directory, mounted his Norman steed, called by for his lieutenant, the cunstable, and proceeded to the home of the land owner. After hearing his statement he went to the home of the tenant and had him to state his side of the case. He then returned with the tenant to the landowners house and in a short time brought about an amicable adjustment of their troubles. Before leaving he induced the landowner to retain the tenant another year, and let him have all the land to cultivate that he wanted. When the Squire was about to take his departure the landowner asked him what he owed him. He replied "you owe me nothing." He then turned to the constable and asked what he owed him. He said, "I will not let the Squire be any cheaper than I am. You owe me nothing." The generous hearted landowner got up and took the two officials by the hand and said, "gentlemen, if all our county officials were noble hearted men like you, our county would truly be an earthly paradise, and I here announce you as candidates for our next county judge and sheriff, with the understanding that the sheriff is to have a fixed salary."

"Now, Mr. Editor, I am sorry to inform you that this communication will end my career as society reporter for your paper. I entered upon the work with the determination that I would write nothing that would be calculated to compromise or wound the feelings of any one. It is with your readers to decide whether I have faithfully adhered to this resolve. I have endeavored in all my reports to pay nothing but deserving compliments.

[We hope you will reconsider, and continue your contributions.—ED.]

Since O. P. Conner, Charles Stephens and William Clore proposed to open a very desirable road across their lands, another route has been proposed that would accommodate more people and be a more direct route from Burlington to East Bend. In case the above proposed road is not put through Messrs. Conner, Clore and Stephens will push their proposed road. They consider the last proposition is better for the public, and will be glad to see it prove a success.

We find that it is necessary to limit the number of agents to not to exceed three in each voting precinct in the county, in the contest for the watch to be given the most successful solicitor of subscribers for the RECORDER. But an agent is not restricted to any certain territory—he can can secure subscribers any where. Somebody will get a nice watch, and the sooner you start in the contest the better will be your chances. Several have signified an intention to try and capture the prize.

This item of news reaches the public via Dillsboro, Indiana. "Mrs. Julia E. White, of Morrow, Ky., has purchased the homestead and mansion known as "Federal Hall," of the Parker Holton heirs for $15,000. The site of this grand old place is across the Ohio river, near the town of Petersburg. It was erected in 1805, by Capt. Jacob Platt, grandfather of John James Platt, the poet, and is one of the oldest mansions standing in that neighborhood. It is the only representative type of colonial architure for many miles around."

Mrs. Carrie Belle Buchanan, wife of Mr. Samuel H. Buchanan, died this morning of septicaemia at her home, 2119 Third avenue. She had been ill only about ten days. No children survive her. Mrs. Buchanan for many years was identified with Louisville charitable institutions, and was especially interested in free kindergarten work. She was also an active member of the Walnut-street Baptist church. Her maiden name was Miss Carrie Belle Johnston. She was a daughter of Esquire Thomas Johnston, of Boone county, Ky.—Courier-Journal, Jan. 18.

Crisler & Webb, architects and builders, is the style of a firm that came into existence with the new year in Burlington. They now have in course of construction on the Boone House premises a combination building that is an architectural curiosity, and when completed will be a lasting monument to the ability of its planners and builders. One peculiarity about the structure is that the ornaments were the first of the work that were completed, and nothing like them were ever before designed. If you go to see this wonderful building when you come to town don't take your horse in sight of it. Since the above was put in type Sidney Gaines and Kirb Tanner have been employed on the building, and the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. W. T. Smith was quite ill several days last week.

Harry Blyth's friends will be glad to hear that he is now doing time in the revenue service, as storekeeper. He is stationed at Petershurg, where he went on duty last Thursday morning. We hope Harry will continue in the service as long as the Republican party remains in power.

The invitation of our young friend, William Hallam, of Washington, D. C., to attend the third public debate of the Columbian University Law School Debating Society, January 21, 1899, reached us at a date too late for it to be possible for us to attend. We should like to have heard Mr. Hallam's arguments in opposition to the confirmation of the Paris treaty.

L. Morelli, of Good Faith Lodge F. and A. M., at Erlanger, visited the Lodge at this place last Saturday and officiated as installing officer. He made the meeting very interesting and gave the members present several pointers that will be beneficial to them in the future. Such visits as those of Bro. Morelli are worth a great deal to any Lodge. Come over again brother.

T. J. Hughes, the Beaver Lick merchant, was badly hurt in Cincinnati, last Thursday afternoon. He had started to the train to return home when he remembered some article he had forgotten and ran back to a house on Race street to get it. When he entered the store room it was rather dark, and he failed to discover an open elevator shaft into which he walked, falling 12 or 15 feet to the floor of the basement where he lay unconscious for several minutes. Regaining consciousness Mr. Hughes was not able to speak, and the elevator being somewhere above him he realized his danger in case the elevator descended to the bottom of the shaft before he was rescued. Finally his heavy breathing attracted the attention of one of the employes of the house and he was taken out more dead than alive. In a short time Mr. Hughes had recovered sufficiently to be taken to the train where some of his neighbors, who chanced to be in town, took charge of him and accompanied him to his home. The principal injuries received by Mr. Hughes were in his back and shoulder.

If the farmers of the country owning worthless dogs could be induced to destroy them and substitute one well-bred shepherd pup, not more, to each farm, the wealth of every farming community would be vastly increased in many ways. Farmers with a little tact in getting along with a dog would soon find the cooley saving them many a step. Eager and anxious to learn, willing to do everything within his power, the dog needs only a wise and patient restraint, an intelligent direction, to become the most useful hand on the place. There are a number in Milton to which the headman's ax should be applied. It is impossible to understaud why a person living in town wants to feed and care for so many worthless dogs.

The Milton Press offers the above as a solution of the dog problem.

Less tobacco has been sold and delivered at this time of the year than has been the case for a long time, in this county, and the farmers appear to be in no hurry to dispose of their crops. This condition is the result of the low prices that have prevailed, and which is very apt to curtail the area of the crop pitched in 1899. When the price of an article is below the cost of its producton the producers ought to abandon the crop. The tobacco growers can control the price to a very much greater extent by combining to reduce the production than they can by organizing for the purpose of compelling the manufactures to give better prices. Produce one-fourth of a crop in 1899, and this time next year buyers will be scouring the country in search of tobacco for which a good price will be readily paid.

By Request.

At this age of the world it looks like the Bible is construed to suit the people and the laws under the new constitution to suit the moneyed power. Biblical—"Rob not the poor because he is poor, neither oppress the afflicted in the gait, for God shall bring every work into judgment with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil. Evil men understand not judgment, but they seek the Lord who understands all things. The rich man is wise in his own conceit, but the poor man that hath understanding searcheth him out other wise."

Addison Riddell, of the Francesville neighborhood, had quite a bad accident to overtake him, one day last week. He had grubbed up an apple tree in his garden, and hitched his horses to it to haul it away. The chain was made fast to a root, and when the horses pulled, the tree rolled and the chain slipped off of the root, the log rolling back, catching Mr. Riddell's leg, breaking the bones above and below the knee. It will take some time in which to determine as to whether the injury will be permanent.

A MADRID paper says that when the Cortes reassembles the Spanish government will ask for authority to sell the Ladrones, Caroline and Pelew islands, since Spain is unable to maintain a sufficient force to defend them.

SOME extraordinary bidding took place on a doll auctioned off at a charity bazaar held at Witley, Surrey, the other day. The puppet was only worth about seven shillings, but the bids came rapidly, and a Mr. Labouchere (not the Mr. Labouchere of Truth) finally secured the prize for £350.

IT is rumored in Washington that our new ambassador to Great Britain will be instructed to do what he can toward securing the release of Mrs. Florence Maybrick, and her friends hope that, while all such efforts have heretofore failed, a pardon may now be secured because of the increased cordiality of feeling between the two countries.

BOSTON'S mammoth station, which was recently dedicated, marks an epoch in the railroad history of the country. The terminal occupies the site at the foot of Summers street, and the station itself occupies 12¼ acres. The length of the depot is 850 feet and the width is 725 feet. It is the largest railroad station in the world. It cost $4,000,000.

THE church is already separated from the state in Cuba. The revenues are cut off and the American method is being adopted. The bishop of Havana has issued a letter to the clergy directing that the parishes be hereafter maintained by private contribution. The renting of pews and the placing of contribution boxes in the churches is recommended.

THE annual report of the interstate commerce commission again calls attention to the defects of the law and the inability to prevent the cutting of rates by railroads. This cutting of rates, the report alleges, fosters trusts to the detriment of the small shipper. An amendment to the law is asked allowing the railroads to combine under proper supervision for the preservation of rates.

ACCORDING to statistics prepared by the government of Sweden and Norway and sent to the state department there are in use in the world 1,288,163 telephones, the service covering a distance of 1,509,499 miles. An idea of the extraordinary use of the telephone in the United States is derived from the fact that the figures credit this country with more than half of the instruments in use and the amount of the milcage of the whole world.

IN spite of the ridicule that has been cast upon it, the absurd practice of providing costumes for canine pets still prevails in Paris. In the windows of the dog tailors may be seen little astrakhan overcoats with linings of pink or blue satin and collars of ermine or sheepskin. For traveling there are lighter wrappers fastened round the waist, if a dog has a waist, by belts of tanned leather. Cambric shirts with lace frillings are quoted at 16 francs, and patent leather shoes—where is the French S. P. C. A.?—complete the costume.

THE Lotos club has increased its annual dues from $60 to $75. Club membership in New York is an expensive luxury. The dues of nearly all the first-class clubs are $75 to $100 a year. The Union, the University, the Union League, the St. Nicholas, the Racket, the New York and the Merchants' have dues of $75, while those of the Lawyers', the Manhattan, the Metropolitan and the Progress are $100. The initiation fees range from $100 to $300. The annual income of the Union League club, from dues alone, is over $120,000.

HON. JOHN J. UPCHURCH lives on the boundary line between Florida and Georgia; he is a wealthy mill man and so popular on both sides of the line that he alternates his public services as a legislator between the two states. He represents Charlton county, Georgia, in the lower house of the legislature at the present session. He was a member of the Florida senate at that body's last session; before that he was sent to the lower house of the Georgia assembly and further back was in the Florida house and Georgia senate, in alternate sessions.

IN 1890 la grippe first attracted world wide notice under that name. Since then hardly a year has passed that its attentions have not been pressed upon mankind, until it is coming into the front rank with consumption and pneumonia and diphtheria. What it is and whence it comes and what to do with it are questions the medical men are pretty much at sea about. Some trace a pretty close relationship between it and what we used to call the "epizootic;" others find it closely related to epidemics of influenza that are recorded as far back as 1510; others find a close resemblance in it to the dengue or break-bone fever.

THE spider has a tremendous appetite. A scientist who carefully noted a spider's consumption of food in 24 hours concluded that if the spider were built proportionately to the human scales he would eat at daybreak (approximately) a small alligator, by 7 a. m. a lamb, by 9 a. m. a young camelopard, by 1 o'clock a sheep, and would finish up with a lark pie in which there were 190 birds. Yet, in spite of his enormous appetite, a spider has wonderful power of refraining from food, and one has been known to live for ten months when absolutely deprived of food.

VIOLENT ACTS.

A Number of Ex-Spanish Volunteers in Santa Clara Murdered.

Like Deeds Reputed to Have Been Committed at Sagua Jaya—Prompt Measures Will Be Taken to Punish the Guilty.

HAVANA, Jan. 20.—Gen. Jiminez Castellanos, former captain general of Cuba, has complained to Gov. Gen. Brooke that the Cubans in the province of Santa Clara are murdering Spanish ex-volunteers. He says that eight have been killed in one week.

A dispatch from Castellanos who is now at Cienfuegos runs as follows:

"Your Excellency: I have received several communications announcing assaults and acts of violence committed in various towns upon persons who, during the late separatist war, served in the Spanish guerrilla and irregular forces. It is reported likewise that during the last week eight such individuals have been assassinated in the municipal districts of Ranchuelo and Esperanza, in this province, and that like deeds have been committed at Sagua Jaya.

"Knowing your just and noble intentions, I have the honor to call your attention to the above and to beg that you will take suitable measures to punish the guilty and to prevent the recurrence of similar acts in the future.

"I am, with greatest respect,

"CASTELLANOS."

The governor general, replying, said he had referred the matter to Maj. Gen. John C. Bates, military governor of the department of Santa Clara with directions that prompt measures be taken to punish the guilty and prevent the recurrence of similar acts."

RELIEVED OF HIS COMMAND.

Gen. Eagan Notified That He Will Be Court-Martialed and His Office Put in Charge of Col. Davis.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Gen. Eagan was served with legal notice of the ordering of a court-martial for his trial just before the close of office hours Thursday. This notice was delivered by the messenger of the adjutant general in the usual course and had the effect to relieve Gen. Eagan from duty as commissary general of the United States army, pending the conclusion of the court-martial.

The office was placed in charge of Lieut. Col. George B. Davis who has been on duty there for some time as assistant to Gen. Eagan.

It was said at the war department that the text of the charges and specifications upon which Gen. Eagan is to be tried will not be made public by the department, but will be placed in the hands of the judge advocate of the court-martial, Col. Davis, and the court itself may give them publicity.

BLOOD SPILLED IN A RIOT.

Desperate Fight Between Barkeepers and Waiters and Several Negro Soldiers in a Chattanooga Saloon.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 20.—A bloody riot occurred Thursday night in a Negro saloon between the barkeepers and waiters and several Negro soldiers of the 8th United States volunteer infantry, now in camp at Chickamauga. A quarrel arose between one of the soldiers and a waiter over a matter of change, when the soldier pulled a pistol and fired at the waiter. The barkeeper and several others in the saloon opened fire on the soldiers and as a result Sergt. J. L. Williams, clerk of Company I, was shot in the abodomen; John Reed, private, Company F, was shot in the thigh and through the chest, and Louis Brown, the barkeeper, was shot twice through the lungs and will die. Sergt. Williams wound is regarded as fatal.

THE LAWTON CARNATION.

The Far-Famed Flower Has Been Sold for $30,000—It Will Blossom in the Public Garden in Boston.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 20.—The far-famed Lawson carnation has been sold for $30,000. The purchaser is Thomas F. Lawson, a financier well known in this city and New York, and in honor of whose wife the wonderful plant was named.

Mr. Calvin, who bred the flower, announces that he has accepted the offer made by Mr. Lawson, and that in the future the flower will blossom solely for the public gardens of the city of Boston, that being one of the conditions of the sale. When the beauty of the carnation first became know, Harlow N. Higinbotham, the Chicago millionaire, offered $6,000 for the plant. A little later a New York florist offered $15,000 for the flower.

Thought Both Will Die.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 20.—Driven to desperation by unrequited love, Katy Clancy shot and wounded John McCaffery, a street car conductor, and then swallowed the contents of a bottle of bichloride of mercury. It is thought both will die.

Brig. Gen. Combs in Command.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Jan. 20.—Brig. Gen. Richard Combs, now in command of Camp Force, his independent infantry brigade being dissolved, will remain in command until all troops go.

SITUATION AT SAMOA GRAVE

War Between the United States and Germany a Possibility—Our Government Will Not Recede.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The attitude of Germany in Samoa is a topic of discussion here. It is the general opinion that the German consul exceeded the powers given him by the Berlin treaty in his unwarranted assumption of authority, though perhaps he was simply following out the instructions of his government.

"The action of Germany in Samoa," said a senator Friday, "is only apace with her covert act to raise a spirit of resentment against us among the Filipinos. Whether the action of the chief justice in declaring Mataafa eligible was right or wrong, the power canvassing the returns and declaring the victor lies solely with the chief justice. Besides, Mataafa was permitted to return from the Marshall islands on his solemn promise to stay out of politics. Germany was a party to demanding this promise and now seeks to aid the deliberate violation of it.

"The United States will not recede, and if Germany should show the mailed hand we may show her the nailed foot."

John Mulligan, ex-consul general to Samoa, takes a different view, and roundly scores Chief Justice Chambers as causing the whole trouble by an attempt to exceed his authority. Mulligan says that Chief Justice Chambers has shown himself unfit for the position and should be recalled.

The situation is considered here to be very grave, and is being discussed by Secretary of State Hay, British Ambassador Sir Julian Pauncefote and Baron Speck von Sternberg, secretary of the German embassy. They refuse to give out anything concerning their conferences.

A MILLIONAIRE IS MISSING.

Philip Faudi, of St. Louis, Went Hunting in Arkansas Christmas, and Has Not Been Heard of Since.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 21.—A special from Dewitt, Ark., says that during the Christmas holidays a party of gentlemen arrived at that place and went hunting on the island nearby. On the second day one of them, Mr. Philip Faudi, a retired millionaire merchant of St. Louis, went out hunting and he has never been seen or heard of since. After Fandi had been absent about 24 hours, the other members of the party became alarmed and instituted a search, which was continued by them for several days, and has since been kept up by others, but no trace of the missing man has ever been discovered. The supposition is that Mr. Faudi lost his life in some unknown manner and that his body was lost in the water or the tangled grasses.

AN EIGHT-HOUR WORK DAY.

Beginning Next April That Will Be the Rule in the Coal Mines of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 21.—The Post Saturday says: Eight hours work for one day shall be the rule in the coal mines of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois during the next year beginning April 1, 1899. This was agreed to after Friday midnight by the subscale committee of operators and miners who are to dispose of the wage question for the next year. The sessions of the committee were secret and every member was put under an obligation not to give anything out for publication.

SWORD FOR ADM. SCHLEY.

A Handsomely Jeweled One Presented to Him by His Brother Members of the Royal Arcanum.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Rr. Adm. Schley was presented Friday night with a jeweled sword by his brother members of the Royal Arcanum at Carnegie music hall in the presence of 4,000 persons. Gov. Lowndes, of Maryland, with a party, and a large number of naval officers, were present. After securing the sword with a graceful speech Adm. Schley buckled it to his side and shook hands with about 3,000 men, women and children.

Supreme Regent Edson M. Schryver, of Baltimore, who presided, made the presentation speech.

Committeemen Selected.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The speaker of the house has announced the appointment of Mr. Payne (rep., N. Y.) to the chairmanship of ways and means, to succeed the late Mr. Dingley; Mr. Richardson (dem., Tenn.) to the vacancies on ways and means and rules, created by the retirement of Gov. McMillin, of Tennessee, and Mr. Crumpacker (rep., Ind.) on the committee on census.

Novelist Davis is Ill.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Richard Harding Davis, the novelist and war correspondent, is lying seriously ill at his home in this city. He contracted fever while with the 5th army corps at Santiago and this has now returned.

Transportation of Spanish Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The war department has issued an invitation for bids from responsible shipping concerns of all nations for transportation of the Spanish prisoners in the Philippines from Manila to Spain.

OREGON MAY GO.

The United States Will Be Firm With the Germans in the Samoan Affair.

Germany is Not Satisfied That Her Consul Did Anything Wrong—John Bull and Uncle Sam Have an Opportunity to Show Their Friendship.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Pending the receipt of definite news from Samoa, the government is preparing for the conference of American, English and German diplomats in regard to the recent trouble at Apia, Samoa. The United States has no intention of getting out of Samoa and the Berlin treaty will be adhered to. The president, it is said, will insist that the treaty be changed so that the United States will be given equal share in the government of Samoa.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—It is generally understood, says the Herald's Washington correspondent, that the note to be presented to Germany in regard to the Samoan affair will maintain that the tripartite treaty has been grossly violated.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—The United States steamer boat Iroquois, which sailed for Honolulu, carried a number of dispatches for the Oregon, which is due at the islands. It is supposed that one of the dispatches related to a possible trip of the Oregon to Samoa.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—It is not yet clear to the foreign office that the German consul at Apia, Samoa, has been guilty of any irregularity. It is said that Germany will not permit any violation of the treaty signed at Berlin. It is given out that the captain of the German warship Flake, at Apia, does not attach much importance to the recent incidents.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Morning Post, in discussing a new arrangement in regard to Samoa, which it regards as imperative, says:

"Great Britain and the United States may frankly welcome the opportunity of giving practical effect to the expressions of good will they have lately exchanged. They may be trusted to respect one another's rights and interests, and we would gladly take a similarly confident view in the case of the third partner in the contract. The growth of ill feeling from America and Germany is a force which will have to be taken into serious account if an effort is not made on both sides to remove it as instances occur. The present occasion is admirably adapted for the beginning of the experiment."

HER LIFE FOR HER JEWELRY.

One Woman Suffocated By Smoke and Another Jumped From a Window During a Fire in Passaic, N. J.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Miss Emma Rumpler, 22 years of age, was killed and Miss Grace Winthrop was injured at a fire in Passaic, N. J., Saturday. The fire broke out in a three-story brick building, on Main avenue, occupied on the ground floor by Rumpler's bakery. Miss Rumpler, after reaching a window from which she could have been reached by the firemen, went back to her bedroom to get her jewelry, was overcome by the smoke and perished. Miss Winthrop jumped from a third story, but was caught in a net spread by the firemen and sustained only painful injuries.

DISPUTED MISSION ROCK.

There Will Be a Struggle in the Courts Between the Government and a Dry Dock Co. for Possession.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—There is likely to be a struggle in the courts before Mission Rock, a small island in the bay, is relinquished to the government by the California Dry Dock Co., which claims the property under a state title. President McKinley has set aside the island as a naval reservation, and it will be seized in the name of the United States. The right to do so will be disputed by the dock company, which has been in possession for many years and has expended nearly a half a million dollars on the island.

MAJ. COMTE ESTERHAZY.

Relieved of His Oath of Secrecy, He Will Appear Before the Court of Cassation Monday.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Maj. Comte Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy, the reputed author of the Dreyfus bordereau, who arrived here Wednesday evening from Rotterdam, to testify before the court of cassation, wrote Saturday to M. DeFreycinet, the minister for war, asking to be released from his oath of professional secrecy. M. DeFreycinet Sunday acceded to his request and it is believed that Comte Esterhazy will appear before the court Monday. He continues to decline to receive visitors.

Will Offer Concessions to France.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Times, discussing editorially Anglo-French relations, hints that France will be offered concessions in Madagascar as a set-off to the French shore rights in New Foundland.

Double Tragedy in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—John Deithloff shot his wife Sunday after a quarrel. He then shot himself twice. Both died later at the hospital. Deithloff and his wife had not been living together for some time.

GREAT HEAD.

A Small Saleslady Who Knows a Thing or Two About Manipulating Stock.

It was just before New Year's day, and Mamie and Sadie were having a friendly chat over the counter. Mamie was a diminutive salesgirl, not much older than Sadie, whose daily attention was given theoretically to the cry of "Cash!"

"Say, Mamie," remarked Sadie, "did ye see them calendars on the table two rooms over?"

"Which ones?"

"Them 25 cent ones."

"Did I see 'em?" with peculiar emphasis from Mamie as she pulled open a drawer and pointed triumphantly to two specimens of the said calendars.

"You bought two of 'em!" in awe-struck tones from Sadie.

"Well, I ain't bought 'em yet. I just picked out two of 'em and put 'em away. They'll mark the ones that's left down to five cents pretty soon. Then I'll put these here back and buy 'em, quick. See!

Sadie saw, and her mouth fell open in admiring awe. Then she recovered herself.

"Say, will ye save one for me?"

"Sure."

Sadie rushed off, and inside of two minutes a third calendar was in the drawer waiting for a drop in prices.—N. Y. Sun.

One on the Rector.

The little daughter of a local clergyman has reached the age where big words are apt to floor her, and where she is very sensitive to the remarks of an older brother.

Not long ago she came running to her father.

"Papa, papa, George called me names."

"Why, pat did George say?"

"Oh," said the little girl with a strong expression of disgust, "he said I practiced what I preached. I don't, do I?"

"Well, my child, I—"

"But I don't, do I, papa? I don't any more than you do, do I?"

And then the rector choked up. But he took a half hour from his sermon and explained the meaning of the obnoxious expression to the best of his ability.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Destined to Be Great.

The shipping clerk kept his rubber stamps in a big, deep box on a shelf near him, "where they are handy," he said. But the errand boy was looking for an opportunity to make himself invaluable, so at noon, while he was "in charge" of the works, he drove small nails into the partition in such a manner that each rubber stamp could be hung separately on two nails. An impression of the stamp was then made upon a small slip of paper, and this slip was pasted above each stamp. The appreciation of the shipping clerk was shown when he said this arrangement saved him at least an hour's work every day. Some day that errand boy will be the proprietor of a business so systematized that he will not grow prematurely old with worry.—Furniture Journal.

A HUSTLING HOST.

He Had a Little Scheme for Making His Guests Pay for Their Dinners.

It was an apparently innocent little dinner invitation which drew a number of California street heavyweights to the handsome home of a capitalist on Pacific avenue, who is no longer popular in the Pacific Union club. After the dinner, which was elaborately planned, perfectly served and thoroughly appreciated, the host led the way to the billiard room, where he had produced for the inspection of his friends a new roulette wheel which he had just purchased.

After it had been examined and duly admired monsieur proposed that his friends tempt fortune with it, announcing that he would be banker, and smilingly invited them to "break him." The guests scarcely expected this sort of diversion, but they hardly could decline the "entertainment" which had been provided for them. Having carelessly undertaken to call the turn on the black or the red, they expected to lose a trifle to their host, but they did not anticipate any such financial catastrophe as overtook each of the players.

The bank won steadily. Soon all the player guests were "broke," but the host offered, in an off-hand way, to stake one and all, guarding against a loss of the frequent loans, however, by taking the checks of his friends. For the purpose, with admirable forethought, he had provided himself with blank checks on every bank in town.

There was no escape for his victims. They were all thoroughly trapped and well scorched before they were released. The guests caught the first car home in the morning, the urbane host, with unparalleled generosity, presenting each guest with a nickel to pay his fare.—San Francisco News-Letter

NERVOUS DEPRESSION.

[A TALK WITH MRS. PINKHAM.]

A woman with the blues is a very uncomfortable person. She is illogical, unhappy and frequently hysterical.

The condition of the mind known as "the blues," nearly always, with women, results from diseased organs of generation.

It is a source of wonder that in this age of advanced medical science, any person should still believe that mere force of will and determination will overcome depressed spirits and nervousness in women. These troubles are indications of disease.

Every woman who doesn't understand her condition should write to Lynn, Mass., to Mrs. Pinkham for her advice. Her advice is thorough, common sense, and is the counsel of a learned woman of great experience. Read the story of Mrs. F. S. BENNERT, Westphalia, Kansas, as told in the following letter:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered for over two years with falling, enlargement and ulceration of the womb, and this spring, being in such a weakened condition, caused me to flow for nearly six months. Some time ago, urged by friends, I wrote to you for advice. After using the treatment which you advised for a short time, that terrible flow stopped.

"I am now gaining strength and flesh, and have better health than I have had for the past ten years. I wish to say to all distressed, suffering women, do not suffer longer, when there is one so kind and willing to aid you."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's remedy for woman's ills. More than a million women have been benefited by it.

CROOKED CLERK.

A J. Wakenman, of the Court of Criminal Correction, St. Louis, Missing.

Ever Since the Proposition to Institute a Lexow Committee and Investigate the Affairs of the City Wagenman Seemed Downcast.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 20.—Al J. Wagenman, clerk of the court of criminal correction, has disappeared and it is said by his intimate friends that he has confessed to a subversion of witnesses' and jurors' fees to the amount of $30,000. Thursday night he is missing and his friends fear he has committed suicide. Wagenman has filled one term as clerk of the court of criminal correction and was reelected to the office last fall. Ever since the proposition to institute a Lexow committee and investigate the city affairs of St. Louis was made some weeks ago Wageman's friends have noticed that he seemed downcast and depressed. A number of them now claim he was seen at noon but disappeared without mentioning the falsity or truth of the rumor. Since then, as the rumor became more general and his friends the more alarmed, the most diligent search has failed to find a trace of him. His home has been constantly watched since noon, but he has not appeared about the place. His family was at home and his wife in tears, but she would say nothing. At 6 o'clock Thursday evening she locked up the house and went to her mother's, in another part of the city. At midnight Thursday night Wagenman's friends, after a fruitless search, became convinced that he had carried out his threat and committed suicide and a systematic search of the hotels was begun.

To his friends Wagenman said he feared the result of an investigation into the affairs of his office, as a discrepancy would be discovered and he would be ruined. To his more intimate friends he said that should he be discovered he would commit suicide. A prominent city official, whose name is withheld at his request, Thursday night said: "Last Saturday night I conversed with Wagenman regarding his affairs. He was greatly depressed and said he was in a bad fix. Finally he broke down and confessed to me that for the period of time he had been in office he had raised jurors' fees, and after paying the jurors the amounts due them had pocketed the balance and had also taken witnesses' fees until the amount had reached about $30,000, but the exact amount he did not know himself. He said that he had made no record of the amounts taken and they would not show up on his books.

"Wagenman went on to tell me that he had loaned the larger part of the money taken and had personally had the use of very little of it.

"If the Lexow committee discovers me I will commit suicide' and he pulled a bottle of morphine from his pocket significantly."

The rumor was circulated about the city early Thursday that Wagenman had taken a large sum of money from the funds of his office.

ALL HOPE IS ABANDONED.

It is Thought the Party on Board the Yacht Paul Jones Will Never Be Seen Alive.

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 20.—Messrs. Taggart and Jones have practically abandoned the hope of ever seeing the party on board the yacht Paul Jones alive. The finding of a telephone by a trapper near the mouth of the Mississippi and the identification of it from a description as a part of the fittings of the yacht and the finding of two trunks washed ashore, containing clothing belonging to Miss Florence Taggart, has convinced them that the yacht met with disaster. It is barely possible that the party have survived and are in the Louisiana marshes, near Bird island, and the engineers' steamer Msud, with Taggart and Jones on board, started to the marshes Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

The waters, inlets and sounds all along the coast of Horn, Ship, Petit Bois and Chandeleur islands were thoroughly explored Thursday and nothing whatever found. The yacht had not at any time touched at Chandeleur island.

Gen. Joseph J. Reynolds Critically Ill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Maj. Gen. Joseph J. Reynolds (retired) is critically ill here as the result of a stroke of paralysis and is not expected to live. Mrs. Reynolds and his son, Capt. Alfred Reynolds, of the army, and Lieut. Reynolds, of the navy, are in attendance. He is 77 years old.

Auto-Nuptial Debts of Wives.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 20.—The state senate Wednesday passed a bill relieving husbands of responsibility for ante-nuptial debts of wives. The question has long been a mooted one in the courts and the supreme court recently held husbands responsible.

Gold Hunters Return.

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 20.—The steamer Danube, which arrived from the north Thursday, brought about 60 men from Dawson and Atlin with about $400,000 in gold dust.

PART OF PAUL JONES FOUND.

Condition of Wreckage Shows the Naphtha Tank Exploded, Tearing the Vessel to Pieces.

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 21.—The government steamer Pansy touched at Biloxi, Miss., Friday afternoon and reported finding on Breton island a part of the stern of the naptha launch Paul Jones, also a yawl boat, with bow smashed, and other small articles from the launch. The condition of the wreckage tends to show that the naptha tank blew up and tore the boat to pieces. The Pansy met the Maud with Jones and Taggart on board. The latter visited the wreckage and identified it as part of the Paul Jones. No bodies were found.

O. F. Fremont and party left Scranton Friday forenoon in the sailing yacht Adelaine, of very light draft, and will visit every nook to the westward. The expedition is provisioned for ten days.

The launch had the following pleasure-seekers on board: Joseph Brinkman, Louisville; Miss Florence Taggart, daughter of Mayor Taggart, Indianapolis; Miss Margerie Woodland, daughter of George Woodland, vice president Prairie State bank, Chicago; Col. Harry C. Yocum, St. Louis; Miss Florence Yocum, his daughter. The crew consisted of three men, whose names are unknown.

The launch, which was owned by Lawrence Jones, a Louisville distiller, was loaned by him to Mr. Yocum, and left Louisville, December 8, for a trip to Florida. She left New Orleans for Pensacola January 3. Since that time nothing definite had been heard from her until Friday, although her loss had been rumored since last Snnday.

News confirming her loss has been brought by oyster fishermen who have known of it for more than a week. The launch exploded they say on or about January 6 near Bird island, and everything goes to show that all on board were killed at once or drowned soon after. The boat was operated by a gasoline engine, and it is now recalled that she met with several accidents from fire on her way down the river. It is regarded as certain that this engine exploded, but from what cause will probably never be known. The force was such that it not only blew off the pilot house but split the yacht in two.

The men who brought this definite news are engaged in the oyster fisheries off the east Louisiana coast. Last Friday they visited Bird island and found a lumber schooner ashore also a pleasure yacht near the island. The latter, they say, was split in two by an internal explosion. The men boarded the yacht and explored her cabin, breaking open the trunks and taking from them a lot of fine female apparel, and keys and whatever other property they discovered on board.

Although their discovery occurred a week ago, the men did not come to Venice, the nearest settlement, until Friday, when they had to do so to lay in a supply of provisions. In Venice they turned the keys over to a storekeeper, by whom these facts were made known.

The keys bear a tag inscribed "Fletcher & Co., Indianapolis." The clothing taken from the trunk by the men is that of Miss Taggart.

No bodies were seen by the men on or near Bird island, but there is no hope of any one having escaped from the wreck.

The Paul Jones had two boats. One badly stove in was picked up by the Marie Louise, of Mobile. The other, with "Paul Jones" painted on her, was found by the Pansy, of Biloxi.

The three relief expeditions ought to reach Bird island Saturday. Two go from New Orleans, the Zeta and Doullet, and one from Mobile, the Maud. Bird island is merely a sandy reef covered by coarse sea grass.

ARE GETTING DOWN TO WORK

For the First Time, After a Two Weeks' Session, the West Virginia Senate Recognizes the House.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 21.—Both houses of the legislature got to business Friday for the first time after being in session for the second week. The republican senate at last recognized the democratic house. In the senate, the republicans introduced resolutions for the unseating of Kidd, dem., of Gilmer, and for the suspension of Ashby, dem., of Kanawha, pending investigation into the contest for his seat. These resolutions will be acted upon Saturday in retaliation. The democrats in the house served notice of contest upon Spencer, republican, of Rone. The democrats in the senate introduced resolutions declaring vacant the seats of Pierson, of Clay, and Getzendanner, of Jefferson, alleging that by accepting commissions in the volunteer army they forfeited their right to their seats.

Col. Sexton a Trifle Better.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The condition of Col. James A. Sexton, of Chicago, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., now seriously ill at the Garfield hospital here, was a trifle improved Friday.

Bank Robbed of $3,000.

ARCOLA, Ill., Jan. 21.—Six masked men overpowered the watchman of the Arthur (Ill.) bank Thursday night and then blew the safe with dynamite. They secured $3,000. The bandits escaped on a hand car.

IMMENSE DEAL.

The Virginia Coal, Iron & Railway Co Buys Blast Furnaces and Lands.

The Company Becomes Owner of 125,000 Acres of Rich Coking Coal Lands, 60,000 Acres of Good Ore Lands, Two Railroads and Nine Furnaces.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 28.—The largest business transaction made in the south in ten years has just been announced here. It involves an investment of $15,000,000 and is of vital importance to Upper East Tennessee and Southwestern Virginia. The Virginia Coal, Iron and Railway Co. has bought in the immense blast furnaces at Max Meadows, Pulaski, Roanoke, Va., and Bristol, Tenn.; also, the Bristol and Elizabethton and the South Atlantic and Ohio railroads. Cash is paid for all the properties. The company becomes owner of 125,000 acres of coking coal lands, 60,000 acres of ore lands, two railroads and nine furnaces. The railroads extend from Big Stone Gap, Va., to Elizabethton, Tenn., passing through Bristol, Tenn., and the rich coal and mineral and timber lands of the new company. The result of this immense transaction is due to the efforts of Col. E. J. Sanford, of this city, who is also president of the Knoxville & Ohio railroad; Col. C. M. McGhee, of this city, known among the railroad magnates, and Mr. Ben Dulaney, of Bristol, Tenn. Col. Sanford and Mr. Dulaney interested New York people in the enterprise and organized the company with $7,500,000 stock subscribed and the same amount of bonds were issued and sold for spot cash. E. B. Chapman, of Moore & Schley, the New York bankers, carried the deal through and that firm underwrote the bonds.

The Bristol furnace was purchase over a year ago by Col. Sanford and Col. McGhee, thereby forming the nucleus of what has developed into such a strong concern. This furnace will be put in active operation immediately under the management of George L. Carter, president of the new company, and who has for ten years been president of the Carter Coal and Iron Co.

The gentlemen composing the company have also made propositions seeking the purchase of the furnaces at Johnson City and Embreeville, Tenn. This new company will outrank the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., as it is the strongest company ever organized in the south for a similar purpose. Nothing has ever occurred in this section which means so much for the territory mentioned as it will develop untold resources herctofore untouched. Upper East Tennessee and southwest Virginia are rich in coal, iron, zinc and other minerals, together with vast forests of timber of every description. The development of these properties will begin at once.

CANNED MEAT EXAMINATION

Chemist Wiley Failed to Find Any Traces of Borax, Boric Acid, Sulphites, Sulphurous or Benzoic Acid.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 38.—Chemist Wilcy, of the department of agriculture, has reported to Secretary Wilson that an examination of samples of canned meats secured both in the open market and from the war department, to determine the presence of any chemical preservatives, failed to disclose any traces of borax, boric acid, sulphites, sulphurous acid, salicylic or benzoic acids. The presence of saltpeter was confirmed in all the samples of corned beef and so-called luncheon beef, but no trace of it was discovered in the roast beef, though common salt was present to a considerable extent. The test was made under an order of Secretary Wilson and 13 samples were inspected, 11 purchased in the open market and two obtained from the war department. Of the former, eight from five different packing houses, were corned beef; two packed by the Armour Canning company, of Chicago, and the Armour Packing company, of Kansas City, were luncheon beef and the other sample roast beef.

QUARREL OF LONG STANDING

Battle Between Virginia and Tennessee Fifty Miles in Which a Number on Both Sides Killed and Wounded.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 23.—Friday, on the line between Lee county, Va., and Hancock county, Tenn., a section remote from the telegraph, a battle occurred between 20 members of the Eddy family of Virginia, and the Ramsey family of Tennessee. The battle lasted several hours, during which a number of men on both sides were killed and injured. A quarrel of long standing resulted in the fight, particulars of which are obtainable.

J. N. Free Reported Dying.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Jacob Newman Free, known throughout the country to railroad managers, hotel keepers, editors and a large section of the populace at large as "The Immortal J. N.," is reported dying at the residence of his nephew, Wm. Free, at Urbana, Ill.

Earthquake Shocks in Greece.

ATHENS, Jan. 23.—Earthquake shocks damaged several villages in the southern part of Greece Sunday. Two of them were completely destroyed and many people hurt.

AN ANGLO-FRENCH TREATY.

The Lines Laid Down for Negotiations of All Disputed Points Between Great Britain and France.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Paris correspondent of Daily Chronicle says:

"I am informed that Sir Edmund Monson (British ambassador to France) in an interview with M. Delcasse (French minister of foreign affairs) has virtually laid down the lines of negotiations upon all disputed points between France and Great Britain. The programme so far amounts to an Anglo-French treaty of the highest historic importance. In official circles Friday night the approaching solution is foreshadowed rather cautiously, but while the amicable, explicit terms which have been hinted to me are scarcely realized as yet, they leave only one or two details of mutual compensation unsettled."

TRANSPORT SHIP PANAMA.

She Will Be Brought to New York and Fitted Out as a Cable Ship and Sent to the Philippines.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Col. Kimball, of the quartermaster's department, Friday received orders from the war department that the transport Panama be brought to New York to be fitted out as a cable ship. Col. Kimball has been on the lookout for a vessel to be used as a cable ship in the Philippines.

She will be fitted with two tanks capable of holding 1,000 miles of cable. The Panama will probably be ready for service in two months and will go direct to Manila.

The hospital ship Relief, which is now at Pier 27, Brooklyn, has also been ordered to Manila.

MAJ. GEN. LEONARD WOOD.

People of Santiago Anxiously Awaiting His Return From Washington—His Presence is Greatly Needed.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Jan. 21.—The people of the city are anxiously awaiting the return from Washington of Gen. Leonard Wood, military governor of the department. His presence is greatly needed in all branches of the government. More than $2,000 has been subscribed to a popular fund to provide a grand reception. The steamer Reina de Los Angeles left Santiago Friday—again in the possession of her original owners—to take provisions to the United States troops at Jibara.

Clark Wagenman at Home.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 21.—Al. J. Wagenman, clerk of the criminal court of correction, who is charged with misappropriating funds of his office, and who had been reported missing, returned to his home Friday. In an interview Mr. Wagenman said: "I may be a little short, probably I am. I don't deny the charges that I have used the money of the office for my own use, but my official acts are all right. I have enough money in the bank to pay all demands."

Still Lacks Thirteen Votes.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 21.—The third ballot for United States senator Friday resulted: M. S. Quay rep., 93; George A. Jenks, dem., 69; John Dalzell, rep., 14; John Stewart, rep., 9; Charles W. Stone, rep., 8: George F. Huff, rep., 5; Alvin Markle, rep., 1; Galusha A. Grow, rep., 1; Charles E. Rice, rep., 1; C. E. Smith, rep., 1; J. F. Downing, rep., 1; E. A. Irvin, rep., 3; Charles Tubbs, rep., 4. Absent and not voting, 42. Necessary to a choice, 106.

Claims to Be an Heiress.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 21.—Mrs. Mary Tyson Williams, of this city, who is 45 years old and has three children, claims to be a niece of James Tyson, the Australian, who recently died, leaving a fortune estimated to be worth over $25,000,000, and she expects to receive a share of the estate. Mrs. Williams says that Tyson's correct name was Roberts, that he was born at Festinog, North Wales, and that her mother was his sister.

Towboat James Moren Sinks.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 21.—The towboat James Moren, owned by the Advance Coal Co., going south Friday with a tow of coal and iron, struck a hidden obstruction at Merriam, just above Sewickley, and sunk a barge of steel rails and a barge and flat of coal. The channel is blocked against tows and no shipments can be made until the obstructions are removed. Only single steamers can pass the wrecks.

Night Session in the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—In the house Friday Hull, of Iowa, chairman of the military affairs committee, asked for unanimous consent for consideration of the army bill next Tuesday. He further asked that the members agree to 15 hours' debate, half of the same to be given each side, after which the five-minute rule was to go in force.

Trade Figures of Ontario.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 21.—The trade figures of the Dominion for the six months ending December 31 last show an increase in the aggregate trade of over $14,000,000. The figures were $177,864,318, as against $163,361,937 for the six months in 1897.

Double Hanging at Montgomery, Ala.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 21.—John and Mary Hall, both Negroes, were hanged here Friday at noon for the murder of James Belser, near this city in August last.

PRESENT WEEK.

Indian, Diplomatic and Pension Appropriation Bills in the Senate.

The Time of the House This Week Will Be Devoted to the Army Reorganization Bill—General Debate Will Continue for Fifteen Hours.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The fact that the anti-scalping bill was made the unfinished business of the senate by Saturday's vote does not necessarily insure its immediate consideration. The general understanding is that this bill will wait upon the peace treaty and the appropriation bills and that the Indian appropriation bill will be the first measure to receive the attention of the senate during the week. The diplomatic and pension appropriation bills also may be considered during the week.

Several speeches on the general subject of expansion are expected to be made.

How much time will be given to the treaty in executive session will depend upon whether the committee on foreign relations considers it in the interest of the treaty to press consideration. There is an effort to arrange a compromise which would permit speedy action upon the treaty, but if this is not successful the indications are for considerable delay. Two compromises are suggested. One of these is for a modification of the treaty or the adoption of a resolution declaratory against the permanent holding of the Philippine archipelago and the other is for a modification of the army reorganization bill on lines desired by the treaty opponents. It is not yet possible to state whether either course will be pursued.

The time of the house this week, except Monday, which has been set aside for the consideration of District of Columbia business, will be devoted to the army reorganization bill. The consideration of this bill, which is regarded as pre-eminently the most important general measure to come before congress at this session, has been delayed by the illness of Chairman Hull, of the military affairs committee. He has recovered sufficiently to pilot the measure, however, and the house has formally agreed to take up its consideration on Tuesday. The general debate, not including three night sessions, is to continue 15 hours. This is as far as the agreement goes. It includes no provision for a final vote.

There exist a wide variety of opinions upon the proposition to increase the standing army. It has a strong majority of the republicans behind it and it comes into the house with the indorsement of the president's message practically as an administration measure.

The democrats and populists are intensely hostile to the whole proposition and intend to fight it to the last ditch. They will have some support from the republican side. The opposition, however, do not desire to embarrass the government and are willing to provide for a temporary increase in the army of 50,000 men in accordance with the provisions of the substitute bill offered by the minority of the committee. Or they are willing to authorize the continuance, temporarily, of the present war strength of the regular army, 62,000—anything in fact, to prevent the creation of a permanent increase. In this they have the sympathy of many of the republicans. The fate of the bill is in grave doubt.

The bill may not be completed this week, as the order permits its consideration to be interrupted by appropriation bills and conference reports.

GEN. MILLER'S EXPEDITION.

It Has Landed on Guimaras Island, Three Miles From Iloilo, Without Opposition From the Natives.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Gen. Miller's expedition has landed on Guimaras island, three miles from Iloilo, without opposition, Gen. Otis cables from Manila.

Landing was necessary, because of the crowded condition of the troops on the transports. Experience has proved that soldiers lose spirit and fighting qualities when confined long on board ship, so the war department asked Gen. Otis to ascertain if it was possible for Gen. Miller to land his expedition near Iloilo. He cabled that it was and was then instructed to order a landing.

It was deemed inadvisable to have this expedition return to Manila without having landed, because it was feared the natives of Luzon would think the Filipinos at Iloilo had repulsed the Americans. The president's policy of pacification will be continued and no attempt to land at Iloilo will be made at present. The island on which the men have landed is healthy.

Kennedy Got a Life Sentence.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Jan. 23.—Sam P. Kennedy was sentenced by the circuit court Saturday to the penitentiary for life on conviction for the killing of Harrison Steele, near Devon, last fall. He is the first convict in the county ever sent up for life.

Twenty Lives Lost in a Fire.

MADRID, Jan. 23.—News was received Sunday evening from San Sebastian of a terrible fire at Eglobar-Dova, about ten miles west of San Sebastian, in which 20 persons lost their lives.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The senate held no session for the transaction of business Monday. When the body convened at 12 o'clock it proceeded at once to the hall of the house of representatives to attend as a body the obsequies of the late Representative Nelson Dingley. At 1 o'clock the senate returned to its chamber, Jonathan Ross, appointed by Gov. Smith, of Vermont, to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Justin G. Morrill, was sworn in, and at 1:07 p. m., on motion of Mr. Allison, the senate adjourned until Tuesday.

HOUSE—The following bills were introduced Monday: By Mr. Dolliver, of Iowa, to redeem outstanding 4 per cent. certificates of deposit issued under authority of the act of February 26, 1879; by Mr. Butler, of Pennsylvania, to reimburse petty officers and men who enlisted in the navy for one year, or during the war with Spain for necessary clothing, etc., paid for by themselves. After the funeral obsequies over the remains of Representative Dingley, the house adjourned until Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—SENATE—Almost the entire session Tuesday was devoted to consideration of the pending Nicaragua canal bill. At 3 o'clock consideration of the bill under the 15 minute rule was begun and was continued to the close of the session. The first vote reached was on an amendment offered by Mr. Rawlins (Utah), which, in brief, provides that the United States should have absolute control of the canal for military or naval purposes, with power to dictate the use of the water way during the existence of war. The friends of the bill rallied against the amendment and it was defeated by the decisive vote of 38 to 9.

HOUSE—The house Tuesday passed the naval personnel bill without division on the final passage. By its provisions the line and the engineer corps are welded into an amalgamated line, staff officers are given positive rank, but their promotion is limited to their own corps and a system of voluntary and compulsory retirement on three quarters pay as of the next higher rank of 40 officers a year is established. The bill also practically equalizes their pay with that of army officers. Three important amendments were adopted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—SENATE—The feature of Wednesday's session of the senate was a speech delivered by Mr. Bacon (dem., Ga.) in support of his resolutions declaring that the United States would not assume sovereignty over the Philippine islands. Following Mr. Bacon's speech the Nicaraguan canal bill was taken up and remained under discussion until 6 o'clock.

HOUSE—Quite a number of bills of minor importance was passed Wednesday, most of which authorized the construction of lighthouses, fog signals, etc. Then the bill to grant the Pacific Cable Co. a subsidy of $100,000 a year for 20 years for the construction and operation of a cable was called up and a very spirited debate, which consumed the remainder of the day followed. No conclusion was reached at the hour of adjournment, and as the special order under which the house was operating Wednesday expired with the adjournment, and no objection was made to fixing another day for its consideration.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—SENATE—The senate listened further Thursday to the discussion of the policy of expansion. Mr. Turner (pop., Wash.) delivered a carefully prepared speech on the Vest resolution. At the conclusion of Mr. Turner's argument Mr. Forster took some sharp exceptions to assertions made in the speech, especially those referring to him personally. He explained at length the nature of his statements, declaring, among other things, that he had spoken only for himself and had had no intention or desire to pose as the representative of the administration so far as his utterances were concerned. The Nicaragua canal bill was under consideration nearly three hours. After much debate a substitute presented by Mr. Morgan (Alabama) for the bond amendment offered by Mr. Allison, was adopted.

HOUSE—The house practically decided the Brown-Swanson contested election case from the Fifth Virginia district in favor of the sitting member, Mr. Swanson, a democrat by determining to consider the case. The post office appropriation bill was then taken up. The greatest surprise of the day was the adoption of two amendments striking out of the bill increasing the appropriation of $171,000 for the fast southern mail and $25,000 for special mail facilities from Kansas City to Newton, Kan. The increase in the appropriation for the pneumatic tube service from $638,300 to $830,000 was knocked out by the elimination of the provision, which fell under a point of order, for the repeal of the law against the extension of this service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—SENATE—The senate was in session for five hours and a half Friday, but the session was practically barren of results. Two notable speeches were delivered, one by Mr. Nelson (rep., Minn.,) in opposition to Mr. Vest's anti-expansion resolution and the other by Mr. White (dem., Cal.,) a personal explanation of his position with respect to the instructions given the California senators by the legislature in that state as to voting on the pending peace treaty. At the conclusion of the speeches, the senate resumed consideration of the Nicaragua canal bill. Its consideration was prevented probably by the filibustering tactics adopted by Mr. Tillman (dem., S. C.).

HOUSE—The proceedings in the house were enlivened Friday by a wordy duel between Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, and Mr. Lewis, the picturesque member from Washington. During the debate on a private bill to refer to the court of claims the claim of Cramp & Sons, the Philadelphia shipbuilders, for damages from the government for delays incident to the building of the war ships New York, Massachusetts, Indiana and Columbia, due to the failure of the government to deliver armor plate and other material for these ships on time, Mr. Lewis got the floor. Mr. Lewis made the bill the text for an attack on army and navy contractors, whom he charged with being traitors for taking advantage of the necessities of the government in time of stress. Earlier in the day the post office appropriation bill was finally passed, and just before the recess in the afternoon Speaker Reed put an end to the speculation as to the chairmanship of the ways and means by appointing Mr. Payne (rep., N. Y.) to the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Dingley.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—SENATE—With only six dissenting votes, the Nicaragua canal bill was passed through the senate Saturday afternoon. The fact it was allowed to be agreed to without a division, and only the decided opposition of Vest, of Missouri, made the call of the roll necessary. The final triumph of the measure was due most largely to the acceptance of many amendments which rob the bill of most of its objectionable features. In fact the acquiescence in the plan of Spooner to allow the president to negotiate for perpetual right of way had more to do with the carrying of the bill than any other single point in it. The senate also decided to make the anticoaling bill the unfinished business and continued without the completion of the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill. The anticoaling bill was taken up on a vote of 33 to 21, but no effort was then made to continue its consideration.

HOUSE—Not in session.

THE PHILIPPINE PROBLEM.

[By David A. Piatt]

Since the close of the civil war no problem embracing such vitally important elements as the above named has demanded solution at the hands of the United States Government. Moreover, the complex machinery of the administration does not appear to be in a state of non-frictionable organization sufficient to turn out the rule by which the problem should be worked. Every manner of scheme for the disposal of the Philippines has been suggested save that of converting the natives into "embalmed beef," and it is not likely that such a suggestion would find favor with the administration.

It is an admitted truth that the voice of the West carried great weight with Mr. McKinley. The Western people revolted at the idea of returning the Philippines to Spain and the President instead, as a great man should, of swaying public sentiment allowed it to unduly influence him. Instead of standing for his own convictions he has become an animated megaphone of the people. Public opinion, at best, is unreliable. It is too apt to be formed upon a hypothetical basis. If Mr. McKinley carries its dictations into the formation of his policy and it proves inadequate the people will never forgive him. Even should they recognize in his attitude a crystalization of their previous desires they would be no more lenient, holding the view that he should have lead them into the proper course even against their will.

It may be safely predicted that the President's ultimate policy will bear the alluring(?) label of annexation; but this can only be decided after a commission shortly to be appointed shall have returned from the Philippines and made some recommendation for the future government of the archipelago.

All seemed smooth sailing until a few insurgent thorns fell in the pathway of the expansionist. Of these Aguinaldo appears to have the sharpest point. At any rate he evidently expects to puncture the annexation tire. The belligerent attitude of the insurgents at Manila and Iloilo seems to have materially changed the President's policy. Some time since he said that forcible annexation was not to be considered: but the substance of orders recently sent to General Otis virtually show a running retreat from the position he (the President) has heretofore maintained. His decree now is "Deal with the insurgents peacefully if you can; forcefully if you must." Yes, imperialism is gaining a large plat of ground in the backyard of the administration. The President evidently considers it incumbent upon this country to repeat a maladministration of an alien people.

Perhaps some of the strongest appeals for expansion if not actual annexation have emanated from the pulpit. The various religious organizations desire to introduce missionaries into these benighted islands, and for that reason alone are advocating principles foreign to the past policy of this government. However, their advice should carry little weight. It is worth intrinsically about two cents on the dollar. The people of the United States have been paying annually hundreds of thousands of dollars into missionary societies, which funds are supposed to have been applied to the civilization and moral training of the "heathen." This drain upon our public as well as private resources will hardly be lessened by the acquisition of 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 of south sea Islanders of many ethic stocks and speaking forty different languages, besides including the most savage and warlike people on the face of the globe. All such money leaves the United States in most cases never to return in whole or in part. We have enough of ignorance and low types of humanity within our present borders to demand the undivided attention of all the missionary societies for years to come. Evidently Mr. McKinley does not realize this fact, or in realizing does not heed. He has hitched his wagon to the Southern star. It is drawing him—where?

Supposing that in 1775 some foreign power, Russia for instance, had concluded to settle our quarrel with England, and annex America, would our fathers of the Revolution have thanked such a power for her interference with our future as a nation? Would George Washington have sprang willingly into the jaws of the Russian wolf? It is hardly probable that he would. We would have contested every foot of the ground; Washington would never have sanctioned such an intrusion upon our rights. Despite this fact we have probably drifted into the performance of a similar injustice toward the Philippines—such an injustice as we would have forcibly resented from any power a century and a quarter ago. I do not place the merits of the Filipinos on a par with the Americans of the Revolutionary period, or to compare the personal attainments of Aguinaldo with the Father of this country. I mean to show that the cases are in a certain sense similar—both sighting the goal—freedom.

The clarion voice of liberty had sounded in the Philippines long before Dewey fired the shots that sounded 'round the world; it had echoed in the hearts of loyal Cubans for three decades before the fall of Sanliago. Both cases are practically upon the same basis save that the latter was in a more aggravated stage than the former. Both were in revolt against Spain and recognized by this Government as belligerents; but no one hears of the forcible annexation of Cuba. Even were the Cubans at present in a state of revolt no such question would arise. Annexation is optional with the Cubans; so should it be with the Filipinos, who object to being summarily disposed of by a nation whose ownership of the islands was in dispute even betore the fall of Manila. It is our duty to allow them liberty such as we enjoy.

It is undoubtedly pleasant for the sanguine expansionist to occupy the chair of an established civilization and witness in his mind's eye immense profits accruing faim national investments ten thousands of miles away, and to hear the approving voice of the press and the honeyed plaudits of the pulpit. But it is a different matter entirely to face these natives in "our new possessions" and bring them into subjection as well as up to the status of intelligent freemen. Sometimes I wonder how many of these connoisseurs of roseate dreams purpose taking an active hand in the propagation of a new civilization.

Territorial acquisition came into our national life as a war exigency. The Philippines were simply thrown at us; we have caught them and the probabilities are that they will scorch our fingers. A vanquished nation like an unsuccessful litigant is expected to pay the costs of both parties. Spain had nothing of value to substitute for money save acres of Malays. These she was bound to give; but we would prefer that she cede us real estate to which she holds clear title. The most generally discussed and denounced feature of our "after-the-war" dealings with Spain is the proposed payment to that power of $20,000,000. Expansionists tell us that the victor should be generous; but it is equally true that the victor cannot afford to be so generous as to imperil future interests. When Uncle Sam found himself in a position to dictate terms he proposed to strike a balance and to pay to Spain the difference between the cost of the campaign and the value of the territories acquired. This difference was estimated at the amount now under public discussion.

Notwithstanding the liberality of our offer the Dons consider it a totally inadequate sum, but as an offset and a necessary condition of peace.

If Spain has the legal right to cede us the Philippines and we really consider that they and the other territories do exceed in value the amount expended in war, we should by all means pay our fallen foe the full amount. Because Spain has shown herself a dishonorable nation we have nothing to warrant us in meriting her epithet of "American Pigs." On the other hand if we allow the islands to slip through our fingers we will find it extremely difficult to collect the costs from our bankrupt foe. However, there is an old saw to the effect that the first loss is the best.

While I consider that under certain conditions the payment of $20,000,000 to Spain would be proper, I also consider that it is our right to demand full and unqualified possession of the territories in question. A nation like an individual or a corporation cannot lawfully transfer property to which a clear title is not held. At least such a transaction would be unwise upon the part of the receiver of the property involved.

It would be inconsistent with our fundamental principles to convert the Philippines into United States territory with no better title deed than can be given by Spain. Hers is a quit-claim deed; she can give nothing except a promise that she will relinquish in our favor whatever claim she ever had to the islands, whereupon we find ourselves involved in a war with the Filipinos, who look upon our intrusion as a change of masters, not of methods. Only the exercise of a perfect diplomacy can serve to reconcile them to our occupation of what they rightly consider their own territory. Will such diplomacy be brought to bear? Mr. McKinley's action upon the report of the Philippine commission alone can tell us that.

Realizing that certain statements herein made may bring forth criticisms of more or less importance, I feel under the obligation of making a statement concerning the reception such criticisms may expect to meet with. I will, during the period these articles are furnished to the Recorder, under no circumstances undertake the task of replying to letters public or private. However, at the close of the series, I shall, with the permission of the editor, be pleased to publish a letter replying to all criticisms or queries worthy of attention, whether they be printed in these or other columns, or restricted to personal correspondence.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Seattle, Washington, Jan. 10,' 99.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Thinking a few lines from here might be interesting to your readers, I will endeavor to give a detailed account of what I found this northern country to be. I found it to be everything except what I expected when I left home. I had heard so many Wild West stories from parties who had been in the West, I naturally expected to see men with revolvers buckled around them; but this is never seen except where a man goes to the mountains and takes a pistol along for protection against wild animals, which are not as dangerous as reported. I have seen but one bear since I arrived here, although I have hunted for them several times. One day when I had no rifle with me I met one. The bear was not a small one, and to ascertain which of us was the worst scared, you will have to interrogate bruin. When the bear discovered me, it went "woosh," and made the brush crack at a terrible rate as it rapidly disappeared. My feelings were anything but pleasant until the bear began a retreat, when I began to rather enjoy the situation, but as I passed on down the railroad, I kept a sharp watch behind me, for fear the animal might change its course and pursue me. Bears are not dangerous except when they have cubs. Deer abound and small game, such as pheasants and grouse are plentiful. Fish are very plentiful. Salmon in the creeks can be counted by hundreds in schools. No matter how much it rains, the streams here are clear at all times, and the fish therein can be seen. The white people catch the trout, and the Indians, the salmon.

I arrived in Seattle August 27th, 1898, and found it quite a business town of about 60,000 inhabitants. It is not a fine town by any means, but it has a very fine bay view and four large and beautiful lakes. This Puget Sound country is all right if a person wants work. I could have gone to work the second day after I arrived in the town, at which time I expected to go on to Alaska; but after looking around a little I concluded to remain here until spring, when I expect to push on to Alaska. Having decided to winter here I secured work on a saw mill at Gold Bear, Snohomish county, being in the foot hills of the Cascade mountains. While hunting in the mountains, one day, I discovered a ledge of quarts, but I am not yet able to speak of its grade, as I have not received a report from the party to whom I sent a sample to have assayed. I have also sent a sample of the quartz back to Limaburg, at which place it can be seen. Some old miners to whom I have shown it seem to think quite a lot of it, and would like to know where it is located. If the grade proves to be high enough I will try and take care of it, and upon getting it fixed I will start immediately for Alaska, and if everything goes right, I will return to Oregon or Washington to spend next winter, where the weather is so very mild. The weather this winter is the coldest ever known here, the mercury one night going as low as 22 dgrees below freezing, from which point it ascended the next day.

A person will make no mistake by coming to Oregon or Washington to work for wages, for they are good and work is plentiful. Laborers with pick and shovel get $1 75 a day; a man who can handle a cross-cut saw, from $2 25 to $2 50; carpenters—first-class, from $3 50 to $4 50, and others as low as $2 50; farm hands, $20 to $35 a month and board. A man can get first-class board for $4 a week, but the rule in this country is for every man to furnish his own bed clothes, and until you learn to carry your bed, you are classed as a tenderfoot. I have passed beyond the tender-foot class.

This is a great place for scenery. Within 60 miles of Seattle are numerous lofty, snow-clad peaks, among them Mt. Hood, Mt. St. Helens, Mt. Adams and Mt. Ranier, with their glaciers and canyons in all degrees of danger in the month of August. Here a person can see falls of all kinds and sizes. I have seen one in this section of the country that beats Niagra Falls. It is the Shoshone Falls of Idaho. The Niagara, prior to its plunge, winds through a comparatively level country, but the Shoshone comes plunging from a mountain source, over many a cascade and cataract, forcing its way along its tortuous course between rocky walls until at Shoshone the walls which form its boundary and confine it to its bed rise straight above it on both sides to a height of hundreds of feet, while all along these walls is a velvety drapery of ferns and mosses. Here you can see a shower of pearls and diamonds and beautiful rainbows where the river takes its final, mighty plunge. The torrent is smaller than the Niagara, being less than 1,000 feet. The descent is 210 feet, being one-third greater than the Niagara. Above the brink solemn portals of land extend for hundreds of feet on both sides, supplying an element of grandeur which the monarch of cataracts, the Niagara, altogether lacks. The Shoshone Falls are of the purest white, interspersed with myriads of glittering, glassy drops, cataracts that look like snow with an avalanche of jewels. Here you find nature in her lace and pearls, her robe of diamonds and tirade of rainbows.

These falls are the finest I have ever seen in my travels. I have seen the Niagara, the Wallace of the Wallace river, and the Snogulma of Washington and the falls of Skycomish river in Washington. These are smaller than the Snoshone falls.

This the place for the person who likes fine timber—the red and yellow fir grow to a great height and size, being from two to three hundred freet high, and from 6 to 10 in diameter at the butt. They are exceedingly straight and as a rule so thick that the trees are without limbs or knots to about 15 or 20 feet of the top. You may know they are pretty thick when it costs about $300 to clear an acre of land.

I haven't much regard for farming in this section, on account of the clearing of the land; but still a person can sell the sawlogs at fair prices, lumber bringing about same price it does at Cincinnati, only it is finer. There is only one drawback to this country and that is its rainy season, which sets in about October and lasts till about March; but it seems after one is out here for awhile he don't mind it. Another thing is it don't hurt a person to get wet here like it does back in the east. I know that by experience, for I have been wet clear to my waist several times while out hunting, and never as much as took a cold. It is a different rain from what you have in Kentucky. It is a mist and a person can be out in it all day and not get wet through, but if a person wants to get wet just go out hunting in the ferns and bushes.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1899. NO. 15.

MALAYS are not cheap at two dollars per head.

THE Louisville daily papers are devoting all their time and space to the abuse of Senator Goebel.

THERE are now five mails a week between Tampa and Havana instead of two as heretofore.

TWO of the Senatorial deadlocks were picked last week. One in Nevada and the other in West Virginia.

IF half what the Louisville daily papers say about each other is true, each is a corruption incubator, most successfully operated.

THE War Department has advertised for bids for transporting to Spain sixteen thousand of her soldiers remaining in the Philippines.

THE new steamer City of Cincinnati has been launched at Jeffersonville. The boat is 306 feet long. It will be one of the fastest on the river.

THE Kenton county board of supervisors was decidedly easy to deal with, and it is claimed that in nearly every instance where a reduction was asked it was granted.

THE only way in which the tobacco growers can increase the price for the weed is to reduce its production. Cultivate less acres, do the work better and get more per pound for your tobacco.

MR. JOHNSON, Republican Congressman of Indiana, made a ringing speech in the House, one day last week. Not like some other members of Congress does Mr. Johnson have to make explanatory speeches after he announces his position.

THERE is one thing certain, Senator Goebel will not be furnished free passes by the railroads while he is making his canvass of the State for the Gubernatorial nomination. The railroads and other big corporations have no use for him.

WHY the President refused to make public the instructions given to the peace commission before it sailed for Paris, is a question that annoys many of his party. They think if they were what they should have been no harm would result in making them public.

W. P. THORN, of Henry county, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. He has been in public life for many years, has a very extensive acquaintance in the State, and, no doubt, will show up a strong candidate for the nomination.

HAD Dewey sailed for the United States as soon as he destroyed the Spanish fleet in Manila bay, his victory would have been none the less, and he would have saved many millions of dollars. No person ever thought about this country capturing the Philippines when war with Spain was declared.

AUGUSTUS E. GARLAND, who was Attorney-General under President Cleveland, was stricken with apoplexy while argueing a case before the United States Supreme Court last Thursday. He was born in Tipton, Tennessee, June 11th, 1832. He had served as Governor of Arkansas, and as United States Senator from that State.

THE school-book bill will find its way into the General Assembly early in the next session and will be hard to down if put in a proper shape. The Indiana law has grown in popularity constantly since it went into effect, because of its great saving to the people. School-book concerns outside of the State now see their way clear to make a profit under the law, and will bid for contracts.

JOHN SHERMAN is engaged writing another book, and it is said it will have considerable to say about how he became Secretary of State to provide a Senatorship for another, and how he was afterwards bounced out of the cabinet because his notions as to how certain public affairs should be handled did not concide with those of another, who was higher in authority than he.

IN the matter of wealth the United States leads all other nations. Her wealth is one-third more than that of Great Britain, and about two-fifths more than that of France, almost double that of Germany, two and a half times that of Russia, three and a third times that of Austria, four and a half times that of Italy and more than five times that of Spain, before the war this year.

THE election of Scott to the United States Senate from West Virginia, creates a vacancy in the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and there are three Kentucky Republicans, who want the place—Auditor Stone, Collector Comingore and Congressman Evans. As the latter gentleman is soon to be a statesman without a job, it is believed that his chances are pretty good for securing the appointment.

SENATOR R. B. Brown, of Warsaw, was in Cincinnati, a few days since, and was interviewed by an Enquirer reporter in regard to Kentucky politics. Among other things the Senator said: "I shall not be a candidate for reelection when my present term in the Senate expires, for we have an alternating rule in our district, and the Senatorship goes to Boone county this time, whose choice will, I presume, be Dr. Furnish."

THERE is not much talk being done in public in regard to the coming contest for the Democratic nomination for county Representative in the next General Assembly, but the close political friends of the several candidates are looking over the field, and an interesting campaign will evidently be the outcome. In nearly every voting precinct in the county can be found from one to three prospective candidates, but, of course, many of these now candidates on the quiet will never be announced.

SENATOR GOEBEL opened his campaign at Lebanon on the 23d ult., in a speech that even those who oppose his nomination for Governor concede was a strong deliverance. He came out squarely on every point, and proclaimed that he will not accept a nomination on a platform that fails to endorse the Chicago platform throughout, and also Kentucky's new election law. He said he is aware that he is opposed by all the big corporations in the State and every daily paper of general circulation in Kentucky. He wants to be judged by his record.

THE Courier-Journal Company has the contract for furnishing record books for county and circuit clerks' offices throughout the State, and some of the clerks have had considerable trouble in getting what they need. One clerk from this part of the State could not get any response to the letters he wrote the company, and he went to Louisville to see what the trouble was. At the office he told the bosses he wanted record books for a Circuit Clerk's office, when he was shown a lot of deed and mortgage books, and it was some time before he could get the affable gentleman with whom he was dealing to understand that he knew what he needed, and that the books shown him were not what he wanted at all.

CONGRESSMAN BERRY'S work at this session of Congress is fully sustaining his reputation as an energetic and successful public servant. The following shows what he got through the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, of which he is a member: "A full appropriation is allowed for the Ohio with another Lock and Dam authorized near Wheeling and $500,000, for the general work on the river; $15.000 to protect Lawrenceburg, Ind.; $20,000 for the improvement of wharf at Madison, Ind., survey to protect Paducah from the river encroachments; $85,000 to complete the Dam on the Green river; a survey of the Green river from Mammoth Cave to Greensburg; $270,000 for the Big Sandy and $10,000 for the survey of Licking from its mouth to Falmouth and the erection of a Lock and Dam at 3-Mile Riffle, in addition to some smaller amounts."

THE whipping-in process had to be resorted to in the Senate to save the treaty.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, Jan. 28th, 1899.

A sensational speech against the Hull bill for the increase of the regular army, which will be voted upon next Tuesday, was made in the House by Representative Johnson, of Indiana, a Republican. He said of Mr. McKinley: "If William McKinley ever changes his policy regarding the Philippines he will bend to the weight of popular opinion, to which he bows, right or wrong." Identically the same sentiment, in slightly different words, had been expressed the day before by Jerry Simpson. Being interrupted by applause from the Democratic side, Mr. Johnson asked that it be not repeated until he had finished, when Representative Henderson, of Iowa, sneeringly remarked, "You ought to be able to stand Democratic applause." Quick as a flash Mr. Johnson retorted: "I am ready to stand the applause of broad minded, honest men everywhere, just as I am ready to stand the criticism of narrow-minded Republicans." Speaking of the treaty of peace, Mr. Johnson said: "If I were in the Senate, I would rot in my seat before I would consent to that treaty."

The absurdity of the charge that the anti-imperialists are holding up the treaty of peace became fully apparent in the debate on the treaty, this week. Senator Gorman told the supporters of the treaty that its opponents were ready to join them in disposing of the treaty at any time, and twitted them by doubting their earnestness about taking a vote on the treaty. Senator Vest spoke even plainer. He said: "We want it understood distinctly that we are not holding the treaty up at all. Name the day. We will agree to any date that will suit you. If you have the votes you can ratify the treaty; if not, it will be defeated; the question will be disposed of, and the Senate can proceed with other business." Under these taunts Senator Davis asked that the treaty be voted on Feb. 6, and it was agreed to.

That there is something rotten about the War Department is every day becoming more apparent, in spite of the efforts made to keep down the truth. The War Investigating Commission seems especially determined to save the contractors who furnished the bad beef, both refrigerated and canned, to our soldiers, by insisting that the beef was good, in the face of positive evidence to the contrary. Another proof of the rottenness of the War Department methods is furnished by the assertions made by Gen. Eagan's friends, that he is willing to accept a nominal punishment as a result of his court-martial for blackguarding Gen. Miles, and keep his mouth shut, but that if Mr. McKinley fails to set aside his punishment nominal, he will raise such a scandal as Washington has not had for many years, by telling everything he knew about war contracts and those who profited thereby. Eagan's plea before the court-martial, of not guilty, although acknowledging the use of the dirty and disgusting language towards Gen. Miles, and his claim for protection under Mr. McKinley's promise, is believed to be the result of an understanding, and the belief is strengthening by his confident and nonchalent bearing during the trial. A sportingly inclined army officer offered to bet ten to one that a verdict of guilty would not result in Eagan's dismissal from the army.

Utzinger.

Hubert Walton had his tobacco prized at J. W. Berkshire's in Petersburg.

Jo. J. Graddy, of Lexington, spent a few days with relatives here the first of the week. He looks fine, and has a good business position in his city.

We are busy putting up ice. The cold weather came in good time, as many were fearful they would have to forego the use of that luxury during the coming summer.

The dining at Courtney Walton's, Wednesday, was an occasion of great enjoyment. It came in conflict with other matters but took precedence, as we seldom ever let our business interfere with our dinings.

There is more sickness in this neighborhood now than there has been for years. There are some conflicting opinions as to the name of the disease most prevalent. Some call it grippe, while others call it catarrhal fever. There has been one fatal case, Mrs. Jennie Fleek.

We attended meeting a Petersburg, last Sunday night, and listened to an elegant discourse by the Rev. Crau, a Methodist divine from Williamstown. He is a young man in the ministry, but strong and eloquent, and will take his place in the front ranks of the ministers of his day.

There will be a united and strong effort made in the spring to enforce the stock law here. There are only a few persons who fail to observe the law now, and the benefit derived by them is not thought to be sufficient to justify the great inconvenience that the whole neighborhood sustains on account of the out stock.

There is a stray pigeon at Erastus Randall's. It came there about the last of December, and being tame and easily caught, Mr. Randall took it in out of the weather, and discovered that it must be of some rare species. It has a neat silver band around one ankle, on which the number 19,994 appears. Among other evidences of careful training and keeping is its taking a bath at regular intervals in a pan of water. It is a fine bird, and it is hoped its owner may see this item and correspond with Mr. Randall.

We had to condense communications to fit space this week.

ANOTHER'S BURDENS.

Dr. Talmage Asks Us to Assist the Heavy Laden.

We Should Beware of Selfishness—Kind Words Are as Cold Water to a Thirsty Soul—Help the Needy.

In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows how it is possible to help others who are under the pressing load of fatigue and care and responsibility. The text is Galatians vi., 2: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

Every man for himself! If there be room for only one more passenger in the lifeboat, get in yourself. If there be a burden to lift, you supervise while others shoulder it. You be the digit while others are the ciphers on the right hand side—nothing in themselves, but augmenting you. In opposition to that theory of selfishness Paul advances in my text the gospel theory: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

Every body has burdens. Sometimes they come down upon the shoulders, sometimes they come down upon the head, sometimes they come down upon the heart. Looking over any assembly, they all seem well and bright and easy, but each one has a burden to lift, and some of them have more than they can lift. Paul proposes to split up these burdens into fragments. You take part of mine and I must take part of yours, and each one will take part of the other's, and so we will fulfill the law of Christ.

Mrs. Appleton, of Boston, the daughter of Daniel Webster, was dying after long illness. The great lawyer, after pleading an important case in the courtroom, on his way home stopped at the house of his daughter and went into her sickroom. She said to him: "Father, why are you out to-day in this cold weather without an overcoat?" The great lawyer went into the next room and was in a flood of tears, saying: "Dying herself, yet thinking only of me." Oh, how much more beautiful is care for others than this everlasting taking care of ourselves. High up in the wall of the temple of Baalbec there are three stones, each weighing 1,100 tons. They were lifted by a style of machinery that is now among the lost arts. But in my text is the gospel machinery, by which the vaster and heavier tonnage of the world's burdens is to be lifted from the crushed heart of the human race. What you and I most need to learn is the spirit of helpfulness.

Encourage the merchant. If he have a superior style of goods, tell him so. If he have with his clerks adorned the show windows and the shelves, compliment his taste. If he have a good business locality, if he have had great success, if he have brilliant prospects for the future, recognize all this. Be not afraid that he will become arrogant and puffed up by your approval. Before night some shopgoing person will come in and tell him that his prices are exorbitant and that his goods are of an inferior quality and that his show window gave promise of far better things than he found inside. Before the night of the day in which you say encouraging words to that merchant there will be some crank, male or female, who will come into the store and depreciate everything and haul down enough goods from the shelves to fit out a family for a whole winter without buying a cent's worth. If the merchant be a grocer, there will be some one before night who will come into his establishment and taste of this and taste of that and taste of everything else, in that way stealing all the profits of anything that he may purchase—buying three apples while he is eating one orange!

Before the night of the day when you approve that merchant he will have a bad debt which he will have to erase, a bad debt made by some one who has moved away from the neighborhood without giving any hint of the place of destination. Before the night of the day when you have uttered encouraging words to the merchant there will be some woman who will return to his store and say she has lost her purse; she left it there in the store, she brought it there, she did not take it away, she knows it is there, she is willing you to make any delicate and complimentary inference that you wish to make. Before night that merchant will hear that some style of goods of which he has a large supply is going out of fashion, and there will be some one who will come into the store and pay a bill under protest, saying he has paid it before, but the receipt has been lost. Now, encourage that merchant, not fearing that he will become arrogant or puffed up, for there will be before night enough unpleasant things said to keep him from becoming apoplectic with plethora of praise.

Encourage newspaper men. If you knew how many annoyances they have, if you understood that their most elaborate article is sometimes flung out because there is such great pressure on the columns and that an accurate report of a speech is expected, although the utterance be so indistinct, the discourse is one long stenographic guess, and that the midnight which finds you asleep demands that they be awake, and that they are sometimes ground between the wheels of our great brain manufactories; sickened at the often approach of men who want complimentary newspaper notices, or who want newspaper retraction; one day sent to report a burial, the next day to report a pugilistic encounter; shifted from place to place by sudden revolution which is liable to take place any day in our great journalistic establishments; precarious life becoming more and more precarious—if you understood it you would be more sympathetic. Be affable when you have not an ax to be sharpened on their grindstone. Discuss in your mind what the nineteenth century would be without the newspaper, and give encouraging words to all who are engaged in this interest, from the chief of editorial department down to the boy that throws the morning or evening newspaper into your basement window.

Encourage mechanics. They will plumb the pipes, or they will calcimine the ceilings, or they will put down the carpets, or they will grain the doors, or they will fashion the wardrobe. Be not among those who never say anything to a mechanic except to find fault. If he has done a job well, tell him it is splendidly done. The book is well bound, the door is well grained, the chandelier is well swung, the work is grandly accomplished. Be not among those employers who never say anything to their employes except to swear at them. Do not be afraid you will make that mechanic so puffed up and arrogant he will never again want to be seen with working apron or in shirt sleeves, for before the night comes of that day when you praise him there will be a lawsuit brought against him because he did not finish his work as soon as he promised it, forgetful of the fact that his wife has been sick and two of his children died of scarlet fever and he has had a felon on a finger of the right hand. Denounced perhaps because the paint is so very faint in color, not recognizing the fact that the mechanic himself has been cheated out of the right ingredients, and that he did not find out the trouble in time, or scolded at because he seems to have lamed a horse by unskillful shoeing when the horse has for months had spavin or ringbone or springhalt. You feel you have the right to find fault with a mechanic when he does ill. Do you ever praise a mechanic when he does well?

Encourage the farmers. They come into your stores, you meet them in the city markets, you often associate with them in the summer months. Office-seekers go through the land, and they stand on political platforms, and they tell the farmers the story about the independent life of a farmer, giving flattery where they ought to give sympathy. Independent of what? I was brought up on a farm; I worked on a farm; I know all about it. I hardly saw a city until I was grown, and I tell you that there is no class of people in the country who have it harder and who more need your sympathy than farmers. Independent of what? Of the curculio that stings the peach trees, of the rust in the wheat, of the long rain, with the rye down? Independent of the grasshopper, of the locust, of the army worm, of the potato bug? Independent of the drought that burns up the harvest? Independent of the cow with the hollow horn, or the sheep with the foot rot, or the pet horse with a nail in his hoof? Independent of the cold that freezes out the winter grain? Independent of the snow bank out of which he must shovel himself? Independent of the cold weather when he stands thrashing his numbed fingers around his body to keep them from being frosted? Independent of the frozen ears and the frozen feet? Independent of what? Fancy farmers who have made their fortunes in the city and go out in the country to build houses with all the modern improvements and make farming a luxury may not need any solace, but the yeomanry who get their living out of the soil and who that way have to clothe their families and educate their children and pay their taxes and meet the interest on mortgaged farms, such men find a terrific struggle. I demand that office-seekers and politicians fold up their gaseous and imbecile speeches about the independent life of a farmer and substitute some word of comfort drawn from the fact that they are free from city conventionalities and city epidemics and city temptations.

My most vivid remembrance of boyhood is of my father coming in on a very hot day from the harvesting field and seating himself on the doorsill because he was too faint to get into the house, the perspiration streaming from forehead and from chin, and my mother trying to resuscitate him with a cup of cold water which he was too faint to hold to his own lips, while saying to us: "Don't be frightened; there's nothing the matter. A little tired, that's all; a little tired." Ever since that day, when I hear people talking about the independent life of a farmer I see through the sham. Farmers want not your flatteries, but your sympathies.

Encourage the doctors. You praise the doctor when he brings you up from an awful crisis of disease, but do you praise the doctor when, through skillful treatment of the incipient stages of disease, he keeps you from sinking down to the awful crisis? There is a great deal of cheap and heartless wit about doctors, but I notice that the people who get off that wit are the first to send for a doctor when there is anything the matter. There are those who undertake to say in our day that doctors are really useless. One man has written a book entitled: "Every Man His Own Doctor." That author ought to write one more book entitled: "Every Man His Own Undertaker." "Oh," says some one, "physicians in constant presence of pain get hard hearted!" Do they? The most celebrated surgeon of the last generation stood in a clinical department of one of the New York medical colleges, the students gathered in the amphitheater to see a very painful operation on a little child. The old surgeon said: "Gentlemen, excuse me if I retire. These surgeons can do this as well as I can, and as I get older it gives me more and more distress to see pain."

Physicians have so many hardships, so many interruptions, so many annoyances, I am glad they have so many encouragements. All doors open to them. They are welcome to mansion and to cot. Little children shout when they see them coming down the road, and the aged, recognizing the step, look up and say: "Doctor, is that you?" They stand between our families and the grave, fighting back the troops of disorder that come up from their encampment by the cold river. No one hears such thanks as the doctor hears. They are eyes to the blind, they are feet to the lame, their path is strewn with the benedictions of those whom they have befriended.

Encourage the lawyers. They are often cheated out of their fees, and as often have to breathe the villainous air of courtrooms, and they so often have to bear ponderous responsibility, and they have to maintain against the sharks in their profession the dignity of that calling which was honored by the fact that the only man allowed to stand on Mount Sinai beside the Lord was Moses, the lawyer, and that the Bible spoke of Christ as the advocate. Encourage lawyers in their profession of transcendent importance—a profession honored by having on the bench a Chief Justice Story and at the bar a Rufus Chonte.

Encourage the teachers in our public schools—occupation arduous and poorly compensated. In all the cities when there comes a fit of economy on the part of officials the first thing to do is always to cut down teachers' salaries. To take 40 or 50 boys whose parents suppose them precocious and keep parents from finding out their mistake, to take an empty head and fill it, to meet the expectations of parents who think their children at 13 years of age ought to be mathematicians and metaphysicians and rhetoricians, to work successfully that great stuffing machine the modern school system, is a very arduous work. Encourage them by the usefulness and the everlastingness and the magnitude of their occupation, and when your children do well compliment the instructor, praise the teacher, thank the educator.

Encourage all invalids by telling them how many you have known with the same ailments who got well and not by telling them of their sunken eye or asking them whether the color of their cheeks is really hectic or mentioning cases in which that style of disease ended fatally or telling them how badly they look. Cheerful words are more soothing than chloral, more stimulating than cognac, more tonic than bitters. Many an invalid has recovered through the influence of cheerful surroundings.

Encouraging all starting in life by yourself becoming reminiscent. Established merchants, by telling these young merchants when you got your first customer, and how you sat behind the counter eating your luncheon, with one eye on the door. Established lawyers, encourage young lawyers by telling them the time when you broke down in your first speech. Established ministers of the gospel, encourage young ministers by merciful examination of theological candidates, not walking around with a profundity and overwhelmingness of manner as though you were one of the eternal decrees. Doctors established, by telling young doctors how you yourselves once mistook the measles for scarlatina. And if you have nothing to say that is encouraging, O man, put your teeth tightly together and cover them with the curtain of your lip; compress your lips and put your hand over your mouth and keep still.

Encourage the troubled by thoughts of resignation and resuscitation. Encourage the aged by thoughts of eternal juvenescence. Encourage the herdsman amid the troughs of sin to go back to the banquet at the father's homestead. Give us tones in the major key instead of the minor. Give us "Coronation" instead of "Naomi." You have seen cars so arranged that one car going down the hill rolled another car up the hill. They nearly balanced each other. And every man that finds life up hill ought to be helped by those who have passed the heights and are descending to the vale. Oh, let us bear one another's burdens!

A gentleman in England died leaving his fortune by will to two sons. The son that stayed at home destroyed the father's will and pretended that the brother who was absent was dead and buried. The absent brother after awhile returned and claimed his part of the property. Judges and jurors were to be bribed to say that the returned brother and son was no son at all, but only an impostor. The trial came on. Sir Matthew Hale, the pride of the English courtroom and for 20 years the pride of jurisprudence, heard that that injustice was about to be practiced. He put off his official robe. He put on the garb of a miller. He went to the village where that trial was to take place. He entered the courtroom. He somehow got empaneled as one of the jurors. The briber came around, and the man gave ten pieces of gold to the other jurors, but as this was only a poor miller the briber gave to him only five pieces of gold. A verdict was brought in rejecting the rights of this returned brother. He was to have no share in the inheritance. "Hold, my lord!" said the miller. "Hold! We are not all agreed on this verdict. These other men have received ten pieces of gold in bribery, and I have received only five." "Who are you? Where do you come from?" said the judge on the bench. The response was: "I am from Westminster hall. My name is Matthew Hale, lord chief justice of the king's bench. Off of that place, thou villain!" And so the injustice was balked, and so the young man got his inheritance. It was all for another that Sir Matthew Hale took off his robe and put on the garb of a miller. And so Christ took off His robe of royalty and put on the attire of our humanity, and in that disguise He won our eternal portion. Now, are we the sons of God? Joint heirs! We went off from home sure enough, but we got back in time to receive our eternal inheritance. And if Christ bore our burden surely we can afford to bear each other's burdens.

A ROBBER TARIFF.

Republican Protection Brings Prosperity to Trusts and Monopolies.

The McKinley tariff of 1890 enabled Americans to put up tinplate factories. There is no doubt about that. Tinplate was sold as high as six dollars a box. All consumers of tin, and the consumers of fish, fruit and vegetables canned in tin, contributed a bonus to the infant industry. It got on its feet. Now it has grown so great that it not only supplies the home market but exports a surplus; so rich that it pays dividends on enormous issues of stock; so strong that it has developed into a most lordly and gigantic trust, which controls every tinplate factory in the country and advances prices with none to molest or make afraid. The tinplate trust must be struck down; and the only way to strike at it is by abolishment of the tariff which supports it.

The American Tinplate company has acquired the 38 large tinplate factories in the United States. What they cost nobody knows. But they could be duplicated for $7,500,000. The trust is capitalized, however, at $50,000,000, of which $20,000,000 is preferred stock, and $30,000,000 common stock. The trust is expected to make money on this enormous capitalization. The preferred stock is quoted as high as 102, and common at 46 bid and 50 asked. The promise of the promoters is said to be for seven per cent. dividends.

How will it make the profit? By advancing the price of tinplate. Tinplate could be bought by Columbia river salmon canners last September at $3.10 a box. Now it is quoted at $3.65 and contracts cannot be made at that. The salmon pack of the Pacific coast is some 3,000,000 cases a year. This requires 324,000 boxes of tinplate, costing, at $3.65, $1,182,600, of which $178,200 is taken from us by the advance since September. There are no figures of Pacific coast fruit canners. Probably they do not use quite as much tin as our salmon canners, but large amounts are used in California for putting up fruits and vegetables. If the tin consumption of fruit and vegetable canners is equal to that of the salmon packers, we are out between $350,000 and $400,000 through this latest advance in tinplate, made to pay dividends on the swollen stock of the trust.

But this is not the real loss to be borne by consumers of fruit, fish and vegetables, and by the Oregon farmer and the Columbia river fishermen. We produce iron and steel cheaply enough to export it. In fact, we export tinplates themselves. The duty is superfluous. This duty amounts to $1.20 a box. On 648,000 boxes of tinplate the Pacific coast is filched of $780,000 a year. For the whole country the output of the trust is estimated at 8,000,000 boxes. It will sell this at $1.20 a box more than it can afford to sell it for, or $9,600,000 in the aggregate, filched out of the pockets of the people under the tariff.

We hear a great deal of talk about laws against trusts. They ought to be controlled, no doubt. When they violate laws they should be fined, as provided in statutes. When they bribe senators, judges or juries the guilty officials should be sent to the penitentiary. But these remedies are hardly worth bothering with as long as the great bulwark behind which the trusts carry on their robbery is untouched—the protection accorded them by the tariff. Men will be elected to congress some of these days, and not a very distant either, who will vote to withdraw protection from every one of these colossal trusts. The republican party can do this, or it can stand aside for those who will.—Portland Oregonian.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

—The late Nelson Dingley was not by any means a statesman of heroic proportions, but his shoes will have to be reduced several sizes in order to fit any of the gang which is now fighting for them.—Chicago Chronicle.

—Alger's alleged attitude in standing by Eagan was to be expected of the present utterly discredited secretary of war. But what shall be said of the president and administration which will continue to stand by Alger?—Albany Argus.

—There is uncertainty and wobbling in the administration circles. When McKinley came back from his western trip imperialism was in the saddle. Since that time public opinion has been gathering poise and force, and it has had to climb down and wait.—Milwaukee Journal.

—The men who have been "mentioned" for the republican nomination for governor of Ohio should hold a convention. There is a sufficient number of them to make a respectable showing. They might realize the hopelessness of coming to an agreement among themselves, and resolve to leave the whole matter to the wisdom of Marcus A. Hanna.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

—The war of the sugar kings and the coffee kings is one of the signs of the times from which the pessimists may exact comfort. So long as the trusts shall confine their attention to swallowing the country they may have things their own way. The real tug of war will take place when the giants shall have begun to swallow each other. Then may come the consumer's turn to play the role of giant killer.—Philadelphia Record.

—The secretary of war as the head of the department, is responsible for the enmp scandals and the beef contracts in two ways. First, in so far as he was instrumental in procuring the appointments of improper men who actually bought or passed the poisonous food served to the troops; secondly, in so far as he was wanting in vigilance in holding his subordinates up to a proper discharge of their duty. It is not too much to say that practically the whole country regards Gen. Alger as the wrong man in the place he holds.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TRUSTS PROTECTED.

The McKinley Administration is Following Out the St. Louis Platform to the Letter.

In 1896 every political organization in the United States that held a national convention except the republican party pronounced against trusts and combinations in restraint of trade.

The republican party was silent on this question save as its advocacy of a high protective tariff was necessarily affirmation of the theory that trusts and combinations in restraint of trade are helpful, not harmful, to a people.

When William McKinley entered upon the presidency of the United States he had before him as a guide the proceedings of the national republican convention, which failed to pronounce against and tacitly declared for trusts and that part of the statutes of the United States known as the Sherman anti-trust law.

The republic has had nearly two years of Maj. McKinley's administration, and it is not difficult to discern that it has been guided not by the statute of the United States in respect of trusts and combinations, but by the St. Louis platform.

The major is absolutely complacent, and residents of the United States who find profit for themselves in making lawless combinations have learned the fact to their full satisfaction. During the last year activity in the formation of trusts was unprecedented in the history of the republic. It is true, as stated in a special dispatch to a leading republican newspaper, "the year 1898 was most prolific of trusts. Returning prosperity brought with it an unparalleled outburst of combinations and consolidations. The year closed with more trusts brewing than ever before. A trust craze seems to have developed. In dozens of important industries men are traveling and telegraphing and telephoning to bring about consolidations of competing concerns."

They know it is against the law, but they do not fear the law. They know that the chief magistrate, with whom the initiative of execution rests, is on their side, equally lawless with themselves.

The enginery of justice in the United States, urged to the utmost activity in the prosecution of some insignificant violation of a federal statute, rests in absolute idleness when the Sherman law is mentioned. It is the president's duty to take care that the laws are faithfully executed. He has been presented to the people of the United States as extraordinarily conscientious. Manifestly, this characterization of him is untrue, for no conscientious chief magistrate with the knowledge that violations of federal law are of daily, notorious and scandalous occurrence would fail to employ judicial machinery to bring the offenders to book.—Chicago Chronicle.

WOE FOR WOOL MEN.

The Dingley Tariff is Having a Killing Effect on an Important Industry.

On the same day the Ohio Wool Growers' association and the National Wool Manufacturers' association held their annual meetings and put out their statements as to the condition of the wool growing and wool manufacturing industries for the past year under the Dingley tariff bill made in their interests. In each case the statement was a wail of woe, a bitter complaint against existing conditions, and a declaration that unless something radical is done, and that quickly, their respective industries will be ruined.

The president of the Ohio Wool Growers' association said the wool tariff of the act of July 24, 1897, as a measure of "full and adequate protection," is a failure and in practice a fraud. He claimed prices of wool are lower than in any period in the last 40 years, except for a brief time under free wool. He said the present tariff law was intended to be the best for the manufacturers they ever had and better for them than for wool growers. He insisted that part of the prohibitive duties should be taken from manufactures and should be given to wool. He claimed that prices are fixed by the manufacturers and imported wools are supplanting the American product.

The association agreed with him and adopted resolutions on the lines of his address.

At the same time the report of the National Wool Manufacturers' association was being read in Boston, in which the year just closed was described as being with all classes of mills "a year of small business, of much anxiety and often of hardship and embarrassment. The number of failures and assignments in the wool manufacture have been larger probably than in any previous year since the panic of 1857. These many disasters among woolen mills are not due merely to the bad business conditions of the current year. They are the culmination of a series of years of short business at less than living prices, in the year and a half since the new tariff became operative the imports have been the smallest in quantity for 50 years and not of a character to disturb the market for staple goods."

There is a total disagreement between the wool growers and wool manufacturers on all points but one—that it was the worst year experienced for a very long time. On that there was perfect unanimity.

And the Dingley high protective tariff has been in operation a year and a half.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

—President McKinley falls back on his favorite plan of a commission to unload the Philippine problem and its varied bungles and blunders and divest the president of responsibility for what was the president's plan of action. CARS SUSPENDED IN AIR.

Novel Construction of an Electric Railway Over a River in Germany.

The oft-proposed scheme of an electric aerial railway, by which the passengers could be shot through the air at a high rate of speed in a car suspended on an elevated framework, is at last to be realized in a German road between Elberfeld and Barmen. Of all electric roads yet built or building this is certainly the most unique, surpassing the impractical "amphibious" line at Brighton and the Boynton monorail system at Longport. Elevated electric lines have become quite common during the past three years, but the idea of suspending the car from an overhead framework, instead of allowing it to run upon it, is startlingly radical and a construction not calculated to inspire courage in the hearts of timid travelers, despite the fact that it is claimed to be quite as safe as the ordinary method of running cars on elevated systems.

Were it not for the fact that this system is now being constructed by a well-known German firm, and that the road is already well under way toward completion, one might look askance at so revolutionizing a method of rapid transit, which is only once removed from flying.

Local circumstances are such, however, that the only available route for the road was over the bed of the River Wupper, a connecting link between the two towns. At first it was suggested that single pillars be erected in the center of the stream and an elevated platform be erected thereon upon which to lay tracks. This, however, would have resulted in obstructing the river channel, and was not feasible, owing to tides and heights of bridges, etc. Finally the suspended aerial system was adopted.

Each car seats from 50 to 60 people, and is reached by means of iron stairways leading up to a platform. These cars are hung from two rails, the axles of the wheels being supported on movable trunnions, which permits of rapid propulsion and yet ease in taking curves. The selection of electricity as the motive power is a foregone conclusion, as no other form of power is so well adapted to the peculiar requirements imposed by this very novel construction, flexibility of operation, ease of control and absence of flying dirt all being of importance to the successful operation of the system. Twenty-five miles an hour is the contemplated speed. Every possible precaution has been taken to provide automatic devices so that, should the car become disabled, no serious accidents would follow.

Double-tracked throughout its length, the cost will run well up into the millions, and the unfamiliarity of the work renders progress very slow, so that it will be some months before anything definite concerning the practicability of the scheme is known.—Philadelphia Record.

Spanish Fortifications at Havana.

One of the fortresses of Havana, the Altares, is built, like the castles of feudal times, on a hill, with two walls, a moat, a drawbridge, and many lookout towers. As a piece of architecture it is very pretty, and ought to be preserved. When it was built Carlos III. was reigning in Spain and the war of the American revolution was ten years off. In describing a recent visit to the old castle, "F. C.," a correspondent, remarks that he saw no ammunition on the premises, except empty grenades a century old, and no cannon except relics of ancient gunmanking, which pointed landward, and had been fitted, perhaps ten years ago, with hand screws for elevating the muzzle. "Were they serviceable? The commandant was astonished at the question, and indeed it was rather indelicate. He took a wooden box off the breech to show us the touchhole ready for the match; and there, domiciled comfortably, were on one gun two toads and on the other three toads and a lizard!"—N. Y. Post.

Reward for Honesty.

In a small village just outside Nottingham a farm laborer went to the general store, which was kept by an old woman not overstocked with brains, and asked for "a pahnd o' bacon." The old lady produced the bacon and cut a piece off, but could not find the pound weight. "Oh, never mind t' pahnd weight," said he; "me fist just weighs a pahnd, so put ther bacon in t' scales." The woman confidently placed the bacon into one side of the scales, while the man put his fist into the other side, and of course took good care to have weight weight. While the woman was wrapping the bacon up the pound weight was found, and on seeing it the man said: "Nah you see if me fist don't just weigh a pahnd." The pound weight was accordingly put into one scale and the man's fist into the other, this time only just to balance. The old woman on seeing this said: "Wha, I never seed aught so near afore! Here's a red herrin' for thee honesty, me lad."—London Spare Moments.

After-Effects of the GRIP

Grip is a treacherous disease. You think it is cured and the slightest cold brings on a relapse.

Its victims are always left in a weakened condition—blood impure and impoverished; nerves shattered. Pneumonia, heart disease and nervous prostration are often the result.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will drive every trace of the poisonous germs from the system, build up and enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves. A trial will prove this. Read the evidence:

When the grip last visited this section Herman H. Eveler, of 811 W Main St., Jefferson, Mo., a well-known contractor and builder, was one of the victims, and he has since been troubled with the after-effects of the disease. A year ago his health began to fail, and he was obliged to discontinue work. That he lives to-day is almost a miracle. He says:

"I was troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and a general debility. My back also pained me severely.

"I tried one doctor after another and numerous remedies suggested by my friends, but without apparent benefit, and began to give up hope. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People extolled in a St. Louis paper, and after investigation decided to give them a trial.

"After using the first box I felt wonderfully relieved and was satisfied that the pills were putting me on the road to recovery. I bought two more boxes and continued taking them.

"After taking four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I am restored to good health. I feel like a new man, and having the will and energy of my former days returned, I am capable of transacting my business with increased ambition.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a wonderful medicine and any one suffering from the after-effects of the grip will find that these pills are the specific." H. H. EVELER.

SEAMEN DETEST PARSONS.

All Sorts of Calamities on Water Are Laid to the Presence of the Divines.

I have observed that merchant skippers, almost without exception, have a great dislike to having parsons aboard; navy men, owing to their respect for the queen's regulations, do not care to talk on the subject. The commanders of big liners are also rather shy about discussing the subject. I once wished one a pleasant voyage. "Pleasant voyage!" he retorted, savagely; "that's likely, ain't it, when there's three parsons shipped, and one of them a bishop?" Here his feelings became too much for him, and he called to the steward to refill the glasses. I was not surprised to hear that a cylinder blew off in the bay.

Sitting in my club one night, a skipper came in. I shook him by the hand and hoped he had had a good voyage. "Voyage!" he replied, in heartrending tones, "don't call it that. I've never had such a dog's time in my life. Got two parsons aboard at Sydney and another at King George's sound, and, blame me, if two missionaries did not join at Colombo! Sooner than sail with five parsons again I'll break an arm or leg and get put ashore."

But I see the prejudice in all glory one must talk to the masters of ocean tramps. I have known of one case in which a skipper feigned serious illness sooner than take command when he found that five missionaries were booked as passengers, and two of them ladies. As it happened, the ship had a particularly bad voyage, and the unlucky missionaries had more than one very narrow squeak for their lives.

Once a case was quoted to me as showing great presence of mind and seamanship on the part of the skipper. The ship had a couple of parsons aboard, and, as the crew expected, the voyage was disastrous. The misfortunes culminated in the decks being swept and three men washed overboard. One was a parson, who ought to have been below. After this, the weather suddenly abated and the ship came safe to land. I remarked that the parson ought to have been under hatches. "Ah!" replied the old seadog who told me, "Cap'n Snooks is a good man. He talked it over with the mates, and there seemed nothing else to be done. So they got him up on purpose. Better one man than a whole company, and the parson ought to have been prepared, while it warn't in reason that the whole crew should be."

I have noticed that it was among the officers of boats trading to the West Africa coast that the prejudice against parsonic passengers is strongest. I was on a ship down the coast, and one night, when chatting with the skipper, he said his vessel had never had a serious mishap. This is how he accounted for it: "The ship is a beauty," he said, "and as soon as she was launched I foresaw the necessity of her getting a bad name among parsons and such like. As luck would have it on her first voyage a missionary shipped. All the other passengers left at the Canaries. Of course we had bad weather, and he had a bad voyage. I mentioned it to the chief officer and he tipped a wink to the steward, who, I fancy, said a word to the cook. When we put him ashore he was as thin as a herring and he made a lot of complaints and threatened to write to the owners. All I said was that I hoped he would do his duty to the poor heathen as well as I had done mine to my owners. But he talked ashore and he wrote to his society, and my ship's been avoided like the plague by parsons ever since, and that's how it is I've been so lucky."

On the return voyage, however, as it happened, at one port he had to take on board a lady missionary whose health had broken down. The weather was very nasty indeed, still the vessel arrived in the Thames without any serious disaster. Oddly enough, he was compelled to take out a couple of parsons the very next voyage, and the ship got ashore and became a total wreck, no lives, however, being lost. Skippers have told me that, danger apart, parsons are not desirable passengers; they interfere so much. One told me that the wife of one clerical gentleman insisted on holding little religious conversations with the stewards and the crew, and giving them tracts till he nearly had a mutiny. At length he found her trying to improve the moral condition of the steersman, when he threatened that if he caught her abaft the funnel again he would put her in irons, after which she subsided.

I have often had ludicrous stories of parsonic interference told me. One man gravely remonstrated with the skipper for working on Sundays, and wanted him to send all the men aft for a service. The skipper told him he was quite welcome to hold the service, and that the sailors who were not in their bunks or otherwise engaged might go. "Did they?" I asked. "I'd like to have seen them!" he replied, grimly; "I kept them too thundering busy. The parson waited an hour and a half and as no one went he gave it up and never tried again."—London Church Gazette.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

THANKFUL TO MRS. PINKHAM.

Earnest Words From Women Who Have Been Relieved of Backache —Mrs. Pinkham Warns Against Neglect.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been thankful a thousand times, since I wrote you, for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I followed your advice carefully, and now I feel like a different person. My troubles were backache, headache, nervous tired feeling, painful menstruation and leucorrhœa.

I took four bottles of Vegetable Compound, one box of Liver Pills, and used one package of Sanative Wash, and am now well. I thank you again for the good you have done for me.—ELLA E. BRENNER, East Rochester, Ohio.

Great numbers of such letters as the above are constantly being received by Mrs. Pinkham from women who owe their health and happiness to her advice and medicine.

Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass. Her advice is offered free to all suffering women who are puzzled about themselves.

If you have backache don't neglect it, or try heroically to "work it down," you must reach the root of the trouble, and nothing will do this so safely and surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Backache is accompanied by a lot of other aches and wearying sensations, but they nearly always come from the same source. Remove the cause of these distressing things, and you become well and strong. Mrs. S. J. SWANSON, of Gibson City, Ill., tells her experience in the following letter:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before using your medicine I was troubled with headache and my back ached so that I could not rest. Your medicine is the best I have ever used: it has relieved me of my troubles, and I feel like myself again. Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham.

"I would advise any one troubled with female weakness to take your medicine. I shall also recommend it wherever I can as a great reliever of pain."

A Million Women Have Been Benefited by Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Medicine

If dame rumor is correct, we will have another wedding to report next week.

Wm. Phillips will move in Will Beemon's house near Gunpowder, on the first of March.

George Rice has rented of Albert Beemon his farm on the North Bend road and will move there in the spring.

Robert Houston, who was confined to his bed with a severe attack of grippe for the past week, is improving slowly.

Married, at the Lutheran Parsonage, near Florence, Jan. 25, Mr. Roland Rouse and Miss Una Utz. We extend our congratulations and wish them a long and happy life.

Mr. Harrison Clore and wife, Mrs. C. T. Davis, and Miss Myrtle Beall, of Hebron, your correspondent and family, of Gunpowder, ate turkey with J. C. Hankins on the 23d. I suppose this event ends the xmas festivities for the season.

The death angel has visited our community again, and taken from our midst our friend Everett Rouse. He has, for several years, been a sufferer of that terrible disease, Epilepsy, and was called to his final reward, Jan. 27 at the age of 25 years. He was a dutiful son, and while he was deprived of many pleasures of this life, he seemed to be contented with his lot, and bore all of his sufferings very patiently. He fully realized the great care and anxiety of his father, and for this reason only he would sometimes become despondent and wish that his life could end and relieve his father of that care. Every available remedy was procured with the hope that he might be restored, but there seemed to be no cure for him. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Lentz, at Hopeful church, last Saturday, after which deceased was interred in the Hopeful cemetery in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends.

Gainesville.

Since your Bullittsville correspondent has withdrawn from your staff of reporters and left the field open that he has occupied, for some one else to enter, and since our little hamlet was included in that field, we have concluded, with your permission, to take up the work he has laid down and very humbly try to carry it out. We will understood, however, that if he should be induced to reconsider and return to his position as your correspondent from Bullittsville, we will gladly withdraw from the territory he formerly occupied and leave him in undisputed possession so far as we are concerned.

We wish, also, to say to our Utzinger reporter that we have no intention of trespassing upon his rights. We only intend to write about one letter a month and devote our letters to society and politics. We propose to leave all local news to Bro. R. E. Porter to report.

Since this is the first letter from Gainesville, we wish to tell your readers something of our little hamlet. In a late issue of our paper your Utzinger correspondent told you how remarkably the number 5 figured in both its natural and developed states, with its five streamlets, five roads, five families with five vocations and five different firms having conducted its mercantile business. This picturesque little hamlet is Gainesville, but its post-office is called Utzinger. We propose to take this as center and like the Bullittsville correspondent, inscribe a circle with a radius of three miles. It will leave the little village of Bullittsville, on the outer border of our circle, but being an expansionist to, we are willing to annex it in our reports until it can procure another reporter.

Since the American people are, today, agitating their minds on a subject of far reaching magnitude both from a geographical and political standpoint, and since we know you to be a man of fair and liberal views, every ready to lend the space in your paper for the discussion of every question that interests the whole people, and since this question of annexation and expansion is not, as yet, a political question confined to any party, but is arraying our people regardless of party ties and party lines into two sharply defined bodies, we have concluded to ask permission to present our views upon these questions.

The great question is what shall we do with the Philippines—shall we set its people free—shall we return the islands to Spain or shall we hold them by right of acquisition? These are the questions interesting the American people to-day, and it is the duty of every intelligent citizen to inform himself upon these questions. We are studying these questions and are willing to lend such light as we may gain to the readers of your paper.

To surrender the Philippines means to give the whole idea of American commercial and political expansion a staggering blow square between the eyes. It means to seal up America and turn back the dial of human progress a thousand years. Unless we hold the Philippines we gain nothing from the late war, for the expenditures of lives and money that we have made. It is true we gained the small island of Porto Rico, which is comparatively valueless save as a coaling station. Spain being practically bankrupt no money indemnity is required. Some of our Don Quixotic statesmen think that we are sufficiently repaid for the sufferings and expenditures of the late war by the grant of freedom to the people of the Philippines from Spanish tyranny. This we deem the highest type of sentimental folly and will end in a very costly indulgence of hysteria. Away with such sentimentalism. Let us hold what the exigency of the war has given. Let no man be ashamed to say he is an expansionist, that he is for greater markets, increased trade and a world enveloping commerce. By holding to the Philippines we gain a footing in the east, and open a market for the vast products of this overproducing country of ours, for where ever the American flag goes trade is sure to follow.

China, with her import trade of over three hundred millions, is inviting us to take our share of this trade. England to day commands about 75 per cent. of it, but let us once establish our claim upon the Philippines, being a near neighbor we will deprive England of a portion of this. Let us expand our merchant marine system by employing our own vessels for our exports and imports—expand our trade—expand our markets and expand our commerce all over the world.

Petersburg.

Hogs cholera here Saturday morning.

Miss Gracie Grant is visiting her uncle and cousin in Louisville.

John Craig, of St. Louis, Mo., is visiting his sister, Mrs. Carson.

Dr. Weindel, of Patriot, Indiana, was visiting his parents here Thursday.

Several tow-boats had to lay up here Friday on account of the high water.

J. I. Wingate and wife, of Aurora, were visiting his parents, Saturday and Sunday.

Frank Smith went to Ludlow, one day last week, to see his mother who is very sick.

Capt. N. B. McNeely, of New Orleans, was visiting his sister here, one day last week.

J. M. Thompson was at home Sunday but returned to Burnside on Monday to buy stock.

The venerable Peter Hartman, of the Lawrenceburg ferry, is still in very feeble health.

High wind the other day, blew part of the iron roof off M. F. Wingate's tobacco warehouse.

Fully one hundred persons were skating on the big pond just below town, Saturday evening.

Nelson Smith Weaver, of the aerial heights of Garrison, attended church here, Saturday night.

Elder Buck, of Warsaw, preached at the Christian church, last Saturday night and Sunday.

Hubert Cox, who went to Tennessee, has returned home. Hube says old Kentucky is good enough for him.

Capt. Wright and wife, of Lawrenceburg, were the guests of Hon. T. B. Matthews and wife, Sunday.

Geo. R. Berkshire is confined to his room with sickness, much to the regret of his numerous friends in town.

Jack McWethy has returned to his home at Greencastle, much to the regret of a certain young lady in town.

Rev. J. W. Harris has been confined to his room with sickness for several weeks. He was able to be out Sunday.

Miss Annie Weindel has returned from a visit to her brother, the Doctor, who has a big practice at Patriot, Ind.

W. T. Stotz is authority for the statement that Geo. R. Berkshire is a candidate for the legislature on the free pike platform.

Since the dry-bones of this vicinity have been given such a shaking, a citizen of Gasburg sleeps with his bible under his head.

Paris B. Parker, son of Elijah Parker, of Gasburg, is assistant book-keeper for Early & Daniels, the Cincinnati hay and grain dealers.

Julius H. Hoffman and Miss Lou Cook were married by the Rev. Leslie Early, last Thursday evening at 6:30 p. m. Our best, Dennis.

Miss Jennie Fleek, grown daughter of Mathew Fleek, died of typhoid fever one day last week. The remains were buried here, last Sunday.

D. B. Hoffman, Stephen McWethy, Harry Lyons, Fleet Hoffman, Will Mahan and Lafe Helms coopers are working in the shops at Lawrenceburg.

The wind blew a straw stack down on three of J. I. McWethy's cattle and when the straw was taken off they were so exhausted they could not stand up.

Mrs. Peak, who lives on F. S. Smith's farm, was stricken with the grippe, Friday at noon and remained unconscious for several hours. It affected her heart.

The Workum was caught in a wind-storm the other day and the waves rolled over both decks, scaring some of the lady passengers so badly that they went down on their knees in prayer.

Boone is entitled to the next State Senator from this Senatorial District and Petersburg will present a candidate in the person of Hon. N. S. Walton, who stands with both feet on the Chicago platform.

The postmaster respectfully submits the information and solicits attention to the fact that all important mail matter (registery and money order business) should be deposited in the office at least half hour before mail time or by 8:30 a. m., and 3 p. m.

Everett Helms and wife saw the strange lights south of town one night last week. They seemed to be in great confusion or engaged in a deadly conflict, and some think it an apparition of William Tanner and the Indians whom the savages captured here in pioneer days.

Some persons seem to think that we should have a communication from here every week. If talking was news, we could fill the entire page devoted to neighborhood news, each week, and as we have said heretofore we don't deal in scandal and don't want to hear it, let alone ask me to write up the faults of your neighbors. We are always glad to receive any items of news.

John Collier, deck hand on the Workum, got left at Cincinnati Friday, so he took deck passage on the Lizzie Bay for home later on, and told the mate to wake him up when they got to Pete. The mate was as good as his word, and when the boat stopped the mate whacked John over the head with a big stick, cutting an ugly gash over his eye. It woke John up in a dazed condition and he went at the mate rough shod and kicked and bit him all over. Bones looks like he had been fast in a barbed wire fence.

Rev. W. G. Cram, of Williamstown, and nephew of Judge C. C. Cram, who is well known to nearly every one in Boone county, is conducting a protracted meeting at the Methodist church. The church is crowded every night and interest in the meeting seems to be growing, and the flights of his theological oratory fills the very soul with spiritual ecstacies. His sermons are on the line of faith, love and mercy; and his sermon on the "Prodigal Son," last Tuesday, was one of the best ever heard in the town. Up to this time (Sunday) ten persons have united with the church:—Miss Belle House, Miss Carrie Thomasson, Mr. Blackburn and wife, Mrs. Orlando Snyder, Miss Mary Snyder, Miss May Thompson, Mrs. Ida Thompson, Miss Nettie Cave, Miss Alice Pease. The meeting will continue sometime yet and the name of those uniting will be sent to the RECORDER.

Union.

Robert Newnan will move to the Harter farm.

The masons are figuring for a new roof on their hall.

Clarence Tanner's residence, near Frogtown, is about completed.

James Gatson and family will return to their home in the spring.

Mrs. Chas. Cleek spent several days, last week, with her grandfather in Erlanger.

J. W. Kennedy has been riding most every day for several weeks, buying tobacco.

Wm. Batterson, of Hebron, was walling and cementing a cistern for Noah Tanner, this week.

W. M. Rachut & Co., have made several improvements in their store—bolt cases, meal bins, &c.

J. W. Conner has employed Granville Rouse to build a line of wire fence across his front pastures.

Several members of Boone Union Lodge went to Erlanger, Saturday night, and initiated a nice time.

Granville Rouse will move to Union in the spring, and expects to build lots of wire fence next summer.

Wm. Terry, of Independence, returned home, one day last week, after a pleasant visit in Union. Ernest Clements accompanied him.

Certain parties in our town are desirous of knowing which is the shortest route to Guupowder—down the pike or around the creek? Can anyone tell?

Geo. Rue, after a serious rough and tumble with the grippe for several days, is out and hustling. Mr. Rue is a hard worker, and the people helped him promptly and freely when he got down, just as they will any man who will help himself.

Wm. Wilson, of Richwood, was the guest of Joseph Bristow, Saturday night, and left for Walton early Sunday morning with Warner Senlour, and said the only news that he could report was that Mrs. Mary Fields had bought the Harris property near Walton.

The Young Ladies' Club was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Smith, last Wednesday night. The cold was so intense that the attendance was not as large as usual, but all reported a jolly time. Amber puff with whipped cream were served. The next meeting will be with Miss Lilliau Corbin, on the 3d of February.

We were honored, Sunday morning, with a call from "Admiral Dewey." His highness dropped in on us unexpectedly and all of a sudden, but we did not lose our clothes over the matter, as heroes are ever-day affairs, and, besides, the winter winds had about torn our clothes for us. "The Admiral" came in, wagging his tail, and looking as cute and frisky as a battleship in action. He sat down on our best bandana grape-scooter, and swore he was a "pie-eater from Dunbar's Hill." Not being able to prove the Admiral's innocence, and taking it for granted that he was guilty, we gave him a bone, a kick and some "embalmed beef" for dinner, and forced him hence into the cold, cold world, where, to die by freezing is a job any man can hold independent, untrusted, unsyndicated and unhonored.

The "Blade Club" held a meeting at the sanctum of Prof. Collins, Friday night. The President called the Club to order and stated the object of the meeting. The principal object he said was to discuss and settle the question, viz: "Was Macedonia ever a State of Greece?" The Vice-President opened the debate by declaring the question a greasy and slippery one, but he would stand pat, and so will. The Secretary took issue with him, and said although Macedon might be a half brother to a mastodon, and a very large country, so to speak, yet it never was bigger than Greece, but was a part of it. The travelling editor of the U. B. said Macedonia had a clutch on furnishing kings for the Greeks, and that ended it. The President then appointed a committee to investigate, and explain to Mr. Harvey Walton the merits and demerits of the "Voshell Telescope," what it is like, &c., to report at the next meeting. The Club then adjourned.

Hathaway.

Mrs. Joe Riddell is much better.

W. L. Stephens and wife were guests of his parents, last Suuday week.

Some of the local tobacco raisers have begun to clear ground for cultivating in the weed.

Wm. Bondurant made a trip to Hamilton, last Sunday week to visit his father-in-law, Thos. Wilson.

George Rue passed through this neighborhood, last week, moving to Big Bone springs, where he expects to reside during this year.

Mrs. G. L. Smith, Cynthia Mason, Mrs. Maggie Rue, and J. K. Sebree, were guests of Mrs Cynthia White, one day last week.

Mrs. David Clements, Mrs. Mirtle Clements, Miss Essie Boggess, Arle Adams and Hattie Adams, were guests of Mrs. Emily Presser, last Tuesday.

Miss Nannie Conley, Miss Katie Ryle and James Conley, of Gallatin county, were visiting relatives and friends in this neighborhood, last week. Jim is one of the soldier boys that joined the U. S. volunteer army, a member of a Kentucky regiment, company E. He was sent to Porto Rico and has returned home on a 65 days furlough. He will be musteredout February 17th at Fort Thomas.

The greatest event of the season was the delightful party given by C. S. Smith and wife, on the evening of the 27th. Quite a crowd answered the invitations. The evening amusements consisted of parlor games until a late hour, when each and every one bid the host and hostess adieu, wishing to get again in the near future. Those present were Misses Nannie Conley, Katie Ryle, Essie Boggess, Grace Neal, Cora Quick, Minnie Sullivan, Ada Satchwell, Lona Williamson, Lula Ryle, Stella Rice, Minnie Ryle, Mary White, Pearl White, Percie Ryle, Ollie Rector, Eda McAtee, Annie Rector, Ethel Rector, Lena Rector, Lizzie Portwood, Bessie Pope, Annie Heusley, Leota Ryle; Messrs. Local News.

As J. M. Eddins was coming up the hill this side of Limaburg, one evening last week, he thought he heard the tinnabulations of sleigh bells, but as there was no snow on the ground he concluded he must be mistaken. It was only a minute until he heard them again and they continued to grow louder as he wondered what crazy person was out trying to sleighride under such adverse circumstances. In a short time he met Bert Rouse riding a horse that wore a string of bells, and as Bert is a rampant prohibitionist Mr. Eddins does not know how to account for his cutting such a caper.

The firm of J. J. Huey & Co., general merchants, at Bellevue, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Huey retiring. He has been South in search of a location. The firm at Bellevue has been doing a good business all along, having the full confidence of the people. Mr. Huey is not only a good business man, but a good man to have in the community, and the people among whom he shall cast his lot will find him a valuable acquisition.

John B. Graves, of Georgetown, has purchased from Robert Ford, of New York, the DeLong or Payne farm, one mile from Georgetown, on the Frankfort turnpike, containing 585 acres at $70 per acre. Mr. Ford bought this place a year or two ago at the same price. Mr. Ford owns 1,400 acres of Bourbon land and spends considerable time here. Mr. Graves is a son of the late Milton Graves of this county.

The following pupils were examined last Thursday by Supt. Vodiell and examiners Snyder and Collins for common school diplomas: Miss Anna Johnson, Walton; Misses Linda Pursiful, Ura McElroy, Lizzie Vest and Bernice Johnson, Verona; Harry B. McNeal, Constance; Virgie Johnson, Beaver; M. L. Clayton and Miss Katharine Clayton, Hebron; Miss Sue G. McWethy, Petersburg.

Another trust has been organized. This contemplates controlling the vegetable market. The parties are Attorney Sidney Gaines and Sheriff Beall. To prepare for business they sent to the city last week for 50 feet of lumber and two sash for constructing hot-beds.

The people of Bellevue and vicinity are very anxious for the electric railroad down the river to Rising Sun to be a go. It is said a car will leave Rising Sun every hour, if the road is built, and this would put the Bellevue people in close connection with Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hughes entertained several of their friends at euchre at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. Riddell, last Friday evening. About ten o'clock refreshments were served. There were six tables and the game was continued until midnight.

The business portion of Independence was destroyed by fire one day last week. Among the buildings burnt was the new Odd-Fellows' building that was built at a cost of $3,000. It was insured for $1,600.

James Clore is willing to acknowledge the correctness of the weather predictions as set forth by Elmer Beall's calendar, and will not put up the cigars against it again.

On account of the bad weather Crisler & Webb had to suspend work on their building, the dedication of which can not now be had at as early a date as was intended.

This is the month in which there is to be a great deal of bad weather, according to the predictions of some who pretend to have a fore-knowledge on that subject.

Those indebted to me will please come forward and settle. I need the money. R. S. CRISLER.

Rev. Thomas McGrady will deliver his lecture, entitled "Egan and She," at St. Paul's Catholic church in Florence, at 7:30 p. m., Sunday, February 26.

Prof. Grady's school closed out one week shy of five months. The supply of fuel was exhausted, and the patrons refused to furnish any more.

We are glad to hear that Hubert Rouse's little boy that had meningitis so badly is improving, with every indication of ultimate recovery.

Now is the time to be building plant beds if you expect to raise tobacco this year. Have them ready to burn as soon as the weather suits.

Miss Frances Poland has moved her school to the public school house, where she is prepared to accommodate any number of pupils.

Elmer Beall has a calendar that names the weather of each day, and it has secured his confidence until he will swear by it.

Dr. Furnish and wife entertained a number of their friends one night last week. Numerous parlor games were indulged in.

The weather during the month of January has not advanced the fruit buds so as to endanger the coming crop.

January concluded its 1899 career with first class winter weather, and a pretty good quality of ice was made.

Correspondents will please bear in mind not to spell grippe with a capital G—its too common.

John Hogan bought several crops of tobacco, last week, paying from $2½ to $7 per 100 pounds.

Miss Mamie Gordon is visiting her grandfather at Ludlow.

Prof. Thomas, of Verona, was in town a day or two, last week.

Miss Mary A. Thompson began teaching school here last Monday.

J. E. Rouse and wife were visiting at O. P. Couner's Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. Hoover went to Harrodsburg, last Friday, to attend a Baptist meeting.

Rev. Hoover and Atty. Castleman made a business trip to Cincinnati, last Friday.

Mr. S. W. Tolin purchased a handsome piano, last week, for his little daughter.

Edwin Gaines returned, last week, from a visit to his mother and sister in Louisville.

Tony Bentler arrived home, last Saturday, after a sojourn of four weeks at Marysville, Ohio.

Misses Inez and Kittie Gaines entertained, last Saturday evening, with a musicale and cards.

Miss Fannie Bruce entertained very handsomely several of her young friends, last Saturday.

Johnnie Hogan, of Bullittsville, was out looking at tobacco last week, and purchased several crops.

Dr. Furnish left Monday to visit his mother in Owen county. He will be at home to day (Wednesday).

Leonard Kite and wife, of Waterloo, were visiting Mrs. Kite's father and sister, of this place, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. M. M. Terrill and Miss Lue Mc Wethy, of Petersburg, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George White, a day or two, last week.

Mrs. Maud Williams, who has been visiting her mother and sister at this place for several weeks, returned to Indianapolis, last week.

Mrs. J. J. Cleek, of the Union neighborhood, who has been a great sufferer of inflammatory rheumatism this winter, is getting better.

Mrs. John W. Gaines, of Utzinger, and her guest, Miss Leech, of Verona, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Judge Roberts, one day last week.

Mr. Chas. W. Hanna, of Bristol, Tennessee, was visiting County Clerk Adams and wife, last week. Mr. Hanna's first wife was a sister of Mrs. Adams.

Miss Olga Kirkpatrick sprained one of her ankles badly, last Saturday night, when getting out of the buggy after returning from the party at G. T. Gaines,' and she has not been able to be at the postoffice since.

J. M. Lassing returned, last Thursday, from his trip to Tennessee and North Carolina. While in Chattanooga he called on E. Y. Chapin, one evening and while he and the family were at supper, a thief entered the hall and stole his overcoat and hat and an overcoat belonging to Mr. Chapin.

Elbert Ryle, son of Richard Ryle, who use to live in this neighborhood, won one of the scholarships offered by Nelson's Business College for the five pupils in the three cities, Cincinnati, Covington and Newport, who received the highest per cent. at an examination held on the 31st of last December. Young Ryle is a pupil at Woodward High School.

County attorney Lassing went to Big Bone, last Saturday, to prosecute John Grimsley, Ed Snow and James Hoffman on a charge of disturbing religious worship at that place not long since. The trial was before Esquire Noell. It was developed that in the disturbance Ed Snow was acting on the defensive, while Jim Hoffman was endeavoring to quiet the disturbance, consequently they were found not guilty, but John Grimsley, was proven to be the offender, and was fined $20 and costs, and late Saturday afternoon he was lodged in jail by constable Aylor, where he will "lay out" the fine and costs. Grimsley is a boy about 16 years old.

Much credit is due Charles Schramm for inducing his personal friend, Congressman Berry, to lend his influence toward securing an appropriation for the levee.—All the old stockholders but two of the Lawrenceburg Agricultural Association met Monday afternoon and organized a new association, officered as follows: W. H. O'Brien, president; Victor Oberting, vice-president; H. L. Nowling, secretary, Charles Schramm, treasurer. Under this management and with favorable conditions there is no reason why the fair should not be a success. The new association is to pay the old one $1,500 to liquidate its existing indebtedness. The date of the next fair has not been decided. The managers propose to give the people, a clean exhibition, free from gambling and immoral shows.—Lawrenceburg Press.

The report reached this office that our Moundfield Farm correspondent had an experience a few nights ago, which he failed to mention last week. It is said that his favorite Beagle kept him awake one night not long since by constant and vigorous baying, until he was convinced that the faithful dog saw some person about the premises. Springing from bed he got his never-failing-to-fire shotgun, and went forth to investigate. Upon opening the door he saw an object he thought was a man, at whom he took deadly aim and discharged both barrels of the fowling piece. As the object remained motionless and perfectly unconcerned after having received the contents of both barrels of the gun, the investigation was continued, and you can imagine the surprise of our friend when he found that every shot in the two charges had perforated his brand new buggy top, making it look like a selve. That Beagle is not in good standing at Mound Field Farm now.

CURES PILES

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Gaines' pleasant home, a mile out on the Petersburg pike, was the scene of a most delightful party, last Saturday night. There are no better entertainers than Mr. and Mrs. Gaines and their two daughters, Misses Inez and Kittie, and their son, Hubert, and when an announcement that they will entertain at a certain time is made, all grow impatient for the date to arrive. Saturday night their hospitable home was thrown open to the very large crowd that assembled at an early hour, and not until midnight was there a cessation in the music and numerous parlor games that made the occasion one of unusual pleasure. During the evening refreshments were served, in fact, nothing was overlooked by the host and hostess and their able assistants, the son and daughters, that was calculated to contribute to the comfort and pleasure of their guests.

Mrs. Mary Ann Stephens, wife of Elder E. Stephens, of Erlanger, whose death was mentioned last week, was a daughter of the late Henry Aylor, of this county, and was born on the 22d day of September, 1818. She was married to Elder E. Stephens March 19th, 1835, and to them was born one child, N. B. Stepheus, of Erlanger. She united with the Primitive Baptist Church, January 30th, 1842, and was baptized on the second Saturday in the February following, she having been a member of the church nearly 57 years at the time she departed this life, January 22, 1899, being 80 years and 4 months old. Her married life covered the long period of 63 years, 9 months and 27 days. After a long, industrious and God-loving life she passed away without a groan or a struggle. In the death of Mrs. Stephens the aged husband loses a devoted and faithful wife; the son, a loving mother; the grand children, an affectionate grandmother; the church, a useful member, and the community in which she lived, a most useful lady. It is believed by the household of faithful that our loss is her eternal gain.

To-morrow is ground-hog day.

Order of Reference.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

John H. Otten's Exr., &c., Plff.
vs
Philipeua Otten, widow, &c. Defts.

This cause is now referred to J. W. Duncan, Master Commissioner of the Boone Circuit Court, under sections 430 and 431, Civil Code of Practice, with the following instructions, to-wit:

1. He will audit and settle the account of the administrator.

2. He will ascertain and report the amount of indebtedness found against decedents estate and report same.

3. He will report what real estate the decedent owned at the time of his death, where situated, how encumbered if at all, and its probable value.

4. He will give due notice of the time and place of his sittings and report all of his acts hereunder at the next term of said court.

Witness my hand as clerk of said court, this January 30th, 1899.

J. W. DUNCAN, Clerk B. C. C.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 2d day of February, 1899, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause, and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 5th day of April, 1899. All persons having claims against said estate will present them to me properly proven according to law.

J. W. DUNCAN, Master Com.

NOTICE.

By mutual consent the firm of J. J. Huey & Co., doing business at Bellevue, Boone county, Ky., has been dissolved, and all those owing said firm are hereby requested to settle their accounts on or before the 10th day of February, 1899, as the old firm desires to make a full and complete settlement with its members by that date.

A TRUST of the principal American manufacturers of church, school, opera house and courthouse furniture is to be formed in a few days. It will include 38 large concerns of this character and the National and Indiana church furniture factories of Indianapolis are to be absorbed.

FRANCE has paid its last pension to Napoleon I.'s soldiers. In 1869 a law was passed granting $50 a year to all non-commissioned officers and privates who had served ten years in the armies of the first republic or of the first empire and had received a wound. For the first year the payments amounted to $600,000; last year the sum was $50; and the last recipient is now dead at the age of 105 years.

THE conduit system of Blackpool which has been in service for 12 or 13 years, is now being converted to a trolley line. This change was brought about by investigating the power consumption. Under favorable conditions not less than 45 per cent. of the current leaked into the ground. This caused a yearly loss of $11,000, which in two years will pay for the cost of the necessary changes.

JOHN G. LEWIS, colored, who was the other day confirmed by the senate as receiver of public moneys for the Natchitoches district, Louisiana, declares that he was not an applicant for the position and will not qualify. He states that he is living at peace with the white people of his section and has no desire to cause any rupture between the races by accepting an office which would be distasteful to the white people.

THE buran, or snow hurricane of the Pamir, is a meteorological phenomenon of great interest. Even in midsummer the temperature during a snow buran frequently falls to 14 degrees Fahrenheit, while in the winter of 1892-93 it dropped to 45 degrees below zero at the end of January. The buran comes with startling suddenness, the atmosphere growing dark with whirling snowflakes where scarcely a minute before the sky was perfectly clear.

THOMAS SMITH, consul at Moscow, reports that the Russian ministry of the interior is at present considering the question of constructing a network of electric railways in Riga. The town corporation has taken this matter in hand. The ministry has expressed its willingness to support the town by allowing a loan for the above purpose on profitable conditions. The general cost of constructing the electric roads in Riga has been determined at 1,600,000 rubles, or $800,000.

ONE, M. REVERDY, recently left 3,000 francs to be given to the man who was the father of the largest family in Paris. A condition of the legacy was that the children should have been properly cared for and brought up by their parents. The Paris municipal council, the trustees named by the testator, awarded the 3,000 francs to a shoemaker of the name of Vandenbruck, who is the father of 14 children, seven sons and seven daughters, the eldest of whom is 20 and the youngest 3.

IN the list of artistic treasures owned by the late Baron Rothschild, just published, mention is made of a "Fitzwilliam clock." This is the famous Louis XIV. clock, which for generations was one of the most valued heirlooms at Milton hall, near Peterborough. It is said to have been sold to Baron Rothschild by Mr. G. C. W. Fitzwilliam, the present squire of Milton, for £40,000. An exact fac simile, however, which is said to have cost £1,000, now stands in Milton hall, in the position where the original clock stood.

LONDON has suddenly found itself in possession of a cheap and inexhaustible supply of pure water, the existence of which it had never suspected. Walter Moseley, the engineer of the London county council, has informed that body that underneath London is an immense lake of pure, cold water, in a chalk basin 2,500 square miles in extent and 100 feet below the surface of the ground. The annual rainfall that sinks below to the lake is at least 280,000,000,000 gallons, which would give a daily yield of 7,065,000,000 gallons. It is believed this discovery will forever put an end to the old vexed question of London's water supply.

THE legislature of Australia has passed an act to protect the great emu from the depredations of hunters. The bird is still plentiful in many parts of the country, but the species is gradually becoming extinct. In days gone by the "bushmen" and the wild dogs were the bugbears of the emu's existence, but they have been supplanted by a more inveterate enemy, the white man, who is trying to exterminate this valuable member of the feathered kingdom with the assistance of kangaroo dogs. They are hunted and slaughtered with just as much unconcern as were the buffaloes in the west.

BOSTON CHOSEN.

The National Association of Manufacturers Adjourn To Meet at the Hub.

President Search and the Other Officers Were Re-Elected—The Headquarters To Remain in Philadelphia, With Branches.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27.—The fourth annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers adjourned Thursday night to meet next January in Boston.

This has been the largest and most important annual meeting in the history of the association. It is said to represent now more capital than any other organization in the country not excepting the National Association of Bankers.

It has been organized only a few years, and if its growth continues as it has done the past four years, it will be the strongest organization of invested interests in existence. A movement was inaugurated at this convention to increase the revenues so that the association will have agencies with warehouses in all parts of the world. The association was organized here four years ago, and at this meeting it was practically reorganized so as to include a much larger membership at home and also many more agencies in foreign countries for the disposal of American wares. President Search and the other officers who have had experience in their respective business, were re-elected and the headquarters remain in Philadelphia with branch offices in New York, Boston, Chicago and Cincinnati. The enlargement of the scope of the association, as well as of the membership and its revenue, is largely due to President Search, who expects to see this organization become one of the most powerful ones that was ever known.

NATHAN SCOTT MUST FIGHT.

McGraw Will Contest His Election as Senator—Claims Two Legislators Voted Illegally.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 27.—The republicans here seem very well pleased over the election of Hon. N. B. Scott to the United States senate. Most of the party leaders have gone home. Senator Elkins, Senator-elect Scott, and Congressmen Dayton and Dovener left Wednesday night for Washington.

The democrats propose to contest the matter in the United States senate on the ground that two senators voted for Scott who are not entitled to their seats. These are the two war senators, Gezandanner and Pierson.

John T. McGraw, the democratic nominee for senator, in an interview, says he proposes to have the matter tested before the proper tribunal. He says that no one was elected Wednesday. The vote was: Scott, 48; McGraw, 46; Goff, 1. Another point raised by McGraw is the fact that part of the state was disfranchised and not allowed to vote.

OPPOSITION TO EXPANSION.

Texas Legislature Kills a Resolution Instructing Texas Representatives to Vote for the Ratification of the Treaty.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 27.—The house committee on federal relations Thursday killed a resolution calling on the Texas congressmen and senators to vote for the ratification of the treaty of peace made at Paris, and further requesting them to vote to give freedom and independence to the island of Cuba, coupled with the provision that the Philippine islanders be given independence as soon as practicable by their bonding themselves and reimbursing the United States for the cost of the war.

PROMPT ACTION IS NEEDED.

President McKinley Says That the Question of the Disposal of the Peace Treaty Should Not Be Prolonged.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The president talked with a number of callers from congress Thursday about the peace treaty. He expressed his satisfaction that an agreement had been reached for a vote and expressed confidence in the result. The president told his callers there was need for prompt action and said that the present situation was one that should not be prolonged. Senators Gray, Lodge and Lindsay were among the senatorial callers.

The President Will Be Present.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—President McKinley has consented to be present on the occasion of the laying of the cornerstone of the new Chicago post office on Chicago day, October 9, next. It is probable that several members of the cabinet will accompany him.

Old Man Indicted.

CANTON, O., Jan. 27.—The grand jury Thursday made its final return. Three indictments against Robert Gibson were returned and three against old man Reamer, charging assaults upon little girls. Though other names have been mentioned in connection with the cases, no indictments were found save those reported.

Col. Sexton Better.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Col. James A. Sexton was reported to be in a little better condition Thursday morning

THE NAVAL PERSONNEL BILL.

Senate Committee on Naval Affairs Reported the Measure to the Senate—Several Amendments Offered.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The senate committee on naval affairs, through its chairman, Senator Hale, reported the naval personnel bill. Several amendments were suggested in committee, the most important of which follow:

A proviso is added to Section 7 giving to each of the rear admirals embraced in the nine lower numbers the pay and allowance of a brigadier general of infantry in the army.

An officer filling the position of chief of a bureau is given the pay, but not the rank, of a commodore. The provision giving a captain in command of a squadron the pay of a commodore is stricken out. Several amendments are made to the provision for the retirement of officers, but they are largely technical. In this connection the authority to the president to appoint additional ensigns and lieutenants in the navy is continued for two years.

The house provision for a judge advocate corps is eliminated from the bill, as was also the provision giving retired officers who served during the civil war, three-fourths of all the pay of the next highest grade, and also that giving students at the naval academy the rank of midshipman.

An amendment was added giving chaplains not now officers the rank of lieutenant. A proviso was inserted to the effect that after the vacancies in the marine corps now existing are filled there shall be no further appointments from civil life. The provision in the house bill giving senior officers of marines or fleets while so serving the next highest rank in the marine corps is stricken out.

SCOTT ELECTED SENATOR.

The Republicans in the West Virginia Legislature Have a Majority of Three on a Joint Ballot.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 26.—Scott was elected United States senator Wednesday in joint assembly. Scott received 48 votes, McGraw 46, Goff 1; necessary to elect, 48. One seat in the senate and one in the house were vacant. Hunt voted first for Blizzard and afterward changed his vote to Scott. The announcement was received with the wildest applause.

Both the senate and the house accepted the resolution postponing action in all fairly contested cases until February 7 and suspending Senator Baker in the meantime. This is the result of an agreement between the two parties and leaves the republicans a majority of three on a joint ballot.

Hon. Nathan Bay Scott was born in Guernsey county, O., in 1842. He enlisted in the union army and was mustered out in 1865, settling in Wheeling shortly afterward where he went to work as an employe of the Central Glass Co. In a short time he was employed as a manager, and soon afterward was selected president of the company, which position he filled for years. He served two years as president of the second branch of the city council of Wheeling. He was elected in 1882 as a member of the state senate, and again in 1886, serving eight years. In the last race he defeated Hon. John O. Pendleton in a strongly democratic district. Mr Pendleton being afterwards elected to congress. While a member of the senate he passed the mutual savings bank law of the state. For five years he was West Virginia's member of the republican national committee, and during the entire time was a member of the executive committee.

During the campaign of 1896 he was selected by President McKinley to serve with Gen. Powell Clayton and Vice President Hobart in the headquarters at New York city. In recognition of his services President McKinley appointed him commissioner of internal revenue, which position he filled with signal ability. He organized the first savings bank in the state of West Virginia, and is still president of that institution.

NEW OFFICE OF ADMIRAL.

Bill to Create the Position Offered in the House—Million Dollar Department of Justice Building Proposed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Hale reported favorably in the senate Wednesday the naval personnel bill with amendments, and asked that it be printed. Cullom reported the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, and said he would probably call it up Thursday.

Chandler introduced a bill creating the office of admiral of the navy and providing that the officer designated for this high honor shall not be retired except upon his own motion. It was referred to the naval affairs committee.

On motion of Quay, the senate passed a bill providing for a new building for the department of justice on the site of the present structure. To commence the building the sum of $1,000,000 is appropriated.

Cockrell did not think the old building should be torn down. Quay and Hoar said the present structure was old and unsafe. The walls were cracked and settling, and if something was not done there might be a repetition of the Ford's theater disaster.

A NERVY ROBBER

He Coolly Walks Into a London Bank and Takes a Parcel of Notes.

American Thieves Are Suspected of Having Been Concerned in the Theft—£40,000 in the Biggest Notes Were Returned.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The robbery of over £60,000 from Parr's bank in this city on Monday last, which has been the sensation of the week, took a dramatic turn Thursday when the chairman of the bank announced at a meeting of the shareholders that £40,000 in the biggest notes had been returned to the bank by post.

The robbery apparently was a most daring crime. The thief is supposed to have walked boldly behind the counter where there were over 100 clerks at work, opened a drawer from which he took a parcel of notes, and walked out of the bank undetected. American thieves are suspected of having been concerned in the theft as it is said several Americans were recently noticed loitering about the premises. The police are again utterly helpless. Thirty-six £1,000 notes and 22 £500 notes figured in the robbery. Most of these have now been returned, and the remainder of the notes are practically unnegotiable.

The chairman of the bank also announced that the Bank of England had promised to pay this amount, the £47,000, of which £40,000 had been returned. The remainder of the money was in notes of smaller amounts, which could be easily passed and might therefore be considered lost.

The shareholders greeted this unexpected announcement with enthusiasm, especially as it was accompanied by a declaration of a dividend of 19 per cent.

SUDDEN DEATH OF GARLAND.

The Ex-United States Attorney General Stricken With Apoplexy in the United States Supreme Court Room.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Former Attorney General Augustus H. Garland, was stricken with apoplexy while addressing the United States supreme court at 12:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and died within ten minutes. The occurrence came with startling and tragic unexpectedness, changing the usual calm and dignity of the court into temporary confusion, while the dying man was carried from the chamber in a futile effort to alleviate his condition.

When the court convened at noon Mr. Garland resumed an argument in the case of Towson vs. Moore, which had begun Thursday. There was a full bench, with the exception of Justices Brewer and White. Mr. Garland spoke calmly and with no evidences of agitation. He had read from a law volume and had followed with the sentence "This, your honors, is our contention." As the last word was uttered Mr. Garland was seen to raise his hand, and then gasp. He tottered and fell sidewise, striking against a chair and overturning it as he fell heavily to the floor. A succession of loud, deep gasps came from him as he lay on the floor. His associate in the case, Mr. Franklin Mackey, was at once by his side, and with other counsel and officials the head of the dying man was raised, his shoes removed and a draught of water given him.

A deathly pallor had overspread his face, and this soon gave way to a deep purple, which foretold the gravity of the attack. He was carried from the chamber across to the room of Chief Clerk McKenney, and there placed on a sofa.

A SENTRY KILLS A FILIPINO.

The Victim Was a Captain, and His Friends Started for Our Lines—One More Was Killed.

MANILA, Jan. 27.—An American sentry Wednesday evening killed a captain of Filipino artillery, at the Tonte outpost. As a result the native press is intensely excited, and denounces it as a "cowardly assassination."

On Saturday evening five Filipinos determined to have revenge for their captain's death, attempted to enter our lines. An American sentry killed one of them, who was armed with a revolver. After an exchange of shots the others were arrested. The incident has intensified the excitement.

Earthquake Shocks in Jamaica.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Jan. 27.—A severe earthquake shock which was felt throughout this island on Saturday morning was followed by another on Tuesday night, the direction being west to east. No damage has been reported. The northern West Indies are telegraphically cut off. The reason is unknown but in probability it is due to an earthquake.

STRIKE THE BLOW AT ONCE.

Agoncillo Reported To Have Prepared a Cable Message To Aguinaldo—Adm. Dewey and Gen. Otis Warned.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—When Agoncillo learned that the senate had set a day for voting on the ratification of the peace treaty he prepared a dispatch to the Filipino junta at Hong Kong, conveying the news, and is reported to have added the suggestion that if Aguinaldo was to forcibly contest American control he should strike the blow at once, as with the treaty ratified and further reinforcements the Americans would be in a better position to maintain order. This dispatch, it is said, was intercepted and brought to the attention of the president and Secretaries Alger and Long.

Neither secretary will discuss the accuracy of the statements, but both are said to have forwarded instructions to their representatives at Manila—Gen. Otis and Adm. Dewey—to forewarn them of Agoncillo's suggestions, which must be carried from Hong Kong to the Philippines by steamer, as the American forces are in control at the Manila end of the cable and are exercising a censorship.

There is no fates A[illegible] the part of the administration, as far as can be learned, to disturb Agoncillo or his associates, but their arrest or deportation would promptly follow the declaration of war against the United States by Aguinaldo and his associates.

Agoncillo, the representative of Aguinaldo, authorized the following statement Friday concerning a published report that the government had intercepted dispatches from him to Aguinaldo in which he advised that the Filipinos would have to fight for their independence and that now was the time to act:

"The statement is absolutely false, and is calculated to excite feeling and animosity in this country and to prejudice the Philippine cause. No such telegram has ever been sent by me, and for that reason no such telegram could have been intercepted. The falsity of the statement is shown by the fact that I have cabled my government to continue the same friendship which was born on the battlefield against Spain. The Filipino people have no wish and no purpose to fight against the Americans unless they are driven to it. Their only desire is to strengthen the bonds now existing."

There is great secrecy in the departments in regard to the Agoncillo cablegram question, the officials of the state department saying that the administration does not intend to notice Agoncillo in any way and answer his notes. The Filipinos at the Arlington, however, are in a very restless state. Dr. Lozano, who headed the Philippine delegation just arrived, is seriously ill with inflammatory rheumatism and is under the care of a trained nurse. His physician has forbidden him to transact any business, and he has not been able to advise or consult with his colleagues. Agoncillo, however, has had frequent consultations with the American lawyers who are advising him, together with several Spanish-Americans now in the city and is evidently expecting some developments at Manila. He has had consultations with the opposition senators and has learned from them that the ratification of the treaty now seems certain, and evidently from his conferences with these senators he has made up his mind that Aguinaldo must act now.

BOTH EXPIRED SUDDENLY.

Man and Wife, After Arriving Home From the Theater, Stricken Down, One With Heart Disease, Other With Apoplexy.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Emil Reuter, a wholesale flour dealer of Brooklyn, and his wife, Ida, died Thursday night. They had attended a theater and were on the way home when Mrs. Reuter fell to the sidewalk. She was carried into the house in front of which she had fallen, and doctors were called, but Mrs. Reuter was dead when they arrived. Reuter left to tell a friend of his wife's death and was re-entering the house in which her body lay when he was suddenly stricken down. The same doctors who had been summoned for Mrs. Reuter were called in, but again they were too late for Reuter was dead. Mrs. Reuter's death was caused by heart disease while her husband succumbed to apoplexy.

USELESS STRATAGEM.

A Smart Trick That Failed to Work Upon Some Fearless Stage Robbers.

"Yep, th' road agents used t' be purty reckless w'en I wuz drivin' stage way back in th' 70's," remarked Tank Wilson, reminiscently, "an' all kinds of schemes was put up t' threw them off'n the scent.

"Time was changed on all the stage routes, an' dummy mail bags an' express boxes were carried, but 'twan't no use.

"Th' wust case of hold-up I ever experiences was durin' th' smallpox scare. We was full of passengers, inside an' out, an every one 'f them carried a belt 'f gold dust. We had heerd that one new indevidooal had taken to th' road, an' tharfore makes our precautions.

"Of course, if six or seven men holds up a stage it ain't no use to fight, 'cause only one shows hisself an' all th' rest ambushes an' gits th' drop on you. Then they comes forrard an' takes your wealth.

"So we gets up a scheme. We knows road agents is purty much askeered 'f smallpox, so we takes along an ole tramp, wraps him up in bandages an' hangs out a yaller flag from th' roof 'f the stage.

"'Jest as we was pullin' out 'f a canyon we hears a feamiliar hail, an', of course, pulls up.

"'Wat's that yeller flag for?' asks a feller, with his Winchester at his cheek, a powerful big feller with a mask on.

"'Passenger's got th' smallpox!' I answers, in a warnin' tone.

"'Wal, all you passengers git out an' hol' your hen's up!' was the answer. 'Throw down them mail bags, an' that there express box!'

"Them willins took ev'ry bit 'f dust that wuz carried on the stage, an' then th' head villin thought a moment to hisself, an' then pulls th' band'ges off'n th' tramp. Then he grins, an' says somethin' t' one 'f his pardners, who pulls a small box out'n his pocket.

"Th' head villin then ranges his men where they could shoot us down 'f we moved, an' he dips his knife point in th' box an' then jabs it a half inch inter th' tramp's arm. He does th' same t' each an' ev'ry one 'f us an' then sez:

"'Now, there's no danger, gen'l'men. You're all vaccynated. As fer me an' my fren's, we ain't askeered 'f no smallpox. Ef we wuz t' remove these yere masks you would see we is all pockmarked.'"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

FOR PODUNK'S HOTEL.

Some Valuable Points About Putting Up a Cheap But Attractive Menu.

He winked familiarly at the landlord as he paid his bill and in a confidential tone remarked:

"I don't mind telling you that I am thinking of going into the hotel business myself for a change. Yes, sir, that's so! I've bought the biggest place for sale in Podunk, and mebbe you wouldn't mind telling me a few things about keeping a hotel—seein' you're right in the business. There's the menu, now; some little points on that might work. We don't know everything down in Podunk."

The landlord rubbed the bald spot on his brow and thought a moment.

"There's chicken en croquettes," he said; "chicken comes high this time of year."

"I see."

"Not one in a thousand can tell the difference between veal and chicken."

"Gee whillikens! There's a pointer to start with."

"Fried chicken costs money. Fried rabbit tastes like it, and the difference goes into your pocket."

"Golly, I'm gettin' rich already."

"Quail on toast reads fine on the menu. You don't suppose we folks in the city pamper our guests on real quail? Baby owls taste so much like quail you can't tell one from t'other. And out your way owls must be thick as pumpkins. Then there's beef. Of course you've heard of the hippophagous theory?"

"The—the w-h-a-t?"

"Click! click! Yes, old racers. You can buy them by the bunch of a hundred for a song."

The man from Podunk turned pale. "I guess I've got all the points I can remember at once, and if you ever come our way give me a call. Good day. Fried rabbit? Owls on toast! H-i-p-p-o. I reckon I'll call the line there. Great business, this hotel-keeping, anyhow."—Chicago Times-Herald.

DEFENSE BEGINS.

Tears Filled the Eyes of Gen. Eagan as He Testified in His Own Behalf.

"My Wife, My Children, Myself Disgraced," Said He—"I Was Burning Up Inside" When the Cause Words Were Spoken.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Eagan court-martial resumed its session at the Ebbitt house at 10:10 Thursday morning.

Gen. Eagan had arrived three minutes before. He looked pale and troubled. His eye, better than anything else, showed the strain under which he is laboring.

After several witnesses for the defense had testified Gen. Eagan himself took the stand. He stated his age was 58; detailed his connection with the army and brought out the important features of his record. He was wounded in the Modoc war and breveted a captain for it. He became commissary general May 4. In his official capacity he has expended between $19,000,000 and $20,000,000. Of his testimony before the war board he said:

"I was summoned before the board and gave my testimony under oath—preferably so—I wanted to appear before the board to refute Gen. Miles' statement and was called in response to my request, but was not given as much time to make my statement as I had desired.

"I had had a conversation with Secretary Alger. I told him that I desired to meet those charges that I was a murderer and a thief, but was told that Gen. Miles, under the president's promise, could not be reached.

"The interview with Gen. Miles, published in New York, nearly drove me crazy."

Here the voice of the witness broke, and with difficulty he restrained his tears.

"I sought to ascertain whether the president's immunity extended to such an interview, as well as to Gen. Miles' statement before the board. The matter is still in the hands of the adjutant general.

"The effect on me of the words, 'pretense of experiment,' was that it took away my character."

Again the voice of the witness became husky.

"I felt that I would be better dead in the gutter than in this position," he continued. "My wife, my children, myself disgraced! I did not know what to do. The intimation was that I had poisoned soldiers under pretense of an experiment. I had no redress. I believed the honor of a soldier should no more be impugned than the virtue of a woman."

A tear coursed down the cheek of the witness. He restrained himself with difficulty. He then continued dramatically:

"I wanted to hurl back the charges so that men might believe me. I thought of no disrespect. I only wanted men to know me honest. I believe they know it now. Before God, on the the honor of a man, never a cent from my office soiled my fingers. I have not money enough to-day," he said, turning to his attorney, "to pay you your fee.

"I could not eat, could not sleep. I could hardly restrain myself from doing what men did under such circumstances, when I was a boy. I went before the board feeling that I had to say something in such a way that the press and the people would believe me honest. I was burning up inside. The press had condemned me as corrupt, as a wholesale murderer for purposes of gain."

After a pause he continued: "That possessed my mind day and night. I had to get a little extension of time to complete my document. I was absorbed in vindicating myself. I was oblivious to all about me. I was talking to 70,000,000 people.

"I had been goaded and driven to death. I did not know until the document was returned to me that any objection had been made to any part of it. I then called in Col. Alexander and Col. Davis to help eliminate the matter complained of."

Attorney Worthington then stopped because of the absence of witnesses. Judge Advocate Davis was authorized to invite the secretary of war to appear Friday, and the court adjourned. It was evident that Eagan's testimony had made quite an impression. Wednesday they treated him formally; Thursday, at the conclusion of the court session, they pressed forward and a number shook him cordially by the hand.

COURT-MARTIAL FINDINGS.

Commissary General Eagan Dismissed From the United States Service—No Recommendation For Clemency.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The case of Commissary General Chas. P. Eagan, charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and with conduct tending to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, is now in the hands of the court martial appointed to try him. Friday the taking of testimony was closed and arguments of counsel submitted. The trial lasted three days and consumed less than eight hours of actual sitting.

A session behind closed doors of an hour or so sufficed for the court to reach a conclusion and embody it in a report. What the verdict was is altogether a matter of speculation and, officially, at least, will not be made public by the trial board, military regulations requiring that its finding shall go through prescribed channels and be kept secret until action be had and promulgated by the proper reviewing authorities.

The attendance at the court-martial was much larger Friday than at any other time since the trial began and among the spectators was a score or more of ladies. Several of them were friends of Gen. Eagan's daughter, who was called as a witness, while others were attracted by curiosity. The testimony at the closing session of the court was directed largely to establishing the fact that the general had lost his mental balance as a result of the charges made against him by Gen. Miles. His daughter and her husband told of the general's changed condition and intimated that they had great fears that he might any time kill his accuser. Mr. McKee, a life-long friend, stated that at that time he believed him actually insane. The facts in this connection were brought out strongly by Mr. Worthington, in his efforts to show that Gen. Eagan at times was wholly irresponsible.

A dramatic incident of the trial Friday was the testimony of the general's daughter, in which she described her father's appearance on the day he first read Gen. Miles' statement. Standing in the door of his house with the newspaper containing the evidence in his hand, he had exclaimed wildly: "I have been crucified by Gen. Miles."

Throughout the three days of the trial the members of the court sat in their places and attentively listened to every word of the testimony. Only on two or three occasions did they ask the witnesses any questions, and then an answer of yes, sir, or no, sir, sufficed. Where their sympathies were, or what was passing in their minds, was not disclosed by even the slightest change of expression.

Immediately upon the case being closed the room was ordered cleared and the court went into executive session to deliberate upon their findings.

Dismissal from the military service of the United States without any recommendation for clemency is the verdict passed by the court-martial upon Commissary General Eagan for his recent virulent attack upon Maj. Gen. Miles. The verdict was reached within 45 minutes after the trial was ended Friday.

Notwithstanding the nature of the court's conclusions, the president can exercise clemency if he so desires and Gen. Eagan's friends will urge that his punishment be confined to relieving him from the duties of commissary general of subsistence and to a detail to garrison duty.

GEN. GEO. S. GREENE DEAD.

Distinguished Commander in the Civil War Passed Away at His Home in Morristown, N. J., Saturday Morning.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Gen. George S. Greene died of old age at Morristown, N. J., at 1 o'clock Saturday morning. He leaves three sons, Gen. Francis V. Greene, G. J. Greene, jr., and Maj. Charles T. Greene, U. S. A. retired. He was graduated at the United States Military academy at West Point in 1823.

He served in various garrisons and as instructor at West Point until 1836, when he left the army and became a civil engineer, building many railroads. He entered the army in 1862 as colonel of the 60th New York regiment and was appointed brigadier general of volunteers April 28, 1862. He participated in the battle of Gettysburg, and was dangerously wounded in the battle near Chattanooga, disabling him until January, 1865, when he rejoined Sherman's army in North Carolina and participated in the engagements preceding Johnston's surrender.

He was breveted major general of volunteers March 13, 1865, and retired from the army in 1866.

FARMERS' PARTY

Illinois Organizations Declare for the Holding of a National Convention.

The Purpose is the Nomination and Election of Farmers as Members of Congress and State Legislatures—Declaration of Principles.

AVON, Ill., Jan. 26.—The conference of delegates from the farmers's organizations in Fulton, Warren and McDonough counties have declared for the holding of a national convention to form the national farmers' party. A committee was appointed with instructions to begin preparations at once for the event. As quickly as possible representatives will be appointed all through the United States. It is planned to hold the convention not later than the first week in March; Chicago being favored as the convention place.

Eldon W. Bradbury, who has been engaged in the work of organization, read this declaration of principles, which was adoptad without dissent:

"We hold that all men are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that it is to preserve these rights, that governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, and that whenever a government becomes destructive of these ends it is the duty of the people to alter or to abolish it and to adopt such measures as will insure their rights.

"We hold that the rule of minority classes is contrary to the spirit of our institutions and destructive to our rights.

"We hold that the only free and just government is that in which the law-making bodies are composed of direct representatives from such industries or occupations as have a majority of the votes in the congressional and legislative districts defined by our constitution and the laws of our states.

"With an abiding faith in the truth and justice of our belief we appeal to every farmer in the United States to join hands with us in effecting our purpose, which is the nomination and election of farmers as members of congress and farmers as members of our legislature. Agriculture being the chief industry in the United States the animosity and importance of our interests demand prompt and energetic action. To that end we urge an expression of opinion from farmers of this country as to the necessity of holding a convention at the earliest and most convenient time and place to discuss our condition and to adopt such measures and take such action as may seem necessary."

A brief discussion ensued over the proposition that the representation in the proposed national convention should be one delegate for each district sending a representative to the lower house of the legislature in the respective states.

A number of offers from farmers and labor organizations in various states addressed to A. W. Holeman, the original mover in the new organization, were read.

CLEMENCY IS RECOMMENDED.

Gen. Eagan Guilty of Conduct Unbecoming a Gentleman and Conduct Prejudicial to Good Order.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Gen. Eagan, commissary general of subsistence, has been found guilty of the charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and of conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline and of the specifications thereto, and has been sentenced to dismissal from the United States army, but with a recommendation from the court for the exercise of executive clemency. Under the regulations the court having reached the conclusion that the accused was guilty had no choice in selecting a penalty, the regulations prescribing absolutely the one punishment—dismissal—for the offense.

Therefore, the only hope for Gen. Eagan is in the direction of commutation, mitigation or disapproval.

Col. Davis, the judge advocate of the court-martial, finished his revision of the record of the court's proceedings Saturday afternoon and at once placed the papers in the hands of Secretary Alger.

This action settled at once any doubt that may have existed as to the routine to be pursued in the treatment of the case. As for Secretary Alger, as soon as he reads the record he will place it at once with the president, who, under the law, is the final reviewing authority. It is his privilege to add to or take from the strength of the court's recommendation that clemency be shown. The indications are that the papers will be in the president's hands early next week.

NEW BRITISH WAR VESSELS.

The Number Now Building is 119, Ranging From the Heaviest Battle Ships to Tiny Torpedo Boat Destroyers.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The recorded number of British war ships now building amounts to 119 vessels, ranging from the heaviest battle ships to the tiny torpedo boat destroyers, the figures being 16 first-class ironclads, 26 cruisers, 14 sloops and gunboats, and 53 torpedo boat destroyers. Chatham dock yard is credited with the unparalleled achievement of launching three of the heaviest battle ships from the same slip within ten months. The armored ships building at a cost of over £26,000,000, number 28, with a tonnage of over 350,000 tons, the number exceeding by two the entire Russian fleet of battle ships and treble the number of armored vessels in the American navy. The whole of these ships will be added to the effective strength of the British navy by March, 1903, while the first lord of the admiralty, Mr. George J. Goschen, in two months time, will ask the house of commons for credits to still further strengthen the British fleet.

AN ENTIRE FAMILY LOST.

In a Clinker Boat They Attempted to Cross Lake Erie to Canada—The Battered Boat Found.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—The Tribune's Toledo, O., special says:

The loss of an entire family in Lake Erie is reported here Sunday. On one of the islands in the Bass group lived a family named Robson. The family consisted of the father, mother, a daughter of 30, a son of 5 and a hired man, Henry M. Martel.

The little boy died and his parents determined to take the body back to Canada, whence they came. A clinker boat was used, the entire family starting on the perilous journey. The battered clinker boat has been found and the body of a woman reported found recently near Port Burrell, on the Canadian shore, is presumed to have been Mrs. Robson. The other bodies have not been found.

PANIC IN AN OMAHA THEATER

Large Bear Frenzied With an Ulcerated Tooth In Master Was Trying to Extract Escapes From Its Cage.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 30.—An enormous silver tip bear, frenzied with an ulcerated tooth, which its master was trying to extract, escaped from its cage in the Creighton theater Sunday and created a panic before being captured. In addition to frightening a number of persons, the big bear seriously hurt its master, Paul Batty, badly lacerated Stage Hand McDonald and tore the clothes of Jake Rosenthal, manager of the theater.

In the maze of scenery back of the stage the bear rented his fury by demolishing everything in sight. By this time the trainer recovered sufficiently to direct the beating of irons to subdue the animal. His roars could be heard for several blocks.

BAD ACCIDENT IN A TUNNEL.

A Gang of Track Repairers Run Down by a Train—One Killed, One Will Die, and Sixteen Were Injured.

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 30.—A gang of 26 track repairmen were working on the railroad at the western opening of the Gallitzin tunnel at 8 o'clock Sunday afternoon when they heard the approach of a locomotive, which was running fast through the tunnel. The workmen all stepped from the north track, on which westbound trains move to the south track. The smoke in the tunnel prevented them from seeing the approaching locomotive, which in order to avoid obstructions on the north track was running on the south track. One man was instantly killed, one died in the Altoona hospital, and 16 were more or less seriously injured. None escaped without injury.

FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER.

Conviction of a Negro Who Killed "Crap Jim" Thomas With a Shotgun at Parkersburg, W. Va.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 30.—In the case of the state vs. Ira Hains, colored, for the murder of "Crap Jim" Thomas, also colored, which occurred several months ago, the criminal court jury returned a verdict of guilty in the second degree shortly before 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

Hains followed Thomas to a friend's house and deliberately emptied a shotgun into his face, causing instant death, but his counsel showed that the latter had made threats against Hains.

Took Arsenic in His Beer.

OAKLAND CITY, Ind., Jan. 30.—Carl Agee, a young merchant of Sommerville, a village four miles south of this city, committed suicide by taking arsenic in beer. Domestic troubles led to a debauch which ended with the suicide.

A Cadet From Venezuela.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—In the house Saturday a joint resolution was adopted granting to the republic of Venezuela the privilege of sending a cadet to the West Point military academy.

RIGHT OF WAY.

Peace Treaty Will Be Debated in the Senate This Week and Disposed Of.

In the House a Vote Will Be Taken on the Army Bill Tuesday Afternoon—The River and Harbor and Military Academy Bills.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The senate will devote practically all of the time this week to the consideration of the peace treaty. Senator Allison, chairman of the committee on appropriations, says he will not interfere at any time with the consideration of the treaty by asking to have appropriation bills taken up, and as a consequence the treaty will have complete right of way.

This week will see the close of the memorable debate, both in executive session and in open senate, as the vote is set for 3 o'clock a week from Monday. Notice has been given for set speeches for every day except Monday of the present week. Senator Berry will speak Tuesday, Senator Spooner Wednesday, Senator Rawlins Thursday, Senator Money Friday and Senator Chilton Saturday. These speeches will be based upon the various resolutions on the general question of expansion and will be delivered in open session. They will however be practically devoted to the treaty and will afford senators an opportunity to say openly what they would say in secret session if the resolutions were not under consideration. There will be an effort to get the speeches in before 2 o'clock each day in order to permit the closing of the doors at 2 o'clock in accordance with the unanimous agreement to that effect, when the treaty will be taken up formally and the executive consideration of the subject proceeded with.

The friends of the treaty are still most sanguine of success, and most of them announce that they will accept no compromise. Others express a willingness to accept some such resolution as that of Senator Sullivan. Those professing to know say it is the policy to force the treaty to a vote before [illegible] action on any compromise proposition, and that if the treaty should by any chance be beaten, to move to reconsider and then to consider the question of accepting some compromise like the Bacon resolution before final adjournment in March. Almost a month of the session will be left after the vote of Monday week, so that, if the senate should prefer to accept the treaty with a resolution of construction and instruction to postponing action for an extra session, it could do so.

Interest centers in the army bill in the house of representatives during the early part of the week. The final vote will be taken at 3 p.m. Tuesday. Prior to this debate will be under the five minute rule in the main, although sufficient time has been reserved to give Mr. Bailey and some of the other leaders an opportunity for extended speeches.

Chairman Hull, of the military committee, is confident the bill will pass. Saying that the republican disaffection will not exceed eight, while several affirmative votes will come from the democratic side. The opposition will direct its efforts towards having the bill recommitted.

With the army bill disposed of the house will turn its attention to the important river and harbor bill and then to the military academy appropriation bill. The river and harbor bill probably will have Wednesday two hours debate on a side.

The military academy bill is not likely to take more time than is required to read it through. No exact programme has been fixed for the rest of the week, but Chairman Mercer, of the committee on public buildings and grounds, has been pressing for a hearing on some of the public buildings bills now pending, and he is likely to get a day. Chairman Lacey also wants a day on public land questions.

The Hawaiian bill is the most important piece of general legislation which will be agreed to a hearing, although its friends may let it go over until next week.

Broke His Neck.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—George Brown, a farmer living at Norwood, L. I., broke his neck in jumping from a window in the house he occupied with his family, and which had taken fire while all were sleeping Saturday. Brown's wife and five children escaped uninjured.

Old Enough to Know Better.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 30.—Theodore Kirchner, aged 60 years, shot and instantly killed his wife, Paulina, aged 45 years, in their house at Newtonville, near this city Sunday by the careless handling of a gun which was accidentally discharged.

Guilty of Assault With a Deadly Weapon.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 30.—A. C. Bradley, the old soldier who shot Gov. Smith, of the Soldiers' home, at Santa Monica, has been found guilty of assault with a deadly weapon, but recommended to the mercy of the court.

Hat Manufacturers Combine.

DANBURY, Ct. Jan. 30.—The manufacturers of the lower priced derby hats have effected a combination to go into effect February 1. The firms represent practically all the large manufactures of this class of goods.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—SENATE—Discussion of the policy of expansion occupied nearly all the time of the senate in open session Monday. Mr. White (Cal.), one of the democrats who has announced heretofore his opposition to ratification of the treaty of peace, addressed the senate in support of the anti-expansion resolution introduced by Mr. Vest (dem. Mo.) and of the resolution offered by Mr. Bacon (dem. Ga.) declaring that the Filipinos ought to be free and independent. Mr. White is a brilliant speaker and he was complimented by his colleagues and a large audience in the galleries with careful attention.

HOUSE—Monday was District of Columbia day in the house and the major portion of the day was devoted to local legislation. The only action of public importance was the passage of the bill to extend the navigation laws of the United States to the Hawaiian Islands. One of the provisions of the bill grants American register to all vessels flying the Hawaiian flag owned by Hawaiian citizens July 7, 1898.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—SENATE—Two notable speeches were delivered in the senate Tuesday, one by Mr. Lodge (Mass.), and the other by Mr. Clay (Ga.). While the two senators differed diametrically as to the policy of expansion, upon which they dwelt, both are in favor of the immediate ratification of the pending peace treaty. They contend that once the treaty is ratified, congress will have full power to deal with conditions respecting the territory acquired during the war with Spain and not before.

HOUSE—The debate on the army reorganization bill opened in the house Tuesday under an agreement by which the general debate is to run 18 hours exclusive of three night sessions the final vote to be taken not later than 5 o'clock next Thursday. Practically three propositions are before the house, the house bill providing for a standing army of 100,000 men, the minority substitute increasing the standing army to 223,000 men, and leaving with the president discretionary power to call out 50,000 volunteers for emergency service, and a proposition to continue temporarily the regular army at its present war strength—65,000 men.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—SENATE—Only a brief time was occupied by the senate Wednesday in open session. A few bills on the calendar were passed but no other business of importance was transacted.

HOUSE—Not since the stirring days before the declaration of war last spring has the house witnessed such an exhibition of excitement and such scenes of unbounded enthusiasm as occurred Wednesday when the two republicans, Mr. Johnson, the Indiana member, and Mr. Dolliver, of Iowa, locked horns on the question of expansion. The army bill, which was under debate, was swallowed up in the broader question of our future national policy and the debate was lifted from the dead level of mediocrity into absolute brilliancy. Mr. Johnson secured time from the democratic side to attack the position of the administration. It was not the first time he has broken away from his party on public questions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—SENATE—As the senate seemingly was about to conclude consideration of the pension appropriation bill late Thursday afternoon Mr. Butler (Pop., N. C.) offered his amendment announced some time ago, providing for the pensioning of ex-confederate soldiers. Upon this he took the floor and delivered a speech, which, as he proceeded, developed into a most unexpected utterance. While his colleagues on both sides of the chamber listened with interest, Mr. Butler defended the position taken by the south during the great civil conflict of a third of a century ago. He declared that the south was right and that history would so record; and that every shot fired by a southern soldier was fired in defense of the rights of his state conferred by the constitution, in self-defense and in defense of his home and fireside.

HOUSE—The third day of the debate upon the bill for the reorganization and increase of the regular army passed without notable incident. Its feature was an hour's speech by Mr. Grosvenor (O.), whose utterances, rightly or wrongly, was frequently supposed to reflect the views of the president. Mr. Grosvenor declared simply and emphatically that the present situation in the Philippines was due to the opposition in this country to the ratification of the peace treaty. He announced that the future of the islands was a matter for congress to decide, and that for the president to announce a policy would be for him to usurp the authority of congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—SENATE—Particular interest was manifested in the senate Friday in a brief speech delivered by T. C. Platt, New York on the general subject of expansion. Mr. Platt took for his text the anti-expansion resolution offered by Mr. Vest of Missouri, but in the course of his speech merely touched upon the constitutional question involved in the proposed declaration. A resolution was offered by Mr. Sullivan (Miss.) declaring that the ratification of the treaty should not commit the government to a colonial policy. The pension appropriation bill, the second of the general appropriation measures, was passed after some debate. Late in the afternoon eulogies were pronounced on the late Representative Cooke, of Illinois, addresses being made by Senators Cullom, Allison, Wellington and Mason.

HOUSE—The opposition to the army reorganization bill on the republican side of the house has become so strong that Friday Chairman Hull, after Mr. Henderson (Ia.), one of the floor leaders of the majority, had threatened to vote to recommit the bill, decided it would be wise, in order to insure its passage, to abandon the idea of providing directly for a regular army of 100,000 men. He announced on the floor that the committee would offer amendments to reduce the number of enlistments about 40,000, but keeps in the president's discretion the authority to increase the army to a maximum of 100,000. These amendments have been prepared. They provide that the president may, in his discretion, enlist only 60 men in the infantry companies and 40 in the cavalry troops.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—SENATE—Senator Frye concluded his argument for the ratification of the peace treaty with Spain in Saturday's executive session of the senate. He talked for an hour and a half and again made the only speech of the day's session. The principal questions under consideration Saturday were those relating to the payments of claims against the Spanish government, the reason for agreeing to pay Spain for the improvements made in the Philippines and the reason for extending to Spain the benefit of an open-door policy in her former possessions. There were various interruptions by other senators, who, however, confined themselves to questions. The consular bill, carrying nearly $1,000,000, was passed.

HOUSE—The house Saturday continued the consideration of the army reorganization bill until 2 o'clock, when the members paid their tributes to the memory of the late Representative Simpkins, of Massachusetts. Very little progress was made with the army bill, the only amendment being adopted being that offered by the committee to relieve veterinarians in cavalry regiments the rank, pay and allowances of second lieutenants. The time before the eulogies began was chiefly devoted to a continuation of the debate on the advisability of retaining the Philippines.

Forty Degrees Below Zero.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 30.—Specials from points in the interior of Wisconsin report a very low temperature. At Appleton the thermometer recorded 35 degrees below zero, the coldest in recent years. Black River Falls reports a temperature of 40 degrees; Medford and White Hall 38 degrees below zero.

THE PHILIPPINE PROBLEM.

[By David A. Piatt]

Last week I failed to pay due attention to the cost of the proposed territorial expansion. While affairs remain in their present state of uncertainty it would not be possible, without the aid of facilities beyond my reach and the expenditure of much laborious research, to present with any fair degree of accuracy a tabulation showing the risk of "imperilistic investment." However, I have prepared a few tables which will serve to show the preponderant points of the financial side of the problem.

It is best in embarking upon an enterprise always to count the cost. The man whose mind is charged with revenue statistics, and who possesses but a superficial knowledge of the extent of expenditure involved in a transaction, can not be other than an incompetent advisor. He is too prone to an over-optimistic view, while a man whose knowledge is confined to the extent of expenditure is apt to take a radically pessimistic stand. It is the merging of the two antagonistic elements into one smoothly working machine called organization upon which depends a clear, rational, logical outcome of a discussion. This organization neither the Republicans nor the Democrats command, and the Populists occupy, as usual, an unassertive field.

As a knock-out argument for annexation many papers cite the alleged natural wealth of the Philipines, while the anti-expansionist tells us seriously and shudderingly of the "savagery," "ignorance," and "barbarism" of the "natives," as well as of the enormous cost of territorial acquisition and subsequent administration. Both arguments are strong in their way; but to a certain extent both rival factions are in error. They have yet to learn the value of moderation. It is never safe to under-estimate the ability of a comparatively unknown population, such as the Filipinos, and the arguments of the partisans of both sides of the question have been conducted from a hypothetical standpoint.

The all important questions are:
(1) What course shall we pursue?
(2) What will they cost?

In reply to the former: We can hold them as colonial possessions; we can protect and assist them to self-government; we can hold them until Spain has paid us every cent of our war expenses, or we can immediately turn them adrift. The last named policy, if it be that Aguinaldo voices the hopes and desires of his people, would undoubtedly meet with the approval of the Filipinos. As for forcible annexation, it is not for a moment to be considered by a just and intelligent people. Such a high-handed proceeding would be beneath the dignity of a freeborn people, and if we are obliged to extend our commerce by unjust or violent means, "our control of the Pacific" had best remain a question for future decision. Our policy should not be extemporaneous.

From a financial point of view territorial expansion as the term is generally accepted, means the assumption of new and needless responsibilities, it means a leap into unknown darkness beyond the veil of which lie dangers, unavoidable complications. There may be a quagmire of ruin beyond, or there may be a solid pillar of rock; but the most solid of rocks is at times slippery.

The late war added to the expenses of the government at least 25 per cent., an increase of almost $75,000,000 annually is asked for the army, the navy will cost $25,000,000 more. The expenses of governing the islands taken from Spain will amount to many millions, and it is doubtful if they will pay the bill.

The following table will show a few of the larger items of expense:

For the Philippines,.....$	20,000,000
Cuban and Puerto Rican Telegraph lines,.....	2,000,000
Revenue Cutter Service,.....	2,500,000
Sanitation, Sewers, &c.,.....	25,000,000
Fortifications, native troops &c.,.....	125,000,000
Total,.....	$174,500,000

It is "estimated" that the islands of Puerto Rico and the Philippines will produce a revenue from tariff and taxes, which will more than defray the cost of administration. In proof of the fact that the Philippines have been self-supporting for years under Spanish rule, I furnish the following table:

Revenues year of 1895:

Taxation, direct and indirect,.....	£2,244,980
Monopolies,.....	222,570
Lotteries,.....	174,600
National Property,.....	39,100
Various other sources.....	34,820
Total,.....	£2,785,980

Expenditures year of 1895:

General Expenses,.....	£ 272,100
Justice,.....	337,042
Wars and Maritime,.....	1,299,047
Finance,.....	444,024
Foreign Relations,.....	13,030
Public Works,.....	725,750
Total,.....	£2,656,026
Showing a surplus of.....	£79,954

It is admitted the majority of the forms of taxation adopted by the Spanish government will not be tolerated under American sovereignty. But the corporation of officials is known to be such that extortionate taxation and questionable means were necessary by the Spanish government in order that there might be a revenue after official capacity had been satisfied. It is also claimed that in expenditure there was gross corruption. The statiscics given, however, "seem to show," says one expansion daily, "that the islands under a just and honest administration are financially self-supporting, and that there will be no extraordinary demands on the Treasury of the United States after order has been established. Can this government furnish and maintain such an administration? History replies in the negative. The United States government has yet to furnish a just and honest admistration to an alien people. Has our management of Indian affairs ever been just or honest? Have our dealings with subject populations of the lower order, such as Poles, Hungarians and Italians, savored of what is the equal of both justice and honesty—discretion? By our open door to the offscouring of Europe, we have filled the country with the refuse of inferior nations, and not only imperiled the interests of our own workingmen, but thrown a seductive temptation before the manufacturers of this country. We have lowered the standard of wages for one; the standard of justice and honor for the other. What have we reared in their place? Corruption? We have proven ourselves incompetent to protect the best interests of this country—the interests of the workingman, of the toilers in the mines, of the tillers of the soil—and yet we are holding forth our overtaxed hands and calling for more. The giant of greed is among our people; he is rapping at the door of the hovel; he is stalking in the halls of Congress; he has breathed his corrupted breath upon our political life and is twining his slimy limbs about the embryo life of our government. An uncorrupted administration comes into this world like the flutter of angels' wings—never!

Another phrase in the foregoing demands our attention, namely, "When order has been established" What will be the cost of life and money before this state of affairs can be brought to pass, and when such an end has been attained can the conquered natives be kept in a state of subjection that will insure comparative safety for the lives and property of American citizens in the islands? In the past the Filipinos were as savage and barbarous as our own savages, and does it not stand to reason that if similar administration is employed they will become as ungovernable and treacherous as the worst Sioux or Cheyenne that ever drew breath? The cost of expansion cannot be measured alone by a financial standard.

In Puerto Rico as well as in the Philippines, it is found that the island is self-supporting. In both for years the islands have had revenue in excess of expenditure. During the fiscal year of 1896-97, beginning July 1, the revenue aggregated, 4,710,000 pesos (a peso is worth 50 cents, American money) and the expenditure amounted to 4,435,411 p., leaving a surplus of 274,589 p. Three years previous to this Puerto Rico received revenue to the amount of 3,658,800 p., and expended 1,300,051 p., leaving a net balance of 2,358,749 p. This shows an increase of but 386,840 p., in three years, or an average increase of 128,949.2. In round American dollars this would be about $64 44 increase per annum. We have much more to hope for in Puerto Rico than the Philippines, the inhabitants of the former composing the more desirable citizenship, and the island itself lying in closer proximity to our own shore.

It is not my purpose to overlook the vast commercial and stragetic importance of the Philippines to the United States; but this matter, owing to want of space, is left over until next week.

Pt. Pleasant.

Jan. 21.—Mrs. Bettie Scott, who has been ill of la grippe, is better.

Jacob Stahl is recovering, slowly, from a severe attack of pneumonia.

B. F. McGlasson has been very ill with heart trouble for the past two weeks.

Mrs. Stella Clore entertained several of her friends on Thursday with a quilting.

Mrs. Margaret Riggs, of Lockland, Ohio, is the guest of Charles Riggs and daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. James Riley started on Thursday, for several weeks' visit with relatives in Indiana and Illinois.

Richwood.

On next Sabbath there will be communion services at Richwood, 11 a. m.—preparatory services Friday preceding, 6:30 p. m., and Saturday, 11 a. m.

The Literary Club met on the evening of the 20th, with Miss Hattie Bedinger. Miss Kate Lord, of Covington, was a guest of the club.

The pastor of Richwood and Union churches was very much delighted and comforted by the pounding on the part of the Union people, which placed in his store room a barrel of flour, sugar, coffee, canned goods, meat and many other useful things, for all of which he is most sincerely thankful.

The wooden wedding of Mr. Wm. Wolfe and his good wife, Viola, was very much enjoyed. A number of their married friends dined with them, and in the evening their young friends gathered and had a delightful social party. Some handsome chairs and other useful household implements attested the good wishes of their many friends. We wish them many years of health and prosperity.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier.]

Mr. S. L. Webb, Cashier of the Erlanger Deposit Bank, was visiting his father's family at this place one Sunday. He had with him the famous letter written by T. M. Combs from Ohio Penitentiary in 1863, to his wife and which last week, after more than thirty-five years of trials and tribulations was delivered to Mr. Combs, who now resides at Erlanger. T. M. Combs was with James P. Webb, and a host of other good Grant county boys in Morgan's cavalry and on the famous Ohio raid. They were captured and the officers confined in the Ohio Penitentiary for many months and it was while domiciled at that place that he wrote the famous letter to his wife who at that time resided in Williamstown. The letter was written in the Penitentiary and contains about 4,000 words describing in graphic pictures the raid with Morgan, the capture and the incarceration in the Ohio prison. It was intended for the underground mail and was captured by the Warden of the Penitentiary and has been in his family since. Mrs. Combs received the letter last week from her husband who is now dead, written in the early years of her married life. She has refused to allow the letter to be published.

Dr. O'Hara, of Williamstown, who investigated the reputed family of lepers in Grant county, reported that he made a thorough investigation and examination, and that he found one of Mr. Martin's children in a terrible plight, but not from leprosy, as the rumors had said. The physician said few of the child's features were discernible, almost the entire face being a solid mass of eruption. He stated also that another member of the family was disfigured by a large protuberance on the left side of her face, resembling a tumor. He reported that freckles first appeared on the faces of the victims, the freckles quickly developing into aggravating ulcers. He pronounced it hereditary cancer.

For Mothers!

THE discomforts and dangers of child-birth can be almost entirely avoided. Wine of Cardui relieves expectant mothers. It gives tone to the genital organs, and puts them in condition to do their work perfectly. That makes pregnancy less painful, shortens labor and hastens recovery after child-birth. It helps a woman bear strong healthy children.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

has also brought happiness to thousands of homes barren for years. A few doses often brings joy to loving hearts that long for a darling baby. No woman should neglect to try it for this trouble. It cures nine cases out of ten. All druggists sell Wine of Cardui. $1.00 per bottle.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. LOUISA HALE, of Jefferson, Ga., says:

"When I first took Wine of Cardui we had been married three years, but could not have any children. Nine months later I had a fine girl baby."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1899. NO. 16.

THE whisky combine has increased the price of that article.

KENTUCKY'S slice of the appropriation for rivers and harbors is $700,000.

THE treaty with Spain was ratified by the Senate, Monday, with three votes to spare.

CANDIDATES for the Legislature are coming to the front thick and fast throughout the State.

W. J. STONE, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, favors the Goebel election law.

EVERY few days it is announced that free silver is dead. If dead why repeat the announcement of the fact?

THE Indiana Legislature has passed a bill granting the widow of Oliver P. Morton, Indiana's war Governor, a pension of one hundred dollars per month.

ALGER could not keep Eagan from being court-martialed, although it would have been a great pleasure to him, on account of the humiliating position in which Gen. Miles would have been placed.

THE brilliant but erratic Watterson is predicting all sorts of disasters to Democracy under the leadership of Bryan. In his opinion Watterson was the only leader the Democratic party has had since the rebellion.

IT begins to look like Covington is to have a new court-house at an early date. The taxpayers realize the necessity for a commodious, safe building in which to keep the public records and transact public business.

It is reported that the Kentucky whisky combine is finally completed. What effect will it have on Kentucky politics?--Lawrenceburg Press.

Don't believe it will make the State go Republican this fall.

FIFTY-SEVEN Kentucky distilleris have consolidated under the name of the Kentucky Distillers and Warehouse Company. The new company has $32,000,000 capital stock, and it is claimed it will control ninety per cent. of the output of the Kentucky distilleries.

GOMEZ says he is ready to disband his army as soon as Uncle Sam puts up the money with which to pay the soldiers what is due them. It looks like everybody is going to take a pull at Samuel's lower limbs, and he appears to be willing to submit quietly.

We are sorry the Republican majority in the legislature shows no disposition to enact a law against trusts and combines that can be endorsed.—Lawrenceburg Press.

You really did not expect a legislature of that make-up to pass any such laws?

WHO owns the Big Spring? is a question that has agitated Georgetown greatly this winter, but the News came to the front last week and settled the controversy in favor of the city, by deciding that the spring has belonged to the city for one hundred and seven years.

THE Georgetown Times does not think anything will come of the talk about organizing a new county out of portions of Scott Harrison and Grant counties. New county schemes should not be encouraged in this part of the State, where everybody is within a reasonable distance of their respective county seats.

A. A. CASSIDY, Superintendent of schools in Fayette county, was the Democratic nomination as the Democratic candidate for Superintendent of Public Instructions, and the Lexington Herald is profuse in its claims for him as to qualification and what goes to constitute a proper incumbent for the office to which Mr. Cassidy aspires.

IT turns out that the President's original instructions to the Peace Commissioners in regard to the Philippines was to demand the island of Luzon only, but the Commissioners concluded to go further and demand the entire group, and pay therefor $20,000,000. The Commissioners would have better adhered to the President's instructions.

THE Louisville Dispatch editorial force has been given a general shaking up since the first of the year. The paper was unfortunate at the start in that it was placed in charge of persons who considered the road to success was through the abuse of business and political rivals, and it was dished out uncessingly, greatly to the injury of the paper.

THE political friends of ex-Gov. Brown are still engaged placing what they see proper to call Brown's vote. The race for the Democratic nomination for Governor had not reached a stage at which Brown's declining to enter the contest cut any figure whatever, and the claims of the friends of either of the candidates, as to the benefit to be derived from Brown not entering the race is the poorest kind of speculation.

THE pastor of the colored church at LaGrange, Oldham county, made a very startling announcement at the close of his sermon last Sunday week. William Miller, colored, was to be hung in the jail yard on the Friday following, and the colored pastor was his spiritual adviser, and he gave his congregation the following information. "The funreal of William Miller, of whom you have all heard, will take place from this church Friday afternoon, provided he is dead."

THE Louisville Dispatch has been claiming that Mr. Goebel is trying to wreck it because he can not control its policy; but, according to the statements of Mr. Enloe, who until a few weeks ago, was editor of the Dispatch, those who are controling the paper are the wreckers. By the way, why did the Dispatch refuse to publish Enloe's replies to the attacks it made on him? It is very unfortunate for the Dispatch it was overtkaen by its present trouble, which will not only damage it financially but will cripple its influence.

SAM JONES went out of his way to attack W. J. Bryan in one of his sermons at Hopkinsville, and charged that he paid only eight dollars taxes. One of Bryan's friends believing that Jones was lying, telegraphed to the authorities in Bryan's county in Nebraska and received a reply saying that Bryan's taxes last year amounted to over three hundred dollars. The dispatch was shown to Jones but he was not christian enough to correct his misrepresentations of a fellow man. Little by little a man's true character crops out.

IF there is any way by which the administration can dispose of General Miles, without stirring up a hornets nest of too extensive dimensions, the General will have to walk the plank. He is in possession of information that shows up the army beef contracts in a bad light, and he is backed by a large number of subordinate officers, who are watching closely the action of the powers that be at Washington towards their chief. Miles is a great annoyance to Mr. Alger & Co., and they are at a loss to know how to dispose of him and to keep out of serious trouble themselves.

THE RECORDER receives frequent calls by agents of patent medicine firms, who desire to make advertising contracts with it at not to exceed one half its advertising rates, which are low enough. They nearly always assert that they get space in papers claiming much largee circulation than that of the RECORDER at low er rates than they offer it. If they tell the truth many of the local papers are discriminating against their local advertisers, or the rates they publish are false. When there is any discriminating done at this office it is in favor of the readers. In the last few months the RECORDER has rejected several patent medicine advertisements preferring to fill its space with reading matter to carrying advertisements at starving rates. The RECORDER'S object is to give as much reading matter each week as possible, and does not pad nor use flaming nonsencial headlines with which to fill up.

CHURCH NEWS.

Rev. Thos. Housley, the noted cow boy preacher of the Baptist church, who has been conducting revivals in Estill county, sent his wife to Georgia, and then eloped with the organist of the Speedwell congregation.

Sam Jones says: "The newspapers may decry Hobson and speak evil of him, but he has the profound sympathy of my heart. Why, to kiss everything that comes along, from the old maid with moss on her lip to the gay widow; to kiss the old sister whose nose and chin are meeting; to kiss the good, bad and indifferent! Gentlemen, I like kissing, but I want to pick the time, place and case. Poor Hobson! He needs the prayers of the church and the sympathy of his comrades."

Rev. Sharp, the new pastor recently called to Rutland Baptist church, Harrison county, poeached there last Sunday. At that meeting twelve of the members asked for letters and received them, thus severing their connection with the church. There were a few members of the church who voted against extending the call to Rev. Sharp and it seems that some of the members were not satisfied with him, as they claim that he does not preach the Baptist doctrine as they understand it.

A minister of a country church was greatly annoyed on Sunday by the women turning around every time any one came in, interrupting the sermon. At last he hit upon a plan for stopping it. The next time he preached he gave this notice out: "So that no one need turn around, I will call out the names of the person or persons entering during my sermon." And he started: "Dearly beloved brethern—Farmer Jacobs and wife—seventh chapter second verse of—Mrs. Brown and baby—St. John where it says—Mr. and Mrs. Smith with a new bonnet on." Here he discovered his mistake and was going to correct himself but it was too late—all the women in the house had turned.

Nearly forty years ago there were four fast friends who were students at the Danville Theological Seminary—Henry M. Scudder, Gelon Rout, Rutherford Douglas and Miles Sanders. They graduated and took pastorates which they were destined to retain for an average lifetime. Mr. Scudder has now been at Elizaville, Woodford county, for forty years, and Gelon Rout, at Versailles for thirty-five years. Dr. Douglas remained at old Pisgah for thirty-four years and until called 'up higher.' Dr. Sanders was the pastor at Springfield for thirty-six years. Dr. Scudder's pastorate is longer than the others because he began the work at Elizaville before finishing. This is a most extraordinary record. It might be said, too, that had these gentlemen not been satisfied with the quiet pursuits of 'provincial' lives they might have filled acceptably any of the great pulpits of the country."—Danville Advocate.

THE Louisville Dispatch gives the following good advice, which it would do well to heed itself:

"There should be no bitter personal warfare on any man for it is presumed that every aspirant for a nomination for a State office is at least a good Democrat and certainly whoever may be nominated by the party will be entitled to the support of all loyal Democrats. We should not wait until after the nominations to begin the fight for victory. The battle will be more than half won or more than half lost when our ticket is put in the field, and every effort of every sincere believer in the principles of Democracy should be put forth from now until the convention, not so much in the interests of personal favorites as for the purpose of strengthening the party and assuring victory in the final contest at the polls."

The Argentine wheat crop (one of our competitors) will be harvested this month. It is estimated at fifty million bushels against sixty last year and ninety in 1893.

The account of the battle with the Filipinos at Manila is given on an inside page.

STATE NEWS.

All the 'pikes in Bath county are now free.

Several prisoners in Louisvlle jail had small pox.

M. H. Smith, aged 21, is a candidate for the legislature in Madison county.

Chickenpox is epidemic among the school children at Owensboro and is rapidly spreading.

Stephen Moore and family, of London, were poisoned by eating blackberries that were put up in tin cans.

Bob Banks, under sentence to be hanged at Mayfield, took small pox in jail at Louisville, and was moved to the pest house.

A large per cent of the corn crop is yet in the shock in this county and badly damaged. Good corn selling at $1 75.—Lexington Gazette.

The Kenton County Board of Equalization increased County Assessor Meninger's returns for 1899, $300,000, making the total assessed valuation of property in Kenton County, including Covington, something over $29,000,000.

Mrs. W. P. Swope, through her attorneys, Lindsay & Botts, has filed suit for divorce. She asks alimony in the sum of $6,000 and $500 for attorneys' fee. The case will come up in the Circuit Court and probably no defense will be made, as the terms of separation have been practically agreed upon.—Owen Herald.

Bethel Kinkead, aged 26, died at the home of his father, Mr. Jas. A. Kinkead, of Hardin county. He was one of the regular soldiers who led the attack on San Juan, and had his gun shot out of his hand in that encounter. For the past three months he has been at home sick with yellow fever, brain fever and finally died from grip.

A fast train on the Cincinnati Southern struck John Brown, a Center College student, while he, with a party of friends, was coasting, and he was instantly killed. He was from Owen county, the son of a wealthy farmer. He was standing on the track, grew excited when he saw the train almost upon him, and could not move in time to save himself.

The Court of Appeals for the third time reversed the case of the L. & N. Railroad Co., vs Whitley county. The county instituted proceedings against the road for damaging a county road, and a judgment of $7,500 was entered by the lower court. This court reversed the case and indicated that $1,500 would be a proper allowance for the alleged damages.

Editor Sam J. Roberts, of the Lexington Leader, is being mentioned as a Republican candidate for Governor. We have known Sam a long while, and he has always been a stool-warmer at the pie counter, therefore it will not do to urge the gentleman too strong to become a candidate for Governor. If the Republicans will be more liberal and mention Sam for the Presidency, Sam will accept.—Georgetown News.

George Aldrich, a farmer, living near Poole, Webster county, is in a serious condition, the result of an attack made on him by a flock of crows. They were doing great damage to the growing wheat in that section. With his gun and in company with his 12-year-old son, Aldrich went out to drive the voracious birds from his farm. He killed a lot of them, but instead of flying away myriads of them flew down upon him and the boy, pecking and scratching them in the face and all over the body. The boy escaped, but his father resisted the attack until he was rescued physically exhausted and bleeding all over. His eyes are put out, it is believed, and his entire body lacerated. Hundreds of the birds were killed before they were put to flight.

The indictment against the Associated Press Company for failing to report was pardoned before trial by Gov. Worthington on Wednesday. This is an extraordinary proceeding, and is seldom resorted to by an Executive. The application for a pardon was written and signed by Melville Stone, and presented to the Governor. When his Excellency read the statement he answered that he would pardon the company, and in a second the signature that relieved the company of any penalty was attached and Melville Stone departed a happy man. Soon after the Governor stepped into Auditor Samuel Stone's office and remarked that he had granted the pardon requested. "What pardon," answered the Auditor, and the Governor immediately answered, "The Associated Press Company." The Auditor said he made no such request and had nothing to do with it. When the Governor examined the petition again he discovered it was "Melville" and not "Samuel Stone that appeared on the petition.—Frankfort Argus.

CROP AND STOCK.

The Lebanon Enterprise reports the sale of 34 cotton mules at $70 per head.

Simon Weil bought in Clark county fifty export cattle, of B. L. and Lucien Goodwin, weight 1,750 pounds, at $4 75.

A great many hogs are reported dying with cholera in East Hickman neighborhood and between there and Lexington.

The Florida orange crop this year will amount to half a million boxes, and that if nothing happens next winter's crop will aggregate nearly 2,000,000 boxes.

The Jessamine Journal notes the sales of some fat oxen at 3½ cents; a bunch of hogs at 3 cents; 24 cotton mules at $70 per head; 20 cattle, weight 1,000 lbs., at 3¼ cents.

The Lancaster Record tells of a Garrard county woman who bought a sow for $2.50 and from her sold six shoats for $27. She still has the sow and a new litter of pigs worth $25.

Jo Bales, of Richmond, and W. M. Robb, of Clark county, have contracted with D. B. Hampton for 1,000 lambs to weigh 65 lbs. and upwards, in good condition, July and August delivery; at $5.05 per cwt.

The record price for 1898 burley was made in Louisville, when a hogshead of fine red filler from Owen county brought $16 25; also one from Franklin county brought $15. Liggett & Myers were the purchasers.

The largest tobacco sale of the season was made at Owingsville, Bath county. George and Carroll Hamilton sold to Mr. Knowles, of Mt. Sterling, their crop of about 200,000 pounds, the product of 200 acres, at 7 cents all round.

Danville Court.—Cattle sold high, good, young stock bringing from 4½ to 5 cents. 35 feeders, weight 850 lbs., sold at $40 per head, and 31 long yearlings at $31.90. Good calves brought from $20 to $27.50.—Danville Advocate.

There was a large crowd of foreign buyers at the sale of the Gentry herd of fine Berkshire hogs at Danville. The 70 head averaged $34. The highest price was a three-year-old sow, which went to Vanderbilt, of the Baltimore Farm, Asheville, N. C., for $305. Another sow, same age, brought $108. Seven hogs, mostly youngsters, sold at $100 per head.

Mt. Sterling Court.—About 800 cattle on the market. The best feeders sold at $4.40, most of the sales at 4 to 4½ cents; yearlings, 4 to 4½ cents; feeders, 4½ to 2 cents. One nice pair of mare mules, 15½ hands high, sold at $200. Another pair of 15½ horse mules brougt $160. Sales ranged from $40 for plugs to $100 for fair mules. Some fairly good horses brought from $80 to $100.

Petersburg.

Lots of ice floating in the river.—It is feared that the late cold spell has interfered with the growth of Leu Ruth's mustache.—Frank P. Walton, your valued Utzinger correspondent, was in town, Friday. He has a good field in which to gather news.—Carter Graddy attended church here, Sunday. His letters from Gainesville are as interesting as they were from Bullittsville.—David Abbott Piatt, a young man of rare literary attainments, was in town Saturday.—The report has reached this place that the weasles have carried off several of J. M. Lassing's Green river cattle.—The strokes of the giant wheels of the Louisville jar the houses in town as she passes.—There is more rivalry between the two churches here than there is between the two political parties. We hear them both.—Hear that Rev. Jones, a Baptist minister, of Covington, will hold a protracted meeting here in the near future. Let the good work go on.—A. N. Smith, the handsome, young correspondent of Flickertown, was seen on our streets, Thursday.—Lewis Terrill has Keiffer pears that he put away in the fall. If put in a dry place they keep like some apples.—We have a quiet tip that Pete will have candidates for county clerk, circuit clerk, sheriff and assessor.—Elder Morris, a student at Lexington, preached for the Christian church, Sunday.—Morris McCright, son of James McCright, of this place, was badly scalded at Cincinnati, by the bursting of a mud drum on the Bonanza. It is feared he will lose the sight of one eye. He was second engineer.—When Marshal Bahn was making his round on the river front, Wednesday night, he discovered 4 skiffs loaded with coal leaving Belden's barg. He called to them to halt, but they only pulled the harder for the Indiana side.—Dill Snelling's horse fell on the levy, while hauling coal, and broke its knee cap.—We have been reliably informed that if the senatorial contest in this district is left to Boone county alone, S. W. Tolin, of Burlington, will shy his castor into the ring. Owen county has one delegate vote more than both Boone and Gallatine.—Rev. W. G. Cram closed his meet here Friday night after preaching two sermons a day for three weeks. Bro. Cram made many warm friends during his short stay among us, and it is hoped that he will soon return and preach to this people as their pastor. We could not get the names of those uniting with the church for this issue, but 29 persons in all confessed and were baptized.

Mound Field Farm.

Dorsey Anderson had one of his feet badly frozen, one night last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Goodridge spent several days, last week, with Mrs. Isabella Davis.

Henry Beall delivered a load of tobacco at the Moundfield Cigarette factory, last Saturday.

Bart Aylor delivered several tons of hay at the different stables in Hebron last week at $7 per ton.

Quick and Batterson are getting their tools in readiness to begin building a large barn for Lon Aylor.

Met Willie Graves the other day on his way to the cooper shop for barrels in which to put maple syrup.

Those who failed to put up ice in December improved the opportunity, last week, and have filled their houses.

The ground hogs of this vicinity saw their shadows on the 2d inst., notwithstanding Prof. Marsh's prediction to the contrary.

Although Robert Bradford is a man well along in years, he is one of the most graceful horseback riders in this community.

Elijah Tanner delivered a short but instructive lecture at Ernst's shop, Saturday, on the habits, diseases, causes and cures of the common house cat.

At a sangerfeast held at Chas Westrick's, last Saturday night, Ed Ernste, Harvey Miller and Add Batterson, carried off the honors as the most talented vocalists present.

One of the pleasant events of last week was a cotillion party at Joseph Graves', when the young and beautiful tripped the light fantastic until the wee sma' hours of the morning.

Harry Dinn shook the Hebron dust from his tan shoes, last week, and has gone to Indiana, where he has engaged with a firm for the summer to drive corn cobs, corking crawfish holes.

With the assistance of a pair of Batterson's Beagle hounds, Luther Scothorn has killed, captured and crippled 287 rabbits since November last. The sale of these has swelled his bank account mightily.

Enoch Mannin has a preparation for sale that will effectually destroy chicken lice. Besides being a disinfectant it is one of the greatest preventives of diseases common among the poultry family, that has ever been discovered. Mr. Mannin warrants the compound to do all he claims, or he will refund the money.

We are told that Charles Clore will erect a substantial two story building on the south corner of Main street and Muddpuddle avenue, Hebron, as soon as the weather will permit. The building that occupies the site will be taken down. It is one of the oldest landmarks in the place, having been used for drygoods and grocery store, a drug store and a harness shop and the like since time the memory of man knoweth not.

One of the pleasantest gatherings occurring in this community in a long time was that large assemblage of patrons and friends that congregated at the school-house, last Friday, the occasion being the last day of the public school, when the following interesting programme was rendered: Recitation—Be Careful What You Say—Mary Clayton; Recitation—The Anxious Mother—Carry Aylor; Essay—Spring—Flora Dye; Recitations—Don't Fret—Bessie Lodge; The Shopping day—Lizzie Clore; The Old Brindle Cow—Calle Clore; Valuable Woods—Mamie Lodge; The Old Wife's Kiss—Katie Clayton; Butter Cups and Clover—Ola Dye; Lost and Found—Lloyd Ernstes; The Trifling Pledge—Lester Aylor; Seven Polnts for boys—Anna Hafer; Bryan and McKinley—John Din; John Daniel's Vow—Kenneth Clayton; The Queer Boy—Robt. Bruce; The Preacher's Vacation—Grace Bullock; The Two Glasses—Lola Hafer, Chas. ONE-LEGGED Ira Schevier, of Canton, O., has just undergone a second amputation of his shortened leg in Chicago, in order that the cork leg he attaches to it may better fit him, so that he can earn a high salary representing a Chicago artificial leg manufactory at the Paris exposition in 1900.

SINCE his return from Lewiston, Sergeant-at-Arms Ben Russell ... getting in the bills for the funeral of Hon. Nelson Dingley. Mr. Russell says the cost of the funeral will be a little less than $3,000. This amount is considered very reasonable for a state funeral such as Mr. Dingley's was.

JAPAN, with a population of 45,000,000, has 220 towns that have more than 100,000 inhabitants. In 1886 the number of such towns was 117. Osaka has increased from 360,000 to 510,000 inhabitants in ten years, Yokohama from 89,000 to 180,000, Kobe from 50,000 to 185,000. Tokio now has a population of 1,300,000.

THE costliest bicycle in the world has just been finished at a gun factory in Vienna. It will cost 500,000 gulden, which is a little more than $275,000. The owner is a rich South African diamond king and mine owner, who will present the machine to his wife on her next birthday. It is inlaid with precious stones and diamonds on every possible part.

THE X. I. T. ranch, in the extreme northern corner of the Panhandle of Texas, the largest ranch in the world, has an area of 5,000 square miles. Its herds of cattle aggregate 120,000 head, besides 1,500 horses, and the calf crop branded in 1897 exceeded 31,000. Surprising as it may seem, all the work on the ranch is done by 125 men, one man to every 24,000 acres.

CONSUL FOWLER, of Chefoo, under date of November 29, 1898, writes in regard to the floods of the Yellow river. One million people, it is stated, are in distress and Li Hung Chang has been deputed to devise some method to repair the damage to the embankments. It is understood that he has sent abroad for experts. Consul Fowler thinks that engineers in the United States could, no doubt, build a system of jetties that would prevent a recurrence of these disasters.

A DISTINCTION must be made between inoculation for the prevention or mitigation of smallpox and vaccination, which is the grafting of cowpox as a protection against the severer malady. Inoculation was practiced by Turks, Greeks, Syrians and Circassians long before Lady Mary Wortley Montague brought it to England. It was after this that Jenner made his so-called discovery of vaccination or inoculation with virus from the cow instead of from the human subject.

THE International Paper Co. has just completed the biggest deal since its organization. It has purchased outright 14 mills engaged in the manufacture of paper and pulp outside the combination. These mills represent the chief opposition which the print paper trust has had to encounter. The trust has now almost undisputed possession of the print paper industry. The 14 mills purchased represent a capacity of 123 tons of print paper and 168 tons of wood pulp per day.

FOR many years all the quinine of commerce came from the wild trees of Peru, but with the present great demand the refined product obtained from the wild trees of its native habitat would supply but a small proportion of the world's requirements. At the present time two-thirds of the quinine used is produced in Java, an island of the East Indian archipelago, corresponding closely in size to Cuba, and having with it many features of soil and climate in common.

CHICAGO is getting ready for the census of 1900. She wants to make herself out a bigger city than New York. The plan is to make two distinct counties out of the territory now comprising Cook. The present city slightly expanded is to constitute one and the outside territory the other. To make it an object for towns like Evanston and Oak Park to become annexed, it is proposed to adopt a graduated scale for taxing real estate. The Civic Federation is hard at work and will ask for an amendment to the state constitution.

THERE will be no more use for the expensive sprocket chain in bicycle construction if the idea of John S. Kidd, of Des Moines, Iowa, can be carried into general practice, for he utilizes for the purpose of power transmission an ordinary well made twist link chain. His suggestion has just been patented. The sprocket wheel designed by him has the teeth arranged on its periphery at an angle so shaped as to successively engage in the openings of the twist link chain. The construction of this chain is extremely simple and cheap, and can be made to sustain a great strain.

MILES' ALLEGED STATEMENTS

The Truth or Falsity of Them May Be Ordered Investigated by President McKinley.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The indications are that a court of inquiry will be ordered to investigate and report upon the truth or falsity of the statements alleged to have been made by Gen. Miles, in which the quality of beef furnished the troops during the late war was brought in question. The matter was discussed at some length at Friday's cabinet meeting, and, although no definite decision was reached, the concensus of opinion was that such a proceeding should be had. It was argued that if the packers who had furnished the beef to the army had fraudulently supplied an article of the character charged by Gen. Miles, the country had a right to know it, and if the charges were without foundation the people had an equal right to know that fact. Justice to all concerned it was agreed demanded that the whole truth be brought to light. It was also agreed that Gen Miles should not be suspended from his office as commander of the army pending such investigation, as it was not intended that even by inference should he be prejudged of any wrong doing in connection. It is not believed that any action will be taken, however, until the war investigating commission has made its report, which is expected within the next few days.

The cabinet also discussed the sanitary condition of Havana, and Gen. Brooke will be instructed to proceed as rapidly as possible in his work of renovating the city. The question of the wisdom of digging up the streets to any great extent during the rainy season has been presented for Gen. Brooke's consideration, the view of the cabinet being against it.

It is the expectation that the war investigation commission will submit its report to the president next Monday. No one outside the commission is supposed to know what the nature of that report will be.

The method which is to be adopted, namely, a court of inquiry, to pass upon Gen. Miles' conduct, is taken to indicate a knowledge on the part of the administration of what the report will have to say as bearing upon the Miles charges.

The common impression is that a court of inquiry can be ordered only upon the demand of the officer whose conduct is to be made the subject of discussion. While that is usually the case, there is however, a reserve power in the president to order such a court regardless of the wishes of the officer concerned.

OMAHA HOTEL QUARANTINE.

Armed Policemen Stand at Every Door to Prevent People Leaving—Three Cases of Smallpox Discovered.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 4.—The spectacle of an entire hotel full of guests being quarantined and armed policemen standing at every door and window to prevent the people escaping was presented in Omaha Friday night.

Friday morning three well defined cases of smallpox were discovered at the Vendome hotel, located in the center of the city. The health department was notified and plans were quickly decided upon for quarantining the place. A squad of armed policemen raced to the scene and when the guests started on their accustomed duties Friday morning they were driven back into the house by force. Traveling men begged to be permitted to get away, guaranteeing to leave the city by the first train or afoot if necessary.

Several daring fellows, who preferred any sort of an adventure to being shut up for ten days, slipped out the skylight, scaled the adjacent roofs and making their way through the snow and ice over the house tops, managed to reached the ground in safety after many narrow escapes. A number of Chicago and St. Louis traveling men are in the hotel. Just who they are nobody cares to examine the register just at present to find out.

MURDERED IN A STREET CAR.

Dr. Thomas Wilder Shoots Hugo Wolfert in a Quarrel Over a Seat—The Victim Will Die.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Dr. Thomas Wilder, a retired physician, shot Hugo Wolfert, a cook, in a Lexington avenue car Friday night, inflicting a wound, which, is said, by the hospital officials, to be fatal. Wolfert, according to the story told to the police, was occupying more room in the car than he was entitled to and refused to make way for a lady. Dr. Wilder gave his seat to the lady and upbraided Wolfert, who struck him. The physician then drew a revolver and shot Wolfert through the breast. Dr. Wilder was arrested.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Feb. 4.—The snowfall in this valley during Thursday and Friday was the heaviest known for many years. Railroad traffic has not been seriously interrupted and all local trains arrived on time Friday.

SNOWY PRISON.

Gigantic Avalanche of Snow Shoots Down the Mountain Side—Train Crew Carried Down.

Thousands of Tons of Snow Blocks the Railway—A Hundred Men at Work in an Attempt to Rescue the Men Imprisoned in the Snow.

GLENCOE SPRINGS, Col., Feb. 3.—At 12:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon a gigantic avalanche shot down the mountain side in the canyon of the Grand river on the western slope of Colorado and carried an entire train crew and working gang, 33 men in all, into the bottom of the abyss.

Special trains were sent to the spot as soon as intelligence reached the headquarters of the Denver & Rio Grande road. In the meantime more than a hundred men were using every possible attempt to rescue their fellow beings who were imprisoned in the snow.

The slide was about 300 feet in width, but thousands of tons of ice and snow blocked the railway and made it impossible for trains to pass until a road could be shoveled through the obstruction.

Telegrams were at first delayed on account of the carrying away of the wires when the slide came down. One of the rescue trains had a telegrapher and an emergency instrument aboard and he soon established communication with the outside world. It was the impression at headquarters of the railway in this city that the slide is one of the most destructive that has been known for many years in the Rocky mountains.

The engine, caboose and flanges were carried down before the slide and all the shovelers who were scattered along the track at work were swept before the mighty weight. Trees, rocks and large blocks of ice, which had been formed on the side of the mountain during the winter added to the weight of the avalanche. Cliffs rise at the side of the railway track 100 or 200 feet while the side of the mountain at the point where the accident occurred rises 2,000 feet almost perpendicularly.

At 9 o'clock Thursday evening Superintendent Sample received partial reports which stated that five men were dead and a number seriously injured. There has been no roll call to check up the crew, as the men are all scattered.

The Rio Grande road is in worse shape now than before. Snow is piled on the track at some places 20 feet high. It will take hours to open the blockade.

PAYMASTER GENERAL STANTON.

CRITICISM OF GEN. MILES.

It Stirs Up a Hornet's Nest At Washington and He May Be Relieved of His Command as a Punishment.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Maj. Gen. Miles is to be relieved of his command as general in chief of the army of the United States, according to a Washington dispatch. The dispatch says:

"The president has borne with Miles' insubordination and attacks upon the war department until patience has ceased to be a virtue. He will not be permitted further to back up assaults upon his superiors with the prestige of the highest military rank. With the court-martial of Gen. Eagar, it was expected he would subside and let what was past go to the country for what it was worth. But he has evidently anticipated the report of the war investigating board, which Miles knows will be a refutation of his charges, and the general of the army has chosen war instead of peace.

"The president has the right to order Gen. Miles on duty for the good of the service, but if Miles is anxious for a trial he can be accommodated."

River Improvement Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—All Ohio and Kentucky river improvements went through like chain lightning Thursday. The Big Sandy got $52,000; Green river, $85,673.20; Ohio, from head to mouth, $375,000; Ohio, continuing improvement at dam 13, $50,000; Ohio dam, $50,000.

COL. JAS. A. SEXTON DEAD.

The Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic Expired at 3:40 Sunday Morning in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Col. James A. Sexton, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and a member of the war investigating commission, died at 3:40 o'clock Sunday morning at Garfield hospital from complications resulting primarily from an attack of the grip.

Col. Sexton had been ill about a month, first with grip and kidney troubles and later with meningitis of the brain. His system failed to respond to medical treatment and for several weeks his recovery was hardly expected.

Sunday night the body was put aboard the 7:20 train on the Pennsylvania railroad and will be taken to Chicago. There were no funeral services in this city, but six members of the grand army acted as pall bearers both when the body was removed from the hospital and when put aboard the train. At Chicago, F. W. Spenk, quartermaster of the grand army; H. P. Thompson, assistant adjutant general, and W. L. Smith, of the Loyal Legion, will have charge of the military funeral arrangements. Commander Anthony Hendricks, of the department of the Potomac, G. A. R., Sunday issued a special order commemorative of Col. Sexton. Many floral tributes were received by the family, including tributes from the war investigating commission and President McKinley, who sent a beautiful wreath.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 6.—Capt. W. C. Johnson, senior vice commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., is the head of the Johnson Bros. Hardware Co., of this city. Under the constitution he becomes the acting commander-in-chief upon the death of his superior, and continues as the acting commander-in-chief until the vacancy is filled.

THE BIG CANAL AT PANAMA.

Work on the Waterway is Progressing at a Rapid Rate—The Culebra Cut Will Be Completed in Nine Months.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Reports of extensive work on the Panama canal are brought by Charles M. Dobson, an English civil engineer, who has just arrived here from Colon. Mr. Dobson said:

"I have visited the canal on several occasions since 1891, but I have never seen anything like the activity visible at present. The French are evidently in earnest and are progressing at a wonderfully rapid rate. They are concentrating their energies on the great Culebra cut, the most serious obstacle along the whole route. The company has from 1,700 to 2,000 laborers at work, with about 50 locomotives, each of which hauls a train of from 10 to 15 cars.

"At the rate at which they are now excavating, the great cut will be completed within nine months. My impression is that the management, having finished this cut, will declare that they have solved the greatest problem of the canal and that additional funds are all that is needed to carry the whole work to completion. Water is actually in 19 miles of the canal on the Atlantic side and seven on the Pacific side.

"Up to the present about $137,000,000 in American gold has been spent and I believe the canal can be finished for $125,000,000. The company appears to suffer for no lack of money, for the men are promptly paid.

"The concession given by Colombia expired last October, but I am informed that arrangements have been made for its extension for another period of six years. My impression is that it will require about ten years more work before the canal is ready to receive ships."

MINING CAMP SNOW BOUND.

Situation is Critical in the Extreme and Starvation Stares the Inhabitants of Independence, Col., in the Face.

ASPEN, Col., Feb. 6.—The situation at the mining camp of Independence, 18 miles from here, is critical in the extreme. Starvation stares the inhabitants of the town in the face. Provision and fuel supplies are nearly exhausted. Wood that had been piled up for winter use lies buried under many feet of snow and can not be reached. The mines there, in all probability, must close down until spring. Roads leading to this place, the only source of supply for Independence, are impassable and the only method of journeying between the two places is on snow shoes, an exceedingly dangerous method of travel. The storm is still raging fiercely at Independence, making the outlook more gloomy. Snow slides are so frequent between Aspen and Independence that it is almost suicidal to venture on the route there.

Transport Solace Did Not Leave for Manila.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—A special from Norfolk, Va., says: "The United States transport Solace, which was to have sailed for Manila Sunday at noon, did not get away from Hampton Roads. Just why she was held is not definitely known, but it is believed by naval officers that the developments in the Philippines since her original orders were issued have prompted the navy department to hold the ship here until additional supplies are received for transportation to Manila."

REDUCTION TO THE TRADE.

The Fraternal Feeling of a House Painter for an Artist Patron.

There is a saying that two of a trade can never agree, but there is reason to believe that there is more fraternity of interest than is generally supposed. An instance to prove the theory is found in the case of an artist in the suburbs who had the front of his cottage painted last week. It wasn't much of a job, but it was done very well, and the painter was told to bring in his bill.

Three days later the man of the house was told that the painter wanted to see him.

"Tell him to leave the bill and I'll send him a check," was the impatient answer.

He was informed that the painter wanted to see him in person, so there was nothing to do but to show him up.

"Well?" said the man of the house rather shortly.

"I hope you like the job," said the painter, with a mysterious smile.

He was informed that it appeared to be all right.

"I always do good work," said the painter, virtuously. "But this here house—boss, I rather throwed myself on this when I found out who you was."

"So you found out who I was, did you?"

"Yes. When I went to the drug store at the corner for putty, the clerk told me you was a painter, and one of the best in this country. I asked why you didn't paint your house, then, and he said you had got your hand out now, and didn't paint anything but pictures. So when I found you was in the trade I did my prettiest. And here is the bill—$18.60—and it ain't no more than right, as you know, but, being it's you, I'll knock off the 60 cents."

To the everlasting credit of the celebrated artist be it said that he kept his face straight and accepted the reduction in the spirit in which it was offered.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Where He Would Succeed.

"We are all qualified for some occupation," said the thoughtful man. "The trouble is we don't always know what it is, and so we make the wrong selection. Now there is Brown, the dunce man. He always is complaining that he is handicapped by his affliction, whereas it would insure him success if he only knew enough to take up the right line of business."

"What would you call the right line for him?"

"The tonsorial line, of course."—Chicago Post.

A CONGRESSMAN

Cured of Catarrh of Long Standing.

Ex-Congressman A. T. Goodwyn.

Ex-Congressman A. T. Goodwyn, from Alabama, writes the following letter:

The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen—I have now used two bottles of Pe-ru-na, and am a well man today. I could feel the good effects of your medicine before I had used it a week, after suffering with catarrh for over a year. Respectfully, A. T. Goodwyn.

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a national curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most prevalent and stubborn of cure is catarrh. Public men of all parties recognize in Pe-ru-na a national catarrh remedy of unequaled merit. Send to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on catarrh.

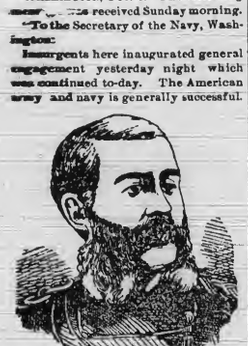
VICTORY IS OURS.

A Blaze of Fire Along the American Lines at Manila.

All Night and All Day the Battle Raged Fiercely in Manila's Outskirts.



The Insurgents Began the Attack But Retreated Before the Magnificent Charge of American Troops.

Adm. Dewey's Vessels Took Part in the Fight, Being Much Exposed—Our Loss Was 20 Killed and 125 Wounded—The Filipinos Lost Heavily—Many Were Drowned—Gallantry of Our Volunteer Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The following news [illegible] received Sunday morning.

"To the Secretary of the Navy, Washington:

Insurgents here inaugurated general engagement yesterday night which was continued to-day. The American army and navy is generally successful.

MAJ. GEN. OTIS.

Insurgents have been driven back and our line advanced. No casualties to navy. (Signed,) DEWEY."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The following dispatch was received at 1:15 Monday morning:

"MANILA, Feb. 5.—To Adjutant General: Situation most satisfatory; no apprehension need be felt. Perfect quiet prevails in city and vicinity. List of casualties being prepared and will be forwarded soon as possible. Troops in excellent health and spirits. (Signed,) OTIS."

MANILA, Feb. 6.—The Filipinos attacked the American line from Caloocan to Santa Mesa at 8:45 Saturday evening. There was heavy fusillade on both sides and the artillery was used. The United States cruiser Charleston and the gunboat Concord bombarded the enemy.

The Americans, after magnificent charges, captured several of the enemy's positions.

The Americans lost 20 killed and had 125 wounded. The Filipinos lost heavily.

The long-expected rupture between the Americans and the Filipinos has come at last. The former are now engaged in solving the Philippine problem with the utmost expedition possible.

The clash came at 8:40 Saturday evening, when three daring Filipinos darted past the Nebraska regiment's pickets at Santa Mesa, but retired when challenged.

They repeated the experiment without drawing the sentries fire, but the third time Corporal Greely challenged the Filipinos and then fired, killing one of them and wounding another.

Almost immediately afterward the Filipinos line, from Caloocan to Santa Mesa, commenced a fusillade which was ineffectual. The Nebraska, Montana and North Dakota outposts replied vigorously and held their ground until reinforcements arrived.

The Filipinos in the meantime concentrated at three points, Caloocan, Galgalangin and Santa Mesa.

At about 1 o'clock the Filipinos opened a hot fire from all three places simultaneously. This was supplemented by the fire of two siege guns at Balik-Balik and by advancing their skirmishers at Paco and Pandacan.

The Americans responded with a terrific fire, but owing to the darkness they were unable to determine its effect.

The Utah light artillery finally succeeded in silencing the native battery.

The 3d artillery also did good work on the extreme left.

The engagement lasted over an hour.

The United States cruiser Charleston and the gunboat Concord, stationed off Malabona, opened fire from their secondary batteries on the Filipinos' position at Caloocan and kept it up vigorously.

At 2:45 there was another fusillade along the entire line, and the United States seagoing double monitor Monadnock opened fire on the enemy from off Malate.

With daylight the Americans advanced.

The California and Washington regiments made a splendid charge and drove the Filipinos from the villages of Paco and Santa Mesa. The Nebraska regiment also distinguished itself, capturing several prisoners and one howitzer and a very strong position at the reservoir, which is connected with the water works.

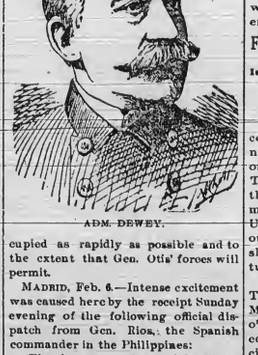
The Kansas and Dakota regiments compelled the enemy's right flank to retire to Caloocan.

There was intermittent firing at various points all day long.

The losses of the Filipinos can not be estimated at present, but are known to be considerable.

The American losses are estimated at 20 men killed and 125 wounded.

The Ygorates, armed with bows and arrows, made a very determined stand in the face of a hot artillery fire and left many men dead on the field.



Several attempts were made in this city Saturday evening to assassinate American officers.

MANILA, Monday, Feb. 6.—9 a. m.—The Filipinos have apparently reached the conclusion that the Americans mean business, now that the barriers are removed, as there were no further hostilities Saturday night and no attempt was made to recover the lost ground. It is possible, however, that they are following the tactics they employed against the Spaniards and will merely lie off a few days to recuperate their forces before returning to the attack.

It is impossible to ascertain as yet how the news has been received at Malolos, the seat of the insurgent government, but the Filipinos in Manila express the opinion that the movement for independence has received its death blow and that annexation will soon be welcomed generally.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Instructions will be sent to Maj. Gen. Otis Monday directing him to follow up his victory over the insurgents and to crush the power of Aguinaldo in the Philippines. This was the decision reached at an important cabinet meeting held in the white house Sunday night, attended by the president, Secretary Hay, Secretary Alger and Attorney General Griggs and Adjt. Gen. Corbin.

It was further decided, now that Aguinaldo has thrown down the gauntlet, that Iloilo shall be taken and the islands of the archipelago occupied as rapidly as possible and to the extent that Gen. Otis' forces will permit.

ADM. DEWEY.

MADRID, Feb. 6.—Intense excitement was caused here by the receipt Sunday evening of the following official dispatch from Gen. Rios, the Spanish commander in the Philippines:

"The war ships destroyed and burned Caloocan, Paco and several towns in the neighborhood. Both sides suffered materially. Very sharp firing continues. The Spanish troops have been confined to quarters, but a sergeant has been wounded by a stray bullet.

"RIOS."

The popular sympathies here are on the side of Aguinaldo, but thinking people are anxious regarding the consequences of the fighting, especially on account of the Spanish prisoners still in the hands of the insurgents.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6, 12:15 a. m.—The following dispatch from Gen. Otis has been made public:

"MANILA, Feb. 5.

"To the Adjutant General: February 5—Insurgents in large force opened attack on our outer lines at 8:45 last evening; renewed attack several times during night; at 4 o'clock this morning entire line engaged; all attacks repulsed; at daybreak advanced against insurgents and have driven them beyond the lines they formerly occupied, capturing several villages and their defense works; insurgent loss in dead and wounded large; our own casualties thus far estimated at 175, very few fatal. Troops enthusiastic and acting fearlessly. Navy did splendid execution on flanks of enemy; city held in check and absolute quiet prevails. Insurgents have secured good many Mauser rifles, a few field pieces and quick firing guns with ammunition, during last month.

"(Signed) OTIS."

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 6.—The following list of killed of the 1st Nebraska regiment in the battle of Manila: James Pierce, musician, David City, merchant; Harry Hull, Company A, hotel clerk, Hastings; Davis Lagger, Co. [illegible], who was a lieutenant in the state militia; Sergt. Orrin T. Curtis, Ashland, farmer, who was at one time a member of the legislature; Charles Keck, Chadron, wealthy stockman; A. Bellinger, son of a prominent doctor at Beatrice and a young society man; Lewis Begler, Lincoln, clerk; Edward Eggers, Fremont, lawyer. The information regarding the regiment's losses was received in Lincoln in private cablegrams.

AGONCILLO IS INTERVIEWED.

He Says It Will Take the United States at Least Ten Years to Conquer the Philippines.

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 6.—In an interview here Sunday night Felipe Agoncillo, who is on the way to Canada, said concerning the fighting at Manila:

"There may have been an exchange of shots by accident. I did not advise such a thing. I came on a mission of peace. I came to offer the United States every possible commercial advantage. We want to be friendly with the United States. We were willing to pay the $20,000,000 to Spain and also pay all the expenses of Dewey's fleet at Manila. All we want is to be independent and to have the friendship of the United States. We are not paupers. We are a people and we love our freedom."

"Are your people willing to accept anything short of independence?"

"I will not say. They want to be free and independent, the same as this country."

"What will they do if the treaty is ratified and the United States assumes sovereignty?"

"I do not know. If the Americans attempt to conquer the Philippines it will take at least ten years, and even then they would not be conquered in heart. They will never be conquered. They will be constantly rising to gain their independence.

"It is too bad," concluded the Filipino envoy. "I came to your country to offer you the friendship of my people, to give you our trade and pay all the expenses of obtaining our freedom for us from Spain. In return you refuse to even listen to me. If you had been only willing to listen to what I had to offer all of this trouble could and would have been avoided. It is not the seeking of my people. I am sorry."

Agoncillo repeated that he would return to the United States as soon as he learned the reliable news about the events of Saturday in the Philippines.

The impression that his manner gave was that he is a very badly frightened envoy.

FELIPE AGONCILLO GETS OUT

Is on His Way to Montreal—It Is Stated Unofficially That He Will Be Arrested at Rouses' Point.

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Word was received in this city at 10 o'clock Sunday night that Agoncillo would reach here on his way to Montreal at 11:10 o'clock. The train arrived on time, and with the train was a party of newspaper men. When the cars pulled into the Union station here word was given out that Agoncillo was in one of the sleepers and that he could not be disturbed.

He had retired at Poughkeepsie. The train left Troy at 11:30 o'clock for Montreal and is due at that point at 7 o'clock Monday morning. It was stated here in an unofficial way that Agoncillo would be arrested at Rouses' Point, but it could not be learned that any arrangements had been made to this effect.

Fire at Half Moon.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Postmaster Gordon Sunday ordered all the postal stations in Chicago to display their flags at half-mast until after the funeral of Col. James A. Sexton, who died in Washington Saturday. A meeting of the Chicago letter carriers was held Sunday and elaborate arrangements made for taking part in Col. Sexton's funeral.

Two Brakemen Killed.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 6.—Edward Winston and Clayton A. Sublet, of Bluefield, Norfolk and Western brakemen, were crushed to death by the cars, near Poca.

AN ACTIVE ALLY.

Gen. Gomez Will Assist the United States in the Reconstruction of the Island of Cuba.

The Mission of Commissioner Porter Greatly Simplifies the Returning of the Cuban Soldiers to the Pursuits of Peace.

REMEDIOS, Province of Santa Clara, Feb. 1, via. Havana, Feb. 3.—Gen. Maximo Gomez, the commander-in-chief of the Cuban army, placed himself squarely in position Thursday as an active ally of the United States government in the work of the reconstruction of Cuba.

As a result of the conference which Robert P. Porter, the special commissioner of President McKinley, has had with Gen. Gomez, the latter cabled to President McKinley Thursday afternoon assuring him of his co-operation in disbanding the Cuban army and in distributing among the Cuban soldiers the $3,000,000 appropriated for the purpose of enabling them to return to their homes. Gen. Gomez [illegible] graphed to Maj. Gen. Brooke saying he would accept the latter's invitation to go to Havana.

The success of Mr. Porter's mission greatly simplifies the returning of the military Cubans to the pursuits of peace.

In view of Gen Gomez's supposed prior attitude of hostility toward the United States, Mr. Porter came here clothed with absolute authority, and the tender of the $3,000,000 was practically a verbal ultimatum. Had it not been accepted no more ultimatums would have been made.

Mr. Porter made plain the purpose of the government, and was gratified at the ready response of Gen. Gomez. The conference took place at the house here occupied by the Cuban general as his headquarters since coming to town.

In brief, the compact is as follows:

First—The Cuban officers in each province shall assist the American officers in distributing the funds.

Second—That these officers shall at once meet at some convenient point and devise how, when and where the payments are to be made, and arrange any other details.

Third—That the sum paid to each man shall not be regarded as part payment of salary due for service rendered, but facilitate disbandment of the army as a relief of suffering and as an aid in getting the people to work.

Fourth—The Cubans shall surrender their arms to the Cuban assembly or to its representative.

Fifth—The committee on distribution shall use its best endeavors to distribute it among the population so that all may secure work.

Sixth—That the $3,000,000 shall be placed subject to the order of Gen. Brooke and that action in the matter shall be immediate.

Gen. Gomez was tendered a public reception Thursday evening and Mr. Porter was among those present.

THE HUGE PAPER TRUST.

It Is Still Buying Up Plants and It Is Claimed It Will Secure Absolute Monopoly of the Paper Trade.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The Times says: The International Paper Co. is steadily pushing ahead with its plans towards absolute monopoly of the paper manufacturing trade. This company has bought the plants of the Moosehead Pulp Co. at Solon, Me., a 50-ton ground wood mill, which is important to the trust chiefly because of its water power facilities. The paper company has bought the Misterlich patents and has secured control of the Russell patents, which gives it practical control of the best methods for manufacturing sulphite pulp. Outside of these two patents there is only one method of making sulphite that amounts to anything.

A BANQUET TO LEGISLATORS.

The New Asylum for Incurables at Huntington, W. Va., Dedicated—It Costs About $200,000.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 3.—The members of the West Virginia state legislature were banqueted here Thursday night by the chamber of commerce of this city, the occasion being the dedication of the asylum for incurables. The dedication exercises were very impressive.

The new buildings, when completed, will cost about $300,000 and are to be located on a charming elevation just south of the city. At the banquet covers were laid for 600. Hon. John K. Thompson, United States marshal for West Virginia, was toastmaster. Senator-elect Scott, Senator Elkins and other notable men were present.

Will Be Ratified Without Amendment.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 3.—United States Senator George L. Wellington Thursday said that he believed the peace treaty would be ratified practically without amendment. This is a significant statement, as the senator has been counted in the opposition to the end.

Piano Factory Burned.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 3.—Clough & Warren's big piano and organ factory caught fire Thursday morning. The loss will reach $300,000, with insurance of $80,000.

THE SITUATION IN CUBA.

Gen. Gomez's Declaration Simplifies the Situation on the Island—Commissioner R. P. Porter's Views.

HAVANA, Feb. 4.—Mr. Robert P. Porter before sailing for Miami, Fla., made the following statement: "While the situation here has been improved and simplified by the declaration of Gen. Gomez that he will immediately take part in the pacification of Cuba, the advantage thus gained should be followed up by the American authorities. The entire policing of the island should be done by the Cubans themselves. The real police work is in fact, now in the hands of the Cuban soldiers, and law and order are well maintained. There should not be a moment's delay in the organization and equipment of these civil guards.

The bulk of the American soldiers must be taken out of Cuba by April. There is really no necessity for more than two regiments in each province to serve as a background of support for the Cuban police. In giving the best of these people employment, all the more will be left of the relief fund for those who must be helped back to the land.

The feeling of distrust between the Cubans and the Americans has been temporarily checked by the message of Gen. Gomez to President McKinley and the president's reply through Secretary Hay. If the younger military elements of both armies will now get together and complete the several schemes for policing the provinces which at this moment are awaiting crystallization the problem will be solved. Delay in this work will be fatal. If such men as Gen. Gomez; Gen. Monteagudo, of Santa Clara province; Gen. Mayia Rodriguez, of the Province of Pinor Del Rio; Gen. Pedro Betancourt, of Matanzas province and others whom I know personally, will assure President McKinley and Gov. Gen. Brooke that law and order will be maintained, their pledge will be carried out at any cost.

"There is too much disposition to discuss minor details. There is too much hesitancy in bringing matters to a head. In the province of Santa Clara Monteagudo's admirable policing plan has been already put in operation, and it is one, as Gen. Leonard Wood told me yesterday, which is along right lines. The entire police work in that province, so Maj. Logan, provost marshal, informed me, has been done by Cubans since the evacuation.

"Why not take up at once and dispose of this matter? Things must be kept moving in Cuba or summer will overtake us with too many troops there. Our soldiers themselves fully realize the situation. They frankly say that their chief occupation is to guard each other while their chiefs in Washington, Havana and Remedos are exchanging confidences. The younger officers on both sides should come together and evolve preliminary policing plans and get those into working order without delay. Once this is well done, matters will take care of themselves in Cuba. At least that is my opinion."

TERRORIZED WOMAN'S DEED.

She Shoots and Kills a Man Who Tore Off Her Clothing On the Street at Sistersville in the Early Morning.

BELLAIRE, O., Feb. 4.—At 3 a. m. Friday morning at Sistersville, W. Va., on the Ohio river, south of this city, a terrible murder occurred. Harry Deffinbaugh, aged 28 years, son of John Deffinbaugh, a teamster, was shot and instantly killed on one of the most prominent streets of the town by Miss Ella Bowen, an attractive young girl, aged 20.

The young man followed her and caught her and tried to tear her clothing from her body, when she drew a 38 caliber revolver and shot him. The bullets took effect in neck, right breast and left side. He died in ten minutes on the sidewalk. The girl claims she was terrorized and did not know what she was doing. She is now in jail. Great excitement prevails.

McKINLEY TO GEN. GOMEZ.

The President Thanks the General for His Decision to Co-Operate in the Pacification of Cuba.

HAVANA, Feb. 4.—The following message from President McKinley was received by Robert P. Porter Friday morning and was transmitted to Gen. Maximo Gomez:

"Hon Robert P. Porter, Havana—"The president sends his hearty congratulations and thanks for your dispatch. Convey his cordial greetings to Gen. Gomez and his grateful appreciation of the general's frank and friendly message. The co-operation of Gen. Gomez in the pacification of Cuba will be of the greatest value for both peoples." [Signed,]

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—SENATE—An effort on the part of Mr. Allison to obtain consideration in the senate Monday for the Indian appropriation bill precipitated a running debate which occupied all the time, until the senate, at 2 o'clock, went into executive session on the peace treaty. Mr. Jones (Ark.), leading the opponents of the treaty, opened the debate.

HOUSE—The house put in a hard day's work on the army bill Monday and Monday night and when it adjourned 13 of the 30 pages had been completed. The committee amendments gave the president discretionary power to reduce the size of the infantry company and cavalry troops to 60 men each were adopted, and also a series of amendments to reduce the officers of the staff 331.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—SENATE—During the entire morning hour Tuesday the senate had under discussion the policy of this country to be pursued in the Philippine islands. Mr. Berry (Ark.), in a speech upon the resolution offered by Mr. Vest, discussed the policy of expansion without a reference to the constitutional point involved in the Vest resolution. An attempt by Mr. Bacon (Ga.) to secure a vote upon his resolution which in brief declares that the United States government will not make war upon a people seeking for their freedom precipitated a lively debate which was participated in by Mr. Platt (Ct.) and Mr. Teller (Col.). No action on the resolution was taken.

HOUSE—The bill to reorganize and increase the standing army to about 100,000 men, but giving the president authority to reduce the size of infantry companies and cavalry troops to 60 men each, thus fixing a minimum of about 50,000 enlisted men, passed the house Tuesday by a vote of 168 to 128. This was the result of a week of hard and often picturesque fighting on the floor. Before the house adjourned Tuesday the river and harbor bill was formally called up in order to make it the unfinished business in the committee of the whole.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—SENATE—For a few moments in the senate Wednesday it seemed likely that a vote might be taken on one or more of the resolutions relating to expansion that are pending before that body. An unusually large attendance of republican senators were in attendance all of them having been notified to be present in the event of a critical vote on the pending question. Mr. Bacon (Ga.) had called up his resolutions, and Mr. Chandler (N. H.) had withdrawn his motion to refer them to the committee on foreign relations. Mr. Sullivan (Miss) had entered a motion to substitute his resolution for those of Mr. Bacon, while Mr. Davis, chairman of foreign relations committee, had announced that he was willing that a vote should be taken immediately. As it was evident however, that a vote on the resolutions and amendments could not be taken before 2 o'clock—the hour fixed by unanimous consent for the senate to go into executive session.

HOUSE—The house entered upon the consideration of the river and harbor bill Wednesday and made rapid progress. Fifty of the 88 pages of the bill had been completed when the house adjourned. The bill appropriates directly about $12,500,000, and authorizes contracts to the extent of $18,000,000 additional. The general debate was unusually brief. Its feature was a speech in opposition to the bill by Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, who has fought every river and harbor bill for the last six years.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—SENATE—A notable speech was made in the senate Thursday by Mr. Spooner (Wis.). He took for his text the anti-expansion resolution offered by Mr. Vest but did not confine himself closely to that proposed declaration of policy. He discussed the question of expansion in all of its phases and urged the ratification of the peace treaty as the best means of bringing the burning question home to the people themselves. At the conclusion of his speech he received the warm congratulations of many of his colleagues, notable among whom was Mr. Tillman (S. C.) with whom he had had a sharp personal tilt in the course of his argument.

HOUSE—The river and harbor bill, carrying slightly more than $30,000,000, passed the house Thursday by a vote of 169 to 7. This is the largest majority any river and harbor bill has ever obtained in the house. The bill attracted little opposition and every effort to amend it in important particular failed. Saturday, February 11, was set apart for paying tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Dingley, of Maine.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—SENATE—For more than five hours Friday the senate listened to arguments in opposition to expansion and in opposition to the ratification of the treaty of peace. The speakers were Mr. Money (Miss.) and Mr. Daniel (Va.). The former's address was brief, as he did not enter into the constitutional phases of the question. He vigorously attacked the ratification of the treaty holding that by such action the Filipinos would be admitted to the union as citizens and that if they were not capable of self-government we did not want them. Mr. Daniel made an exhaustive argument in which he covered all the points in controversy.

HOUSE—Most of the time of the house during the three hours' session Friday was consumed in filibustering against relief bills on the private calendar. The filibuster was finally successful and the house adjourned without taking up the bill. The conference report on the diplomatic appropriation bill was adopted.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—SENATE—A number of senators Saturday gave notice of amendments they will offer to the river and harbor bill, the most important of which are the following: Mr Carter appropriating $5,000,000 for the construction of storage reservoirs and irrigation canals in the arid land states. Mr. Caffrey, appropriating $1,000,000 for the improvement of the southwest pass of the Mississippi river so as to make ship canal 35 feet in depth. Mr. Turner, appropriating $500,000 for dredging Salmon Bay and improving the waterway connecting Puget Sound at Salmon Bay with Lakes Union and Washington, so as to make it available as a ship canal. Mr. Perkins, appropriating $342,000 for the improvement of the harbor at Wilmington, Cal., and also one authorizing the appointment of a commission to locate a naval coaling station on the California coast, south of San Francisco.

HOUSE—The house committee on invalid pensions reported favorably the senate bill pensioning John M. Palmer, of Illinois, the amount being reduced from $100 to $50.

Military Academy Appropriation Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The military academy appropriation bill was taken up by the house Saturday. It carries $601,817, which is considerably less than estimates, but more than recent appropriation bills of this character. Mr. Marsh (rep., Ill.), in charge of the bill, explained that the increased total was due to the need of renovating the library and furnishing the new Cullom hall.

We have noticed in several papers lately that if farmers would put in their time like persons who follow other callings and not sit around stores and towns so much there would be less cry of hard times and more prosperity among them. This is in a measure true, but we are opposed to being taught to stick to the drudgery of farm life and not being allowed to go out occasionally and meet with our friends and neighbors and discuss the events of the times and matters of mutual interest. About one-half of the farmers are green enough and are the butt of half the jokes you read. It is not a little annoying to me to hear my brother farmer made fun of in this way and I get sick of it. Lute Aylor, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., was visiting relatives near Waterloo, the past week.

Robt. Clore shipped 50 hogs and four cattle on the night of the 2d inst. Bob sold out and was at our place the next day at noon.

Our postoffice has changed hands, and O. N. Grant seems to be at home in discharging his duties. Owing to the fact that this office was recently declared a money order office, he will have more duties than his predecessors.

Dr. Wm. Barkley, of Cincinnati, who taught school in these parts 25 years ago, honored us with a call, while visiting acquaintances here. The Doctor is one of the two, who own the Indiana gold mines recently discovered, and thinks he is in the "swim." If it pans out as he expects. While ministering to a patient, whom he accompanied to Colorado last autumn, he gained quite a knack of performed in regard to the different ores. We wish him success.

James Conley and sister, Nannie, children of our friend John Conley, of Napolean, Gallatin county, and Miss Katie Ryle, daugbter of Larkin Ryle, of Warsaw, have been the guests for several days, of R. O. and Nat Ryle and their mother as well as many other relatives. We were honored with the presence of the ladies at our weekly prayer meeting, they being guests of Miss Lucy Ryle on that evening. The gent, James Conley, was in the Cuban war, and expects to be mustered ont in the near future.

We had occasion to drop in at Walton & Co.'s store the other evening and was much amused to hear the discussion that had been protracted for two weeks, at different intervals, over the question as to whether it would take more pickets, set perpendicularly, to fence over a hog, or would to fence through on a level. Quite a majority believed it would take the same, while others dissented, two of whom we attempted to tutor years ago, but not along that line. Readers, let us hear from you.

Halloo, my friend Rip Vanwinkle, from the north end, "Thou art beside thyself." I fear that during your long continued spell of somnambulism your dreams have not been pleasant, but you have had visions of hobos, thieves, thugs and last, but I hope not least, in your mind of the RECORDER'S humble representative this place, whom you charge with taking a deep interest in the man whom you had an occasion to shoot, and also go so far as to say, "I don't care who he is, etc." Now my friend, had you known me and my motive in writing what I did, you would not have uttered the above. However, you are excusable, owing to conditions described above. I would have you know that I am ready and willing at all times, to aid in the execution of our laws, and meet out justice to evil-doers; while at the same time I love to speak of and encourage the good in my fellowman. The one, who is said to be guilty of trespass, has a brother here, who has raised a respectable and honorable family among us, and owing to respect for them and a love for truth, I wrote the facts about the accused, while he was among us, which facts can be verified by many reliable witnesses. Now, Bro. Add, "learn to subdue your passions," and rely upon the laws of our Commonwealth for protection, and in the future may your sleep be natural, and dreams pleasant. You have my sympathy in your recent affliction. The above is written in all kindness and out of respect for you, my brother, and not with a view to be drawn into controversy or notority.

Here it is, Mr. Editor, the complete heading of the party at which the long list of names denoted the guests who were in attendance: "Mr. Ira Percival gave a grand party on Friday evening in honor of his sons and daughters, Clayton, Willie, Lyda and Mary. Music and games were the principal features of the entertainment, followed by a delicious supper, a collaboration of menu and guests difficult to eclipse.

Mrs. J. A. Sanders, in honor of her niece, Myrtle Jones, held a receptiou last Friday evening, which was attended by the same crowd of young folks, whose names have been recapitulated on several recent occasions of the same kind, Mr. Claude Harris, of Iudependence, being the only name to add to the list. And, by the way, it looks as if an arrow from the bow of Dan Cupid has hit his anatomical configuration a centre shot in the region of the left breast. It looks very much like a case.

The Embroidery Class will have a house picnic on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Willie A. Kennedy. Mrs. Joseph Williams will give instructions to her class all day long.

Miss Alice Wilson, of Bank Lick, has gone home, after a pleasant visit to her sister, Mrs. Judge Botts.

Mrs. J. Grant Tomlin is more than pleased with the commendation the accomplished musician, Miss Lora Diers, bestowed on her new piano.

The many friends of Miss Gertrude Selfe[illegible] regret to hear that she is sick at her home in Critteuden, with grippe.

Miss Mamie Stephens has returned to her home in Covington after a joyful visit to her cousins, Miss Madge Holder.

The term of the public school expired last Friday, but the parents of the pupils are so well pleased with their wonderful progress, that they have subscribed a sufficient amount to continue the school three months longer.

Miss Carrie Clore began a spring school here, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hossman entertained with a crokinole party, Friday evening.

Mr. C. R. Coulthard spent Saturday night and Sunday with Perry Aylor and wife.

We are glad to report Mrs. M. L. Aylor as greatly improved, but not sufficiently to be brought home.

A number of young friends were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Perry Aylor, Sunday evening, in honor of Prof. Hanu.

The elite candy-pulling given by Miss Mary Riddell, Saturday night, was a most enjoyable affair. The young ladies wore white aprons. Among those present were: Misses Lizzie Dye, Grace Bullock, Clara Hossman, Daisy Harding, Carrie Clore, Dora and Neva Hafer, and Messrs. G. S. Hann, in whose honor it was given; Lewis Harding, Walter Hafer, Clint Riddell, Leslie Aylor, Wilfred and James Bullock.

Verona.

Grover Rice, who has been suffering greatly with his knee is improving nicely.

The sudden death of Mrs. J. R. Johnson, last Thursday, was a shock to this community. Her health which had been bad for several years was thought to be very much improved, and she was attending her household duties, when her husband left the house, Thursday, to return shortly, to find her lying on the floor dead. She was a very popular lady, and leaves many friends to mourn her death.

A man can see strong reasons for approving what he wants to approve; but it is not easy for him to condemn, utterly, what is against his desires. When a man begins to argue for a lower standard in life it is fair to suspect him of having already lowered the standard of morals in his personal life. While a man is pure and trustful and honest, he sees the beauty of purity, truthfulness and honesty, and there is no doubt in his mind as to what is the correct standard in these matters; but when he has begun to lower his practice, he naturally inclines to lower his theories. Men love darkness rather than light when their works are evil. The old proverb is, if the shoe fits wear it.

Freeland Holcomb, aged about 22 years, died Wednesday night at the residence of his brother, Hugh Holcomb, who resides on the Clore farm. Freeland has been ill only a short time being attacked with a severe case of lagrippe a little over a week ago, which developed into what is known as double pneumonia.

Prof. A. D. Fleshman, who has had charge of the Warsaw public school, resigned his position Tuesday, and left Wednesday night for his home at Corydon, Harrison County, Ind., where he will read law in the office of his brother, who has been recently elected Prosecuting Attorney for that district.

Enoch White and family moved from above town Tuesday, to the farm in Boone county, Ky., opposite Lawrenceburg, Ind., recently occupied by his father-in-law, Park Holton, who died there recently. Mr. White will farm there this season.

Judge Roberts and wife entertained a large number of their friends in a most delightful manner, last Friday night, with music and parlor games. It was approaching the wee sma' hours when the guests took their departure for their homes. No person can make their guests feel more welcome than do the Judge and their wife and their accomplished daughter, Miss Sheba.

The Erlanger school tax case was decided by the Court of Appeals, last week. The trustees of the Erlanger school district levied a tax, the collection of which was enjoined by H. M. Tate and others. The Kenton Circuit Court dissolved the injunction, which the Appellate Court says was an error, and directs that court to issue an order restraining the collection of the tax.

Here is the meanest thing Senator Goebel's enemies have yet been able to hatch on him: "A lady in Pembroke, who is an enthusiastic Democrat named her canary-bird, Bill Goebel. Now she declares that no dependence can be placed in a politician.—Glasgow Times.

The timber on a farm in Grant and Wabash counties, Indiana, has just been sold for $50,000. The land was recently purchased from the original purchasers of the tract from the Miama Indians for $75,000, and the land is said to be worth $50 per acre without the timber. It is estimated to contain at least 3,000,000 feet of hard timber, principally oak, walnut, ash and hickory. The walnut consisting of 600,000 feet, is the largest tract of that kind of timber in the United States. Poor Lo was swindled again.

Judge Shine, of the Kenton County Court, has ordered that County Assessor Memminger be allowed commissions as follows: Assessment of property amounting to $28,617,240, commission $3,852.15; 568 births, at 2 cents each, $11.36; 794 deaths, at 2 cents each, $15.88; 872 marriages, at 2 cents each, $17.44. In this county County Judge Roberts ordered that Assessor Willis be allowed his commission on $6,230,207 which amounted to $1,053 77. In this county the ministers return the marriages and the doctors the births and deaths, consequently the Assessor is made no allowance for these items.

Hiram Long, the local tobacco merchant whose failure a few weeks ago, created such a stir in this county, has returned home, and was in Burlington, last Friday, in consultation with his attorney, G. G. Hughes. During his absence Mr. Long traveled extensively in the South, visiting several States. But he found no place like home, and he finally concluded to return, having given those who had lost money by him time in which to become somewhat reconciled to their misfortune. Mr. Long says that several of the claims presented against him are without any foundation, whatever, while on others he has not been given credits to which he will be able to show he is entitled.

Tuesday's Enquirer gives the following account of a probable fatal shooting scrape in Grant county, Saturday night: "At Stewartsville J. Brent Dejarnette shot and seriously, if not fatally, wounded Jess Kinman, aged 21 years. Dejaruette was Deputy United States Marshal in charge of the bankrupt stock of goods of N. M. Smith & Co., Kelly Kinman, a brother of the injured man, came into the store under the influence of liquor, and began to demolish the fixtures when Dejarnette sprang from behind the counter, revolver in hand and struck him over the head with the weapon. Jess Kinman, who was standing by, stepped up and said: "We don't want any trouble in here." "No and d—d if we will have it, either," said Dejarnette, and with these words fired, striking young Kinman just below the heart, the bullet coming out at his back. His recovery is extremely doubtful. Dejarnette mounted a horse, rode into town, gave himself up and was released on bond. He is the son of Captain A. G. Dejarnette, a leading attorney of Williamstown."

The Picnic.

There was a jolly crowd who went to Big Bone. Atwood and I were among them. There were eight couples.

We were three hours going, so when we got there we were hungry and thirsty.

Atwood thought he would have some fun, so he proposed we would go and get a drink of Big Bone water, declaring it to be splendid, so we all tried it, and it is a positive fact, some of us have never gotten our faces straight yet. It smelled like rotten eggs and tasted worse.

We ate our dinner, and such musing—I sat down in some butter and Atwood in some jelly.

We started home at four o'clock, and before we had gone half way the rain poured down in torrents.

Just as we got this side of the tollgate the horse scared at something and ran away. No one was hurt but we were very much frightened.

Atwood fell head first into a mud-puddle and I came on top of him.

When we reached home we were a muddy sight, but none of us were sorry we went.

HARRY BAKER STEPHENS,
Florence, Ky.

Age 12 years.

The above was written by one of the brightest and most original little fellows of the Florence public school, as a Language Lesson, the lesson being for each one in the class to write a description of a picnic or a public meeting that they had attended.

PERSONAL MENTION.

P. E. Cason has been a very sick man for nearly a week.

Mrs. W. E Vest is very ill, and has been for several days.

M. C. Carroll, of Big Bone, has been dangerously ill for several days.

Walter Kelly has been appointed a guager by Collector Comingore.

Richard White has been on the sick list for several days with neuralgia and other troubles.

J. S. Clutterbuck has been very much annoyed, of late, by a series of boils on his face.

Rev. Hoover and wife were visiting Rev. J. A. Kirtley and family the latter part of last week.

Mrs. Pink Rice, of Utzinger, is with her sister, Mrs. W. E. Vest, who is quite ill of grippe.

Chester Davis, the popular merchant and his wife, of Hebron, were in town time last Thursday.

We hear that Mr. A. G. Winston, of Hebron, fell and sprained one of his ankles badly, last week.

Joseph Bentler and wife, of Gallatin county, are visiting his brothers, John and Anthony, of this place.

Frank Crisler was in Burlington a day or two last week, looking much better than his friends had seen him for years.

FRIDAY—Board Meeting.

All are cordially invited to attend these Meetings.

Miss Olga Kirkpatrick was at the postoffice Monday morning after a week's absence on account of a sprained ankle.

Sheriff Beall's calendar is badly rattled on the weather question Its weather predictions have been off for about a week now.

C. W. Riddell, of Williamstown, was the guest of T. W. Fluch and daughter from Saturday evening until Monday afternoon.

Esq. Bannister, of Union, was in town Saturday, looking as if he had recovered entirely from his recent severe attack of illness.

W. E. Townley, the lumber man of Cincinnati, and a friend, came out last Wednesday and spent the day with W. J. Rice and wife.

J. D. Mitchell was in town Saturday. He said a pack of hounds were giving a fox considerable amusement in his neighborhood the day before.

R. S. Cowen and nephew, Shelby Cowen, visited Thos. Coweu at Frankfort, last Saturday. Thomas has been quite sick, but is getting better.

Esq. J. C. Byland, of Walton, was in town Thursday, when he had bills printed to advertise the sale of Samuel Hudson, which will be on the 21st inst.

Miss Birdie Peck is visiting her home folks in the Pleasant Retreat neighborhood. She has been sick in Madison for several weeks with lagrippe.—Milton News.

Mr. B. B. Allphin, of the Mud Lick neighborhood, is in a very critical condition, and owing to his extreme age his friends are very much concerned about him.

In remitting his subscription to the Recorder, J. A. Riddell, the Aurora druggist, sends us an excellent calendar and weather chart, for which he will accept our thanks.

Mr. Enoch Mannin, of Hebron, was among those from a distance in town last Saturday. He looked like the grippe weather of the past few months had agreed with him.

J. E. Rouse, of Limaburg, called on the RECORDER last Thursday. He is getting ready to move to Fayette county on the first of March. He will seud his team through with one load of his goods.

J. M. Eddius and Elmer Beall visited the city last Thursday. To keep off small pox it is said each had asafoetida in his brogans, while strings around their necks supported a half-pound sack of that substance.

Mr. Henry Malory, who lives one mile out on the Petersburg pike, has been quite sick for several days. Mr. Malory served in two wars, the Mexican war and that between the States, and is getting along in years. In his time there was no better carpeuter.

Hume Store.

Esq. Ben Allphin, who has been on the sick list for the past four weeks, is not much better.—Lewis Staley, Bessie VanNese, Cebury Allphin and Nell Hume, went to a party and got lost coming back.—Mrs. R. L. Roberts has a severe attack of la grippe.—J. G. Finnell shipped a nice bunch of hogs, Tuesday night.—The Mud Lick school closed Tuesday. The following pupils made a general average of 90 or over for the term: Sallie Finnell 96, Katie Allphin, 94, Bettie Finnell, 91, Josie Madin, 94; Johanna Carr, 94; Emma Black, 92; Lizzie Madin, 93; George Madin, 94; Edward Madin, 94; Mark Black, 92; John Allen, 91. We were sorry to see the teacher, Miss Bessie VanNess, leave as all are much attached to her.—The people on the creek want to know if the deputy sheriff's wife is still in Burlington, as her presence on the creek is very much desirable.

Gasburg.

Arthur Terrill and wife are bedfast with grippe.

Al Nixon will work for Ernest Grant this season.

But little preparation has been made for raising tobacco this season.

The acreage devoted to melons and tomatoes will be unusually large.

Hog cholera still lingers here, Ben Berkshire's drove being the last attacked.

A good many peach buds are killed but not enough to seriously reduce the crop.

Indications are that a lively fight will be made for Hardin for Governor, in this precinct.

Paris Parker, assistant book keeper for Early & Daniels, of Cincinnati, spent Sunday with his parents here.

The question of free turnpikes is the principle theme of discussion among the politicians of Petersburg and vicinity.

Clifford Terrill has come back to this place after an absence of a year, about one half of which was spent in the army.

Capt. Houze, of the Aurora ferry, is still unable to go on duty, and will probably not be able for some time to come.

Dave Thompson has moved from this place to a house recently built on Ernest Grant's land at the mouth of Woolper.

Ennis Nixon, leader of the orchestra on the Workum, laid off a trip or two last week on account of a bad cold and a skinned shin.

We helped a neighbor, last week to butcher. Three hogs were slaughtered and to accomplish the task the following force was eugaged: 11 men, 6 women, 4 children and 8 dogs.

Jessie Kelly, of McVille, Lou Terrill, of near the Lawrenceburg Ferry, and J. B. Tolin, the lively corrospondent of the Recorder at Petersburg, ate dinner with your correspondent, last Tuesday

Our public school closes on the 8th. The attendance was light throughout term on account of many of the pupils attending schools out side of the district, and the failure of some parents to send their children.

We have received a very nicely written obituary of Mrs. Baily, which will appear next week.

There was a very small crowd in town Monday, and but little business was transacted by the court.

SWINDLE IS ABROAD.

Dr. Talmage Preaches on the Prevalence of Crime.

Everywhere Are Men Who Have Abused the Trust Reposed in Them—The Evils of Speculation.

This, like many of Dr. Talmage's discourses, recommends right doing for this world, as well as preparation for the Heavenly world. Text, Job, 8, 14: "Whose trust shall be a spider's web."

The two most skillful architects in the world are the bee and the spider. The one puts up n sugar manufactory and the other builds a slaughter house for flies. On a bright summer morning, when the sun comes out and shines upon the spider's web, bedecked with dew, the gossamer structure seems bright enough for a suspension bridge for aerial beings to cross on. But alas for the poor fly which in the latter part of that day ventures on it and is caught and dungeoned and destroyed! The fly was informed that it was a free bridge, and would cost nothing, but at the other end of the bridge the toll paid was its own life. The next day there comes down a strong wind, and away goes the web and the marauding spider and the victimized fly. So delicate are the silken threads of the spider's web that many thousands of them are put together before they become visible to the human eye, and it takes 4,000,000 of them to make a thread as large as the human hair. Most cruel as well as most ingenious is the spider. A prisoner in the Bastile, France, had one so trained that at the sound of the violin it every day came for its meal of flies. The author of my text, who was a learned scientist of his day, had no doubt watched the voracious process of this one insect with another, and saw spider and fly swept down by the same broom or scattered by the same wind. Alas that the world has so many designing spiders and victimized flies! There has not been a time when the utter and black irresponsibility of many men having the financial interests of others in charge has been more evident than in these last few years. The bankruptcy of banks and disappearance of administrators with the funds of large estates, and the disordered accounts of United States officials have sometimes made a pestilence of crime that solemnizes every thoughtful man and woman and leads every philanthropist and Christian to ask: What shall be done to stay the plague?

There is ever and anon a monsoon of swindle abroad, a typhoon, a sirocco. I sometimes ask myself if it would not be better for men making wills to bequeath the property directly to the executors and officers of the court and appoint the widows and orphans a committee to see that the former got all that did not belong to them. The simple fact is that there are a large number of men sailing yachts and driving fast horses and members of expensive clubhouses and controlling country seats who are not worth a dollar if they return to others their just rights. Under some sudden reverse they fail, and with afflicted air seem to retire from the world, and seem almost ready for monastic life, when in two or three years they blossom out again, having compromised with their creditors—that is, paid them nothing but regret—and the only difference between the second chapter of prosperity and the first is that their pictures are Murillos instead of Kensetts, and their horses go a mile in 20 seconds less than their predecessors, and instead of one country seat they have three. I have watched and have noticed that those out of ten of those who fail in what is called high life have more means after than before the failure, and in many of the cases failure is only a stratagem to escape the payment of honest debts and put the world off the track while they practice a large swindle. There is something woefully wrong in the fact that these things are possible.

First of all, I charge the blame on careless, indifferent bank directors and boards having in charge great financial institutions. It ought not to be possible for a president or cashier or prominent officer of a banking institution to swindle it year after year without detection. I will undertake to say that if these frauds are carried on for two or three years without detection either the directors are partners in the infamy and pocket part of the theft or they are guilty of a culpable neglect of duty, for which God will hold them as responsible as He holds the acknowledged defrauders. What right have prominent business men to allow their names to be published as directors in a financial institution, so that unsophisticated people are thereby induced to deposit their money in or buy the scrip thereof, when they, the published directors, are doing nothing for the safety of the institution? It is a case of deception most reprehensible.

Many people with a surplus of money, not needed for immediate use, although it may be a little further on indispensable, are without friends competent to advise them, and they are guided solely by the character of the men whose names are associated with the institution. When the crash came and with the overthrow of the banks went the small earnings and limited fortunes of widows and orphans and the helplessly aged, the directors stood with idiotic stare, and to the inquiry of the frenzied depositors and stockholders who had lost their all and to the arraignment of an indignant public had nothing to say except: "We thought it was all right. We did not know there was anything wrong going on." It was their duty to know. They stood in a position which deluded the people with the idea that they were carefully observant. Calling themselves directors, they did not direct. They had opportunity of auditing accounts and inspecting the books. No time to do so? Then they had no business to accept the position. It seems to be the pride of some moneyed men to be directors in a great many institutions, and all they know is whether or not they get their dividends regularly, and their names are used as decoy ducks to bring others near enough to be made game of. What first of all is needed is that 500 bank directors and insurance company directors resign or attend to their business as directors. The business world will be full of fraud just as long as fraud is so easy. When you arrest the president and secretary of a bank for an embezzlement carried on for many years, be sure to have plenty of sheriffs out the same day to arrest all the directors. They are guilty either of neglect or complicity.

"Oh," some will say, "better preach the Gospel and let business matters alone." I reply, if your Gospel does not inspire common honesty in the dealings of men the sooner you close up your Gospel and pitch it into the depths of the Atlantic ocean the better. An orthodox swindler is worse than a heterodox swindler. The recitation of all the catechisms and creeds ever written and partaking of all the communion chalices that ever glittered in the churches of Christendom never save your soul unless your business character corresponds with your religious profession. Some of the worst scoundrels in America have been members of churches, and they got fat on sermons about Heaven when they most needed to have the pulpits preach that which would either bring them to repentance or thunder them out of the holy communions where their presence was a sacrilege and an infamy.

We must especially deplore the misfortunes of banks in various parts of this country in that they damage the banking institution, which is the greatest convenience of the centuries and indispensable to commerce and the advance of nations. In one hand it blesses the lender, and with the other it blesses the borrower. On their shoulders are the interests of private individuals and great corporations. In them are the great arteries through which run the currents of the nation's life. They have been the resources of the thousands of financiers in days of business exigency. They stand for accommodation, for facility, for individual, state and national relief. At their head and in their management there are as much interest and moral worth as in any class of men, perhaps more. How nefarious, then, the behavior of those who bring disrepute upon this venerable, benignant and God honored institution!

We also deplore abuse of trust funds, because the abusers fly in the face of divine goodness, which seems determined to bless this land. We are having a series of unexampled national harvests. The wheat gamblers get hold of the wheat, and the corn gamblers get hold of the corn. The full tide of God's mercy toward this land is put back by those great dikes of dishonorable resistance. When God provides enough food and clothing to feed and apparel this whole nation like princes, the scramble of dishonest men to get more than their share and get it all hazards keeps everything shaking with uncertainty and everybody asking: "What next?" Every week makes new revelations. How many more bank presidents and bank cashiers have been speculating with other people's money and how many more bank directors are in imbecile silence, letting the perfidy go on, the great and patient God only knows. My opinion is that we have got near the bottom. The wind has been pricked from the great bubble of American speculation. The men who thought that the judgment day was at least 5,000 years off found it in 1893 or 1897 or 1896, and this nation has been taught that men must keep their hands out of other people's pockets. Great businesses built on borrowed capital have been obliterated, and men who had nothing have lost all they had. I believe we are started on a higher career of prosperity than this land has ever seen—if and if and if.

If the first men, and especially Christian men, will learn never to speculate upon borrowed capital—if you have a mind to take your own money and turn it all into kites, to fly them over every community in the United States, you do society no wrong, except when you tumble over helpless children into the poorhouse for the public to take care of—but you have no right to take the money of others and turn it into kites. There is one word that has deluded more people into bankruptcy and state prison and ruin than any other word in commercial life, and that is the word borrow. That one word is responsible for the defalcations and embezzlements and financial consternations of the last 20 years. When executors conclude to speculate with the funds of an estate committed to their charge, they do not purloin; they say they only borrow. When a banker makes an overdraft upon his institution, he does not commit a theft; he only borrows. When the officer of a company, by flaming advertisement in some religious paper and gilt certificate of stock, gets a multitude of country people to put their small earnings to an enterprise for carrying on some undeveloped nothing, he does not fraudulently take their money; he only borrows. When a young man with easy access to his employer's money drawer or the confidential clerk by close propinquity to the account books takes a few dollars for a Wall street excursion, he expects to put it back. He will put it all back. He will put it all back very soon. He only borrows. Why, when you are going to do wrong pronounce so long a word as borrow, a word of six letters, when you can get a shorter word more descriptive of the reality, a word of only five letters—the word steal?

There are times when we all borrow and borrow legitimately, and borrow with the divine blessing for Christ in His sermon on the mount enjoins: "From him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away." A young man rightly borrows money to get his education. Purchasing a house and not able to pay all down in cash, the purchaser rightly borrows it on mortgage. Crises come in business when it would be wrong for a man not to borrow. But I roll this warning through all these aisles, over the backs of all these pews, never borrow to speculate—not a dollar, not a cent, not a farthing. Young men, I warn you by your worldly prospects and the value of your immortal souls, do not do it. There are breakers distinguished for their shipwrecks—the Ilanways, the Needles, the Caskets, the Douvers, the Anderlos, the Skerries—and many a craft has gone to pieces on those rocks, but I have to tell you that all the Hanways, and the Needles, and the Caskets, and the Skerries are as nothing compared with the long line of breakers which bound the ocean of commercial life north, south, east and west with the white foam of their despair and the dirge of their damnation—the breakers of borrow.

If I had only a worldly weapon to use on this subject, I would give you the fact, fresh from the highest authority, that 90 per cent. of those who gamble wild speculation lose all, but I have better warning than a worldly warning. From the place where men have perished—body, mind, soul—stand off, stand off! Abstract pulpit discussion must step aside on this question. Faith and repentance are absolutely necessary, but faith and repentance are no more doctrines of the Bible than commercial integrity. "Render to all their dues." "Owe no man anything." And while I mean to preach faith and repentance, more and more to preach them, I do not mean to spend any time in chasing the Hittites and Jebusites and Girgashites of Bible times when there are so many evils right around us destroying men and women for time and eternity. The greatest evangelistic preacher the world ever saw, a man who died for his evangelism—peerless Paul—wrote to the Romans: "Provide things honest in the sight of all men;" wrote to the Corinthians: "Do that which is honest;" wrote to the Philippians: "Whatsoever things are honest," wrote to the Hebrews: "Willing in all things to live honestly." The Bible says that faith without works is dead, which, being literally translated, means that if your business life does not correspond with your profession your religion is a humbug.

Gathered in all religious assemblages there are many who have trust funds. It is a compliment to you that you have been so intrusted, but I charge you, in the presence of God and the world, be as careful of the property of others as you are careful of your own. Above all, keep your own private account at the bank separate from your account as trustee of an estate or trustee of an institution. That is the point at which thousands of people make shipwreck. They get the property of others mixed up with their own property. They put it into investment, and away it all goes, and they cannot return that which they borrowed. Then comes the explosion, and the money market is shaken, and the press denounces, and the church thunders expulsion. You have no right to use the property of others, except for their advantage, nor without consent, unless they are minors. If with their consent you invest their property as well as you can, and it is all lost, you are not to blame. You did the best you could, but do not come into the delusion, which has ruined so many men, of thinking because a thing is in their possession therefore it is theirs. You have a solemn trust that God has given you. In any assemblage there may be some who have misappropriated trust funds. Put them back, or if you have so helplessly involved them that you cannot put them back, confess the whole thing to those whom you have wronged, and you will sleep better nights, and you will have the better chance for your soul. What a sad thing it would be if, after you are dead, your administrator should find out from the account books or from the lack of vouchers, that you are not only bankrupt in estate, but that you lost your soul. If all the trust funds that have been misappropriated should suddenly fly to their owners and all the property that has been purloined should suddenly go back to its owners, it would crush into ruin every city in America.

A missionary in one of the islands of the Pacific preached on dishonesty, and the next morning he looked out of his window, and he saw his yard full of goods of all kinds. He wondered and asked the cause of all this. "Well," said the natives, "our gods that we have been worshiping permit us to steal, but according to what you said yesterday the God of Heaven and earth will not allow this, so we bring back all these goods, and we ask you to help us in taking them to the places where they belong." If next Sabbath all the ministers in America should preach sermons on the abuse of trust funds, and on the evils of purloining, and the sermons were all blessed of God, and regulations were made that all these things should be taken to the city halls, it would not be long before every city hall in America would be crowded from cellar to cupola.

Practical Classics.

Mrs. Timkins was taking her son to school for the first time, and, after impressing the schoolmaster with the necessity of his having a thorough, good education, finished up by saying: "And be sure he learns Latin."

"But, my dear madam," said the schoolmaster, "Latin is a dead language."

"All right," said Mrs. Timkins; "he'll want it. He's going to be an undertaker."—Golden Days.

AN UNSTABLE POLICY.

Unreliability of the Republican Administration in Critical Situations.

"Shall republicans stand by McKinley?" asks an expansionist party organ. They probably ought to as a general party proposition; but the best republicans, as well as the best democrats, have preferred to consider the Philippine question from a broader standpoint. Parties are essential in government, but they do not necessarily enter into every phase of public affairs. There are organs which are blindly insisting on the most extreme course with reference to the new "acquisition" in the orient, merely because they think it is the policy of the administration, and they do not feel at liberty to have thoughts of their own. President McKinley may surprise them some day. In several important instances in his public life he has not been so wedded to a sentiment or a principle that he has not been able to make a radical and sudden switch.

It is very well understood that the administration occupies a radically different position from the one it assumed when the peace commissioners went to Paris. Senator Hoar knows personally that which he [illegible] gain official knowledge of. The resolution which he offered some time since, and which was adopted by the senate, asking for certain information about the peace negotiations, was couched in the usual terms. It recognized the right commonly accorded to the executive department to decline to communicate anything which it might look upon as incompatible with the public interest. What Hoar evidently desired to bring out was the fact that the peace commissioners on behalf of the United States were originally authorized to demand only a coaling station on the island of Luzon. This and nothing more. The executive department has taken doubtful advantage of its prerogative to refuse this information. Its assumption that publication of the matter would be incompatible with the public interest is farfetched. It simply does not want to be exposed in its swift changes.

The policy of requiring only a coaling station rapidly grew into a treaty which contemplated the permanent acquisition of the whole Philippine archipelago, and the cold shoulder to the liberty-seeking Filipinos. Some of the friends of the treaty, and even some of its framers, have been driven to the claim that the ratification of the treaty leaves the future of the islands badly open; that it would not be in the slightest detriment to the idea of extending to the people of the islands the opportunity to organize a government of their own.

That may be the purpose now, but it was not at the time the treaty was framed. The article relating to the control of the Philippines is different from that providing for the case of Cuba. Why were they not made alike? Why were the advocates of the treaty put in the position of making a complicated, and more or less pettifogging, argument to show that independent government is possible under the third article? Why was the matter not put in plain terms?

The difference was that congress had promised that the war should not be one for the acquisition of Cuba. We made no such promise as to the Philippines, reasoned the administration. Morally, it argued, the cases are the same, but technically we are free to grab a slice of the orient, and let us do so to make ourselves popular with the people. Expansion is the prevalent cry, and we will get into the swim. Now the administration is not so sure that expansion is popular, and it is "hedging."

The serious matter now before the people, or before any party, is not of "standing by McKinley," but of pursuing the right course.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A POOR ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

The Pitiable Plea of Secretary of War Alger Before the Investigation Commission.

Secretary of War Alger, in his testimony before the war investigation commission, stated that the reason why there was no active preparation before the declaration of war was because the war department still hoped that war might be averted.

This indicates a remarkable blindness to the meaning of exceptional happenings. It is in strong contrast to the clear-sighted course of the navy department, which began hurried preparations for active service months before the conflict began. These preparations were under full headway, ex-Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt states, at the time of the Maine's destruction. After that tragic event occurred no certain was war that Roosevelt resigned from the navy department and began to recruit his regiment of rough riders for service in the field.

All this time, however, according to his own testimony, the secretary of war was neglecting to put the army on a war basis because he hoped war would be averted. Other people saw its inevitable coming, but he did not. When it came, therefore, the land forces of the United States were not ready for it, and confusion and mismanagement prevailed from that moment until the war came to an end. The superb service of the American navy brilliantly began and as brilliantly ended the war, shielding an unprepared army from disaster and defeat.

Secretary of War Alger was a costly failure in a national crisis of unusual peril. He explains why he was a failure. He did not begin to put the American army on a war footing until war was declared. His confession is astounding in its significance.—St. Louis Republic.

THE WORKING OF TRUSTS.

Monopolies Are Multiplying and Flourishing Under Republican Rule.

The trusts never sleep. All day and all night the machinery of the combines grind on and get its grist out of the people.

No day passes that plans are not laid to corner some product, to slaughter competition, to cut down the wages of workingmen and to make the rich richer through the unpaid wages of the masses.

Among the recent additions to the list of combines may be mentioned the graulte ware trust, with a capital stock of $10,000,000 seven per cent. preferred stock and $20,000,000 common stock, purchasers of preferred stock to have a bonus of 50 per cent. of the common stock. The trust is to masquerade as the National Enameling and Stamping company, in order to evade the laws against trusts, and the charter is like those of most of the other "companies" that are trusts in disguise, to be obtained under the laws of New Jersey.

A movement has been inaugurated for a combination or consolidation of interests of all the makers of strawboard and paper boxes.

A flint glass trust is to be built around the American Flint Bottle Manufacturers' association, recently [illegible] with a capital of $100,000. The companies interested in the construction of the trust represent nearly nine-tenths of the entire product of the country. When the deal is completed the capital is to be raised to several billions and a $1,000,000 bond issue is to be floated.

It is to be noted that all of these combines are not in the least intended to "restrict trade." Of course not. Such an intention put into practice would be a violation of the federal law, and, while federal law is not enforced against trusts by the United States attorney-general, yet it would not look well for the combines to admit that they are openly violating that law.

As an example of what trusts are doing for the workingmen, take the American steel combine. This trust, it is alleged, proposes to reduce expenses at least ten per cent. and to advance the prices of its products very materially.

In addition to this the thread trust is going to close some of its manufactories, and higher prices for products will be demanded of laboring men, combined with lower wages or no wages at all.—Chicago Dispatch.

WORDS OF WARNING.

Newly Acquired Territory Must Not Become the Prey of Politicians.

A report to the war department containing the result of a careful investigation by one of the officers of the department into affairs in Porto Rico says that if the island is to become a credit to the United States and not a continual thorn in her side "it is as certain as the rising of the sun that the work of reconstruction must be done by men of disinterested motives." In concluding his report the officer says that "if the best men are not put to this undertaking, but the island is allowed to become a political plaything, the Porto Rican will become worse off than he was under Spain."

What is true of Porto Rico is equally true of any other outlying territory that may come under the control of the government of the United States, temporarily or permanently. And there lies one of the strongest objections to the United States entering upon a "colonial policy."

It is not a question whether republican or democratic politicians would be the best, for it would most likely be but a toss-up between them. No matter which party filled the positions, if they should be filled with politicians selected on partisan grounds the chances of bad results would be so nearly equal that they are not worth discussing.

Perhaps President McKinley would be able to withstand the pressure of the politicians of his party and appoint none but fit men for the positions to be filled in our "colonies," if we conclude to add such a feature to our political system. Let us hope he would, although that hope cannot but be dashed with fear in view of some appointments he has made since he came to the presidency.

But what about his successors? Might not another republican president have friends to reward for their services in the campaigns for the nomination and election? And if a democratic administration should follow would there not be a clamor to "Turn the rascals out?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SENTIMENT OF THE PUBLIC.

How the National Feeling Is Revealed by Patrons of the Continuous Performances.

It takes the vaudeville or even the dime museum to reveal the real state of popular feeling on public questions. The "auditorium" at the dime museum—the little low tunnel of a place where you get a seat for five cents—is the real spot in which to get the very "age and body of the time." If a public question ever touches the thoughts of the people at all, it is sure to be referred to by some songster or minute on this ridiculous little stage, and the audience, which is representative of the masses to a most pronounced extent, expresses its feelings with regard to the matter in a manner without equivocation. You can get a better idea what the populace thinks about things in one of these places in one day than you can gather in a month's time from any newspaper published in Boston. In a day? Why, you need not stay longer than five minutes in the place—very likely you won't want to—in order to get some indication of public sentiment on some subject.

I think the Anglo-American alliance showed its face on the vaudeville stage with some trepidation. I know it has been raising its head from time to time there, and has received unexpected encouragement, showing that the populace thinks better of Johnny Bull than the politicians thought. But happening in at the dime museum the other noon, as I sometimes do for not to exceed ten minutes (the great advantage of these places over ordinary theaters is that you don't have to stay in them a second longer than you are amused), I encountered the first real proof that I have seen that the Anglo-American alliance is a popular thing. A man came out whose part it was to exhibit the uniforms of "17 different armies of the world." He was swathed with clothes, of course, and the outside uniform of them all was that of an American artillery volunteer. That was applauded, of course. He stripped that off and revealed another; and with every change of uniform he made a funny little speech in hifalutin language, describing the nation to which the supposed soldier belonged, and the orchestra played the national anthem of that country, if it could. I noticed that when the man exhibited the uniform of a Polish hussar of 100 years ago the orchestra played the Russian hymn, because Poland is now supposed to be a part of Russia, and a little later, when he "did" a Russian soldier, it played the same tune. I saw that he was keeping the British recruit for the last, and I wondered what the effect would be. When, finally, he appeared in the uniform of a British infantryman, and went into the wings and got a union jack and began to march up and down the stage with it, while the orchestra played "God Save the Queen," the audience applauded wildly, heartily and enthusiastically. There were shouts of "Hooray!" without so much as a dissenting hiss.

This was not all. The actor still had one uniform more to present. He planted the union jack on the stage by driving into the floor a spike on the bottom of the staff, and then went and arrayed himself in the American campaign uniform of Santiago, bringing on with him the stars and stripes. Wild applause, of course. After he had marched up and down a little, the orchestra playing "The Star-Spangled Banner," he planted the flag on the stage close by the British flag, and then proceeded to tie their folds together in a hard knot! Then the audience simply went wild with applause and delight—and the Anglo-American alliance was complete—so far as that house was concerned.—Boston Transcript.

A Seventeenth Century Valentine.

I KNOW a lass in Norwich-town—
Heigh-ho! but my heart's merry!
Yonder trips she a-wending down
The little lane by the Rose and Crown
With lips as red as a berry.

I know a lass in Norwich-town—
Heigh-ho! but my heart's jolly!
Ever a smile and never a frown,
And a cry to Puritan Care—"Go drown!"
And a mock at melancholy.

I know a lass in Norwich-town—
Heigh-ho! but my heart's merry!
Trustful eyes that are winsome brown,
And feet as light as the thistle-down,
And cheeks as pink as the cherry.

I know a lass in Norwich-town—
Heigh-ho! but my heart's jolly!
Though I've a name of no renown,
And she goes clad in a silken gown,
I have won sweet Mistress Polly.
—Clinton Scollard, in Harper's Bazar.

The Widow Darby's Valentine.

THE Widow Darby, fair, plump and looking far younger than her 45 years, had ridden into town with Jared Kent because her horse had lamed himself that morning, and Jared "happened to be going in" and had asked the widow to ride with him.

Jared was what some of the people c. the neighborhood called a "regular born old bach." He had flouted and scorned womankind most of the 50 years of his life, and had openly set forth his conviction that men were "better off without 'em than with 'em, particularly when it come to marrying of 'em." He had held to this conviction so long and had proclaimed it so boldly and so constantly that all of the matchmakers in the rural neighborhood in which he lived had given him up a hopeless case beyond the pale of their schemes for making a benedict of him.

And to play croquet with him. He'd be nice and pleasant and all that, but he never came anyways near failing into any of the traps we set for him. We thought once that he did take a kind of a shine to a nice, sweet, real good-looking girl of about 30 named Janet Deane, from over Shelby way, who was visiting us. She'd of made him an awful good wife, and I sung her praises all the time, but nothing came of it."

"It's an elegant morning, isn't it?" said Jared, as he and the widow flew along over the hills and through long lanes in which the snow was drifted almost to the top rails of the fences.

"Oh, it's lovely!" replied the widow. "I like snow."

"So do I. You got much to do in town?"

"No; I'll be through with all of my errands in an hour. I can let something go if you don't want to stay in town that long."

"You, that'll be none too long for me. Where shall I meet you?"

"I'll be at Smith & Hanscom's dry goods store any time you say."

"We'll call it 11 o'clock, then."

It was three minutes after 11 when Jared drove up to the appointed place of meeting. The widow had stepped into the sleigh and he was tucking the robes in around her when she said:

"There, Jared, I'm just like other women; I've forgotten something."

"What is it?"

"I forgot to go around to the post office. I know that there's nothing there for me, because one of the Stone boys brought my mail out last night, and there's no mail trains in until noon; but poor old Jane Carr came over just before I left and wanted me to be sure and see if there was a letter for her. Her daughter is very sick out west, and she hasn't had a letter for a week, and she's half wild. I couldn't bear to tell her I'd forgotten to go to the office."

"I'll drive around that way," said Jared. "It won't be three blocks out of the way."

Two or three boys stood idling in front of the post office, and Jared said to one of them he chanced to know:

"Say, Jimmie, run into the office and see if there's any letter for Mrs. Jane Carr. You needn't ask for me, for I've been around and got my mail."

"You might look in box 184," said Mrs. Darby. "Mebbe there's a drop letter for me."

The boy came out a moment later with a very large square white envelope in one hand and a small blue envelope in the other. He grinned as he handed them to Mrs. Darby. She glanced at the blue envelope and said, joyfully:

"Oh, here's a letter for Jane, and it's from her daughter. I know by the post-

THEY STOPPED AT JANE CARR'S GATE.

Jared was not, like most avowed women haters, a crabbed, cross-grained, sneeringly, cynical man, which made his celibacy all the more unpardonable in the eyes of the matchmakers.

"He'd make a real good husband if he'd try," they said. "Then he has the nicest farm in the neighborhood, with one of the best houses on it, and money out at interest, although he's not a bit mean and stingy. He'll do his full share always for a neighbor in distress. It isn't because he's too stingy to support her that Jared doesn't get him a wife."

It was a clear, crisp morning in February when Jared rode to the village with the Widow Darby seated beside him in his neat little cutter. The sleighing was fine and the air keen and exhilarating. It gave the widow's plump cheeks a beautiful crimson glow and made her black eyes sparkle. She was in high spirits and her laugh rang out frequently as merry and rippling as the laugh of a child.

But then the Widow Darby was proverbially cheery. She had suffered keenly the loss of her husband and both of her children, but time had softened her grief, and she was too wise so spend her life in gloom and grief over the loss of those who were beyond all care and sorrow.

She had a comfortable little home and a few acres of land adjoining Jared Kent's. She had known Jared all of her life, but not once had she thought of him as a possible successor to Joel Darby.

"Jared will never marry anyone," she had said. "He isn't of a marrying disposition. Some men are that way. It's all they lack to make 'em what God intended they should be. My husband and I used to talk over Jared a good deal, and we did our full share to get him settled for life with a good wife. We used to invite lots of nice girls, young and elderly both, to our house and then have Jared come over to tea mark. How glad Jane will be! And here—well, I declare!"

She burst into a merry laugh as she looked at the big white, embossed envelope. The boy had told the truth when he had gone back to his comrades and said with a titter:

"She's got a valentine!"

"Who in the land ever sent me that thing?" said Mrs. Darby, holding the envelope out at arm's length. "I didn't even know it was Valentine's day. If it isn't the greatest idea that I should get a valentine."

"I don't know why you shouldn't," said Jared.

"Oh, because I—but I guess some child sent it."

"Maybe not."

"No one else could have had so little gumption!" said the widow with another laugh. "Maybe there's one of these comic valentines inside of it—some ridiculous thing about a widow likely."

"Why don't you open it and see?"

"I will."

She burst into another laugh as she drew forth a dainty creation of lace paper, tinsel and bright colored embossed pictures.

"How perfectly ridiculous!" she said. "The idea of anyone being ninny enough to send an old woman like me a thing like that!"

"You're not an old woman."

"I'm 45!"

"Well, I'm older than that, and I don't call myself an old man. Many a woman around here would be glad to get a valentine like that if the sender really meant it."

"Yes, and if you were the sender."

"I'm not vain enough to think that and not foolish enough to say it if I did think it."

"No, I don't think that you are, Jared. But I wonder who could have sent me this. The writing on the envelope is evidently disguised, and—O, here is something inside! Let's see what it says.

"'O will thou be my valentine
Forever and forever mine,
And will thou take this heart of mine,
And give me thine to-day?'"

There was another verse but before she had read it, the Widow Darby cried out: "Jared Kent, that's your handwriting and you need not try to deny it!"

"I'm not trying to deny it. You'll find my name signed in full to the next verse on the other page." This was the next verse:

"If 'yes,' my answer is to be,
My heart with joy will fill,
If 'no,' I yet shall be your friend
And I shall love you still."

They had reached the outskirts of the town now. Jared brought the horse to a standstill, and said:

"Is it yes or no, Luey?"

She looked at him with shining eyes, and laughing face for a moment. Then she laid one of her mittened hands on the sleeve of the great fur coat he wore, and said—

"I think it is yes, Jared."

He turned his horse's head toward the town.

"Where are you going?" she asked.

"Back to the minister's. It's Valentine's day, you know, and if you are to be my valentine, I want you to-day."

An hour later they stopped at Jane Carr's gate. She came skurrying out for her letter with her apron over her head. "I brought you a letter, Jane, and I got a valentine," said Lucy, holding up the big, white envelope.

"I got one also," said Jared, as he put an arm around his wife and kissed her.

HER LAST VALENTINE.

It Helped a Disappointed Little Woman to Die Easier When it Came.

They knew she was dying—the faded little woman in the faded little bedroom. She had clung to life as long as she could, hoping for an answer to that wistful prayer in her eyes. But the struggle was almost over now; the wistful eyes were growing dim.

"See! I've got something for ye, Liddy!" The little circle of spinster relatives and kindly neighbors parted, and good Uncle Silas Peterson came wheezing to the bedside, the snow still clinging to his rough overcoat. He carried a letter in his hand—a coarse and dirty envelope addressed in the crude, sprawling penmanship of a man whom neither life nor education has ripened or refined.

"It's from Orson—Orson, you know," Uncle Silas added, bending over the couch and addressing the dying woman with the tender directness one uses to children—and death.

"Orson?" A smile flashed over the ashen face, and the woman lifted a feeble hand for the letter. She kissed it and tucked it under the thin shawl that some loving hand had wrapped over her shoulders.

"Shan't I open it for ye, Liddy?" asked one of the women.

The dying eyes said "No."

"She thinks it's a valentine from her husband," whispered one of the neighbors. "To-day is Valentine day, you know. Last year I remember her telling me how she wished Orson would send her a valentine—just some little thing to show her that he loved her the way he did when they were first married."

"Most likely it's a note sayin' he'll stay over night and see the races on the ice to-morrow," was the guarded reply.

The dying woman folded her shawl tightly round the precious letter. A look of perfect peace lighted her face. "He does love me," she whispered, "just as he used to!"

Uncle Silas turned away to wipe the mist from his spectacles. There was a little fluttering sigh from the bed. "Liddy" had gone home.

When they drew the old shawl from her shoulders, there, tight pressed against her heart by both thin blue-veined hands, was Orson's crumpled, dirty letter. They were scarcely able to take it away from her slender, clinging fingers.

"Shall we open it?" asked Miss Peniman. The women looked furtively at one another, their curiosity struggling with their reverence.

"No," said Miss Daggett, at last. "It's hers—sacred. No matter what it says. She died thinkin' it was a valentine. Let's burn it up, so nobody will ever know."

The ashes of the unrend letter fluttered white about the stove for a few minutes, and then whirled up the chimney, as a gust of February wind roared over the house. And the little, worn-out, heart-hungry woman lay smiling as death had found her.—James Buckham, in Detroit Free Press.

Cost of Nicaragua Canal.

The estimates as to the cost of constructing the Nicaragua Canal vary from $115,000,000 to $150,000,000. How different are the estimates of the people as to the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for stomach, liver, blood and kidney diseases. It is agreed everywhere that this remedy is unsurpassed for indigestion, biliousness, constipation, nervousness and sleeplessness. It is such an agreeable medicine to take. It tastes good as well as does good.

PERIODS OF PAIN.

Menstruation, the balance wheel of woman's life, is also the bane of existence to many because it means a time of great suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical pain, it does not seem to have been nature's plan that women otherwise healthy should suffer so severely. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It relieves the condition that produces so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors. Here is proof:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—How can I thank you enough for what you have done for me? When I wrote to you I was suffering untold pain at time of menstruation; was nervous, had headache all the time, no appetite, that tired feeling, and did not care for anything. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of Blood Purifier, two boxes of Liver Pills, and to-day I am a well person. I would like to have those who suffer know that I am one of the many who have been cured of female complaints by your wonderful medicine and advice. —Miss JENNIE R. MILES, Leon, Wis.

If you are suffering in this way, write as Miss Miles did to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for the advice which she offers free of charge to all women.

ROGER WAS GENEROUS.

But It Was with Something He Couldn't Keep All to Himself.

A little boy in a North side kindergarten has discovered at an early age the art of making others do unto him the things he would like to have done by inducing them to believe they are getting the chief enjoyment themselves. When the hour for luncheon arrives Roger eats his own very quickly, in fact in quite the bolting fashion of the bear he pretends to impersonate. Then he is ready for his play.

"I'm a hungry little grizzly bear," he roars threateningly, "and I want you to fill me up. Come, hurry up, little boys and girls, fill me up, fill me up, or I'll grind your bones to make my bread."

And the children, enjoying the subtle frolic of the youngster, proceed to drop into the small hungry mouth bits of cake and sections of oranges and pieces of bread and butter and an occasional morsel of candy, until the "little grizzly bear" has emptied every lunch basket in the kindergarten and is the only "filled up" youngster in the school.

But the time came when Roger found something to give in return for the filling process. He arrived at the kindergarten one morning with a nice, aggravated case of whooping cough, and in 24 hours every companion in his class had caught it from him.

"Naturally, he would give it away, you know," explained the ironic teacher, deprived of her school. "Roger is such a generous child."—Chicago Chronicle.

THE PHILIPPINE PROBLEM.

The passage of the Nicaragua canal Bill lifts, in a great measure, the stigma of "Little Americans from the ranks of the anti-expansionists. Since the close of the Spanish-American War, those opposed to territorial acquisition in the Philippines and elsewhere, and to the payment of $20,000,000 to Spain for invalid title deeds to same, have been regarded by the expansionists as being in direct opposition to anything and everything calculated to further our interests as a nation. Now the passage of the Canal Bill shows conclusively that they do favor a measure that they feel assured will benefit this government without abridging or obligating, in any way, the rights of another people.

If England's experiments in India and the experience of Netherlands in what are known as the Dutch East Indies, have resulted satisfactorily, why should we fear failure in the Philippines? We must experiment: to experiment must expand, say the importunate expansionists. I am a thorough believer in the adequacy of experimenting. Without those preliminary trial tests the world would not enjoy half the blessings it has. But when one experiments at someone else's expense, it is not likely to prove satisfactory for the other fellow. Idle experiments are not, as a rule, productive of much good. It is our duty to perfect the mighty tasks we have already undertaken before flying off in pursuit of a chimera.

The expansionists are posing amid the drapery of humanitarianism. The sincerity of their professions is doubtful, or, to say the least, questionable. They evidently consider the conquest of those "warlike Malays" an act of humanity to be sanctioned by all the pulpit philanthropists in the world. They purposely overlook the important fact that the Filipinos have some rights which we are in honor bound to respect. I fail to see wherein lies our claim as a philantrophic government so long as the principle of gain eclipses or, at least, neutralizes the element of humanity. It is highly probable that we will be as humane toward the Filipinos as we were toward the Indians. They can hope for no better treatment. They are not likely to receive worse. The principle is similar even though the cases are not parallel. Are we to blackmail the Filipinos for Spain's indebtedness? It will be inconsistent with our boasted humanity. If we pursue this false course which the expansionists have laid down for us, the cloak will eventually be torn from our shoulders and we will, at last, be compelled to stand before the tribunal of an outraged world in our true colors. The people will then see in our actions the skeleton of greed that we hid away in the humanitarian closet. They will recognize in America the despoiler of an alien people; the oppressor of a liberty loving people. There is no danger of this ever occurring. I have enough confidence in the American people and the majority of their representatives to reject such a prophecy. The question is not alone whether the United States has power to dictate terms to the Filipinos; but is whether she will dictate terms worthy of the exalted position she occupies among the nations of the globe, and I cannot conceive that we could be led into another such failure as has characterized our administration of Indian affairs. But who is wise enough to read the future of any nation?

Last week I promised to consider the Philippine question from what may properly be called a mercenary standpoint. So far I have failed to do this. The passage of the Nicaraguan Bill and many other points of paramount importance have had their development since I made that promise. However, I shall now proceed to show some of the advantages of maintaining our hold in the Philippines, and thereby increasing our commercial relations with the Western Pacific. The preponderance of argument is unquestionably on the side of expansion when the problem is viewed in this light. However, as I have shown, in this and previous articles, the problem is not entirely one of pecuniary importance. It is, furthermore, not a question alone as to whether the islands are or are not self-supporting. It is a question embracing more than ordinary consideration of our future, commercially and otherwise. Nor should we, for a moment, overlook the magnificent strategical position which the possession of the Philippines would afford to the United States. Manila is a necessity as a safeguard to our Chinese interests, which, even under heavy difficulties, have attained ample proportions and give promise of a brilliant future. This branch of our commercial intercourse with the East should receive much careful attention hereafter. However, old and established trade should not be neglected or discarded for new. Increase of our trade in China, restricted as it was to the territory lying between the Hong Kong river and the Chantung peninsula, from 1893 to and including 1897, amounted to $9,861,000. In 1897 the trade aggregated $20,000,000, and I feel no hesitancy in saying that if a proper course is pursued the possible $20,000,000 in 1897 will grow to $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 before another decade rolls around. Part of the proper management to obtain such resuls consists in the construction of a trans-isthmian canal. This the government has formally conceded.

The necessity of establishing coaling stations in the Pacific, and of opening up a quick route between our East and West coasts, in order to be in a position to increase our maritime commerce in the Pacific Ocean, is clearly shown by recently received consular reports of the trade of Corea. With the aforementioned facilities to propagate trade, the United States would control millions of more trade, annually, and the millions of dollars that are going elsewhere would come to our merchants, manufacturers and shipbuilders. Of the $50,000,000 imports into Corea in 1897 but $400,000 were from the United States. Not one American merchant ship visited Corea during that year.

There are cited by many, "three great causes," any of which "should lead us to maintain our hold in the islands." They are:

The necessities of commerce.
The naval strategical importance.
The cause of humanity.

(1.) Outside of England there is no other nation that has such vast commercial interests at stake as have we. The capture of Manila gives us the opportunity of establishing there an American trade center from which our commercial interests can be well guarded. If the expansion ship has all its sails set on the mast of selfishness, why can't the people read their real intentions and make them furl that humanity jib? They have shouted humanity so much that they really believe that the issue of the war in Congress. The principles of selfishness and humanity conflict. Yet there exists in my mind no doubt as to which will be adopted. Judging by the past era of political bribery and corruption in the higher offices of the government I can with a considerable degree of certainty predict that the car of avariciousness will bear us to our "new possessions." The hand-car of humanity can tag on behind as best it can. It will have served its purpose as a vehicle of fraud and be thrown aside like other tools when their period of usefulness is past.

(2.) The Philippines are of vast strategic importance to our navy. With the establishment of a naval station we can complete our control of the Pacific. The Philippines are to the Western Pacific what Gibraltar is to the Mediterranean—they control the trade routes from Asiatic Russia, China and Japan, to the Australian colonies and Singepore and to America and England in part. They are the key to the Pacific! It is argued a naval station might suffice and the rest of the islands be turned back to Spain. This course would jeopardize our strategic control of those trade routes. Spain might, and probably would, cede or sell naval stations there to other powers that would place them on equal footing with ourselves. England's control of Gibraltar would amount to but little if Centa was in the hands of an active power. Our strategical control of the Philipines would amount to little if another power were permitted to establish herself there on equal terms with us. We have the opportunity now to hold the entire Philippines. If we can dull our finer sense of honor and retain them under existing conditions, no other power can then equal us in our strategic position in the key to the western Pacific.

(3.) There is nothing so becoming for a garment or so repulsive for a cloak as charity or humanity. The cause of humanity appeals to every fiber of a loyal American's body. It appeals to the American people in thunder tones. Thus it happens that expansion so cloaked has met with the approbation of a great many people whose opinions are supposed to be worth something. It is not the first disguised steal that has gulled the senses of the public. I could name a number of similar cases, but the reference would not be oil to the wounds of the gulled, and would bring about acrimonious discussion foreign to the subject in hand. Ninety-eight per cent. of the expansionists see the golden treasure at the end of their rainbow dreams. Individual rapacity will have to be satisfied before humanity will have its inning. It would be about as appropriate to array Pluto in the robes of a vestal virgin as to clothe the sordid god of our political worship in the garb of humanity.

Says the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune (editorially): "The cause of humanity demands that we retain the whole archipelago. Could the American residents of Manila or the island of Luzon, supposing we kept the one, stand idly by and hear, without interfering, tales of Spanish oppression and violence as long as they did in Cuba? We found Spain an unworthy neighbor in the West Indies; will we find her a better one in the Philippines?"

There is a deal of presumption in the above. At no time have I been aware that we were to maintain neighborly relations with Spain in the Philippines. In order to establish naval coaling stations or a commercial center, it will not be necessary to annex the islands. We can enjoy all the privileges enumerated without having Spain as a neighbor in any sense of the word. I advocate a protectorate over all the islands. Puerto Rico we should annex in preference to the Philippines. The former is more desirable for obvious reasons. It lies nearer to our shores. The climate is superior and the people are superior. It will not do to spread over too many quarters of the globe. A farmer who runs two farms in separate counties loses half his profits paying for transportation between the two sections of land, nothing to say of a loss of time amounting to about one eighth of his life.

Very few persons outside of official circles know the real cause of our present troubles with the natives of the Philippine islands. The general view of the situation is that they object to being subject to the rule of any external power. This is correct as far as it goes; but the expansionists fail to tell us why they object. The Filipinos have fought hard for independence. With the aid of a Filipino Admiral Dewey was enabled to win fame for himself and victory for America. This aid was given that Spain might be driven from the island, that the natives might be free to build up a government of their own, and for no other reason. They may have had a selfish motive in this; but even so their selfishness, if patriotism can be so termed, redounded to our favor. The Filipinos did not expect or wish to become citizens of the United States. They were friendly to us and treated us with courtesy and justice until the army of occupation was landed. They revolted at the idea of relinquishing their control over the destiny of the land they had fought and bled for. Having known so much of oppression and injustice they cannot realize the increase of freedom which our rule would convey to them. The indecision and dilly-dallying in the Executive Departments of this government goes a great way to arouse in their breasts doubts, fears and false imaginings. I believe that if Americans were in closer touch with the Filipinos they would entertain vastly different opinions of their merits. But we cannot get upon the desired terms with them. The papers are handicapped. Their news must first pass through the hands of a censor before it reaches the public. So how can public opinion, based upon unsubstantiated or, as but incomplete rumors, be of any worth in the formation of any policy?

The severe weather of the past week has materially interferred with the "chain gang" on the turnpikes. As soon as the weather moderates they will be put to work again and kept at work until their fines are paid.

From the number of marriages in Williamstown this month it will be necessary to build quite a number of new residences in town the coming season, and the indications are that several first-class residences will be erected.

The furnace was placed in the County Infirmary last week and works to perfection. The buildings are rapidly nearing completion and it is hoped to have Mr. Thompson, the new Infirmary Superintendent, and all the inmates installed by the 10th of March.

Mrs. M. D. Gray underwent a very severe and dangerous surgical operation at the German Hospital in Cincinnati last week. Dr. Zeike an eminent specialist and surgeon performed the operation, from which Mrs. Gray rallied strongly and is now doing nicely and will shortly be restored to full health. She will be in the hospital for five or six weeks. Mr. Gray has been with his wife a good portion of the time during the past week and is sanguine of her recovery.

The Rivers and Harbors Appropriation Bill, carrying thirty millions of dollars, was passed by the House, last Thursday by a vote of 165 to 7. As Mr. Reed thinks this is a better way to spend money than to invest it in Malays at two dollars per head, he made the vote on the bill practically unanimous, although it is the largest appropriation ever carried by the bill.

Hardly a day passes that a new trust is not organized, and the price of the article it seeks to control advances immediately. In all these trusts there is not to be found a combination of farmers seeking to control their productions. All other business interests can be "trusted," but the tillers of the soil will continue to act independently one of the other.

The war with the Filipinos is on. In the battles at Manila Saturday and Sunday it is claimed they were routed with a loss of four thousand, while the American loss was very small.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1899. NO. 17.

THE administration does not consider the public worthy of its confidence.

C. C. MOORE, editor of the Blue Grass Blade has been given two years in the penitentiary for sending objectionable matter through the mail.

THE investment of two or three hundred million dollars annually to secure a trade worth probably half that much looks very much like one of the great advantages of expansion.

THE Indiana law-makers are doing some fire-escape legislation. If what is said about some of the members of that body is true, they will never be able to save themselves by means of fire-escape.

GEN. MILES is going about with a chip on his shoulder, and it looks very much like it will remain there although there are some who would like to knock it off if it was not that they are afraid of what would follow.

IT is said that the Nicaragua Canal is marked, by Speaker Reed, for defeat. A very large majority of the members of the House are in favor of the bill, but with Reed opposed to it, it will require some very nice work to get it through.

THE COURIER-JOURNAL came out in another long, double leaded editorial, one day last week, in which it labored hard to create the impression that it is a Democratic sheet. It is wasting labor and space when making such attempts.

IN two days the House passed seventy-eight bills providing for public buildings in thirty-eight States, and many of the towns in which it is proposed to erect these buildings, need a government building no worse than Burlington does.

THERE was great suffering from the cold weather in the Indiana gas belt, owing to the low pressure, and as few families were prepared to use coal or wood fuel they had no means of keeping warm. Many of the factories were compelled to close.

MR. CARNEGIE has not been heard from for several days—not since the confirmation of the treaty with Spain. He is holding himself in readiness for expressing his opinion of the President's Philippine policy as soon as the commission appointed to formulate one for him reports.

SOME of the Senators who voted for the ratification of the treaty with a distinct promise on the part of Senators who are able to deliver the goods if they choose, that a resolution declaring that the ratification of the treaty was not a declaration of a Philippine policy, would be passed, are beginning to think that they have been buncoed.

To pursue the policy which is about to be saddled on this country by the party in power, it becomes necessary to abandon every principle that has made the United State the greatest nation on earth. It becomes necessary to travel a road that leads—no one knows where, but lies through the slough of covetness.

MR. EAGAN got a six years' lay off as a punishment for talking too freely when before that investigating committee, and now he is wondering what the President meant by that order in which he said those who testified before the commission would be protected. And there are some who are asking what the President meant when he declared "forcible annexation is criminal aggression." And there are a great many declarations of the President which might by explained.

THAT man Aguinaldo, of the Philippine islands, who was such a brave, good fellow, and whose band of warriors was so much entitled to American sympathy in its struggle for independence with the Spaniards, a few months since, is not such a loveable creature since Uncle Sam has become covetous, and concluded that the freedom of a few millions of human beings should not stand in the way of an avaricious, greater country when it desires to acquire title to their domain.

IT is understood that notice has been served upon the administration Senators that they will not be allowed to pass the Hull bill, or any other bill proposing to give the President authority to maintain a standing army of one hundred thousand men, at the present session. If a vote could be had, the administration might get its bill through, although it is by no means certain that it could; but the minority has the power to prevent a vote, and will not hesitate to exercise it. An informal offer has been made to agree to an amendment to the regular Army appropriation bill, authorizing the maintenance of the war strength of the regular army, 62,000, for one year from the first of next July, and, unless there are decided changes of opinion, that is about all the army legislation that will get through at this session of Congress.

WHENEVER it is suggested that the acreage of tobacco should be reduced, it is urged that this would be hard to do on account of there being so many tenants who depend on that crop, principally, for their living. It is true that there is a very large class of persons thus dependent, but there are hundreds of others who are owners of lands and are producers of tobacco, and it is this class who should force a reduction in the crop by turning their attention to other branches of agriculture. They are in a condition to bring about a reduction in the yield of tobacco with out injury to themselves. One year's crop confined to the tenantry of the tobacco producing district would be followed by an improvement in prices because of the demand being greater than the supply. The land owners, who, for the last several years have wasted timber and destroyed fine pastures in order to obtain tobacco land, have been the losers because of so many engaging in that reckless mode of farming. When a smaller crop of tobacco is planted and handled properly until sold, the price received will be a handsome compensation for the labor expended.

IN comparing the assessment of this county for 1899 with that for 1898, it is discovered that assessor Willis returned a little over 1,000 acres of land less, than assessor Brady listed for last year, but this deficit is accounted for largely by the land that was taken from Boone by Kenton county by the locating of the alleged line between the two counties. The average assessed value of the land in the county for this year is $29 76 per acre, and last year it was $29 36, but to this value the State Board of Equalization added six per cent., making the equalized value $31 09 per acre, consequently Boone can expect the State Board to give her land a six per cent raise again this year. In the matter of town lots the county is in pretty good shape as in '98 there were returned 890, valued at $386,505, while for this year there are 904 valued at $397,645, an increase of 14 lots and $11,140 increase in total valuation of lots. As the assessor has increased the average value of town lots $5, a person would say that this indicates the State Board will not disturb his valuation. The amount of cash in bank increased from $80,347 last year to $173,450 this year. The average value of horses for last year was $28 85, for this year $29 44; for mules last year, $41 75, for this year, $38 70; for cattle last year was $18 47, for this year, $28 06 per head; sheep last year, $269 per head, this year, $3 82; hogs for last year were assessed at $3 39 per head, this year, at $3 16. In 1897 the county produced 928,300 pounds of tobacco, in 1898, 1,637,826; in 1897, 7,559 tons of hay, in 1898, 6,850; in 1897, 67,274 bushels of wheat, in 1898, 114,419; in 1897, 610,680, in 1898, 538,685 bushels, of corn.

GOV. BRADLEY is one Republican who does not wait to hear from Washington, before forming an opinion in regard to the questions of the day, besides he has a way of expressing his mind that is emphatic, at least, as shown by the following interview with him in the Georgetown News:

"I am not an expansionist, and I see in the Commercial and the Commercial Tribune that they claim those who are opposed to the ratification of the treaty should be held responsible for the lost blood in the recent war. Now that is terrible to denounce a man who gives his opinion in that manner. I for one do not believe they had a fight on Sunday at Manila, but believe that those reports were circulated and published for the sole purpose of ratifying the treaty, and I believe it will be done. I never had a desire to be a United States Senator but once, and that has been in the past month. I would like to be a Senator for just 80 days, and show the administration that there was one damned Republican who was not afraid to open his mouth. I am opposed to the way the United States Senators are chosen. The people have no voice in the matter, but it seems the place is sold to the highest bidder. There's Quay, he's trying the game, and I see where the committee to investigate the election of Mark Hanna in Ohio has decided not to report." Here he told a good story, and compared this committee to a church committee, which made an investigation of a Methodist preacher who had claimed a lost pocket-book.

"But Deboe! Whenever I think about him it reminds me of the story of a mother and her foolish son: A fashionable and wealthy lady of one of our Kentucky towns had a foolish son. His name was John, and his mother was unceasing in her efforts to make the best out of her boy, and at the same time impress upon him he had no sense. One night there was to be a big party given and John was invited. His mother dressed him nicely, and he looked as neat as if he had just been brought from a band box. 'Now, Johnny,' she said you are to make your entree in society to-night, and in doing so I want you to say just as little as possible; in fact, don't talk at all if you can prevent it.' Johnny and his mother went to the party, and while every one were enjoying themselves Johnny stood close to his mother. Finally, one fellow came up, tapped him on the shoulder, and said: 'Johnny, this is a swell party.' Johnny didn't say anything. The fellow tapped him again; 'I say, Johnny, this is a grand party.' Johnny didn't say a word. The fellow then walked around in front of him and said; 'Johnny, you are a damn fool!' Johnny turned to his mother and said: 'Now, mother you see there, that fellow discovered I was a damn fool, and I hadn't said a word.' And so it is with the people by Deboe."

CROP AND STOCK.

The Richmond Pantagraph reports the sale of 3,000 bushels of wheat at 53 cents.

While the turkey's natural life is only ten years, the goose sometimes lives to fifty years.

Chas. Wilson, of Shawhan, sold 90,000 bushels of wheat to Brent Bros. Friday, at 70c.—Paris Kentuckian.

A mad hog attacked Perry Jefferson's horses at Millersburg in the stable. The legs and head of three horses were badly lacerated.

A poplar tree containing over 400 gallons of honey, 12 squirrels, 11 snakes and two coons was recently felled in DeKalb county, Tenn.

Dogs broke into the flock of John D. Reese in Clark county, one night recently and killed about $150 worth of sheep and lambs.

The Richmond Register advises farmers who have corn to sell not to part it with for $1.50 per barrel, as it will bring $2 and possibly $2 50 before April 1st.

Messrs. Hopkin & McAdams, prominent and well-known stock dealers of Atlanta, Ga., have purchased in Hardin county, 193 fine young work mules at an average price of $109 23, or a total of $11,250 for the lot.

Farmers in some parts of Pennsylvania have been victimized in a new way. Agents secured permission to tack up pill signs, then got the farmers to sign an agreement not to tear the signs down for 90 days. These agreements turned up as 90 day notes.

At a meeting of the State Tobacco League in Lexington, Tuesday Jan. 31st. a resolution was passed inviting the tobacco growers of Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia to meet in Lexington on Tuesday February 21st. A large assemblage is expected and desired:

Mrs. Kate Surber, of Shelby City this year grew six fine lemons on the tree she has been nursing so carefully for several years. The last crop was very fine. Four of the lemons were monsters, weighing 19½ ounces, and two of them weighing 16 ounces. The bush or tree is about three feet in height.

A Pulaski county farmer is now cultivating ginseng and finds there is big money in it. He set out a half acre of the weed a few years ago, and this year sold about $800 worth, though some was bought from other parties and turned over at a good profit. He has sold a great deal of the root at $5 per pound, and says he could dig every root he has and sell at $6 per pound.

Indications as seen by leading cattlemen are that from 40,000 to 60,000 cattle will be put on second feed in Texas this winter, Conservative estimates place the number of first feeders at about 150,000 head. Accordingly it may be conservatively estimated that about 200,000 head of cattle have been and are being fed at oil mills this season on meal and hulls. This number is slightly in excess of cattle fed last year. The class fed this season, however, is lighter than during the season of 1897-98. This is accounted for by the fact that more two-year-olds are on feed this year because of the scarcity of older cattle.

The shortage of corn supplies for '99, as compared with established consumption of '98, is 217,000,000 bushels. In other words, unless there is a decrease instead of the expected increase in our home consumption, together with a most improbable decrease in our export demand, on the basis of our monthly consumption for the past twelve months, there will be an actual shortage in our corn supply of 217,000,000 bushels, which will have to be met by a substitution that can only be brought about by an advance in corn values that will force such a substitution. But these figures do not tell the whole story. A year ago the visible supply of corn was 42 million bushels, against 22 million bushels to-day, showing a shortage in our immediate available supplies of 20 million bushels. A year ago every private elevator in Chicago and elsewhere was full to overflowing with corn. To day they are practically empty, these stocks being at least 8 to 10 million bushels less than last year.

ROOM FOR ALL.

Did you ever read the sixteenth verse of the twenty-fourth chapter of Revelations? No. Well, read it, and you will get some interesting figures about the world above the skies. It gives the dimensions of heaven, and reads this way:

And he measured the city with a reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and the breadth and the heigh of it were equal.

Have yon ever made the calculations?

"Yes, here it is now," and he handed the reporter the following:

"Twelve thousaud furlongs equal 9,920,600 feet, which being cubed, is 496,793,088,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Reserving one-half of this space for the throne and court of heaven and half the balance for streets, and have the remainder 114,193,372,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Divide this by four thousand and ninety-six, the cubic feet in a room sixteen feet square, and there will be 30,351,843,750,000,000 rooms. Now, suppose the world always did and always will hold 900,000,000 inhabitants, and that a generation lasts thirty-three years and one third years making in all 2,080,000,000,000 inhabitants every century, and that the world will stand 190,000,000 years or one hundred centuries, making in all 2,070,000,000,000 inhabitants. Then suppose there are 100 worlds equal to this in number of inhabitants and duration of years making a total of 2,879,080,000,000,000,000 persons, and there would be more than a hundred rooms sixteen feet squars for each person.—Ex.

THE PHILIPPINES.

We are glad to see an interest manifested in your paper in the disposal of the questions confronting us out of our unexpected acquisition of the Philippine islands as the result of the late war with Spain.

In our declaration of war with Spain for the liberation of an island almost in sight of our shores, who of its advocates ever dreamed that the first battle should be fought on the opposite side of the globe. Yet, when we consider the train of action that led to the attack on Manila, with all the new and unforseen chapter of history of which that was to be the beginning, we are forced to admit that it was strictly logical and we can but admire the wisdom and forethought of those who planed this attack.

The success in war consists in striking the enemy wherever they may be found, and the achievement of this the most brilliant and completely naval opperation in history was not only a death knell to Spanish pride and Spanish tyranny, but it was a defensive necessity for the protection of American commerce in eastern seas and the security of our Pacific coast.

In a battle of less than three hours, without the loss of a single man, Spain's naval power in the east was obliterated and the United States given command of the great Philippine archipelago.

Having thus become the custodian of these rich possessions and the great responsibilities accompaning them, what were we to do? We could not render back to Spain the fruit of Dewey's great victory and retain the respect of the great nations of the world. We could not sail away and abandon it to the rapacity of other nations, nor could we turn it over to domestic anarchism.

There is but one horn to the dilemma and that is to brush away precedents and theories and prepare to enter the new century with a forward movement out face to the colonial problem that England solved a hundred years ago.

For seventy-five years we have respected and obeyed the rule of foreign policy established by James Monroe, "That we would not interfere in any European war, nor tolerate any attempt by any European power to acquire a controlling influence in this hemisphere." But we violated this rule when we interfered with Spain's war with the Cuban insurgents, and we violated it again in the issue of this war by the acquisition of the Philippines in the Eastern hemisphere. Circumstances have altered the case, a new order has come upon the scene, and America is embarkep upon the ocean of modern civilization.

Our country has grown so great in its productive power that overproduction is the most serious danger that threatens us. Home consumption is not adequate to the disposal of these products. We must seek a wider market for our surplus that we may keep our labor employed and prevent idleness from germinating the seeds of discontent. The world moves eastward and we must keep in pace with the world. China with her 200,000,000 inhabitants is willing to exchange her tea, silks, straw braids and many other things for our coal oil, sheeting, mining plants, flour, electrical apparatus, locomotives, rails, timber and many other articles.

By reason of our geographical situation with regard to the cost, its trade belongs to us. No other nation on earth has the advantage of ours in situation. We extend across the American continent from ocean to ocean. Through our eastern Atlantic seaboard we have developed one-half of our vast territory and it rests with us whether we will develope the vast and rich territory in the west through our western Pacific seaboard. We are the only great commercial nation on that vast sea. It brings our western coast closer to Asia than Europe is, and Asia is our land of gold. Asia has over 800,000,000 inhabitants to be clothed and fed. Its import and export trade together amounts to more than 2,000,000,000 a year. With one foot upon the Hawaii and the other upon the Philippines we can make a gigantic stride in gaining the trade of Asia. Our government should neglect no means to hold, retain and even increase this trade. I can conceive of no better policy for our government to adopt than to hold to the Philippines, treat its natives fairly and encourage them to develope its rich resources.

Under the colonial rule of Spain the inhabitants of these islands have met with little encouragement, and the development of its rich resources has been comparatively slow. But a new order will be introduced under the rule of the United States and you will see in the near future that these islands will blossom like a rose. There would be peace and cooperation in the Philippines today if the traitor, Aguinaldo and his gang, were not encouraged by the opposition of the partisan politicians who opposed the ratification of the peace treaty.

The peace commission which represented the best type of American manhood have been censured for paying $20,000,000 to Spain for the Philippines after she had been whipped. They forget that our government established the precedent of fair dealing with a conquered foe fifty years ago by paying Mexico $15,000,000 for Texas after her power had been crushed and she lay bleeding at her feet.

Eighty million of people cannot afford to lie supinely upon their backs hugging the delusive phantom ot their country's traditions while the world is moving onward to prosperity and greatness. They must accept the untoward events of the late war with Spain and join the procession of the prosperous nations of the world.

Three prisoners in the Owen county jail, effected their escape about noon Monday. The Jailer threw back the bolts to the inner door without pulling the lock, it is supposed, and the prisoners got a wire or something, threw the bars back and lifted the lever and bolts. The outer door was unlocked and they walked out into the kitchen and escaped through the window and were gone some time before it was discovered. Two of the prisoners were captured and returned to the jail.—Owen News.

The Governor's residence in Frankfort was destroyed by fire, last Friday. The fire broke out on the second floor about 10 a. m., but was extinguished, after it had destroyed three rooms on that floor. About noon a second fire broke out in the building and destroyed it. On account of the frozen mains the firemen could not fight the flames. Only the servants were at the house. Mrs. Bradley and her daughter, Christine having left the city at 10 o'clock. The cause of the fire is not known. Most of the contents were saved. Kentucky's Governors have lived in this building since 1836. It was known as the Governor's mansion, but was a very ordinary building.

PRIOR to 1859 Virginia was the greatest tobacco-producing state of America, the annual yield being 122,000,000 pounds. The present yield of Virginia is approximately only 50,000,000 pounds per annum. Since the civil war Kentucky has taken first place in tobacco, yielding annually 225,000,000 pounds.

ACTION is being taken by certain enlightened natives to ameliorate the shocking condition of the average Hindoo widow, says the Bombay Advocate of India. To begin with, the Indian widow is shaved bald, and can only hide her baldness with her cloth; she is deprived of all jewelry, wears coarser clothes than the rest of womankind, must fast on certain days and every day has fewer meals than are taken as a rule by the rest of the family. The scheme of relief afoot is that no widow shall be shaved until she is 21.

THE boudoir of the czarina at Czarskoye Selo is said to be a spacious apartment, very light and very sparsely curtained. Masses of tropical verdure divide the room into several cozy apartments and give it a very picturesque appearance. The dado of the wall is formed almost entirely of photographs. An easel in one of the window recesses and a grand piano in another testify to the czarina's artistic tastes; several of her own water colors hang on the walls and she is in the habit of singing to the czar the folk songs of his own country.

THE senate of Alabama has passed a dispensary bill, authorizing each county and incorporated town or city in which the sale of liquor is not now prohibited to establish a dispensary like those in South Carolina. In each town which has a population of 10,000 or less there may be one dispensary, and in larger cities there may be one dispensary for each 10,000 inhabitants. In counties, at places outside of incorporated towns or cities, dispensaries may be established on the petition of twenty or more householders and freeholders.

FOR years inventors worked on the problem of cutting out square holes by machinery, and were able to solve the puzzle, practical machines for the purpose appearing on the market. Just at this time, however, they were rendered useless because of the development of hydraulic power which makes it possible to punch holes of any shape in almost any material. There are other machines for mortising, etc., which cut holes square, oblong and of other shapes. These, however, do not cut out square finished holes in the sense that an augur cuts out a circular hole.

MADE A GHASTLY DISCOVERY

Struggle by the Supposed Corpse—Glass Covering the Coffin Broken and Blood Spots Found.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., Feb. 10.—A ghastly discovery was made at a cemetery near Pendleton Thursday morning, when the body of James Rigley was exhumed for the purpose of holding an autopsy to discover the cause of his death.

The glass covering the casket was broken, and the distorted features of the corpse, the position of his hands and feet, together with a number of blood spots on his face, showed that the deceased was buried alive. Mr. Rigley was undoubtedly interred while in a trance, it is claimed by physicians who viewed the body Thursday after noon.

On Wednesday of last week, after a short illness, he apparently succumbed, and Dr. Monterey, the family physician, declared that his patient was dead. Preparations for the funeral were immediately begun, and relatives of the family living in the neighboring towns were notified. On Saturday the funeral was held from the family residence near Pendleton, and it was attended by many farmers in the vicinity. During this time the supposed corpse showed no signs of life, and no one thought for an instant that Mr. Rigley was not as dead as he appeared.

A few years ago the deceased took out several insurance policies on his life and it was partly for this reason that it was decided to hold an autopsy to ascertain beyond a doubt the exact cause of death. But for this, it is said, the discovery of the terrible mistake that had been made would never have been discovered.

WINTRY WEATHER IN TEXAS.

Snow Two Feet Deep in Places—The Loss of Cattle is Terrible—Many Persons Reported Frozen to Death.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 10.—A special from Dallas says: Deputy Sheriff Davis returned to Dallas Thursday night from the Pan-Handle along the line of the Fort Worth and Denver railway. He says the storm distresses and desolation is indescribable.

At Texline the snow is 2 feet deep on the level. At Clarendon it was two feet deep Thursday morning and snowing hard. The mercury was 15 degrees below there. The loss of cattle along the line of the railway is something terrible. The cattle had practically no shelter and in addition to this hardship there is no grass or water to be had and their thirst and starvation hastens their death caused primarily by the bitter cold.

Most of the trains on the Fort Worth & Denver road have been abandoned. Extra engines and snow plows had to be employed to get the train he was on through from Clarendon to Fort Worth and it arrived eight hours late. Axes, picks and crowbars had to be used at water tanks to cut holes through the ice and then the engines had to be supplied with water by the use of buckets.

Farmers in the Pan-Handle wheat belt say the wheat has been killed.

The loss to grain and cattle, Mr. Davis says, will reach an enormous sum. There were reports at stations of terrible distress among the inhabitants of sparsely settled districts, and it is regarded as a certainty that many persons have frozen to death.

SNOWSTORM AT LEADVILLE.

The Railroads Blockaded and Hundreds of Lives May Be Lost if it is Not Broken Soon.

LEADVILLE, Col., Feb. 10.—The snowstorm continued with unabated fury. The situation here is critical. A meeting of mining, smelter and other business men to discuss measures of relief was held Thursday. It was agreed that if steps were not taken to break the railroad blockade hundreds of lives may be lost. It was decided to put all available men at work opening the railroad between this city and Malta, Col. George W. Cook will head a party of 1,000 snow shovelers. No trains are running on the Denver & Rio Grande west of Salida and the Colorado Midland is completely tied up.

COLD WAVE STRIKES FLORIDA

Truckers Suffered Some Loss Upon Their Crops—Young Spring Growth on Orange Trees Injured.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 10.—The severest cold wave of the season covered Florida Wednesday night and Thursday. In the northern part of the orange belt the range of the mercury was from 26 to 34 degrees. Only the young spring growth on the orange trees was injured and "drone" or useless bloom made to fall. Truckers suffered more loss upon crops of beans, lettuce and tomatoes. Strawberries were partially hurt.

Benzine Tank Exploded.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Shortly before 3 o'clock Thursday morning a big benzine tank in the yard of the Atlas oil works, of the Standard Oil Co., on Elk street, near Babcock, exploded. It is expected that the tank will burn all day, but the firemen will be able to prevent the fire spreading.

WORK FINISHED.

Report of the War Investigating Commissioners in President's Hands.

It Criticises, But Not Persons or Things Not Warranted by the Evidence Laid Before Them—The Report Was Unanimously Adopted.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The report of the war investigating commission is in the hands of the president and the commission is dissolved. All of the members of the commission, including the secretary, Mr. Weightman, and the recorder, Col. Davis, met by appointment at the white house at 4:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon and were at once shown into the cabinet room, where they were received by the president. Gen. Dodge, the chairman of the commission, presented the report, and, in receiving it, congratulated the commissioners on the completion of their task.

Seated around the cabinet table, the members went over their work in a general way, and at the request of the president read portions of their report which covered certain points in which he had expressed an interest. The conference lasted about an hour and a half and as the commissioners were about to leave the president stated that he was satisfied that each member had done his whole duty. He himself had rendered them every assistance possible and said that they would bear witness that he had not sought to influence them in any manner or in the slightest degree.

In speaking of the report Thursday to a Star reporter a prominent member of the commission said:

"The report does not whitewash. It criticises, but not persons or things which are not warranted by the evidence before us. We started out with the assumption that the conduct of the war was all right, and then we went ahead to hear and call witnesses who said it was not. The report represents the honest opinion of every member of the commission. We were unanimous in adopting it. I say this, and I am of the opposite political faith and don't expect and don't want anything from the administration.

"I know that every line of the report represents my individual view and if any member tried harder than I did to get at and out all the facts I have yet to see him. There was no suppression or concealment and no point brought out in the evidence was evaded or glossed over. We never met before hearing a witness and agreed not to examine him or to touch upon certain matters that might turn out unfavorably. Everything that a man knew or thought he knew was the subject of inquiry and I am satisfied when the country gets our report in full that there will be no complaint either as to our methods or results.

"The president never saw a line of our report before he received it officially, not a single word. Nor, indeed, has he ever talked with any of the commission about it.

"He has never in any way by word or action or messengers evinced a wish to have us develop anything but the truth or even touched upon the matter of our work.

"We have questioned more than 500 witnesses and the majority of them had some complaint that they wanted to relate. In no instance can it be proved that we have omitted to call any witness who has been brought to our attention as having important facts to disclose. But had we desired to 'whitewash' the administration we could have had 5,000 witnesses who could truthfully testify that the conduct of the war was all right.

"Of course there were some evils, but they were to be expected. The soldiers in the civil war never had hospitals or medical attendance as good as was given them in the war with Spain. And their army ration then was not as eatable as it is now. The men who complained most of the food we found were very generally the militiamen from the interiors of states and who had been allowed $2 per head for subsistence stores while they were in state camps. When they went into the active fight they expected the same sort of thing.

"In questioning these men nearly all confessed to us that they had always received the army ration. They had no right to expect any more. I could tell some very funny stories to illustrate this.

"There were many complaints brought to us that on their face were foolish and false, but we went to every trouble and expense to inquire into their charges."

Peach Crop Ruined.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 10.—The thermometer was 16 below zero at 8 a. m. Thursday, the coldest day for 15 years. The entire peach crop is ruined. There is great suffering among the poor.

Oyster Famine Possible.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 10.—Ice has formed in the Chesapeake bay and Patapsco river to such a thickness that navigation for the bay craft is practically suspended. Should the freeze continue there will soon be an oyster famine, as the little craft are now reported frozen in at several bay points.

Twenty-Three Degrees Below.

LAWRENCEBURG, Ky., Feb. 10.—Thursday was the coldest day in this county for 50 years. In some places it registered 23 degrees below zero.

THE PAY OF ARMY OFFICERS.

It is Reached by the House Committee on Military Affairs—The Appropriation Bill is Completed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The army appropriation bill was completed Friday by the house committee on military affairs, and by dint of pretty severe cutting of numerous items it was brought down to $79,034,372. It is framed on the basis of an army of about 100,000 men, and contemplates the enactment of the Hull bill for the increase of the army or the retention of volunteers and regulars up to that number. Specific provision is made for nine major generals and 12 brigadier generals. The larger items of the bill are as follows:

Contingent expenses of the army, $200,000; pay of officers, $4,000,000; pay of enlisted men, $13,500,000; retired officers, $1,663,356.

Courts martial, courts of inquiry and witnesses, $15,000; four hundred contract surgeons, $720,000; subsistence department, $8,700,000; subsistence supplies to be issued to inhabitants of Cuba who are destitute and in immediate danger of perishing unless they receive the same $100,000; quartermaster's department, $7,200,000; incidental expenses, telegrams, interment of those killed in action, reward for apprehension of deserters, etc., $2,400,000; horses for cavalry and artillery, $750,000; barracks and quarters, $3,000,000; transportation of army and its supplies, $17,500,000; clothing, camp and garrison equipage, $5,952,946; construction of hospitals, $250,000; medical and hospital department, $1,500,000; ordnance expenses, $255,000; ordnance stores, $1,200,000; manufacture of arms, $800,000; establishment of plant for manufacturing small arms at Rock Island, Ill., armory, $350,000.

The last item is entirely new and the new departure of making small arms at Rock Island will bring the daily output of the government up to 2,000 stands a day.

Among the reductions made by the committee Friday was that on contingencies for the army from $450,000 to $200,000; Cuban relief from $281,500 to $100,000.

The clerical force of the headquarters of the army was reduced one-sixth. The first totals for pay of officers and men were also redneed considerably, to the amounts above stated.

Three Bodies Discovered By a Tribe of Turgusos, Who Inhabit the Timur Peninsular, North Siberia.

KRASNOVARSK, Siberia, Feb. 11.—A gold mine owner named Monastyrchin has received a letter saying that a tribe of Turgusos, inhabiting the Timur peninsular, North Siberia, recently informed the Russian police chief of the district that on January 7 last between Komo and Pit, in the province of Yeniseisk, they found a cabin constructed of cloth and cordage, apparently belonging to a balloon.

Close by were the bodies of three men, the head of one badly crushed. Around them were a number of instruments, the uses of which were not understood by the Turgusos.

The police chief has started for the spot to investigate, as it is believed the bodies are those of the aeronaut, Herr Andree and his companions.

The balloon Eagle with Prof. Andree and his two companions, Strindeberg and Fronkel in the car, left Danes island, of the Spitzbergen group, on July 11, 1897, in an attempt to cross the north polar point. No definite news of the aeronauts has been received beyond the message, attached to a carrier pigeon, found by the whaling ship Falken, which arrived at Copenhagen on September 2. The message read:

"July 13, 12:30 p. m., Lat. 82.02 north, Long. 12.05 east. Good voyage eastward. All well."

CLARK MUST STAND TRIAL.

He is Indicted for the Murder of His Alleged Wife By Throwing Her Into the River at Nashville.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 11.—J. D. Clark was indicted Friday for the murder of Minnie Clark, alias Blanche Cox, his supposed wife. The body was found last Sunday night on a bridge over the Cumberland near this city, under circumstances indicating preparations for thowing it into the river. Clark was identified as being on the bridge with a buggy an hour previous to the discovery. He is of a prominent family of Montgomery, Ala., and the brother of Thomas H. Clark, law librarian of congress. The trial is set for March 15.

Pretty Underwear.

The variety of pure silk and woolen underwear to be had at such reasonable prices, is very tempting to dainty women, yet many refrain from purchasing such on account of their liability to injure in laundrying. If the work is properly done, this trouble may be avoided. Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

"Better Be Wise Than Rich."

Wise people are also rich when they know a perfect remedy for all annoying diseases of the blood, kidneys, liver and bowels. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is perfect in its action. It so regulates the entire system as to bring vigorous health. It never disappoints.

Goitre—"For 42 years I had goitre, or swellings on my neck, which was discouraging and troublesome. Rheumatism also annoyed me. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me completely and the swelling has entirely disappeard. A lady in Michigan saw my previous testimonial and used Hood's and was entirely cured of the same trouble. She thanked me for recommending it." MRS. ANNA SUTHERLAND, 406 Lovel Street, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Poor Health—"Had poor health for years, pains in shoulders, back and hips, with constant headache, nervousness and no appetite. Used Hood's Sarsaparilla, gained strength and can work hard all day, eat heartily and sleep well. I took it because it helped my husband." MRS. ELIZA ARTZ, Cor. Vine and Ash Sts., Yale, Minn.

Makes Weak Strong—"I would give $5 a bottle for Hood's Sarsaparilla if I could not get it for less. It is the best spring medicine. It makes the weak strong." ALBERT A. JAGOW, Douglastown, N. Y.

Locomotor Ataxia and Paralysis Can be Cured.

These extreme nervous disorders were treated with wonderful success by the discoverer of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, previous to his discovery being offered to the public generally. This remedy is the only known specific in many diseases that, until recent years, were pronounced incurable. Here is the proof:

James Crocket, a sturdy old Scotchman living in Detroit, Mich, at 83 Montcalm St., was cured of Locomotor Ataxia by these pills. For many years he has been a chief engineer of one of those big passenger palace steamers plying upon the great lakes. This is a position of great responsibility and the anxiety causes a great nervous strain. Mr. Crocket says: "For fifteen years I watched the big engines and boilers without a single accident, and only noticed that I was getting nervous. Suddenly without warning I was taken sick, and was prostrated. I had the best of physicians but grew gradually worse. At a council of doctors, they said I had nervous prostration, and had destroyed my whole nervous system and would never recover. For three years I was unable to move from my bed. The doctor said I had locomotor ataxia, and would never be able to walk again.

"The pains and suffering I experienced during those years are almost indescribable. The friends that came to see me bid me good-bye when they left me and I was given up. The doctors said nothing more could be done. My article reading to me, articles about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. We finally decided to try them. The first box gave me relief, I continued to use them for about two years before I could get strength enough to walk. I am nearly seventy-five years old and there is not a man in this city that can kick higher or walk further than I can and to-day I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for they saved my life."—Detroit Evening News.

HE IS IN A TRAP.

Gen. Aguinaldo and His Whole Army Surrounded By Our Troops.

Great Courage Shown By Our Troops During the Battle at Caloocan—List of Killed and Wounded—Troops Suffering From Heat.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The following official dispatch from Gen. Otis was received at the war department Tuesday morning:

MANILA, Feb. 7.—Adjutant General, Washington: Insurgent army concentrated around Manila from Luzon provinces, numbering over 20,000, possessing several quick-firing and Krupp field guns; good portion of enemy armed with Mausers of the latest pattern. Two Krupp guns and a great many rifles captured. Insurgents fired a great quantity of ammunition. Quite a number of Spanish soldiers in the insurgent service, who served the artillery.

Insurgents constructed strong intrenchments near our lines, mostly in bamboo thickets. These, our men charged, killing or capturing many of the enemy. Our casualties aggregate 250. Full reports To-day. Casualties of insurgents very heavy. Have buried some 500 of their dead and hold 500 prisoners. Their loss, killed, wounded and prisoners, probably 4,000. Took water works pumping station yesterday, six miles out. Considerable skirmishing with enemy, who made no stand. Pumps damaged. Will be worked in week. Have number of condensers set up in city which furnish good water. Troops in excellent spirits. Quiet prevails. (Signed)

OTIS.

MANILA, Feb. 8.—Lieut. A.C. Alford, Company I, 20th Kansas infantry, and a private of that company, were killed and six other members of the regiment were wounded near Caloocan Monday evening while reconnoitering. The party was in a jungle when it was attacked by the enemy.

Gen. Otis finally recalled the troops but the natives misunderstanding the retreat, failed to take advantage of it. The outskirts of the town were burned.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The war department Wednesday received the following dispatch:

MANILA, Feb. 8.

Situation rapidly improving. Reconnoisance yesterday to south several miles to Lagudade bay, to southeast eight miles, driving straggling insurgent troops in various directions, encountering no decided opposition, army disintegrated and natives returning to villages displaying white flags.

Near Caloocan, six miles north, the enemy made a stand behind entrenchments, charged by Kansas troops, led by Col. Funston. Close encounter, resulting in rout of the enemy with heavy loss. Loss to Kansas: Lieut. Alford killed; 6 men wounded.

On the 4th Aguinaldo issued flying proclamations charging Americans with initiative and declared war; Sunday issued another calling all to resist foreign invasion; his influence throughout this section destroyed; now applies for a cessation of hostilities and conference; have declined to answer. Insurgent expectation of rising in city on night of 4th unrealized. Provost marshal general, with admirable disposition of troops, defeated every attempt. City quiet; business resumed; natives respectful and cheerful; fighting qualities of American troops a revelation to all inhabitants. OTIS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Important news concerning Iloilo was received at the war department from Gen. Otis Wednesday. There is reason to believe that Gen. Otis has sent reinforcements to Gen. Miller, in command of the detachment there, with instructions to demand the surrender of the place, and if the demand is refused to take it by force. The troops at Iloilo are the 18th regular infantry and one battery of the 6th artillery. They are on transports lying near the entrance to Iloilo bay. The warships Baltimore and Petrel are at Iloilo and the Boston is on her way there to relieve the Baltimore.

MANILA, Feb. 9.—The provost guard is in absolute control of Manila. All fears of a native uprising in the city crew dispelled by the promptitude which quelled the outbreak Monday evening. The streets were deserted Tuesday evening by 9 o'clock, and not a light was to be seen in the native quarter. The Filipinos, accustomed to Spanish methods, are constantly inquiring of the American soldiers when the prisoners are to be executed. They seem unable to realize that orders have not already been issued for the execution. Indeed, headquarters is besieged by women anxious to plead for the lives of their relatives and friends.

Gen. Hale's brigade, consisting of 1st South Dakota infantry, 1st Colorado infantry and 1st Nebraska infantry, supported by a battery of Utah light artillery, occupies the most advanced post in the American lines, fully ten miles from the base of supplies. It has an almost perfect position. Four guns of the Utah artillery stationed on a hill behind the water works command the valley to the right and left, and the foothills in front.

MANILA, Feb. 10.—Thursday the natives, fearing the American were about to make an attack on or bombard the town of San Roque, set fire to it. It is still burning as this dispatch is sent and as it is composed in the main of bamboo huts, it will probably be totally destroyed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The following cablegram was received Thursday from Gen. Otis:

"MANILA, Feb. 9.—Adjutant General, Washington. Additional casualties: Thirteenth Minnesota—Wounded: Company M, Private Alexander M. Burns.

First Montana—Wounded: Company C, Private Lester Pierestoff.

First Nebraska—Killed: Co. B, Artificer Gustave E. Ediund; Co. F, Private Wm. Philipot; Co. M, Private H. C. Livingston. Wounded: Co. A. Charles Keckley; B, George L. Clother, Robert E. Childers; C, Fred Kuhn; E, Oral F. Gibson; F, Douglas T. Bridges; H, Harry Seabooke; K, Grant Boyd; L, Francis Hanson; M, Moro C. Shipherd, Daniel Campbell.

Third Artillery—Wounded: Battery K. James J. Grateg; L, James T. Leahy.

First Colored—Wounded: Company A, Clyde H. McVay.

Fourteenth Infantry — Wounded: William Bush.

Total casualties resulting from all engagements since evening of February [illegible] 268, as follows: Killed, 3 officers, 56 enlisted men, wounded, 8 officers, 199 enlisted men; missing, 2 enlisted men. OTIS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The navy department Thursday received the following dispatch:

"MANILA, Feb. 9.

"After continued interference and intimidation of our workmen I ordered armed insurgents to leave San Roque by 9 Thursday morning. They left during the night, a few remaining, who burned the village Thursday morning. It is now occupied by our troops. All quiet.

(Signed) "DEWEY."

San Roque is a village on the neck of land connecting Cavite and the mainland of Luson.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The most important statement received during the day from Manila was that from Gen. Otis that he had sent orders to Brig. Gen. Marcus P. Miller to demand the surrender and evacuation of Iloilo by the Visayan insurgents Friday morning at 9 o'clock, and that he expected a report from Gen. Miller by next Monday of the successful execution of his order.

MANILA, Feb. 11.—The American forces at 3:40 Friday afternoon made a combined attack upon Caloocan and reduced it in short order. At a signal from the tower of the De la Lome church, the United States double-turreted monitor Monadnock opened fire from the bay, with the big guns of her fore turret on the earthworks with great effect. Soon afterward the Utah battery bombarded the place from the land side.

The rebels reserved their fire until the bombardment ceased, when they fired volleys of musketry as the Montana regiment advanced on the jungle.

The Kansas regiment, on the extreme left, with the 3d artillery deploying to the right, charged across the open and carried the earthworks, cheering under a heavy fire. Supported by the artillery at the church, the troops further advanced, driving the enemy, fighting every foot, right into the town line, and penetrated to the Presidencia, and lowered the Filipino flag at 5:30 p. m.

The enemy's sharpshooters, in the jungle on the right, fired at long range on the Pennsylvania regiment, but the rebels were soon silenced by shrapnel shells and the Pensaylvanians remained in the trenches.

As the Americans advanced they burned the native huts.

The rebels were mowed down like grass, but the American loss was slight.

MANILA, Feb. 11.—The American flag was raised at 5:30 Friday afternoon over the town of Caloocan, where Aguinaldo was reported to have gathered the flower of the Philippine army.

At 9:30 p. m. the monitor Monadnock and the gunboat Concord began the attack upon the town, throwing into it a shower of shells, which did a great deal of damage.

Then the 6th artillery division and the Utah battery opened fire on the Filipino intrenchments, and at 4 o'clock the entire brigade under command of Brig. Gen. Harrison G. Otis, with the exception of the 10th Pennsylvania infantry, which was held in reserve, began to advance in the following order from left to right.

The 20th Kansas infantry, 1st Montana infantry and the 3d artillery, the Kansas and the Montana troops being supported by the Idaho infantry and the Utah artillery by the 4th cavalry.

The insurgents kept up a rattling fire on our lines, but the Americans advanced from the woods on the left and an open field on the right without stopping, firing only when they reached the enemy's intrenchments. In the meantime a company of the 1st Montana infantry, under command of Maj. J. F. Bell, who volunteered this service, executed a neat right flank movement, driving the enemy's left flank back into the town. Cheering like madmen, the Americans rushed over the enemy's trenches, completely routing the Filipinos, who scattered like sheep and fled toward the north.

The residence of an Englishman, named Higgins, was the only house in the town that had a flagstaff. This was borrowed for the occasion and the Stars and Stripes were run up amid tremendous cheering.

As the 20th Kansas and 1st Montana regiments entered the town from the south, they set on fire a number of huts in which some natives had concealed themselves for the purpose of firing upon the rear of our troops. The natives fled in a hurry.

Our losses were very slight, but those of the enemy were heavy, their casualties having been chiefly inflicted by shrapnel. Lieut. Col. Bruce Wallace, of the 1st Montana, is among the wounded Americans.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The following dispatch from Gen. Otis was received Friday night:

MANILA, Feb. 10.—Adjutant General, Washington: — Insurgents collected considerable force between Manila and Caloocan, where Aguinaldo is reported to be, and threatened attack and uprising in the city. Friday afternoon swung left of MacArthur's division, which is north of Pasig river, into Caloocan, driving the enemy easy. Our left is now at Caloocan. Our loss is slight; that of the insurgents considerable. Particulars in the morning. Attack was preceded by one-half hour's firing from two of Adm. Dewey's vessels. (Signed) GEN. OTIS."

MANILA, Feb. 13.—Early Saturday the Monadnock and the cruiser Charleston began dropping shells into the rebel camp between Caloocan and Malabon.

The enemy's sharpshooters, in the jungle on the American left, had been particularly annoying since daylight, so the 3d artillery drove the rebels out of the jungle at noon. In the meantime a few more of our men were wounded.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The war department Saturday received the following dispatch from Gen. Otis:

MANILA, Feb. 11.—McArthur's division is north of Pasig river. Yesterday his left wing, Otis's brigade, made a partial wheel to right, resting left of the brigade on Caloocan, where the insurgents, who were in considerable force, were sharply driven, leaving a good many dead.

Troops in excellent condition; supplied with all necessities. Hospitals, notwithstanding wounded, have fewer patients than before the engagements of the fourth and fifth instants. Friday's engagement most successful. Belief of old residents that Aguinaldo will be unable to gather in future any considerable forces. (Signed)

OTIS.

MANILA, Feb. 12.—The heat Saturday knocked out many more of our men than the Filipinos bullets, especially in the marsh lands north of Malabon, where the Kansas regiment was stationed. Fully a score of them were taken to the hospital.

The following additional particulars regarding the capture of Caloocan have been obtained:

The insurgents had been concentrating their forces for days at Caloocan and Maj. Gen. Elwell S. Otis, the American commander here, determined to attack them. He instructed his commanders accordingly, and requested the assistance of the naval forces under the command of Rr. Adm. Dewey. Maj. Gen. MacArthur reported that all was ready and at 3 o'clock he received the following message:

"The commanding general orders you to go ahead with the programme. (Signed) "BARRY."

The attack began immediately. The monitor Monadnock and the cruiser Charleston shelled Caloocan and the country north of it for half an hour. Gen. MacArthur's artillery also did effective work from a hill in the rear.

Brig. Gen. Harrison Gray Otis with his brigade, consisting of the Kansas regiment, the Montana regiment and the 3d artillery, regulars, acting as infantry, advanced handsomely, pushing forward in the face of the Filipino bullets as cheerfully as if they had been snowballs.

The enemy was utterly routed and fled to the mountains. At 6 o'clock "Cease firing" and "Recall" were sounded. The troops were then well through Caloocan and north of it. Gen. MacArthur established his left at Caloocan and strengthened his lines for the night.

The city is now quieter and business is better than at any time since the outbreak of hostilities.

The American losses Friday were three men killed and 23 wounded. Among the latter are gallant Lieut. Col. Bruce Wallace, of the Montana regiment, and a lieutenant of the 2d cavalry, who was shot through the lung while leading a charge across the open ground. The enemy lost heavily.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—In his latest dispatch to the adjutant general, Otis expresses the opinion that the insurgents are so thoroughly licked that Aguinaldo will not be able to rally his forces again. While no official advices have yet been received about the battle at Malabon Saturday morning, officials admit that every effort is now being made to capture Aguinaldo, and they think, from the location of Malabon, that the maneuver was made in an attempt to cut off his retreat to the north. Aguinaldo, they believe, is now practically surrounded.

MANILA, Feb. 13.—Contrary to general expectations all was quiet along the entire line, nothing having happened to disturb the peace of Sunday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—A dispatch from Gen. Otis received at the war department Sunday morning says he has been informed that the attack made on the American forces by the rebels was in pursuance of advices received by Aguinaldo from Hong Kong.

AN ASYLUM FIRE.

Seventeen Inmates Lose Their Lives at Yankton, South Dakota.

The Thermometer Registered 25 Degrees Below Zero, and Many Inmates Escaped Down a Narrow Stairs in Their Night Clothes.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 13.—A special from Yankton says: One of the most horrifying fires in the history of Yankton occurred Sunday morning at 2 o'clock at the state insane asylum when one of the cottages took fire in the basement completely gutting the building and causing the loss of lives of 17 inmates confined there.

The cottage was erected of stone and granite walls with wooden interior and intended for laundry purposes, but owing to the crowded condition of the main building 40 of the female patients were placed here with the laundry in the basement. The exact cause of the fire is not known except that it originated in the dry room of the laundry. Here there is a coil of steam [illegible], and the theory is that either fat particles similar to lint settled on the pipes, which ignited, or that clothes which were thickly hung here dropped on the pipes and were fired. The fighting of fire was greatly hindered by loss of power. The burned cottage stands some 300 feet in the rear of the main building, the water tank, which is for fire protection, standing 100 feet in the rear of the cottage. The steam pipes used for pumping runs from the boiler room of the main building through the cottage for heating and then to the artesian well or tank. The intense heat in the burning building caused the pipes to burst shortly after the fighting of the fire began, thus leaving them without power and depending entirely upon direct pressure from the tank, which was in no way sufficient to quench the fierce flames. Two streams of water were thrown on the building but did little good. With the thermometer standing at 25 degrees below zero it was a heartrending sight to witness those escaping coming down the narrow flight of stairs in their night clothes and bare feet into the bitter cold, and had it not been for the nearness of shelter the suffering and probable loss of life from freezing would have been terrible. The building was three stories high with an attic and two entrances, one east and one west.

There was one stairway from the second and third floors which led into the main halls to these entrances thus giving but one egress for those in the second and third floors and attic. Fifty-two persons were in the building, 40 patients and 12 female attendants. The attendants escaped, as did the others who were saved, with none of their personal effects, many losing all that they possessed.

COL. D. G. COLSON WOUNDED.

Trouble Between the Colonel and First Lieut. Scott, Fourth Kentucky, Culminated in a Pitched Battle.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 13.—A special from Anniston, Ala., says:

The trouble that has been brewing for some time between Col. David G. Colson and First Lieut. E. D. Scott, of the 4th Kentucky regiment, culminated at a late hour Saturday night in a pitched battle in which Col. Colson was shot in the hip and Lieut. Scott and many others had narrow escapes.

The encounter occurred in the mammoth restaurant, conducted by Percy Olmstead, about midnight. Lieut. Scott was sitting at a table eating with Lieut. Blakeman, of the same regiment, when Colson entered. He walked over near the two men at the table, and after looking at them a few seconds, stepped up and pulled Lieut. Blakeman's ear, at the same time applying a vile epithet. Lieut. Scott declared that Lieut. Blakeman was his friend and he would not allow him to be insulted. At this Col. Colson drew a pistol and Lieut. Scott rose from his chair with a pistol in each hand. There were quite a number of men in the place, and while some say they do not know who fired first, several declare that Col. Colson opened the fight.

Probably a dozen shots were fired before the astounded onlookers could stop the fusillade. Lieuts. McKay and Phelps, of the 4th Wisconsin, on duty with the provost guards, were in the room and immediately took steps to bring the engagement to an end. Lieut. Phelps ran up to Lieut. Scott and demanded his pistols. The latter said he willingly relinquished them to the proper authority and gave them up. Lieut. McKay in the meantime had ordered Col. Colson disarm but he refused to do it and the pistol was taken from him by force. Quickly as a flash Col. Colson drew another weapon and fired, some say at Lieut. Scott and others at Lieut. McKay, but without effect. The provost lieutenant then bent his efforts toward getting Col. Colson's pistol and in doing so, struck Col. Colson twice with his fist, bruising up his face very badly. Col. Colson was the only man injured in the engagement. He announced that he was wounded and was carried to an upstairs room where physicians were summoned to look after his injuries. A bullet had entered his hip and ranged around to the rear where it was located and extracted.

CHARGED WITH PILFERING.

Robberies Alleged to Have Been Committed By Members of the Second Ohio Regiment at Macon, Ga.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 11.—The merchants and business men of Macon are highly indignant over the atrocious robberies committed by the members of the 2d Ohio regiment Friday as they were being mustered out of the service of the United States. A large number of merchants sent wagons loaded with merchandise out to the camp to sell to the discharged soldiers. The colonel commanding ordered them to leave the camp, and upon their refusal to do so, ordered the men to pilfer the wagons. The robberies committed by the men did not end here, but they came to the city, and while under the influence of whisky went into several stores and walked out with goods in full view of the amazed merchants. Several of them were arrested and after turning over the goods were released.

This conduct was not general with the members of the regiment and is deeply deplored by a large number of the better class of the men.

The loss the Macon merchants suffered will amount to [illegible]. One merchant had to close his store, so heavy was his loss. He was even robbed of his overcoat, and his Negro driver, who had on a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles, was relieved of them.

A requisition will probably be made on the governor of Ohio for the return of Col. Kuert to this state for prosecution for aiding and abetting robbers.

Col. Kuert, commanding the 2d Ohio, was waited on before he left Friday by one of the merchants. He said he was not responsible for the conduct of the men as they were no longer under his command and he had nothing to do with them.

THE BURIAL OF GEN. GARCIA.

It Takes Place at Havana Saturday afternoon—The Body Laid in State in the Municipal Council Chamber.

HAVANA, Feb. 11.—About three hundred wreaths and floral emblems from individuals and societies have been piled at the foot of the bier of Gen. Calixto Garcia, whose body arrived here from the United States Thursday afternoon on the United States gunboat Nashville.

The body laid in the municipal council chamber of the palace and crowds silently filed past the coffin. The remains laid in state until the interment which took place at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

All day long Havana has paid silent homage to the dead warrior. Young women and children of the best families, gray haired ladies, laborers and negresses have visited the council chamber, passed the guard of Cuban and American soldiers looked upon the face of the dead and quietly moved away. Many carried flowers, which were deposited at the foot of the bier. The streets around the palace have been crowded with soldiery and the honors paid by the American authorities have greatly pleased the Cubans.

Gov. Gen. Brooke and staff attended the interment Saturday and the review of the 7th army corps was postponed. The Cuban troops, guarding the streets near the palace, were objects of much curiosity to passers by.

A VERY THRILLING INCIDENT

A Northern and a Southern Veteran Who Lay Wounded for Three Days, Side By Side on a Battle Field, Meet.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11.—A thrilling incident occurred at the meeting of the supreme senate of the Essenic Knights Friday night when Col. Slater, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., a grand army man, was speaking on the women's badge question. He referred to Col. Christey, speaker of the Pennsylvania legislature, as a gallant veteran who lay wounded for three days on the battlefield of Chancellorsville, side by side with a southern soldier, Col. David Seable, a Louisiana delegate, an ex-president of the Army of North Virginia, interrupted to say that he was a southern soldier, who had lain three days on Chancellorsville field, but had not seen his federal companion since. Col. Christey rose and he and Col. Seable recognized each other as the friendly enemies of long ago. The house rose with them, flags were pulled down and furled around them, and as they embraced, the entire gathering cheered and sung pathetic songs.

Jim Murray Knocks Out Joe Frede.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 11.—Jim Murray, of Cincinnati, scored a clean knockout on Joe Frede, of St. Louis, in the 19th round, before the Hot Springs Athletic association here Friday night. The battle was hard fought and considerable science was displayed by both men.

Barrows for Librarian.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Indirect but apparently authentic information was received Friday by the Massachusetts members in congress that Representative Barrows, of Massachusetts, had been offered the post of librarian of congress, and had accepted.

Horse-Thief Sentenced.

BATAVIA, O., Feb. 11.—William Judd, recently arrested for stealing a horse and wagon several years ago, was sentenced to two and one-half years in the penitentiary.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—SENATE—The treaty of peace negotiated between the commissioners of the United States and Spain at Paris was Monday ratified by the United States senate, the vote being 57 ayes to 27 nays, or one vote more than the two-thirds majority necessary to secure senatorial concurrence in a treaty document. After the ratification of the treaty, the senate, in open session, took up a joint resolution offered by Mr. McEnery (dem., La.), declaring a policy for the Philippines, and an effort was made to adopt it, but the debate occupied so much time that the resolution went over until Tuesday; Mr. Hoar proposed an amendment providing that the proposed government in the Philippines should be "with the consent of the people thereof." A motion to lay on the table prevailed, 46 to 24. Mr. Hoar then moved to amend the resolution by inserting the words "or to force a government upon them against their will." Tabled.

HOUSE—Monday was suspension day in the house and quite a number of bills were passed, several of them of importance. The census bill prepared by the house committee went through by a vote of 167 to 42. The bill differs in several essential features from the senate bill. Mr. Grow (rep., Pa.) offered a resolution for a constitutional amendment providing that peace treaties shall be ratified by a majority of the senate. He said that it was very singular that a majority of the two houses could make war, while two-thirds of the senate were required to make peace.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—SENATE—For two hours or more the senate Tuesday had the resolution declaratory of a policy of this government in the Philippines under discussion, but no vote was reached, and the resolution went finally over. [illegible] consumed with [illegible] One merchant had to close his store, so heavy was his loss. He was even robbed of his overcoat, and his Negro driver, who had on a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles, was relieved of them.

A requisition will probably be made on the governor of Ohio for the return of Col. Kuert to this state for prosecution for aiding and abetting robbers.

Col. Kuert, commanding the 2d Ohio, was waited on before he left Friday by one of the merchants. He said he was not responsible for the conduct of the men as they were no longer under his command and he had nothing to do with them.

Many carried flowers, which were deposited at the foot of the bier. The streets around the palace have been crowded with soldiery and the honors paid by the American authorities have greatly pleased the Cubans.

Gov. Gen. Brooke and staff attended the interment Saturday and the review of the 7th army corps was postponed. The Cuban troops, guarding the streets near the palace, were objects of much curiosity to passers by.

A VERY THRILLING INCIDENT

A Northern and a Southern Veteran Who Lay Wounded for Three Days, Side By Side on a Battle Field, Meet.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11.—A thrilling incident occurred at the meeting of the supreme senate of the Essenic Knights Friday night when Col. Slater, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., a grand army man, was speaking on the women's badge question. He referred to Col. Christey, speaker of the Pennsylvania legislature, as a gallant veteran who lay wounded for three days on the battlefield of Chancellorsville, side by side with a southern soldier, Col. David Seable, a Louisiana delegate, an ex-president of the Army of North Virginia, interrupted to say that he was a southern soldier, who had lain three days on Chancellorsville field, but had not seen his federal companion since. Col. Christey rose and he and Col. Seable recognized each other as the friendly enemies of long ago. The house rose with them, flags were pulled down and furled around them, and as they embraced, the entire gathering cheered and sung pathetic songs.

Jim Murray Knocks Out Joe Frede.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 11.—Jim Murray, of Cincinnati, scored a clean knockout on Joe Frede, of St. Louis, in the 19th round, before the Hot Springs Athletic association here Friday night. The battle was hard fought and considerable science was displayed by both men.

Barrows for Librarian.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Indirect but apparently authentic information was received Friday by the Massachusetts members in congress that Representative Barrows, of Massachusetts, had been offered the post of librarian of congress, and had accepted.

Horse-Thief Sentenced.

BATAVIA, O., Feb. 11.—William Judd, recently arrested for stealing a horse and wagon several years ago, was sentenced to two and one-half years in the penitentiary.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—SENATE—The treaty of peace negotiated between the commissioners of the United States and Spain at Paris was Monday ratified by the United States senate, the vote being 57 ayes to 27 nays, or one vote more than the two-thirds majority necessary to secure senatorial concurrence in a treaty document. After the ratification of the treaty, the senate, in open session, took up a joint resolution offered by Mr. McEnery (dem., La.), declaring a policy for the Philippines, and an effort was made to adopt it, but the debate occupied so much time that the resolution went over until Tuesday; Mr. Hoar proposed an amendment providing that the proposed government in the Philippines should be "with the consent of the people thereof." A motion to lay on the table prevailed, 46 to 24. Mr. Hoar then moved to amend the resolution by inserting the words "or to force a government upon them against their will." Tabled.

HOUSE—Monday was suspension day in the house and quite a number of bills were passed, several of them of importance. The census bill prepared by the house committee went through by a vote of 167 to 42. The bill differs in several essential features from the senate bill. Mr. Grow (rep., Pa.) offered a resolution for a constitutional amendment providing that peace treaties shall be ratified by a majority of the senate. He said that it was very singular that a majority of the two houses could make war, while two-thirds of the senate were required to make peace.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—SENATE—For two hours or more the senate Tuesday had the resolution declaratory of a policy of this government in the Philippines under discussion, but no vote was reached, and the resolution went finally over. [illegible] consumed with [illegible] istic and picturesque argument. Mr. Lodge (rep. Mass.) followed with a strong reply to Mr. Tillman in which he stated clearly and directly the conditions as they confronted the United States in the Philippines. The Indian appropriation bill was taken up but had not been completed when the senate adjourned.

HOUSE—Tuesday and Wednesday were set aside for the consideration of public building bills. The committee had reported 78 bills for buildings in 35 states, authorizing in the aggregate an expenditure of $14,084,000. Little or no opposition developed Tuesday and bills were favorably acted upon almost as rapidly as they could be read. There was, however, more or less good natured chaffing throughout the session. As a result 470 bills, carrying, or authorizing appropriations aggregating $11,364,500 had been laid aside with favorable recommendations before adjournment was reached.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—SENATE—The senate confined itself largely to the transaction of routine business Wednesday. The Indian appropriation bill which has been pending for several weeks was completed and passed. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was taken up but after 24 pages of it had been disposed it was laid aside for the day. A few measures of minor importance were passed.

HOUSE—The net result of the work during the two days allotted for the consideration of public building bills in the house was the passage of a single bill providing for the erection of a building at Newport News, Va., at a cost of $75,000. Sixty-five bills in all carrying or authorizing the expenditure of $12,00,0 0 were favorably considered in committee of the whole when the committee rose Wednesday, but because seventeen other bills reported had not been considered upon in committee filibustering tactics were resorted to and all efforts to advance the bills favorably acted upon in committee were blocked. The second bill appropriating $67,500 for a building at Blair City, Neb., got as far as the third reading when a demand for the production of the engrossed bill prevented it from being placed upon its passage. The previous question had been ordered on the Altoona, Pa., bill, carrying $125,000, when the house adjourned, so that it will be the unfinished business Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—SENATE—Throughout its open session Thursday the senate had under consideration the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. A lively debate was precipitated over the appropriation for the support of the office of the supervising architect of the treasury and that official was criticised for the delay in the construction of public buildings throughout the United States. Fifty-one pages of the pending bill were disposed of before the senate went into executive session for the remainder of the day.

HOUSE—Chairman Cannon, of the appropriations committee of the house, in the course of the general debate on the sundry civil bill Thursday sounded a note of warning against extravagant appropriations, and practically served notice that neither the subsidy bill nor the Nicaragua canal bill could be passed at this session. The general debate on the sundry civil bill was not concluded Thursday. Before it was taken up quite a number of minor bills were passed by unanimous consent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—SENATE—During the entire open session Friday the senate had under consideration the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. Little progress was made, the time largely being occupied with debate on minor topics.

HOUSE—General debate on the sundry civil appropriation was concluded Friday. The speakers during the day touched a variety of topics, but as a rule the debate lacked spirit and interest. Mr. Dockery (Mo.), who is at the head of the minority of the appropriations committee, referred to Mr. Cannon's figures of Thursday as to the deficiency in the revenues. Mr. De Armond (Mo.), Mr. Gillet (Mass.) and others discussed the policy of expansion and Mr. Lentz (O.) severely criticised the administration for exercising clemency in the case of Gen. Eagan. During the course of the debate Mr. Hepburn, chairman of the house and coinage committee, gave notice that he would offer the Nicaraguan canal bill as an amendment to the sundry civil bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—SENATE—After a brief debate of more than two hours Saturday afternoon, a unanimous consent agreement was made by the senate to vote upon the resolution of Mr. McEnery (dem., La.) declaratory of the policy of the United States in the Philippine islands. Consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was concluded and the bill passed just before adjournment.

HOUSE—The memory of the late Representative Dingley was fittingly eulogized in the house of representatives Saturday by those who had been closely associated with him. The early part of the day was given to some minor routine work, and the eulogies, which were a special order, had the balance of the day. The tributes came from both sides of the house, and expressed a heartfulness of personal regard, as well as admiration for the scholarly qualities of Mr. Dingley. Gen. Wheeler introduced a joint resolution proposing the thanks of congress and the American people to Maj Gen. Elwell S. Otis and the officers and men of his command for their gallant and successful action at Manila on February 4 and 5.

M. Bullock. Ask Lewis Harding how he went.—Mr. G. Sheridan Hann left us Monday morning for his home near Harrison Ohio. We regreted deeply to see him leave, but while he was with us we were during the day and souls at night were given in his honor, and for his enjoyment, showing great respect for him by his numerous old and young friends. May God bless him is the prayer of one whom he has so often aided.—Rev. Watkins preached Sunday, from the text: "A new life in Christ." Let us all remember this text and bear in mind what it means.

Mound Field Farm.

Very little garden planted in this vicinity last week.

Considering the splendid sleighing there are very few of these conveyances on the road.

Old Jack Frost paid his respects to nearly all the potatoes that were not in cellars about here, last week.

William Clayton, the best authority we have here, is of the opinion that the peaches are not all killed yet.

Elijah Tanner, our local furrier, has purchased 482 varmint pelts from the trappers in his territory, up to date.

Huhert Conner treated his spanking team of horses to a set of new harness, last week, from the old reliable harness shop at Hebron.

Met Charlie Garnett, last week, on his way to the Poultry Show in the city, where he expected to enter himself as a game rooster.

Harrison Clore is having a quantity of 24-inch tiling hauled from the city for putting in culverts on his turnpike where he now has wooden bridges.

While chopping wood, a few days since, Robert Whitcomh received an ugly cut on the side of his nose by a limb flying back and striking him.

Quite a number of our handsomest old bachelors met with Ed Ernste, Saturday night, where they spent a pleasant time playing euchre and crokinole.

Clyde Hafer made an entry of two pair of chickens at the show, last week, and captured four premiums with them. They were the Sherwood and Brown Leghorn.

Jacob Crigler and Frank Whitcomb were employed at Davis' store several nights since the zero weather, keeping up fires all night for the protection of the canned fruit, etc. Hafer & Tanner did not take this precaution, and, as a result, several barrels of their flour and corn meal froze and bursted open.

One cold morning during the big snow, Jacob Crigler was making the rounds of his traps, when he discovered where something had come out of a hole in a large tree, near the ground. Thinking it a very peculiar track to be made in the snow, he followed it something near half a mile, when, to his surprise, he found a large black snake. His snakeship, however, had succumbed to the cold, and was a corpse.

Wash Tanner had a thrilling encounter, a few nights ago, with what he suppose to be a horsethief. Some time in the night he was awakened by a noise at his stable. Jumping out of bed he got into his clothes as soon as possible. Lighting a lamp he placed it in a window so as to throw the light on the stable, and then grabbed a large carving knife, and sallied forth to investigate. On his way to the stable Wash stepped between the lamp and that building, and being somewhat excited, when he saw his shadow on the wall, he imagined it was the culprit, and made a desperate thrust at the imaginary man. In making the thrust Wash's foot slipped and he fell, the shadow fell also. Thinking the villian had jumped on to him, he called to life boys to turn the dogs loose, and began to cut right and left, thinking his was in peril. Hearing the racket some of the neighbors came upon the scene, and found Wash almost exhausted, but he rallied soon after he got up, and declared that he received but one lick, and that was the one that knocked him down, while, if they were to find the other fellow, he was satisfied they would discover that he had ripped him up the back several times, and, in all probability, he was close at hand a mutilated corpse. A careful search was made, but Wash's victim had absquatulated.

Utzinger.

Thos. G. Willis and Elmo Gaines will farm several farms this year.

A great many fatalities are reported by the raisers of spring lambs.

W. D. Cropper has a new suit of clothes of which he is very proud.

The select dining at W. L. Cropper's Thursday, was enjoyed by all present.

Miss Lutie Gaines will teach a private school at the Bullittsburg school house in the spring.

Mr. E. M. Gaines, one of our oldest and most esteemed citizens, is visiting relatives in Louisville.

The foxes play around here in droves. Lee Cropper saw three recently playing around his straw stack.

Miss Lizzie Graddy, Mrs. T. E Randall, and several of Mr. A. E. Chambers' family and Mr. J. A. Gaines' family are sick.

Elijah Holton is the modern Joseph of this country, to whom we all go when we get out of hay, and he always "helps us out."

Mr. Thos. Whitaker says that the peaches are killed for two years and probably the trees are killed, and that there will be no blackberries as many of the briars are killed.

The song of the spring birds will certainly be a delightful sound to many of us who have a considerable amount of stock and very little feed. Those lovely birds how we wish they would come.

Miss Lacy Kirtley's school closed last Thursday, with appropriate ceremonies. She has taught a very satisfactory school throughout and is deservedly popular with both scholars and patrons.

Miss Sadie Kirtley's school at the Terrill school house closed, last week as a public school, but was continued as a private school. Miss Sadie is distinguishing herself as a teacher of rare gifts and energy.

W. D. Cropper, whom you all know, says that the mercury at his store was 35 degrees below zero on Friday. Anyhow he thinks it was that cold. Geo. Keylich's thermometer went out in disgust, after registering all it could. At Mr. Winston's gate it was 28° below.

George Pfalzgraf struck an agravating cow in the head with his fist and as a result the cow is uninjured and Geo. a wiser man, but has a very sore hand. Had he consulted Courtney Walton before striking the cow he would have escaped much pain, but might have punished the cow more.

Erlanger.

Dr. C. W. McCullum's 5 months old child was buried Monday.

The Catholics comte[illegible] building a new church near the center of the town.

Alonzo Victor has gone to Milton, Trimble county, where he has a good position.

Miss Anna Bedinger, after a pleasant visit here, has returned to her home in Bloomington, Illinois.

The remains of Mrs. Slatrick, who died on Monday of last week, of pneumonia, were buried in Newport.

All citizens are invited to attend the K. P. anniversary services at the town hall at 2 p. m. February 19. Rev: Hoover will preach.

The people here who travel on the railroad a good deal have been very much annoyed by delayed trains, the result of numerous small freight wrecks at different points along the road.

Richwood.

Mr. Robt. Ashcraft is still very sick with typhoid fever.

Mrs. Cawthorn is reported to be slowly recovering from pneumonia.

Mr. Chas. Rice has been arrested by the severe cold, in his arrangements for moving to the Conner place.

Miss Korn, who has been laid aside for some time by la grippe, is on duty again and the children have returned to school.

Mr. Dickey is very much improved in health, but his doctor has forbidden him to come out until the approach of milder weather.

Corn cribs, hay stacks and fodder shocks are melting away rapidly under the heavy feeding demanded by the severe weather. Prices of grain and forage are likely to go up.

Charlie Wolfe froze his ears, Thursday.—Miss Lucy Fields entertained a number of friends, Thursday.—John Rice, who took suddenly ill, one day last week, while cutting ice, is much better.—Miss Artie Greeu, of Covington, was visiting Mrs. J. J. Tanner, last week.—Miss Margarette Marble closes her school to morrow, after a very successful term of five months.—A petition is in circulation requesting the C. S. R. R., to move Grubbs' station to a place opposite O. F. Glackins' home.

The many friends of Mrs. Julia Smith will be pleased to learn that she has returned from the hospital very much improved in health.

Gunpowder.

E. H. Snyder has been on the sick list for several days.

Harvey Utz and wife were the guests of B. C. Surface, last Tuesday.

Bobt. Houston is still improving, and we hope to see him out again soon.

Calvin Tanner has contracted to work for Bob Snyder, of near Hebron, this year.

Mrs. Beemon's children that were seriously sick with pneumonia, are convalescent.

The cold weather has created quite a demand for coal, and it seems that our Erlanger firm cant supply the demand, as some of the boys came back with wagons empty.

Last Thursday and Friday were the coldest days we have had for several years. The thermometer registered as low as 24 below zero. Uncle Bill Tanner says his thermometer was not equal to the occasion, and he will get a more extensive one before next winter.

Rabbit Hash.

There is a big crop of lambs in this neighborhood.

Born, Feb. 6d, to E. R. Merrick and wife, a fine girl.

Miss Pamdy Wainscott gave a party Wednesday evening.

Corn is selling at 40 cents, and can hardly be bought for that price.

E. L. Clements, who has been quite sick, has returned to Cincinnati.

A. G. McConnell attended the protracted meeting at Petersburg, last week.

Rabbit Hash has turned out to be a little Klondike. Twenty below zero, Thursday morning.

Solon Stephens, Colon and Oscie Kelly, attended the dance at W. B. Kelly's Wednesday night.

Miss Maud Ryle's school has closed at Hamilton, and she has retuned home sick of gripe.

Miss Lutie Stephens gave a tackey party, Thursday night. Some of the costumes were quite gay.

Will McConnell is feeding, 125 hogs that will weigh about 250 pounds. Will certainly knows how to grow the swine.

We would suggest to the Democrats of ever precinct to organize a Democrat club, and hold monthly meetings. At these meetings would be a good time to meet and talk over the issues of the day, such as the roads and high taxes. We should be against any man for Representative or any other office that is in favor of trusts and monopolies or any other combination; or high taxes.

Icebergs.

Ed Hawes got one of his ears frozen.

M. T. Garnett froze his ears going from the hotel to the Court-house, last Friday.

Col. Crisler's thermometer has the record here. It was 25° below zero, Friday morning.

No such cold weather was ever seen in this part of the country—at least the record thereof has not been forthcoming.

W. J. Rice's cisteru froze up last Wednesday night, and one of his hogs handed in his check same night because of the cold.

The well of W. T. Sullivan, who lives down on Gunpowder, froze over last week, and it was 22 feet down to the water. The ice was strong enough to support the bucket.

The "oldest inhabitants" don't agree as to the date when this part of the country experienced as cold weather as that of the past week. They differ so much that their testimony is not considered.

Monday morning the thermometer was 30 degrees below zero at R. A. Brady's on Middle creek, at Limaburg and at Union, and no doubt at other places in the county from which we have hot heard.

It was colder on the uplands Thursday than it was in the valleys, but Friday night the temperature in the valleys and low-lands, descended lower than that on the elevations did on either of the cold days.

James Hogan reported a large stock of ice cream stowed away in his cellar Monday morning, and was anxious to know if there was any way by which he could keep it until summer. He might try embalming.

A test made here Monday shows the fallacy in the statement that warm water will freeze quicker than cold water. The cold water had frozen before the other had got cool. Such an ahrurb propositon needed no demonstration.

The RECORDER claims that last Thursday and Monday were the coldest days known to this part of the country, notwithstanding the statements of many persons to the contrary. It would like to know what the diary kept, doubtless for half a century, by Mr. L. A. Loder, of Constance, shows the coldest day in its time to be.

In this part of the country the mercury ranged from 22 to 32 degrees below zero, Monday morning, accordiny to the reports to daily papers. R. S Crisler says it was 40 below 0 at his house here in Burlington that moruing. At noon Tuesday the weather had moderated considerably, but no flies had appeared.

A great many young pigs have been frozen during the past week.

For several days J. O. Huey, the Erlanger coal merchant, has not been able to supply the demands for fuel at all times, the bins of so many of his customers needed replenishing.

Heard several persons discussing the cold weather the other day, when one remarked: "There never was any colder weather in this part of the country," when another exclaimed: "Oh, pshaw! you are very much off. I have seen the river frozen over several times, and it is not frozen over yet." That settled the question then and there.

Frank Fullilove, the jeweler, has just finished what is probably the smallest pocket knife that has ever been made. It weighs only three grains, or the one hundred and sixtieth of an ounce, and is as perfect as can be. There are two blades, made of finest steel, one in each end. When closed, the knife is hardly half an inch in length. The handle is of silver, tipped with gold, 16 to 1. There are twelve pieces in the knife.—Owenton Herald.

After serving the Bullittsburg Baptist church for 45 years Dr. J. A. Kirtley has resigned, very much to the regret of the flock he has ministered to so long. The congregation has called Rev. M. J. Hoover but as the days upon which it is desired to have him preach at Bullittsburg are the same Sundays as those on which he preaches for the Burlington church, he has not accepted the call because of that conflict. The matter may be arranged yet.

The social function last week was the party given by mine host and hostess of the Boone House, Tuesday night. The doors of that hospitable establishment were thrown open to the town, and a very large proportion of the citizens, young and old, were on hand at an early hour. The dining rooms were the scene of the mirth, and numerous games afforded amusement for the guests until near midnight. It was an all-around enjoyable social affair, one to which few have been equal and none more delightful.

Erlanger is becoming quite metripolitan. A prize-fight was pull off there last Saturday night between Mike Rowand —— Welsh, the latter being knocked out in the 15th round by a punch in the stomach. The contest was witnessed by a large crowd, and it is said the representative of the Post pronounced it rare sport. They say Burlington and other neighboring towns were represented in the crowd. Our informant says that the grand jury will be called upon to investigate the matter and indict the principals and all those present.

There are some curious facts about our calendar. No century can begin on Wednesday, Friday or Sunday. The same calendars can be used every 20 years. October always begins on the same day of the week as January, April as July, September as December, February, March and November begin on the same days. May, June and August always begin on different days from each other and every other month in the year. The first and last days of the year are always the same. These rules do not apply to leap year, when comparison is made between days before and after February 29.

Will of John S. Johnson probated. Nancy W. Johnson was appointed and qualified as administratrix with the will annexed. Simeon Craven, W. H. Clore and Geo. W. Roberts were appointed appraisers.

T. G. Willis allowed $1,053 77, Assessor's claim.

E. B. Morse appointed guardian for Ora and America Masters.

Will of Mirinda Bailey probated and J. G. Furnish qualified as executor. R. H. Tanner, S. J. Rouse and W. R. Rouse appointed appraisers.

Homer Clutterhuck had a narrow escape, one morning last week, from ditching two horses and a road wagon at the bridge near G. G. Hughes', on the Florence pike. Just before he got to the bridge one of his fore-shod at something on the side of the road, and when he pulled on the line to straighten the horses in the road, it broke and the pull on the other line took the team off of the fill that approaches the bridge, and when the horses saw the plunge they were about to take over the abutment of the bridge, just in time to save a terrible disaster, they swung back onto the road, the front wheel of the wagon missing the end of the bridge railing only a few inches. In the excitement one of Homer's feet had slipped through a hole in the floor of the wagon bed, and it was with considerable difficulty that he released himself after he got the team stopped.

A good communication from Union, Petersburg and Flickertown, each, received too late for this week, but if the weather continues as cold as it has been for several days we presume they will keep without embalming.

Local News.

Some think not only the fruit but the trees, as well, are killed.

It kept the farmers busy looking after their young stock last week.

Five wagons left town Monday morning going for a supply of fuel for exhausted bins.

For this year the Assessor returns $409,515 more taxable property than was returned for last year.

The intense cold of the past week certainly was severe enough to destroy microbes and disease germs.

A fine young heifer belonging to Jeptha Tanner, ate tobacco, one day last week, and died in about two hours.

The protracted meeting which was to have begun last Monday night with the Methodist church at this place, has been postpoued until next month.

We printed, last week, jackotypes for Boddie and Riddell, of Rabbit Hash, who purchased the J. C. Bedinger jack.

Several of the local coal bins that were never known to be exhausted during a winter had to be replenished last week.

Where would the wheat be had it not been for the three inches of snow to protect it against the recent severe weather.

The case of Feltman vs Terrill, etc., ft.... uit county, in the Court of Appeals, was reversed last week. Schmidt & Hughes for Feltman.

John Duncan went up into the blue-grass section, last week, and purchased a colt which was bred for a trotter. He will begin to develop the animal at the proper time.

Six of the students who were recently examined for common school diplomas, passed and will be presented with diplomas at the next session of the Teachers' Institute.

The cold weather, last week, was severe on the small game. The birds could get very little to eat on account of the snow, making the cold much more severe on them.

W. E. Vest made a diagram of the Watson premises near Erlanger, where the killing of McGraw and Michaels occurred. The diagram is to be used by Watson's attorney on the trial.

Dr. Furnish made a professional call two miles beyond Utzinger, last Thursday night. He went in a sleigh, packed with a lantern and wraps. He did not return home until Friday morning.

The amount of cold the weather dispenser worked off last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday ought to be sufficient to satisfy the ground hog, or any other hog for that matter, for six weeks.

It does not snow very often when the thermometer is below zero, but that is what it did last Saturday, and a most disagreeable day it was, more so than the preceding days when the cold was more intense.

The local thermometers ranged from 18 to 21 degrees below zero, here last Thursday morning, and as low as 25 below last Friday morning. The temperature was lower that morning that it had been since February, 1886, when it was 18 below zero.

A Cincinnati man, who has a record of the temperature of January 1, 1864, says it was seven degrees below zero in Cincinnati that day. One reason why that day was considered so intensely cold, was because of the sudden change in the weather.

D. D. Alcorn, of Pittsburg, Penn., in answer to our Bellevue corespondent's slat question, sends a diagram that proves it will take the same number of slats to construct a fence over a hill as it would require to build a fence through same hill, all the slats being set perpendicular.

The temperature has been below zero as follows since the present cold period has been on duty:
Thursday morning 25° below.
Friday morning 22° below.
Saturday morning 18° below.
Sunday morning 10° below.
Monday morning 27° below.

Some fellow visited Judge Robert's corn crib, last Thursday night, and in lieu of about a bushel of nice corn he left an old clay pipe with a bobtail stem. The pipe had the "Philippine" brand on it. The Judge says he does not desire to open up a trade with the Filipinos on such unequal terms.

A certain girl was named Mary at her birth, says an exchange. When she grew up she dropped the "r" and it was May. When she began to shine socially she changed the "y" to "e," and her name was Mae. About a year ago she married and now has dropped the final letter and spells it plain "ma."

When some of the owners of thermometers went to ascertain the temperature, last Thursday morning, they failed because they did not descend the scale low enough to discover the degree marked, and they attributed their failure to defective eyesight, and were surprised when they were told of the intensity of the cold. This is a cold fact.

Leslie Clutterbuck sends us from Frankfort, Indiana, a newspaper clipping, the account of the death of Jamerson Rogers, who died at his home six miles from Frankfort, on the night of the 5th inst. Mr. Rogers was born in this county in August, 1823, and went to Clinton county, Indiana, in 1827, where he resided until his death. He leaves a wife whom he married over 50 years ago.

When Hubert Gaines entered the barn at his father's, last Thursday morning, he was surprised at seeing each stall in the barn occupied by a white horse, and at first thought some fellow had exchanged a lot of white plugs for their good horses, during the night, but upon closer investigation he discovered that each of his horses was enveloped in a coat of frost—hence the hallucination.

Dr. Smith was called to see a patient beyond Gunpowder creek, some time ago. Upon arriving at the house he saw no indication of illness on the part of the man or his wife, who constituted the sum total of the family, and he asked no questions to ascertain who the sick person was. Shortly after the arrival of the man of physics and emetics, the husband took his horse to the barn and fed it, and the wife proceeded to prepare a dinner in which the Doctor's favorite vegetables were very prominent. As soon after dinner as propriety would admit, the Doctor started for home, the man having brought the horse from the barn, and, as yet, never having complained of feeling indisposed. The Doctor mounted his steed and had gone 300 or 400 yards, when he heard someone calling him. He stopped, and turning his horse, when the man whose house he had just left, shouted to him: "You for got to leave me any medicine," and the Doctor answered, "I did not know you was sick." He returned and dosed up some medicine when he came on home without further interruption.

DR. BELL'S
Pine-Tar-Honey

Nature's most natural remedy, improved by science to a Pleasant, Permanent, Positive Cure for coughs, colds and all inflamed surfaces of the Lungs and Bronchial Tubes.

The sore, weary cough-worn Lungs are exhilarated; the microbe-bearing mucus is cut out; the cause of that tickling is removed, and the inflamed membranes are healed and soothed so that there is no inclination to cough.

SOLD BY ALL GOOD DRUGGISTS
Bottles Only. 25c., 50c. and $1.00 Sizes
BE SURE YOU GET
Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey

I AM 84 YEARS OLD, and never used any remedy equal to Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. It gives quick and permanent relief in grip as well as coughs and colds. It makes weak lungs strong.—Mrs. M. A. Metcalfe, Pedcoke, Ky.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Elihu Aiden, of Petersburg, has appendicitis.

Mrs. Susan Acra has been quite sick for several days.

Miss Ollie Kirkpatrick is visiting her mother at his place.

Mrs. B. B. Allphin has been quite sick for several days.

Rev. Hoover filled his regular appointment, at Erlanger, Sunday.

Jailer Adams and family have been very much indisposed for several days.

J. M. Lassing went to Frankfort, last Thursday, on business in the Court of Appeals.

The school taught by Misses Fannie Fluch and Ella Cason, at Florence, closed last Friday.

Several Burlington parties took advantage of the cool weather, last Wednesday, and visited the city.

Mrs. John H. Ryle, of Florence, was visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. S. Clutterbuck, of this place, a few days last week.

Supt. Voshell was in town, last Saturday, to meet the teachers to whom salary was due. Only four called on him for their money.

Johnnie Parker and his sister Miss Lizzie, came up Sunday to visit their sister, Mrs. P. E. Cason. Miss Lizzie remained, her brother returning home that afternoon.

Deputy Sheriff Allphin came from Mudlick on horseback, without stopping, last Wednesday, and when he got home he was so cold that he had to have assistance to move his wraps.

Harry Blyth came home from Petersburg, Saturday, and returned Monday morning, when the mercury was 27 degrees below zero. He relied on the efficacy of a hot rock and an abundance of wraps.

Dick Hensley, who lives down on Woolper, was chopping wood, last Thursday, when he was given a terrible blow on the nose, by a limb. Much trouble was experienced in securing the services of a doctor to dress the wound.

J. J. Huey called in Saturday to say good by to the RECORDER. He was to leave Bellevue the next day for Louisville, from where he went to Nashville, Tennessee, at which place he expects to go into business. He leaves a host of friends here.

On next Monday Prof. A. C. Collins will begin a select school at Union, in which the primary, intermediate and advanced departments will be sustained. Maps, charts, blocks and mathematical instruments will be used to make plain the subjects taught.

Our friend James M. Utz, of Limaburg, presented us with a calendar and weather chart, which was reliable during the month of January, but it has been so badly off during this month, that we have turned it to the wall, and are relying on the ground hog.

B. W. Adams is so in the habit of consulting the thermometer by lamp light that when he came over in town one day last week, he was seen examining one of those indicators of cold, handling his tin dinner bucket as though it was a lantern, and the hour midnight.

Rev. Davis had a rough trip from Richwood to Burlington, last Saturday. Old Boreas had kissed his cheeks and held him in fond embrace until he looked like an artic explorer, and when he drove into town some thought explorer Andree had started on his return trip to his native land, and, missing his route, had appeared in Burlington.

MRS. MIRINDA BAILEY.

Death loves a shining mark, and it took from earth one of its brightest, purest and sweetest souls when it claimed for its own Mrs. Mirinda Bailey. She, by her personal charms and brilliant mind, which were ever sparkling with pleasant wit, attracted to herself a large number of admiring friends. She was a favorite with all who knew her. A kind heart and keen intellect, making her companionable to all classes. A kind word was ever upon her lips, and she had a smile for all. Yes until the last moment she was patient and kind to all. She had a firm belief in God, and trusted His goodness; she went into the great unknown with perfect confidence that the Heavenly Father would care for all his children, and that sometime, somewhere all loving hearts would be united. The last impressive rites were performed at the Hopeful church and cemetery in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends.

The officiating clergyman, who spoke words of comfort and hope was Rev. Geo. Buffington, of Florence. May the memory of her love, devotion and trust be to those who remain behind—nieces and nephews, a never failing source of strength and goodness. She still speaks though her lips are mute.

My dear friend has gone to a mansion of rest,
Along with her Jesus, that's who she loved best;
Along with her Jesus, who died for all
Come on, here in heaven, there is room for all.

WOMAN IN THE HOME

Dr. Talmage Preaches on the Trials of Wives and Mothers.

Lessons from the Story of Mary and Martha—Annoyances of Home Life Are Steps to High Reward.

This discourse of Dr. Talmage seems to open all the doors of home life and rouses appreciation of work not ordinarily recognized; text, Luke 10:40: "Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? Bid her therefore that she help me."

Yonder is a beautiful village homestead. The man of the house is dead and his widow has charge of the premises. It is Widow Martha, of Bethany. Yes, I will show you also the pet of the household. It is Mary, the younger sister, with a book under her arm, and in her face no sign of care or anxiety about anything. Company has come. Christ appearing at the outside of the door makes some excitement inside the door. The sister set back the disarranged furniture, arrange their hair and in a flash prepare to open the door. They do not keep Christ waiting outside until they have newly appareled themselves or elaborately arranged their dresses, and then with affected surprise come out and pretend not to have heard the two or three previous knockings and say: "Why, is that you?" No, they were ladies and always presentable, although, perhaps, they had not on their best. None of us always have on our best. Otherwise very soon our best would not be worth having on. They throw open the door and greet Christ. They say: "Good morning, Master. Come in and be seated." Christ brought a company of friends with Him, and the influx of so many city visitors, you do not wonder, threw the country home into some perturbation. I suppose the walk from the city had been a keen appetizer. The kitchen department that day was a very important department, and I think as soon as Martha had greeted her guests she went to that room. Mary had no anxiety about the dinner. She had full confidence that her sister Martha could get up the best dinner in Bethany, and she practically said: "Now, let us have a division of labor. Martha, you cook, and I'll sit down and learn."

The same difference you now sometimes see between sisters. There is Martha, industrious, painstaking, a good manager, ever inventive of some new pastry, discovering something in household affairs. Here is Mary, fond of conversation, literary, so full of questions of ethics she has no time to discuss questions of household welfare. It is noon. Mary is in the parlor. Martha is in the kitchen. It would have been better for them to have divided the toil, and then they could have divided the opportunity of listening to Christ. But Mary monopolizes Christ while Martha swelters before the fire. It was very important that they have a good dinner that day, for Christ was hungry, and He did not often have luxurious entertainment. Alas, me! if all the responsibility of that entertainment had rested with Mary, what a repast they would have had! But something went wrong in the kitchen. Either the fire would not burn, or the bread would not bake, or something was turned black that ought to have been only turned brown, or Martha scolded herself and, forgetting all the proprieties of the occasion, with besweated brow she rushed out of the kitchen into the parlor, perhaps with toags in one hand and pitcher in the other, and she cried out: "Lord, dost thou not care that my sister has left me to serve alone? Bid her therefore that she help me." Christ scolded not a word. If it were scolding, I would rather have Him scold me than anybody else bless me. There was nothing acerb in the Saviour's reply. He knew that Martha had been working herself almost to death to get Him something to eat, and he appreciated her kindness, and He practically said: "My dear woman, do not worry. Let the dinner go. Sit down here on this couch beside your younger sister Mary. Let us talk about something else. Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things, but one thing is needful."

As Martha throws open the door I look in to-day, and I see a great many household anxieties, and about them I am going to speak of the Lord of Mary and Martha and Lazarus will help me by His grace.

As I look into that door, in the first place, I see the trial of nonappreciation. That was what made Martha so vexed at Mary. Mary, the younger sister, had no proper estimate of the elder sister's fatigue, just as now men having annoyances of store and factory and shop or at the stock exchange come home at night and hear of some household annoyance, and they say: "Oh, that's nothing! You ought to be in a factory a day and have ten or fifteen or twenty or one hundred subordinates. Then you would know something about annoyance and trouble." Oh, man, let me tell you that a wife and a mother has to conduct at the same time a university, a clothing establishment, a restaurant, a laundry, a library, and has to be health officer, police and president of the whole realm! She has to do a thousand things, and to do them well. In order to make things go smoothly, and that is what puts the awful tax on a woman's nerves and a woman's brain. I know there are exceptions to the rule. Sometimes you will find a woman who can sit down in the armchair of the library all day without any anxiety, or turry on the belated pillow, and all the cares of the household are thrown upon servants who have large wages and great experience. But that is the exception. I speak of the great masses of housekeepers, to whom life is a struggle, and who at 30 years of age look as though they were 40. The fallen at Chalons and Austerlitz and Gettysburg and Waterloo are a small number in comparison with those who have gone down under the Armageddon of the kitchen. Go out to the country and look over the epitaphs on the tombstones. They are all beautiful and poetic, but if the tombstones could tell the truth thousands of them would say: "Here lies a woman who was killed by too much mending and sewing and baking and scouring and scrubbing," and the weapon with which she was killed was a broom or a sewing machine or a ladle.

The housewife rises in the morning half rested. At an irrevocable hour she must have the morning repast ready. What if the fire will not burn? What if the clock stop? What if the marketing has not been sent in? No matter that; it must be ready at the irrevocable hour. Then the children must be got ready for school. But what if the garments be torn? What if they do not know their lessons? What if the hat or sash is lost? They must be ready. Then you have the duty of the day or perhaps several days to plan out. But what if the butcher sends meat unmasticable? What if the grocer furnishes you articles of food adulterated? What if the piece of silver be lost, or a favorite chalice be broken, or the roof leak, or the plumbing fail, or any one of a thousand things occur? No matter. Everything must be ready. The spring is coming, and there must be revolution in the family wardrobe, or the autumn is at hand, and you must shut out the northern blast. But how if the moth has preceded you to the chest? How if the garments of the last year do not fit the children now? What if all the fashions have changed?

The house must be an extemporized apothecary's shop or dispensary. There must be relief for all styles of ailments —something to loosen the croup, something to cool the burn, something to poultice the inflammation, something to silence the jumping tooth, something to soothe the earache. O man of busiuess, if you had as many cares as that you would be a fit candidate for an insane asylum! If Martha make under such circumstances an impatient rush on the library or the drawing-room, be patient, be lenient. Oh, my sister, though my words may not arouse in many souls any appreciation of your toil, let me assure you that your trials from garret to cellar, and the God of Deborah and Miriam and Abigail is the God of the housekeepers! Christ never married, that He might be the especial friend and comforter of this whole world of troubled womanhood. I blundered. Christ was married. The Bible says the church is "the Bride, the Lamb's wife," and that makes me know that a woman has a right to go to Christ with all her annoyances and perplexities and fatigues, for by his oath of conjugal fidelity He hath sworn to sympathize. George Herbert put the thought in three or four verses, quaint and peculiar, but strong, and in one verse saying:

> Thy servant by this clause makes drudgery divine;
> Who sweeps a room as for thy laws makes this and the action fine.

A young woman of brilliant education and prosperous surroundings was called downstairs to help in the absence of the servant, and there was a ring at the bell, and she went to the door, and an admirer entered. He said: "I thought I heard music in the house. Was it on the piano or the harp?" She said: "Neither; it was a frying pan accompaniment to a gridiron! In other words, I was called downstairs to help. I suppose some time I shall have to learn, and I have begun now." When will the world learn that every kind of work that is right is honorable?

But, oh, the joy for the weary feet when they step into the celestial equipage, and, oh, the joy of those to whom home was a martyrdom on earth when they go to that home where they will never have to do anything that they do not want to do! What a change from the time she put down the rolling pin to the time she took up the scepter! If Chatsworth park and the Vanderbilt mansion were lifted into the Celestial City, they would be looked at as uninhabitable rookeries, and Lazarus himself would be ashamed to be seen going in or out of them, so great are the palaces awaiting all God's dear children, and so much grander the Heavenly architecture than the earthly. It is often not only the toil of the housekeeping, but it is the sickness and the sorrow that go along. It is a simple fact that one-half of the women of the land are invalids. The mountain lass who has never had an ache nor a pain may consider household work of no very great weariness, and at the eventide may skip out to the fields and drive the cattle home, and until ten o'clock at night may fill the cabin with laughing racket, but, oh, to do the hard work of the household with a shattered constitution—after six weeks' whooping cough has raged in the household, making the nights as sleepless as the days, then it is not so easy. And then this work of the house has often to be undertaken when the nerves are shattered with some bereavement that has put desolation in every room of the house and sent the crib into the garret because its occupant has been hushed into a slumber that needs no mother's lullaby. Oh, it was a great deal easier for her to brood the whole flock than to brood a part of them, now that the rest have gone! You may tell her that her departed children are in the bosom of a loving God, but, motherlike, she will brood both flocks, putting one wing of care over the flock in the house, putting the other wing of care over the flock in the grave. Nothing but the old-fashioned religion of Jesus Christ can take a woman happily through home trials. All these modern religions amount to nothing. They do not help. They do not comfort when there is a dead babe in the house. Away with them and give us the old-fashioned religion of Jesus Christ, that has comforted so many in the days of sorrow and trouble!

Romance and novelty may for a little while seem to be a substitute. The marriage day has only gone by. Just gone by, and all household cares are untoned for by the joy of being together and by the fact that when it is late at night it is not necessary to discuss whether it is time to go. All the mishaps of the newly-married couple in the way of household affairs are not matters of anxiety or reprehension, but merriment. The loaf of bread turned into a geological specimen, the slushy custard and jaundiced and measly biscuits! Oh, it is a very bright sunlight that falls upon the cutlery and mantel ornaments of a new home! Romance and novelty will do for a little while, but after a while the romance is all gone, and there is a loaf to be made, a loaf that cannot be sweetened by any earthly condiments, and cannot be flavored with any earthly flavors, and cannot be baked in any ordinary oven. It is the loaf of domestic happiness. All the ingredients from Heaven. Fruit from the tree of life and sweetened with the new wine of the kingdom and baked in the oven of home trial. God only can make that loaf. You can eat it, but it takes God to make it.

Solomon wrote out of his own miserable experience—he had a wretched home; no man can be happy with two wives, much less with 700, and out of his wretched experience he wrote: "Better is a dinner of herbs where love is than a stalled ox and hatred therewith." Oh, the responsibilities of housekeepers! Kings by their indigestion have lost empires, and generals through indigestion have lost battles. One of the great statisticians says that out of 1,000 unmarried men 30 were criminals, and out of 1,000 married men only 18 were criminals, showing the power of home. And, oh, the responsibility resting upon housekeepers! By the food they provide, by the couch they spread, by the books they introduce, by the influence they bring around the home, they are helping to decide the physical, the intellectual, the moral, the eternal welfare of the human race. Oh, the responsibility!

That woman sits in the house of God to-day perhaps entirely unappreciated. She is the banker of her home, the president, the cashier, the teller, the discount clerk, and ever and anon there is a panic. God knows the anxieties and the care, and He knows that this is not a useless sermon, but that there are multitudes of hearts waiting for the distillation of the Divine mercy and solace in their hour of trials and their home duties and their own fatigues. The world hears nothing about them. They never speak about them. You could not with the agonies of an inquisition bring the truth out of them. They keep it still. They say nothing. They endure and will until God and the judgment right their wrongs. "Oh," says some sister, "are you not trying to show that all a woman's life at home is one of self-sacrifice?" Yes, my sister, and that is the only kind of life worth living. That has been the life of Florence Nightingale; that was the life of Edward Payson; that was the life of the Lord Jesus Christ; that is the life of every man or woman that is happy—a life of self-sacrifice. Those people living for themselves—are they happy? Find me one. I will give you all the nations of the earth to find me one. Not happy—no, not happy. It is the self-sacrificing people that are happy, for God pays so largely, so gloriously, so magnificiently, in the deep and eternal satisfactions of the soul. Self-sacrifice! We all admire it in others. How little we exercise of it! How much would we endure—how much would we risk—for others?

A very rough schoolmaster had a poor lad that had offended the laws of the school, and he ordered him to come up. "Now," he said, "you take off your coat instantly and receive this whip!" The boy declined, and more vehemently the teacher said: "I tell you, now, take off your coat—take it off instantly!" The boy again declined. It was not because he was afraid of the lash—he was used to that in his cruel home—but it was for shame. He had no undergarments, and when at last he removed his coat there went up a sob of emotion all through the school as they saw why he did not wish to remove his coat and as they saw the shoulder blades almost cutting through the skin. As the schoolmaster lifted his whip to strike a resolute, healthy boy leaped up and said: "Stop, schoolmaster; whip me! He is only a poor chap; he can't stand it; whip me!" "Oh," said the teacher, "it's going to be a very severe scourging! But if you want to take the position of a substitute you can do it." The boy said: "I don't care. Whip me. I'll take it. He's only a poor chap. Don't you see the bones almost come through the flesh? Whip me." And when the blows came down on the boy's shoulders this healthy, robust lad made no outcry. He endured it all uncomplainingly. We all my "Bravo!" for that lad. Bravo! That is the spirit of Christ! Splendid! How much scourging, how much chastisement, how much anguish, will you and I take for others? Oh, that we might have something of that boy's spirit! Aye, that we might have something of the spirit of Jesus Christ, for in all our occupations and trades and businesses, and all our life, home life, foreign life, we are to remember that the sacrifice for others will soon be over.

Why He Was Rejected.

Young Poet—Why do you refuse me for a son-in-law? Is it because I lack merit?

Paterfamilias (old journalistic hand)—Oh, no; it is simply on account of lack of space. We are really crowded for room here now.—Tit-Bits.

BRYAN'S ANSWER.

Letter Written by the Champion of Free Silver to the Tammany Leader Last March.

When, in March, 1896, it was proposed that Bryan should make a speech in New York under the auspices of Tammany Hall, Willis J. Abbot went to see Richard Croker about it. Mr. Abbot says:

"Mr. Croker asked me to write Mr. Bryan and find out whether he would be willing to speak in New York to refrain from discussing the money question. I wrote Mr. Bryan accordingly and received a letter in reply. This letter I read to Mr. Croker in order that he might have no illusion concerning Mr. Bryan's position. As Mr. Croker has now definitely antagonized the democrats who hold to the Chicago platform, it is the belief of many friends of Mr. Bryan that this letter, in which he declares that New York democrats should show their hands or accept the hostility of the members of the party in the south and west, should be made public."

This is the letter of Mr. Bryan, dated March 15, 1898:

"My Dear Mr. Abbot: I am just in receipt of your letter. Please say to Mr. Croker that I shall not be able to come east until about April 15.

"At that time I shall be pleased to meet him and talk over the political situation. If, as I have heard, he is compelled to leave for Europe before that time, express my regret to him.

"I appreciate his invitation to speak there, but he will, upon reflection, realize that I could not afford to make a speech upon the lines suggested. The national platform declares the money question to be the paramount issue, and I fully indorse that declaration. So believing, I could not directly or indirectly encourage any state to abandon the national platform. While the democrats of the west and south have no right to force the national platform upon the people of New York, yet the democracy of the nation does have a right to expect the democrats of New York to stand by the platform or announce their hostility. We ought to know whether the New York democracy means peace or war.

"To ignore the national platform in the state convention will be notice that the democrats of New York are hostile to that platform, but lack the courage to declare it openly.

"The platform of '96 will be reaffirmed in 1900, and I, for one, would like to know as soon as possible whether we are to regard the New York democrats as allies or as enemies. If the democrats of New York invite me to speak in New York city while in the east I shall accept the invitation with pleasure, but if I do so I want the understanding that I shall not be restricted as to subjects discussed. I do not care to be a guest where the Chicago platform is treated a hearing.

"I believe that the restoration of bimetallism is necessary, and that sixteen to one is the only ratio at which bimetallism can be restored, and I claim no right to expect favors from those who are hostile to this doctrine. I can say to bimetallism at sixteen to one as Ruth said to Naomi: 'Entreat me not to leave thee or to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest I will go; and where thou lodgest I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou diest will I die, and there will I be buried; the Lord do so to me, and more also, if aught but death part thee and me.'

"No one is compelled to accept my judgment, but I must myself be guided by it, and in my judgment the attempt to chain the nation to a gold standard is so cruel and wicked that I would be tempted to contempt if I should trade my convictions upon this subject for any political advantage which the New York democrats might be willing to offer.

"Let me add another word: It is not only right that the New York state convention should stand by the Chicago platform, but it is good politics. Bimetallism will be as strong in New York when it is fully understood as it is now in the west and south, and the sooner the democracy of New York begins the defense of the Chicago platform the sooner will the work of education be completed. To ignore the platform when all the states west and south indorse it will have all the force of a declaration against the platform, and such a course will make it more difficult to indorse the platform hereafter.

"We were embarrassed in the last campaign by the fact that the democrats of your state went to Chicago to oppose the platform which was adopted. Unless the party in New York expects to repeat this experiment in 1900 it should lose no time in taking a firm stand upon the Chicago platform. In urging this stand upon Tammany and the democracy of New York I ought to suggest that the party in New York has something at stake as well as the party in the nation.

Tammany needs the democracy of the nation as much as the national party needs Tammany, and Tammany should recognize this fact.

"Democratic principles have too firm a hold upon the plain people to give the party in any section any promise of success by abandoning them.

"Democracy was defined at Chicago, and the definition is so satisfactory that no material change will be made in that definition for years to come. If the New York democrats—for their own good as well as for the good of the party and the country at large—will speedily bring themselves within the definition by giving an unqualified indorsement to the Chicago platform. Yours truly,

W. J. BRYAN."

After Imperialism.

Sir Charles Dilke, of England, in an article in Forum discusses the possible future relations of the United States and Great Britain. He necessarily has to touch upon the Philippines, and takes it for granted that we are to annex them and "rule them," as he terms it. As to the ruler, he suggests that "no better temporary rulers can be found than American naval officers, under the general control, of course, of a prudent and trained statesman." The English lord also says: "Where will the two empires (Great Britain and the United States) touch?" How do the believers in a republic like that? The United States an empire! And would not that be likely to occur if we start to "rule" the Philippines? The next step would be to apply to the mass of the people in this country the policy which the American people had themselves inaugurated.

—The real power in the republican party cares nothing for the fundamental principles of our civilization; the men who really dominate that organization have no conception of the real purposes of all government, but look upon it merely as an instrument for the advancement of their individual interests. The president is too much of a politician and too willing a tool in the hands of this influence to take a bold stand for the people, for the preservation of liberty at home and its extension abroad.—Louisville Dispatch.

BIMETALLISM PROSPERITY.

Poverty and Discontent Have Followed in the Wake of Gold Monometallism.

When this nation enjoyed the benefits of bimetallism prosperity was general. The farmer and the wage-earner, the merchant and the mechanic were contented and happy.

Since gold monometallism has practically held sway the condition of the masses has gradually grown more unendurable. Poverty has increased and discontent has grown to be almost universal.

To be sure, the money lenders have waxed fat. Wall street has boomed, trusts have flourished and the classes have grown more powerful, to the injury and impoverishment of the masses.

It is easy to account for this condition of affairs. When the silver was demonetized values in real estate and the prices of products fell and have continued to fall because gold increased in purchasing power.

Every obligation of long standing is now twice or three times as hard to pay, and the debtors and holders of gold get the benefit, while the owners of property are made to suffer.

There will be no relief from this condition of affairs so long as the gold monopoly continues to be maintained, and the gold monopoly will not end so long as the republican party is in power.

That there should be alleged democrats who advocate the robbery of the people by the gold conspirators is a matter of sincere regret to all men who love the people. They who work to retain the present oppressive condition of monetary affairs are not friends of the masses, but are of and for the classes.

Over 1,500,000 voters cast their ballots for bimetallism in 1896. No presidential candidate appealed more earnestly to the hearts of the masses than did William J. Bryan. This great advocate of bimetallism is still dear to the masses and in 1900 the battle for popular rights will be resumed and fought to a successful finish.—Illinois State Register.

WEALTH ACCUMULATING.

The Rich Growing Richer and the Poor Growing Poorer Under a Gold Standard.

The trusts, combines, department stores and other aggregations of capital which control trade are largely the products of falling and low prices. The disaster and ruin which the contraction of money to a gold basis has brought upon the country has made these aggregations of wealth possible. As an example: William E. Curtis, the well-known correspondent of the Chicago Record, in a letter in the issue of August 2, 1898, after enumerating the assessed valuation of the property of 20 New York millionaires, said:

"These 20 people own nearly 18 per cent of the real property within the limits of Greater New York, and pay taxes upon nearly $400,000,000 worth of land. The tax assessor tells me that 150 people whose names might be taken from the books own 50 per cent of all the real estate in Greater New York, and the tendency is to increase instead of diminish these enormous holdings. Since the panic of 1893 the large estates have been augmented by the purchase of valuable properties which have been forced upon the market by the need of their owners for money to carry on industrial and mercantile enterprises. The Astors and other rich men were thus enabled to obtain gilt-edged corners in Broadway and Fifth avenue and valuable tracts in the business districts downtown, upon which they are now erecting fine modern skyscrapers. Their enormous incomes enabled them to rescue real estate at panic prices which less fortunate owners were compelled to sacrifice in order to keep their heads above water."

This is only a sample of what is going on in other parts of the country. The equities of small holders are being wiped out, while the army of renters, both of farms and homes, is rapidly increasing. Aside from Great Britain, this country has more renters in proportion to its population than any other country in the world.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

—Those who refer to Maj. McKinley as a statesman are anticipating the denial of history.—St. Louis Republic.

—Mr. McKinley is not in the habit of speaking directly on any question of public policy on which opinion is freely divided. That was his course on the silver question. On the Philippines it is the same.—Pittsburgh Post.

—Alger's lumber trust continues to hold up the Canadian reciprocity agreement. With members in the cabinet and agents in congress the trusts have no reason to be alarmed at the grumbling of the people.—Kansas City Times.

—The gentlemen who are to compose the Philippine commission are to receive $5,000 apiece and are to be good republicans. There is to be no politics in the appointment of the commission, of course. Just so they are in favor of the reelection of McKinley they are all right.—Peoria (Ill.) Herald.

—To hear some of the expansionists talk and rave one would suppose that the safety and glory of our country depends upon our subjugation of a semisavage people 10,000 miles from the seat of our government; that the pillars of our constitution had been removed from their original setting and stuck in the mud of the Philippine islands.—Atlanta Journal.

—Alger has invited the members of the senate and house military committees to bring their wives along and go with him on a month's junket in Cuba, Porto Rico and the West Indies —at Uncle Sam's expense, of course. This sort of thing no doubt puts the congressmen in a proper frame of mind to judge fairly between Alger and his critics, should the next congress be compelled by public opinion to make a real investigation of the conduct of the war.—Albany Argus.

THE WHITE MAN'S BURDEN.

[By courtesy of McClure's Magazine. Copyright, 1899, by Rudyard Kipling. All rights reserved.]

Take up the White Man's burden—
Send forth the best ye breed—
Go, bind your sons to exile
To serve your captive's need;
To wait, in heavy harness,
On fluttered folk and wild—
Your new-caught sullen peoples,
Half devil and half child.

Take up the White Man's burden—
In patience to abide,
To veil the threat of terror
And check the show of pride;
By open speech and simple,
An hundred times made plain,
To seek another's profit
And work another's gain.

Take up the White Man's burden—
The savage wars of peace—
Fill full the mouth of Famine,
And bid the sickness cease;
And when your goal is nearest
(The end for others sought)
Watch sloth and heathen folly
Bring all your hope to naught.

Take up the White Man's burden—
No iron rule of kings,
But toil of serf and sweeper—
The tale of common things.
The ports ye shall not enter,
The roads ye shall not tread,
Go, make them with your living
And mark them with your dead.

Take up the White Man's burden—
And reap his old reward—
The blame of those ye better—
The hate of those ye guard—
The cry of hosts ye humor
(Ah, slowly!) toward the light:
"Why brought ye us from bondage,
Our loved Egyptian night?"

Take up the White Man's burden—
Ye dare not stoop to less—
Nor call too loud on Freedom
To cloak your weariness.
By all ye will or whisper,
By all ye leave or do,
The silent, sullen peoples
Shall weigh your God and you.

Take up the White Man's burden—
Have done with childish days—
The tightly proffered laurel,
The easy ungrudged praise;
Comes now to search your manhood
Through all the thankless years,
Cold, edged with dear-bought wisdom,
The judgment of your peers.
—Rudyard Kipling.

SOCIAL TACT.

A Noted Frenchman Who Was an Adept at Smoothing Things Over.

Mops. Challemel-Lacour, a distinguished member of the French academy who died lately, was noted for his tact and readiness in social emergencies. Both were severely tried upon one occasion. M. Challemel-Lacour was sent as ambassador from France to the Swiss confederation. He called in due form on his arrival upon the president. The servant who opened the door said that his excellency was in the cellar bottling wine, but that the visitor could come in and wait. The ambassador hung up his overcoat in the hall and went into the parlor. Presently the Swiss ruler bustled in.

"An ugly job, monsieur!" drying his hands; "an ugly job! But I always bottle my own wine. Pardon my coat also. It is a poor fit," glancing down. "It is my son's, to tell the truth. I hurried it on without looking at it."

The ambassador bowed and smiled. It was his own coat.

The servant being over, he went home shivering. He sent a messenger the next day for his "coat, which he had hung up in the hall."

Of all the qualities once essential to a sovereign the one most useful now is tact. Queen Margherita of Italy, who belongs to a house trained to kingcraft for more than a thousand years, is said to be wonderfully skillful in dealing with social difficulties. An incident which occurred at one of her drawing-rooms illustrates her readiness and delicacy.

The persons who are to be presented at the Roman court are arranged in a large semicircle in the throneroom. The queen enters and passes around the line, attended by a chamberlain, who names each person, adding usually a word or two to give the queen some idea of their claim to notice. She asks a question or makes a remark to each and passes on.

On this occasion there was in line a young man from South America whose embarrassment showed itself in pale cheeks and terrified glances as the queen drew nearer. At last she reached him, and stopped. He heard his name, saw her smile. There was a roaring in his ears; his knees shook. Every eye was bent upon him with amused interest, his terror was so perceptible.

"From Brazil?" she asked. "And what town in Brazil is your home, signor?"

"I—your majesty—I don't know!" he gasped.

The whole circle smiled; but the queen's face was as calm as marble. "You mean that our beautiful Italy already has made you forget your home? Ah, signor, you are a skillful courtier! You flatter us too much!" and playfully shaking her fan at him, she passed on, leaving him wondering how he came to make so brilliant a response, while the crowd also looked at him, respectfully bewildered, also.—Youth's Companion.

Egotistical.

"The trouble with him," said the young man who had been trying to fittingly describe an acquaintance, "is that when he dipped into the sea of knowledge he thought he brought up so much that the blamed thing went dry."—Chicago Post.

NOTES ABOUT WOMEN.

Two women are employed as trackwalkers on a section of the Central Pacific railroad east of Wells, Nev.

Miss Laura Smith, professor of English literature in the University of Nevada, has, by the death of a distant relative in London, just inherited a fortune of $15,000,000.

Mrs. M. J. Hain, a well-known and handsome young woman of Richmond, Va., has been placed under bond of $300 to keep the peace for being a common scold.

POOR CYRANO.

The Popular Hero of the Day Badly Handled in a Street Car Conversational.

Scene—An east-bound motor car.
Dramatis personæ—Two women.
"Have you read 'Sranny?'"
"Hey?"
"Have you read 'Sranny dee Bergrack?'"
"Oh, yes. The car joggles so I didn't catch it. Lovely, isn't it?"
"Yes, and so funny! Didn't it remind you of somebody you knew?"
"I dunno's it did. Did it you?"
"Yes, it reminded me for all the world of the fellow my cousin Emmie married."
"Was he a fighter?"
"No, but he had the biggest nose you ever laid eyes on."
"Funny she married him."
"Well, he had lots o' money. They say—he, he, he—that when they were courtin' he never kissed her. Couldn't get near enough —he, he, he!"
"Did you ever! Funny about the Chicago man, wasn't it?"
"What was that?"
"Says he wrote 'Sranny.' Had Richard Mansfield arrested for playin' it."
"I want to know! I s'posed some Frenchman wrote it."
"That's what everybody s'posed. Lemme see—what's his name?"
"Somethin' like Roaston, I think. That's what Sissy calls it. She's studyin' French, you know?"
"Oh, is she? The French are a dreadfully tricky set, don't you think?"
"Yes, I guess they are. I get off here Good-by."
"Good-by."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It Hangs On

If it was only health, we might let it cling.

But it is a cough. One cold no sooner passes off before another comes. But it's the same old cough all the time.

And it's the same old story, too. There is first the cold, then the cough, then pneumonia or consumption with the long sickness, and life trembling in the balance.

THE AMERICAN CONSUL.

A British View of the Hustling Activity and Enterprise of That Official.

I should say they take a great deal more trouble over getting information and go to work in different fashion. The American consul, as a rule, is the sort of man to cultivate the acquaintance of business men in his district, and, of course, we know that the citizens of the stars and stripes are champions of the gentle art of questioning, and their questions are usually very much to the point. If a man in a large way of business is willing to "open out" at all, the American consul will stick to him until he has got all the essential facts likely to be useful to the makers supplying the particular description of goods used. Then again, when he gets anything he thinks of importance he does not wait for a month to include the information in a comparatively lengthy report. He writes out the statement concerning the matter promptly, perhaps even the same night, as was the case in one instance that came under my notice—he catches the next mail, it is published in Washington in two or three weeks, and it is circulated all over the United States with no longer interval from the time the information was acquired than would be taken by many of our consuls in preparing the report. [illegible] that the English reports may be more strictly correct in some respects, which is only to be expected as the result of much greater deliberation; but in these days of telephones and telegraphs, and steam and scramble, promptitude is almost everything and an ideal consul should be almost as smart as a journalist.

Then there is this about it: In order to supply the sort of information to merchants which is furnished by American consuls, it is necessary to adopt more or less aggressive tactics. I admit that, and of course, up to now, the British consul has never considered himself in the light of a commercial traveler, but the American consul takes himself that way with the utmost good will. Now, whether it would be wise for the British foreign office to encourage our consuls to throw aside their traditions in this respect is, perhaps, a mooted point, but I certainly think that where the other and imperative duties of a consul prevent him from giving a large amount of his time to purely commercial matters an assistant consul should be appointed, who could make that department his special care. And there is room for a great deal more useful activity. Probably no British consul would adopt American methods without feeling that he was losing dignity. But, depend upon it, the time for the old-fashioned notions prevalent in British consulates has gone by. Even supposing that the consuls go on working upon the same lines as heretofore their reports might certainly be sent in more promptly, and they should be published within a few days of their arrival in London. The custom of elaborately editing and revising them, involving often a delay of several weeks, is altogether a mistake and could be easily amended. At Washington the consular reports are, I believe, issued daily, and the advantage of this prompt publication is highly appreciated.—Robert P. Yntes, in London Commerce.

CANINE GALLANTRY.

Puggy in a Trolley Car Sets a Good Example for Some Human Masculines.

He was a very gentlemanly fellow, neatly dressed in tan suit and black nose and feet. He entered a South side trolley car ahead of a rope, the other end of which was held in the hands of a bright boy of ten. As soon as the party took seats this little fellow lightly sprang to another beside his master and gravely looked out of the window. He was only a pug, but he was full of dignity and self respect. The boy tugged at the rope—thereto ineited by his mother—but Mr. Pug resolutely refused to vacate the seat. The car was not full and he saw no reason why a gentleman should stand up. So there he sat calmly watching things.

"You'll have to take that dog off'en that seat," said the conductor, as he approached the boy.

"He won't come," said the boy, renewing his tugging.

The conductor reached out his hand to assist, when he became very much surprised.

"R-r-r-r-r-ats," growled Mr. Pug. "Wow-bow-wow," with which remarks he vaunted from the seat and laid violent siege to the conductor's calves. The conductor made haste to retreat, stumbled and fell backward with the dog after him. Seeing his enemy's downfall, Mr. Pug actually grinned his delight, thrusting one tooth out from under his lip and eyeing the fallen official with much scorn.

The conductor gave it up, and the dog rode in peace and quiet for a few more blocks. At last the car having filled up his was the only seat not occupied by a human being. A pretty girl, richly dressed, entered the car and looked about in embarrassment for a seat. Here is where Mr. Pug showed his gallantry. Without being urged by his master he hopped from the seat and in dog fashion besought the girl to take it. She did with a smile and a quiet word of thanks, patting the ugly head with a gloved hand. The dog was delighted and frisked about a minute, then calmly and sedately sat at the feet of his master. He remained quiet, only occasionally casting an admiring glance at the young girl.—Chicago Chronicle.

SEEN ON A SHOPPING TOUR.

Black lace wings for the hair embroidered with pearls.

New Swiss muslin showing polka dots and vines interwoven.

Bagdad embroideries on light cotton cloths for draping and hangings.

Many white and colored batistes showing bright stripes in contrast.

Cut-glass vinaigrettes with sterling silver or gold tops set with jewels.

Spring lines of ribbon showing pompadour designs and fringed edges.

Silk grenadines with satin stripes and brightly colored floral sprays between.

Opera-glass bags elaborately headed in silver, gold, iridescent and other colors.

Mousselines and chiffons having their patterns wrought in narrow fringed ribbons.

Silk organdies in all colors showing fine white satin stripes with small flower designs between.

Linen, pique and gingham suits for small boys trimmed neatly with white braid or embroidery.

White silk petticoats decorated with three flounces showing appliques of black lace in waved patterns.

Light pink, blue, yellow and green organdies with large black polka dots over the surface closely spaced.

Spring lines of ribbons with silk-embroidered or printed designs of small and larger floral sprays in sash widths.

Cut-glass perfume bottles covered with engraved sterling silver filigree and beautifully ornamented stoppers.

All-over embroideries of white chenille cord and black heavy guipure with rhinestones interspersed throughout the pattern.—Dry Goods Economist.

BIRDS AND ANIMALS.

The ostrich is a most voracious bird, and will consume a great quantity of food, but it must be good. On rare occasions a keeper has seen one swallow a lighted cigar, a gimlet, a lady's purse, a society paper rolled up and ready for mailing, and an old shoe.

Rats were a source of annoyance to the vicar and to the parishioners, in Lincolnshire, England, until the vicar's son found a means of exterminating them. Observing their habits, he noted that they, after flying round and round the church, and then making a dive, squeezed themselves through a cleft at the top of the west door. Thereupon the ingenious youth made a circular net, using the hoop of a child to spread it upon, and the result was the killing of 111 bats in an hour and a quarter.

"Miss Maja" is the name of a most popular monkey at the zoological gardens of the Prater, in Vienna, and the reason of her popularity is that she is a perfect cyclist. She possesses a beautiful little bicycle, and she has learned to ride it simply by being made to watch people cycling. She jumps into the saddle without touching the pedals, kisses her hand to the spectators while waiting the signal to start and then races off at a tremendous pace. From her machine she jumps on a trapeze and back again to it before it can fall.

CABBAGE PALMS.

The palm known as the cabbage grows to a great height, some measuring 170 feet. There is an avenue of palms almost this height in Cayenne, French Guinea.

The cabbage palm has its name from the fact that the heart of the tree from which the leaves spring is often boiled, as we boil a cabbage. It is sometimes made into pickles.

The wood of the cabbage palm, which is very close and hard, split longitudinally, is made into gutters, but is too thin for any other purpose, unless it be the manufacture of canes.

When the lower leaves of the cabbage palm strop the broad part of the footstalk forms a hollow trough, sometimes utilized by negro mothers as cradles for their babies. Cut up, it makes excellent splints for fractures; the inside of the green leaves when stripped and dried forms an excellent substitute for vellum and the tender pellicle on the inside of the footstalks answers the purpose of writing paper.

Business and Prayers.

In one of the suburbs west of Chicago is a grocer who, although a devout churchgoer and a faithful citizen, has the reputation of figuring closer in his business dealing than any other man in the village. His enemies say that he once put a coffee bean in two to make weight, and that he stops his clock at night to save wear and tear on the wheels. The grocer lives above his store, and his home is connected with his place of business by a pair of stairs indoors. The grocer's son takes the late watch in the store, and every night at nine o'clock the good man opens the door at the top of the steps and the following conversation takes place:

"John, have you posted the books?"
"Yes, father."
"Have you set the scales right?"
"Yes, father."
"Well, come up to prayers."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Aged Woman Rides a Bicycle.

Probably the oldest living bicyclist is a woman in County Essex, England, aged 93, who is an adept rider and whose sprightliness is astonishing. Most people could enjoy health until very old age if they took proper precautions to prevent diseases of the digestive organs by taking an occasional dose of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Even after dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness and constipation have secured a foothold and become chronic, the Bitters will afford speedy relief.

HEALTHY MATERNITY.

Two Grateful Women Tell of the Help They Have Received from Mrs. Pinkham.

The climax of life force in woman is capable motherhood. The first requisite for a good mother is good health. Health of body means health of the generative organs.

Read what Mrs. G. A. NONNAMAKER, Bluffton, Ohio, says about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and how well it prepared her for maternity.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I must say a word in praise of your Vegetable Compound I used three bottles of it when I was pregnant, and labor was not nearly as long as it was with my other babies; and my baby is so healthy to what the others were. I think every woman should use your Compound when pregnant, it will save them so much anffering and misery. I cannot say enough in praise of it. If ever I need medicine again, I shall use your Compound."

The most successful tonic known to medicine for women approaching maternity is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a safeguard for every woman who uses it, and the fullest benefit comes from its use with Mrs. Pinkham's advice freely offered to all woman. Her address is Lynn, Mass.

Here is a convincing statement, bearing directly on this subject, from Mrs. E. BISHOP, of 1348 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am a great believer in your Compound. I was almost despairing of ever again being well, as I was a great sufferer, and had been for years. I suffered from womb trouble, and had terrible blind fits. After writing to you I tried your Compound The result was astonishing. I have used it and advocated it ever since. In childbirth it is a perfect boon. I have often said that I should like to have its merits thrown on the sky with a search-light, so that all women would read, and be convinced that there is a remedy for their sufferings."

A Million Women have been Benefited by Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Medicine

THE PHILIPPINE PROBLEM.

[By David A. Piatt]

The fortuitous (?) chain of circumstances which placed Mr. Frye on the floor of the Senate deprived the ministry of a qualified member. His strongest argument for expansion in a speech made on the 20th of January, was what he pleased to term the "religious effect" that would result from America's occupation of the islands. Now that Mr. Frye is figuring so prominently before the public some mention of his past career will not be inappropriate.

A few years since he introduced into the Senate the Christian Amendment Bill. This Bill was calculated to curtail or abrogate the rights of such American citizens as could not conscientiously accept the Holy Scriptures as their guide to the higher principles of justice and morality. It was calculated to destroy the freedom and thereby the influence of the press, and eventually unite church and State. When that calamitous point would have been reached the most powerful church would become part of the government. All the minor ones (in matter of numbers) would be deprived of their rights and a revolution would follow another cruel war such as only men can, when filled with religious zeal, wage against their fellows. The government would be overthrown and horrors unimaginable would take place. Mr. Frye either foresaw this and went into it wantonly, or he was too dense to look beyond his sanctimonious nose and so floated serenely in a fog of misguided holiness. In either case he was not a capable representative of the people at large. If he would advocate a principle calculated to deprive an honorable portion of his own free-born people of their right to think for themselves and worship the Deity as they choose, what would he do against the benighted natives of the Philippines in the performance of his "christian duty" in the interests of "humanity?"

Religion, politics and business should occupy distinctive fields, but in America the first two are encroaching upon the legitimate territory of the third and not to its advantage either.

However communicative Mr. Frye may be upon some subjects there is one which he evades. He was asked by Senator Tillman if he was willing to have our troops fire upon the Filipinos, to which he replied that the firing stage had not yet been reached and he hoped that the treaty would soon be ratified and this stage thus probably averted for good. If Mr. Frye opposed firing upon the islanders he would assuredly reply to that effect.

The importance of the immediate ratification of the Paris treaty can hardly be overestimated. Ratification pledges us to no particular policy concerning the disposal of the Philippines, but will, accompanied by the President's statement that he does not propose to enslave the people, relieve the present strained relations between America and the Filipinos.

There has been a deal of wholesale lying about the natives of the Philippines, and until the real truth is made public the people will not be fully competent to advise Mr. McKinley. The President is surpressing news now. Evidently he has plans regarding our future in the colonies, which he does not care to submit to public inspection and review.

The probabilities are that a protectorate will eventually be established. At present the withdrawal of military government in the Philippines is greatly to be desired. The ratification of the treaty alone can effect this. Still the commissioners demanded the absolute cession of the islands instead of simply evacuation as in the case of Cuba. That is in itself suggestive.

In a speech delivered at the annual banquet of the Welesly Club in New York, Ramon Reyes Lala, who has the distinction of being the first native Filipino to become a naturalized American citizen, gave his views upon the Philippine question. Mr. Lala favors a protectorate for the time being, as the population is not sufficiently well informed as to the duties of citizenship and the functions of Statehood. After education they will seek admission to the union and desire annexation. "The question of annexation," he says, "should rightly be settled by the Filipinos themselves, and will be in time. Yet we should first gradually help them to all the precious incidentals of our American civilization." Mr. Lala is an author of some note; is broad-minded and filled with the spirit of liberty and the blessings that flow therefrom.

News comes from the islands that the Visayans have elected senor Ramon Melliza president of their federation. The Tagals, of whom Aguinaldo is the prominent leader, are the sworn foes of the Visayans, holding themselves much superior to the latter tribe. Their superiors are rejected with heat by the Visayans, who are making a strong play for control of the islands.

President Melliza is said to be friendly toward the United States Government, and as Iloilo is the capital of the island of Panay, Visayan territory, it is probable that the trouble there will shortly be adjusted amicably. It will be remembered, however, that Aguinaldo was friendly to America during the earlier days of his prominence.

It is evident that the tribal conflicts which exist in the islands will be a mighty difficulty for us to overcome, and we can hope for but little from the breeders of revolt.

From a purely literary point of view the editorial utterances of the various expansion or annexation sheets are somewhat more creditable than those usuall emanating from the "sanctums" of our large dailies, where terseness is at a premium. They are rivaling the works of Dickens in pathos. However, when judged from a less ideal standpoint they fall short of all precedents. In advocating humanity and harboring mercenarism they array conflicting influences that can never form the nucleus of a sensible opinion. They are now shouting about the "voice of the people" being the "voice of God," and citing the vast commercial interests, the fates of which are hanging in the balance. The humanity plea is almost hushed now!

We are told that our capacity for dealing with subject population has been proven by our treatment of the population of acquired territory such as Louisiana, Texas and California. In history I fail to find where we have operated government in these possessions while they were in a semi-civilized state. These territories, on the contrary, were filled by emigrant adventurers who ruled themselves by "an-eye-for-an-eye, a tooth-for-a-tooth sort of law. They have worked out their own salvation. The good triumphed finally, as is usually the case.

We are also referred to our handling of the inferior classes, such as Poles, Hungarians and Italians as an example of what we can do for an alien people. It is an example or spectacle, as you choose. The expansionists are treading on uncertain territory when they call our attention to subject populations. Our immigration laws are the most senseless instruments ever drawn up by sensible representatives of a great nation, and from present indications they are not likely to be improved. To immigration is due two-thirds of the evils that beset America to-day.

Mr. McKinley is being placed upon a tottering pedestal by his partisans, and is serving to an ever increasing extent the purpose of a megaphone of the people. Brazen editors are comparing him with Abraham Lincoln in so far as the pursuance of the public's policy is concerned. In 1895, when Mr. McKinley was governor of Ohio he said:

"Lincoln had sublime faith in the people. He walked with and among them. He recognized the importance and power of an enlightened public sentiment, and was guided by it. Even amid the vicissitudes of war he concealed little from public review and inspection. In all he did he invited rather than evaded examination and criticism. He submitted his plans and purposes, as far as practicable, to public consideration, with perfect frankness and sincerity. * * * He had that happy, peculiar habit, which few public men have attained, of looking away from the deceptive and misleading influences about him—and none more cepti ve than those of public life in our capitals—straight into the hearts of the people. He chose to determine for himself what the people were thinking about and wanting him to do; and no man ever lived who was a more accurate judge of their opinions and wishes."

It appears that we are desired to believe that the President has chosen to follow in the footsteps of the great liberator, in confiding in the people, in considering their wishes and desires above those of those who surround him.

Says one paper;

"He has the same confidence in the people that Lincoln possessed; he was reared among the people; he has found their hearts staunch and true and steeped in a love of justice and of their country and its flag; he has learned the great secret that the people have no other purpose to serve than God and country; that the voice of the people is not that of the sycophant pleading for individual advancement, but literally and truly the voice of God."

I think that the paper presupposes a greater knowledge on the part of the people than it is likely they possess.

The statements comparing McKinley with Lincoln will not bear dissection. The frankness and sincerity attributed to Abraham Lincoln find no counterpart in the character or action of William McKinley. Lincoln gave his plans to the public for review and criticism. McKinley is preserving a strange silence and supposed to be following the mandates of the people. Notwithstanding this he has shown his distrust for efficacy of public sentiment by sending a commission to the Philippines to report conditions existing there, and to advise future action on his part.

Nowadays there is nothing so deceptive as public opinion; nothing so vacillating.

The great mass of citizens, termed common people, do not know whether they desire a protectorate or actual annexation. The majority of them imagine that great wealth is to be acquired in these new possessions. A few favor annexation because their friendly neighbor does so, or because those with whom they are upon distinctly friendly terms denounce it. Those two elements are prime factors in public opinion. Another and more extensive factor is the penny sensation newspaper, whose reliability is questionable to say the least. A number of people understand, and rightly, too, that a vast state of corruption and misrule exist in the islands and that this they desire to eliminate at any cost. If annexation will do this they favor it. But, fortunately, annexation is not the only means whereby such iniquities may be reduced to a minimum. The establishment of a protectorate would bring about the desired reform.

The establishment of a censorship at Manilla clearly shows that Mr. McKinley does not care to have certain inside facts made known. If he is going to be advised by the poeple instead of relying upon his own judgment, they should know as much of existing conditions in the Philippines as the President himself. A fig for public opinion! It is not worth the breath expended in uttering it so long as the people are not allowed full knowledge of the subject. What are the reports worth that reach the people? The censor is assuredly in touch with the administration and furthers its preferred policy.

"The antis are either fools or cowards, said one expansion paper recently. As you may imagine, such a remark could only come from a penny editor, who, at loss for meritorious or gentlemanly arguments, descends to Eagan-like remarks to fill the few cheap editorial columns at his command. Do you wonder that the people favor such principles as the English imperial policy contains when such scurrilous sheets are daily corrupting it?—the papers which should be the standards of truth and political virtue, if such an impossible attribute can be imagined in the possession of this country. These sheets are fair examples of a low taste on the part of a public compound of foreigners, who want something cheap. They and their partisans may be brave in a blustering, arrogant way, but they lack the moral courage that leads a man to forego a pecuniary advantage in order to further the interests of one weaker than himself. We "antis" are neither cowardly, foolish nor Quixotic. We are merely just with that honesty which nature has denied to penny editors. We are alive to the advantages as well as the responsibilities of possessing the Philippines, but we desire their acquisition through legitimate channels—not by intimidating and robbing the natives, who have as much right to freedom as we.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1899. NO. 18.

GEN. MILES now has a chance to prove his statements in regard to the embalmed beef.

THE recent cold weather stopped the stripping of tobacco, consequently the receipts on the market were reduced considerably.

A TEXAS statesman has had a bill passed by the legislature that makes it a misdemeanor for a prairie dog to appear on any land in that State.

GOV. BRADLEY is about as severe a critic of Republican measures as is to be found. It begins to look like he intends to kick himself out of that party.

SPEAKER REED is apprehensive that very few Filipinos will remain to be be civilized if Uncle Sam continue to kill them off as rapidly as he has been doing for a few weeks past.

ALREADY are the expansionists saying that the McEnry resolution passed by the Senate, last week, means nothing. This is an illustration of the double dealing resorted to in order to have the treaty ratified.

THE very cold winter does not seem to have had any effect on the crop of candidates in the several counties of the State, and the indications are that a very large per cent. of the people will turn their attention to politics this spring.

IF everything is going in favor of the Americans in the Philippines, why is it necessary for all the news that comes from there to pass through the hands of a censor and receive his ok before it is permitted to be published in this country?

THE change of editors will redound to the benefit of the Louisville Dispatch. Its editorials now are of value to the reading public, not being devoted to the abuse of a business rival. The public does not fancy a chronic scold, an of such was Mr. Enloe.

THE Filipinos have to be whipped, but what is to be done with their islands after that is an unsettled question, and the responsibility of the settlement of that delicate question the President has saddled on Congress, according to his recent speech, without any suggestions from him.

THE Steel and Wire Trust can well afford to advance the wages of its men, when it puts twenty-five cents a keg advance on its nails. The increase in wages does not come out the pockets of the members of the trust, but the consumers pay it, while the trust is increasing its dividends.

BEFORE the surrender of Manila by the Spanish, Aguinaldo's army was looked upon by Americans as an organization composed of the best people of the Philippine islands—men capable of appreciating independence and determined to secure it. These men have lost none of their intelligence and love for liberty, but by those who a few months ago were singing their praises, they are now denounced as free booters.

ALREADY has Dr. Conner, of Cincinnati, and who was a member of the War Investigating Committee, permitted his mouth to get him into trouble, by making statements at a banquet that was not becoming of him, and in regard to Gen. Miles. Conner denies that he has been reported correctly, but some of these who were present and heard his remarks are willing to swear that he did imply by the remarks that Miles ought to be dismissed from the army.

As the time draws nigh for the entries for county represenative, new names are added to the list of probable candidates, the last being that of ex-county Judge Ben Stephens, who is certainly most excellent timber for the position, and who has a long array of friends, who would be glad to see him honored with the office. The list of probable candidates as now presented is as follows: J. W. Kennedy and Dr. Crouch, of Union; E. B. Morse, of Constance; Dr. Finnell, of Verona and Ben Stephens, of Florence. For Senator, N. S. Walton, of Petersburg and Dr. Furnish, of Burlington.

STATE NEWS.

A negro in Breckinridge county has a fox hound that ran 36 continuous hours on one chase.

Dr. Laulhart, of Rock Lick, was over come by cold the severe cold Sunday night, while visiting patients, and died.

Chas. Fox, colored, who but recently killed his sweetheart in Covington, was given a life term in the Penitentiary.

William and Cora Barnes, colored, have been arrested on the charge of murdering a child at Mayfield eight years ago.

G. D. Purvin, of the Fordsville neighborhood, was found dead in bed at his home, and the supposition is that he froze to death.

Governor Bradley is receiving many requests from relic-hunters all over the State for a public sale of the old furniture taken out of the State Executive Mansion, which was burned last Friday.

A certain Stanford man who sometimes gets in his cups, went home late the other night, when his wife, in no pleasant tone of voice asked him where he had been. "Jess to prar-meeting," he innocently replied. "Your breath don't smell like it," snapped the wife. "Now you think I've been drinking, but you are wrong again," he answered. "It was communion n i g h t."—Stanford Journal.

Reports received by Florida's Commissioner of Agriculture indicate that the freeze of Monday and Tuesday was less destructive to oranges and other crops than the blizzard of February, 1895. The line of killing freeze is at least fifty miles farther north than that of 1895. While early vegetables have been killed, orange trees are not seriously injured. The damage to the fresh-growth fruit will be soon repaired in the peninsular part of the State.

The death of Bush Allin, of Harrodsburg, recalls the fact that the Allin family have had the circuit or county clerkships, and much of the time both, for the past 100 years. First, there was Phil Allin, the first clerk the county ever had, who lived to a good old age, holding the office through many terms. He was succeeded by his nephew, Ben A. Allin, who just as successfully held the office until his death, at the age of eighty-five years. Mr. Bush Allin, like his ancestors, held the office, had it for the asking until his death, at the age of fifty-one years.

A rising politician of Michigan recently made application for the hand of his sweetheart in the following novel manner, says the Nashville News: "My dear Miss —I hereby announce myself as a candidate for your hand and shall use all fair and honorable means to secure the nomination. I know there are many candidates in the field, and I hesitate to enter the race, but now I am in to stay. My views have often been expressed in your hearing and need not be repeated here. You know I favor the gold standard of love —100 cent dollar love—and a maintenance of that standard after marriage. If you decide to confer upon me the honor I seek, please fix a date for a caucus with your mother. I have no objection to her acting as temporary chairman of the permanent organization. Should the result of the caucus be satisfactory we can soon hold the primaries and select the date and place of the convention. I have never believed in long campaigns so if you decide to honor me, will ask you to make the convention date as early as possible.

DEVOTEDLY YOURS."

The following telegram answered it:

"Caucus unnecessary. Nomination unanimous. Come at once and fix date of ratification."

ADJT. GEN. COBAIN makes the statement that as soon as the Cuban insurgent army disbands, most of the 35,000 American volunteers now on the island will be withdrawn. He could not name a date when the movement northward of the soldiers will begin, but he thought it would be in the near future.

CROP AND STOCK.

Corn is selling at $2 in Woodford.

Andy Peach, of Mercer county, shipped 10,000 pounds of tobacco to Louisville at an average of 8 cents, grown on six acres.

Dogs broke into the flock of John D. Reese in Clark county one night recently and killed about $150 worth of sheep and lambs.

John J. Cornellison aged 50, died suddenly, in Lexington, one day last week. He became widely known by his horsewhipping Judge Richard Reid in Mt. Sterling, which so humiliated Reid that he committed suicide shortly after.

Newton Reese put 26 cattle in his tobacco barn to protect them from the cold weather. Next morning he was surprised to find 22 out the 26 dead and the other four barely able to kick. It is supposed the cattle died from eating tobacco stalks.—Paris Kentuckian.

H. F. Hillenmeyer, the Lexington nurseryman, in an interview in the Herald on fruit prospects, says. "Of course, the injury to the fruit crop caused by this severe weather, has not yet resulted and can not be accurately estimated until the spell has broken and it becomes warmer. I think, however, I can state positively that the peach crop is entirely destroyed throughout the State. The apples are not damaged; neither are the pears. Grapes have suffered severely, but will nevertheless yield a good crop. Cherries are probaly somewhat damaged, though is it hard to estimate to what extent. The raspberries are apparently safe. strawberries are snug and the snow has really helped them very much. I am rather apprehensive of the damage to the blackberries that will result. An interesting fact is that there are more bushels of blackberries eaten in Kentucky per year than there are of apples. Hence the loss of this crop would be a severe one. However, I do not apprehend so serious a result, although there is unquestionably some d a m a g e done to the bushes."

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[News]

The citizens of Owenton made about $50 last Monday to relieve the suffering inhabitants of town. Many families were found destitute of anything to eat and without fuel.

There was a difference of from 12 to 15 degrees in the cold weather at this place and Monterey and Gratz Sunday night. Many thermometers registered all the way from 28 to 40 degrees below zero in the latter two places.

John Dunavent, aged 86 years, one of the oldest citizens of Owen county, died at the home of his son-in-law, Samuel Stevenson, last Monday.

It is estimated there will be a great loss of lambs on account of the extreme cold weather. The early lambs are nearly all succumbing to the cold.

Mr. Park Perkins living near Breck had five large steers to freeze to death last Sunday night something unheard of in this county.

[Herald.]

It now appears that the much advertised firm of Liggett & Myers have sold a controlling interest of their stock to the Union Tobacco Company, which has been absorbed by the Continental. The more the tobacco growers try to combine for their own protection the more the big houses combine against them.

The courthouse officers presented W. H. Conder, the popular Deputy Clerk, with a handsome gold watch and chain last week as a testimonial of their regard for him.

The wheat crop has been damaged to some extent in this locality from the frozen weather.

During the cold spell of last week a gentleman noticed several trees in the cemetery black with something like pawpaws. He went over to investigate and, to his surprise, found the dark objects to be blackbirds, frozen and hanging from the branches by hundreds. He says there must have been a thousand dead birds on the trees and under them.—Richmond Register.

Union.

Lucien Dickerson had his ears frozen.

Perry Weaver lost two valuable cows recently.

All kinds of stock suffered from the intense cold.

Esq. Bannister was visiting in the city during the cold weather.

The cold snap found coal scarce in Union, something unusual.

Arch and Volney Dickerson had their ears frosted Thursday week.

Pat Norman had a good young horse to die one of those cold nights.

Charley Cleek and James Bristow had sick cows to doctor during the cold weather.

R. T. Clements has been confined to his room for several days with cold and grippe.

Wednesday and Thursday mornings, the 8th and 9th the thermometers did their best.

Dr. Crouch has a lovely bloom on his nose, and knows precisely how he got it too. He froze it.

Lan Norman and Peter Adams caught two fine coons, a few nights ago. Lan did the climbing.

Milton Weldon tells how he put a pot of water on the stove and it froze solid before a fire could be started. "By-George, its so."

Golden Grange was in session on the 11th with J. L. Rouse, Owen Utz, J. S. Houston, James Smith and Noah Tanner present from the suburbs, that we know of.

The ladies of the Baptist Mission Society will give a social at the residence of Mrs. Jas. A. Huey, to-night, the 22d. Admission, 10 cts. All invited—refreshments served.

Ryland Hedges went to Covington that cold Saturday after a load of coal, and snow and frost covered the man, horses and wagon making them resemble a regular Klondike outfit as they came into town.

Prof. Collins closed his school on the 9th. Your correspondent had the pleasure of eating some of the candy offered by the Professor, as a treat to the pupils, and saw that the most cordial feelings of respect and friendship existed between teacher and pupils as they parted.

James Carpenter, of Florence, was selling beef here on that cold Wednesday, and we asked him if he had a good, cold storage incident stowed away in the upper story of his memory? Locating himself uncomfortably near an iron-safe, which he mistook for a stove, and pulling the ice out of his whiskers, he remarked that, "I have seen better days, but not many colder." "Well, Mr. Carpenter, how was the cold in '85?" Just at that moment he noticed the combination on the safe and said, "Putting time locks on stoves is a new thing to me. Oh, yes! '85, I now remember was cold. It was so cold that blacksmiths put red hot shoes on with red-hot nails and got their hands frost bitten putting them oh." We passed. Mr. Carpenter then made another trial on the safe combination, and swore it was too cold for a "hot time" in Union, so he would go, and did go.

Mr. Ed., it is all right to have a little fun these desperally cold days with a jolly man like Mr. Carpenter, and we enjoy it; but when it comes down to real 20° below zero facts, such as keeping up fires all night to keep from freezing and hustling for coal and wood all day, life takes on a very different form. We were doing the fireing act Thursday night to a Queen's taste and napping between acts, when the idea occured to our mind to look around town and see that all our neighbor's coal bins were securely locked and see if some over-heated flue had started a blaze. On reaching Main street, the clock that was not in the steeple struck nine. All was serene and the mercury was going where the ground hog went. Through frosted windows we could catch a glimpse of blazing fires that cast their gleams of light and rays of heat over happy family circles, and we thought this is the bright side of a bright situation on a bright frosty night, and knowing that all was well in these homes. Going on a side street we found the same evidence of comfort and happiness with no roofs on fire, or coal bins unlocked. All who desire to believe that we had no other mission than to look after coal bins can believe it with all their hearts, so far as we care, but we did have another, and it was to see how the occupants of a home on this same side of the street fared. We knew this home had no happy family circle to gather around its hearthstone—had no blazing fires to warm up spacious apartments and cast shadows over handsome furnishings. We knew this home was the abode of a man, a human being, whose past life may have been a parody on the ten commandments and a good burlesque on sobriety and good intentions, like many of us poor souls, but that "cut no ice" with us—we went. The roof was caving in, the doors were battered and beaten while the windows were barren of sash or glass, and gave out no signs of life within. A knot hole did, however, and silently asking the man's pardon for looking—we looked and saw a few coals of fire trying to go out in the grate. On a box was a lamp that burned with a mean, determined kind of air, gave just enough light to make the situation seem even more sad and pathetic. The occupant was preparing to retire for rest —sleep or freeze as fortune might decree, and the chances seemed in favor of the latter. Before going to bed the man kneeled down, and we supposed he was going to heap curses on the human race from Adam down to February 9th, '99, because he had to sleep on the floor, &c.; but instead, he asked blessings upon the heads of all the people in Union, and especially upon the head of him who early in the evening had asked how he fared and gave him a supply of warm corn. This was enough to satisfy our mind that if a man around whose shoulders the mantle of poverty and isolation hung, like a sheet of boiler iron, could feel grateful for what he had, we could be happy with what we did not have, so back home we went, believing that "every man is the architect of his own fortune," and never feels ashamed of the job, except when it turns to be a misfortune.

THE FLAG OF WASHINGTON.

DEAR banner of my native land di ye glimmering silver stars,
Broad, spotless
ground of purity,
crossed with your azure bars—

Clasped by the hero-father's hand—watched over in his might,
Through battle-hour and day of peace,
bright morn and moonless night,
Because, within your clustering folds, he knew you surely bore
Dear Freedom's hope for human souls to every sea and shore!
O precious flag, beneath whose folds such noble deeds are done—
The dear old Flag! the starry Flag, the
Flag of Washington!

Unfurl, bright stripes—shine forth, clear stars—swing outward to the breeze—
Go bear your message to the wilds—go tell
it on the seas,
That poor men sit within your shade, and rich men in their pride—
That beggar boys and statesmen's sons walk 'neath you, side by side;
You guard the schoolhouse on the green,
the church upon the hill,
And fold your precious blessings round the cabin by the rill!
While weary hearts from every land beneath the shining sun
Find work, and rest, and home beneath the Flag of Washington.

And never, never on the earth, however brave they be,
Shall friends or foes bear down this great,
proud standard of the Free,
Though they around its staff may pour red blood in rushing waves,
And build beneath its starry folds great pyramids of graves;
For God looks out, with sleepless eye, upon
His children's deeds,
And sees through all their good and ill,
their sufferings and their needs,
And He will watch, and He will keep, till human rights have won,
The dear old Flag, the starry Flag! the
Flag of Washington!

TWO WAYS OF SPENDING A HOLIDAY.

IT WAS Washington's birthday, and the snow had been falling steadily all night, so that when the sun forced its way at last through the hanging clouds, the whole city lay covered with a smooth, white mantle. Two very different little boys stood at the windows of two very different homes, and looking out upon the snow with a very different feeling in their hearts.

"I tell you what, mother," said Connor McGuire, "here is a stroke of luck! No school to-day, and the snow at least eight inches deep. How many quarters do you suppose I'll make shoveling pavements between this and dinner time?"

"Indeed and it's the money that will be welcome," said his mother, looking up from the stove, where their modest breakfast was in preparation. "But it's a poor way to be spending your holiday, Con—working harder than if you were at school."

"Bah! that's nothing. Shoveling snow is as good as play," answered Connor, who, to tell the truth, was not very fond of his books. "Give me my cup of coffee, mother, and I'm off. It's rich we're going to be this day, and me with a new wooden shovel that will make the snow fly quicker than powder."

"Good-by, then, and good luck to you," said his mother, as the little figure trudged gayly off, with the new shovel resting on one shoulder and his broom on the other. "It's the jewel of a boy you are, anyway, and your father's very self over again, more's my luck."

And the widow turned back cheerfully to her own hard day's work.

"Dear me!" sighed Freddy Lester, as he stood looking disconsolately out of his nursery window. "Too much snow to go out, and nothing to do at home. I don't see what's the use of having a holiday if one can't have a little fun on it."

"Why, Master Fred, I am ashamed of you!" said his nurse. "Haven't you toys, and books, and games, and a dear little sister to play with? And isn't your father going to take you out sleighing this very afternoon, if you are a good boy?"

"But I don't suppose I will be good," replied Fred, in an injured tone. "How is a boy to be good when there is nothing to amuse him? And I don't want to play with Nell. She is only a baby, and a silly one at that. Didn't she drop my best agate out of the window yesterday and break it all to bits? I wish I could go out!" and he leaned moodily against the window sill and gazed down into the streets.

Underneath a boy, not much taller than himself, was cleaning off the snow, working away vigorously, and stopping every now and then to hold his ears with his red-mittened hands or to warm his feet by stamping up and down the frosty pavement.

Fred watched him with interest. After awhile the lad looked up, and, seeing the curly head in the window, nodded and smiled, upon which Fred nodded and smiled back, and for the moment quite forgot to be cross.

When the pavement was nearly clean he slipped out of the nursery, ran down the stairs and softly opened the big front door.

"Good morning!" he said. Aren't you very cold?"

"Good morning!" responded the boy, taking off his cap politely and eying the small, shivering figure in the doorway. "No, I am not so very cold, but I am thinking you will be soon."

"Oh, I can go in and warm myself," said Fred, "and so can you, if you want to. I'll take you into the kitchen."

"Thank you!" answered Connor, for it was he. "But I want to clean as many pavements as I can this morning, and I have no time to spare."

"And what are you going to get for this one?"

"Twenty cents."

"Is that all? What a lot of work for only 20 cents!"

Connor laughed.

"But you see," he said, "this is my third pavement this morning. That makes 60 cents. And if I clean three more that will be a dollar and twenty cents."

"But at that rate you will be at work nearly all day," said Fred. "Now, I am going sleighing with my father this afternoon. Were you ever in a sleigh?"

"Once only—in the milkman's. But I have a sled of my own. I made it all myself."

"Master Fred! Master Fred!" called [illegible] the hall; and nurse, hurrying out, drew in her charge and shut the door with a bang. "Do you want to catch your death of cold, standing on the steps this freezing morning without so much as a cap on your head? If you are not more care than a baby!"

Fred wriggled away from her and scampered upstairs to avoid further scolding.

"Oh, dear!" he sighed. "I hate this old nursery, and it will be hours and hours before afternoon comes. I just know I am not going to be good at all. I don't feel any goodness in me!"

And apparently he didn't. A restless spirit of mischief seemed to have taken possession of the child, and its twofold result was to keep the nursery in hot water all morning and himself at home all afternoon.

"He is not often this naughty," pleaded his mother, sorry for her little boy's disappointment. "But the walking was too bad for him to go out, and there was nothing to occupy him in the house."

"Wasn't there?" said his father, dryly. "Well, all I know is that he has more toys and books now upstairs than I ever saw when I was a child; and, if I had ever ventured to be one-half as troublesome and disobedient as he has been this morning, I would have found myself in bed about three hours ago. It's no use, Fred! A bargain is a bargain, and you have broken your half of it. So don't cry like a baby, but take your punishment like a little man."

Poor Fred! He was not a baby, with all his faults, and he stood quietly by the window, choking back his rising tears, as the sleigh drove gayly off with his mother and Baby Nell tucked away under the warm carriage robe, and an empty place by his father where he ought to have been. Even after it had disappeared, he stood gazing into the streets, which were growing misty before his eyes, when the same boy who had cleaned the pavement in the morning came slowly by, tugging after him a big, rough sled. Recognizing the house, he glanced up and saw the woebegone little figure standing behind the parlor curtains.

"Good day!" he said, in a friendly fashion. "Are you waiting for your sleigh ride?"

Fred, glad to have some one to talk to, threw open the window and leaned out.

"I am not going," he said, disconsolately.

"Not going! Why?"

"Because I was bad, and papa wouldn't take me."

"Whew!" Connor gave a sympathetic whistle. "What all have you been doing?"

"Oh, I broke Nell's doll, and kicked my shoe into the fire, and would not have my hair brushed, and—lots of things!" said Fred, dismissing the rest of his shortcomings in a breath.

Connor gave another whistle.

"Well, you did make it lively," he said, "and I don't much wonder that you lost your d-ive. But put on your coat and come out, and I'll give you a pull on my sled instead."

"Oh, shall I?" cried Fred, delighted, and then stopped. "Papa told me I was not to leave the house to-day," he said, slowly. "But I think it's too bad not to have any fun at all on Washington's birthday. I just hate Washington and his birthday, too."

"Oh, it isn't Washington's fault, you know!" said Connor, impatiently. "But, of course, you can't come if your father said not to. I am real sorry, though; and my day has been such a jolly one."

"Has it?" asked Fred, curiously. "How much did you make cleaning pavements?"

"A dollar and a quarter—just five cents more than I expected."

"And what are you going to do with the money?"

"Spend every penny of it!"

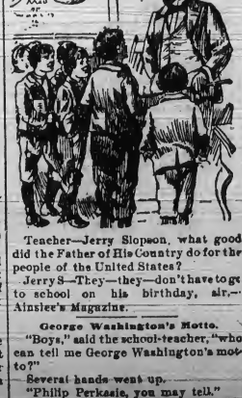
"What! All on candy?" asked Fred, measuring his companion's capacity in the line by his own.

"Candy!" echoed Connor, contemptuously. "I should think not." Then checking off the sums rapidly on his fingers: "Mutton, 35 cents; coal, 40; tea, 25; sugar, nine; bread, seven, and the rest in apples for the children. Not a bad day's work that; and now I am going to the hill for a coast."

Fred was silent for a minute. There was something in his companion's day that made him feel a little ashamed of his own.

"Good-by," he said, soberly. "I wish I could go coasting, too; but I know I can't."

And, omitting the window resolutely, he turned back into the lonely room.



"I am afraid my little boy has not had a very pleasant or profitable holiday," said his mother, when she tucked him in bed that night, and gave him a last kiss.

"Well, no, I hnven't," Fred admitted. "But the boy—the snow boy I told you about, mamma—said it wasn't Washington's fault. So maybe—perhaps—it was mine."—Agnes Repplier, in Golden Days.

Washington Was Fond of Dancing.

"The stately Washington had always been known as a 'dancing man,'" writes Mrs. Burton Harrison in the Ladies' Home Journal. "He was 'fond of dancing,' says Mrs. Lewis, 'and had an odd fashion of keeping time by waving his arm before him till his hands almost crossed.' At the assemblies in Alexandria, at the 'Bread-and-Butter' balls of his earlier manhood, at country 'frolics,' and at headquarters during the revolution — he had many a time achieved what old Gen. Nathanael Greene called a 'pretty little frisk.' And it was not until late in life—until after he had ceased to be president—that he wrote a letter to the managers of a Birthnight balls in Alexandria, saying, as all his and Mrs. Washington's 'dancing days' were over. In the list of queries regarding the etiquette necessary to his presidential state, which he submitted to Mr. Madison and Mr. Jay, he had, indeed, asked, 'in what light the appearance of the president of the United States rarely at tea parties would be considered;' but he had suggested nothing about excusing himself from taking a comrade for the cotillion or minuet."

A GREAT CRIME.

McKinley's Election Brought About by Coercion and Corruption.

In a recent address Rev. Burt Estes Howard, the noted Congregational preacher of Los Angeles, Cal., said:

"No policy was ever adopted in the history of the world that savored more of the sophistry that a good end justified a corrupt means. It is like playing the harlot to obtain money to put on the collection plate. Do not tell me that the men who manipulated that great fund for buying votes the men who intimidated and coerced by threats of various calamities the poor voter who was forced to make merchandize of his manhood in order to hold his position and save his little ones from starvation; do not tell me that these men who subverted the fundamental principles of a republican form of government, the right of independent suffrage and the free choice of those who shall rule over us, believe in republican institutions. They do not. They believe that they have found something better than a democracy. They have bartered the legacy of our forefathers for financial and commercial despotism.

"If some man would declare that this talk of coercion is false, he must go to some one else besides me to find a patient and credulous listener to his lying preaching. Was I not approached in my own study, with subtle threatenings and insinuations? Was I not myself told that should I vote for that 'lonely soul, whom I am proud to call my friend, William Jennings Bryan, whom any man may call his friend, for he is the friend of man rather than of parties, was I not told that, should I vote for him, my church would lose the patronage of certain influential men who were intending to become a part of my congregation?

"Aye, was I not insulted and humiliated by being requested by certain individuals, who shall be forever nameless, to take my ballot on election day, my ballot, the sacred credentials of my manhood and of my citizenship, the emblem of that holy sacrament of political fellowship in civic liberty, the sign and seal of that divine birthright which marked me as a freeman among freemen, that I should take that badge of my own personal independence and show it, already marked for the ballot box, to certain republicans who were designated and assure them that I would cast it for William McKinley? Think of it, men! What did I say? I said this: 'You go back to the men who sent you here and tell them that this is my reply: "Gentlemen, d—n you!"' (Great cheering.) And if ever such language is permissible that was the time. It was not the minister, but the man, who spoke, and the man is always larger than his calling.

"From that day I registered a solemn vow that so long as the republican party was dominated by such a policy I would never vote its ticket. And I will not, so help me God. Nor will I vote for any party which attempts to prostitute my manhood. I have never made this statement public before. I make it now in order that some of my friends may understand my position and the reasons which impel me to take it. Men, am I wrong? Shall anything stand higher in any man's estimation than his own honor?

"Compared with the crime of 1896, when a direct blow was made at the very foundation of our republican institutions, the 'crime of 1873' is as nothing. What does it signify, the raising of that immense corruption fund? What does this openly avowed participation of the railroads and of great corporate bodies and trusts in national and state politics indicate? These things indicate not only a conspiracy on the part of the captains of industry, and the owners of great monopolies and the shrewd operators in finance to manipulate the affairs of state and our political institutions for their own advantage, but that the leaders of a great party, the commercial and moneyed magnates of this mighty country have lost faith in the fundamental principles of the republic, have ceased from their allegiance to the institutions of our governmental system and have determined to substitute for the free functions of democracy the iron rule of a financial and commercial despotism."

Imperialistic Pleasures.

A dispatch from Washington announces that preparations are being made for an official investigation into our new West Indian possessions. The secretary of war, Mr. Alger, has invited the members of the senate and house military committees to take their wives and accompany him on a tour through the West Indies. They will visit Porto Rico and Cuba. The party will sail from New York March 6, which is immediately after the adjournment of congress, on the steamship Berlin and will be gone until April 1. The party will live on the steamer during the entire journey and make short trips into the interior of Cuba and Porto Rico. Thus those in position to enjoy those things are quick to seize the pleasures of imperialism at public expense.—Utica Observer.

——The administration of William McKinley has already fastened an annual public expenditure upon them of not less than $150,000,000 a year more than any previous administration, and it may reach over $200,000,000. In fact, if the war revenue tax is continued, which it will have to be to make good the revenue deficits of the Dingley tariff, the additional annual cost of maintaining the government will be close on to $360,000,000. The country has a few thousand islands, which are not self-sustaining, and an additional force of 75,000 men for military purposes to show for it all.—Kansas City Times.

TIME FOR THEM TO SPEAK.

The Republican Administration Adds Treachery to Evasion of Duty.

The treaty of peace has been ratified. The "traitors," "copperheads" and "obstructionists" no longer stand in the way of progress. Is it not time that the administration should declare to the people of this country its policy respecting the Philippine archipelago? Are we not entitled to know, either from the white house or from the senate chamber, just what is to be done with the islands? Is there any longer an excuse for concealment or delay?

The question is an important one. It involves momentous consequences. We are to continue on a war footing indefinitely—paying heavy taxes for the maintenance of a large army—or we are to revert gradually to the status quo ante bellum, devoting ourselves to commerce instead of conquest. We should know at once which policy we are to follow. We have no such knowledge now.

William McKinley is the leader of his party—at least he is supposed to be. Can anyone, from his contradictory declarations, form an idea of the republican party's policy with regard to the Philippines? A year and a half ago he declared officially that territorial aggression would be a crime. In September of this year he adopted the policy he once denounced and through his commissioners at Paris demanded and secured from Spain the cession of the entire Philippine archipelago. Three months ago he proclaimed to the Filipinos that they were to be made subjects of the American republic—"benevolently assimilated," as he preferred to put it. Yet a week later his personal organ in Chicago, reenforced by Senator Foraker in Washington, explicitly denied that there was any intention to "assimilate" the Filipinos against their will. Is anything to be made of this jumble of contradictions—affirmations one week, denials the next? Why shouldn't the president speak?

Now if the president won't speak, why shouldn't the senate speak for him? We have heard from the senate a great deal of perfervid patriotic oratory during the last five weeks. Appeals have been made to the loyalty of anti-expansion senators. The old flag has been waved as persistently as if an appropriation bill were under discussion. "Ratify the treaty as patriotic Americans" has been the cry, and it has been responded to. Yet now that the treaty has been ratified there is no disposition manifest to define the policy of the government in the Philippines.

Surely this is a cowardly and pitiful attitude to be assumed by a party which claims to have behind it the great majority of the people—democrats as well as republicans. All that is needed is a simple declaration from the president or from the senate. Are we to keep the Philippines temporarily or permanently? Is territorial aggression a crime or is it not? Are we to lick war stamps until the end of time or are we some day to return to the comfortable if inglorious task of minding our own business, leaving the Filipinos, the Cubans and all the other barbarians on earth to take care of themselves?

Isn't there manhood enough in the national administration to face the question and make a plain answer once for all?—Chicago Chronicle.

CERTAIN OF VICTORY.

Senator James K. Jones on the Democratic Outlook.

Says That Issues Will Be the Same Next Year as They Were in 1896—Reductions from Last Year's Elections.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Senator James K. Jones, chairman of the democratic national committee, in an authorized interview to-day was asked if in his opinion the democratic national convention of next year would reaffirm the Chicago platform. He said:

"To say that the next democratic national convention will reaffirm the position taken by the convention in 1896 is to assert what every candid man, even slightly familiar with existing facts, knows to be true. It is as certain as anything human can be that the question of bimetallism will be the leading issue in the campaign next year. And it is reasonable to expect that the majority of the people will next time declare for the party which means what it says and will redeem its pledges, and that they will not again be tricked into casting their votes in favor of the enemies of the principles in which they believe."

"On what grounds do you base your hopes for success next year?" was asked.

"Some of the reasons why I am strongly hopeful of the future of our cause are as follows: In the campaign of 1896 both parties declared for bimetallism; the democrats for independent action by the United States; the republicans for an international agreement, which they pledged themselves to promote.'

"True, this declaration on the part of the republicans was only made in platform votes, and because the party leaders did not dare to go to the polls without it. I think that now no one any longer doubts that the fixed purpose of those who controlled these leaders was to maintain the gold standard, and to prevent, not promote, an international agreement. The declaration, however, served its purpose, and vast numbers of sincere bimetallists were persuaded to vote the republican ticket, in the belief that they were voting for an honest effort to secure international bimetallism. The leaders who were responsible for this trick have already committed their party to the single gold standard, so far as they can, and if they dare speak out honestly in their next national platform, it will declare for the single gold standard."

On being asked if he believed that the cause of bimetallism was improving, he said:

"There are as many believers in bimetallism to-day in the United States as there ever were, and all these doubtless are now convinced that the only way to accomplish bimetallism is through the action of the democratic party. The great effort to stop the fall of prices—the shrinking of values—and to relieve the distress of business resulting from these great evils, without doing injustice or injury to any class of business, is being more and more understood, and commands the respect of honest and fair men always when understood, and another campaign of ridicule and abuse, such as that of 1896—whether dictated by ignorance or venality—cannot succeed against temperate arguments and appeals for simple justice, when the people have time to fairly weigh the arguments and form a deliberate judgment.

"There was great unrest and dissatisfaction in 1896 throughout the country, resulting from falling prices and shrinking values. The republican party promised that if they were intrusted with power all this would be changed, and that prosperity should succeed existing conditions. Mr. McKinley and the gold press now assure the country that we have prosperity. There is quite a boom in stock speculation in Wall street, but Wall street is not the country, as we believe. A great famine and a short crop of wheat all over the world, except in the United States, naturally raised the price of wheat while these conditions lasted, and the beneficent effect of this increase in the price of wheat is still widely felt. The beneficial effects of this temporary advance in the price of a single article, which was so marked in the short period it continued, are likely to stimulate a desire for a return to that condition permanently and an extension of it to all other products. This is our purpose, and was our purpose in 1896, when the republican party denounced any effort to increase prices as a crime."

Asked how he accounted for the activity in business, he answered:

"There has been necessarily an increased demand for labor within the last few months, as the result of the withdrawal of large numbers of American citizens from the ordinary walks of life to be employed in the army, whose places had to be filled. There has also been an increased activity in and demand for all products which were necessary to the maintenance and support of a large army. But all these conditions are in the very nature of things temporary, and all of them must, and they must pass away with the end of the conditions which brought them into life. Making due allowance for the influence of these three causes, on the present condition of the country, there is to-day as much dissatisfaction and as much cause for it as there was in 1896. No relief was or is to be expected under republican management, except such as comes by famine abroad and war at home. A condition of constantly falling general prices is everywhere recognized as a condition of distress and hard times, and speculation excitement in Wall street does not change this. We believe that a small volume of money forces prices down, and hence we have urged the coinage of our silver as well as of our gold—not only to check this grinding fall in prices, but to promote steadily advancing prices."

"Then you think that the Chicago platform is gaining ground?"

"I most certainly do. In the elections of last year the principles of that platform were not the leading and exclusive issues in all sections of the country. These were partially obscured in many states and districts. The question of bimetallism, the republican effort to retire the greenbacks and to confer upon the national banks the absolute control of the volume of paper money, and to surrender the country to the trusts, were, in many sections, for the time being lost sight of in the excitement of the war and its resulting questions; and in others they were sidetracked by efforts to substitute local issues in their stead. The result was a great loss of interest and a large falling off in the vote, with apparently unfavorable results to the democratic party. In Colorado, where national issues were at the front and dominant, the interest in the election was intense, the vote large and our majority overwhelming. In states where it was stated, whether truly or not, that there was an intention on the part of the democratic managers to sidetrack the great issue, with the purpose of ultimately bringing the party in national convention back to the practice of shuffling and evasion, so long persisted in by both political parties, and still kept up by the republicans, the interest was not great, the vote was not full, and the results were not conclusive. There was, however, one great and valuable result—all reasonable men are now satisfied that straddling and dodging are not popular. The next democratic national convention will speak out again in the same clear, unequivocal terms, and in the same manner and in the same lines that it did in 1896. Of this there is no doubt, the assertions of the republican gold press, with whom the wish is father to the thought, to the contrary notwithstanding."

Our Policy of Territorial Expansion.

Extreme annexationists are advocating the addition of Canada to this country, and think it can be accomplished in a peaceful manner without exciting a quarrel with England. Such grave questions call for the wisest statesmanship, just as dyspepsia, constipation, liver and kidney diseases and malaria call for a thoroughly reliable remedy like Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. No experimenting should be done with untried medicines when an old established preparation is to be had.

MISSOURI'S WAR GOVERNOR

Restored By Pe-ru-na.

GOVERNOR T. C. FLETCHER.

Hon. Thomas C. Fletcher, the noted war Governor of the State of Missouri, is a great friend of Pe-ru-na. He writes:

The Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—For years I have been afflicted with chronic catarrh, which has gone through my whole system, and no one knows the torture and misery I have passed through. My doctor has prescribed various remedies, and I have never found any relief until I was persuaded by a friend to use Dr. Hartman's Pe-ru-na. After the use of one bottle I feel like a new man. It also cured me of a dropping I had in my throat, and built my system up generally. To those who are suffering with catarrh I take pleasure in recommending your great medicine. Very respectfully,

Thomas C. Fletcher.

Everything that affects the welfare of the people is a legitimate subject of comment to the real statesman. The statesman is not a narrow man. It is the politician who is narrow. The true statesman looks out on the world as it is, and seeks, as far as is in his power, to remedy evils and encourage the good.

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a national curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most prevalent and stubborn of cure is catarrh.

A HERO FOR BOYS.

Twelve-Year-Old Arkansas Trapper Provides for the Entire Family.

Calvin Hinkley is coming into fame as "The Boy Trapper of Clay county, Ark." He is 12 years old, small for his years, and without even the advantages of such equipment as the village store affords to the average trapper. Calvin makes his own traps, rude things generally, but effective, for a day seldom passes that he has not snared or captured in some way a mink or two, a few rabbits, and, at long intervals, that valuable and coveted trophy of all trappers, the furtive otter.

Especial interest attaches to the exploits of little Calvin Hinkley, for the reason that for the last six months he has been the sole support of his invalid father and his nine-year-old sister. The mother died last winter, and early last spring Hinkley here fell sick with a complaint which has kept him to his bed almost continually ever since. They live in an isolated spot on the bank of Black river, Arkansas, about six miles from Corning. The father had made a frugal but sure living for his little family by getting timber. When he was unable to work the burden of supporting the family fell upon Calvin's frail shoulders.

An awkward skiff, a woodsman's ax, an antique rifle and a jackknife were the appliances to which the boy fell heir. His little sister had already set him a good example, for the day her mother became sick the child assumed the duties of a housewife, cooking the homely meals, washing the dishes, and sweeping and tidying the little cabin home. When his mother died, Calvin quit school and began to help around the house. He learned to swing the ax, to whittle the "figure four" for traps, and went bravely to work to make a living for the family. In his skiff he carried cumbrous logs to well-chosen nooks along the river's brim, setting up that old-fashioned but reliable style of trap known as the "dead fall." Soon he had six traps set and baited, and he was well launched upon his career as a trapper.

He began to rise before the gray of dawn streaked the east. A crust of bread and a drink of water were sufficient to sustain him while he visited his traps along the river. Alone he paddled his lumbering skiff for miles along the river, baiting his traps anew before sunup, and seizing with proud delight the occasional mink that he found pinned beneath his well-adjusted "dead falls." Then back to breakfast with his prize or without it to be welcomed and caressed by his patient little sister, who sat at the head of the table, poured his coffee, and praised his skill and courage as none but a child can praise.

A whole mink skin is worth 50 cents in Corning any day, and little Calvin has made 100 trips afoot over the rough or swampy six miles of road that lie between his forest home and the town. Having exchanged his skins for cash, he would buy the simple necessities for his sick father, provisions for the larder, and now and then a cheap toy for the little woman at home, who kept her doll baby sitting by the kitchen stove while she cooked the meals, and mingled the frolics of childhood with the work and worry of womanhood in a manner quaintly pretty.

Twice a day, at dawn and at dusk, the little trapper has been working his traps ever since. Once or twice he has found an otter instead of the customary mink, and thereat he rejoices with his father and sister, for an otter skin is worth ten times as much as a mink skin, and there is always a ready market for the pelts in Corning. Calvin puts in most of each day hunting for squirrels or rabbits now. Cotton tails are numerous, but as the boy has not a shotgun he relies entirely upon his dog and ax. The former knows his business, and never fails to corral Brer Rabbit in the hollow trunks of trees. The boy chops a hole in the tree to get his quarry alive, or twists it out with the forked pole in the manner familiar to all woodsmen.

For the last two months Calvin has bagged great numbers of squirrels. These he hunts without his dog. Sitting in a favorable spot in the woods, rifle in hand, he waits until the frisky rodents go to work on the hickory nuts or acorns, and then picks them off their lofty perches with unerring accuracy. He seldom fails to place the bullet fairly in the squirrel's head, and, like a true sportsman, would scorn to use a shotgun on such game. He hopes to have a duck gun one of these days, and to that end is saving such small sums as can be withheld from the family's expense account. His father is slowly regaining his health, too, but in the meantime the thin, pale boy attends diligently to his trade, growing fonder each day of its solitary excitement, and rapidly mastering all the unwritten lore of woodcraft.—St. Louis Republic.

The "Virginius" Affair.

The Virginius, a ship of American register, was captured, taken to a Cuban port and 50 of her officers and crew, Americans for the most part, summarily shot. The wrath of the American people flamed out; President Grant could have had war and ended everything in a moment, but the forces which cared nothing for humanity and a great deal for an undisturbed money market prevailed. The register of the Virginius was opportunely proved to be fraudulent, we took money for our dead and peace was preserved. The unsettled question had come very near a solution and had shown to all who cared to think that Spanish tyranny was capable of dangerous crimes against others than its own subjects.—Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, in Harper's Magazine.

TUMOR EXPELLED.

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. ELIZABETH WHEELOCK, Magnolia, Iowa, in the following letter describes her recovery from a very critical condition:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been taking your Vegetable Compound, and am now ready to sound its praises. It has done wonders for me in relieving me of a tumor.

"My health has been poor for three years. Change of life was working upon me. I was very much bloated and was a burden to myself. Was troubled with smothering spells, also palpitation of the heart and that bearing-down feeling, and could not be on my feet much.

"I was growing worse all the time, until I took your medicine.

"After taking three boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Lozenges, the tumor passed from me.

"My health has been better ever since, can now walk quite a distance and am troubled no more with palpitation of the heart or bloating. I recommend your medicine to all sufferers from female troubles."

It is hardly reasonable to suppose that any one can doubt the efficiency of Mrs. Pinkham's methods and medicine in the face of the tremendous volume of testimony.

VANITY OF GREATNESS.

One Young Man Who Found Out That He Never Would Be Missed.

"You seemed depressed this evening," said Hamblin, as Flagg, who was generally on pretty good terms with himself, lit his eighth cigarette and then threw it away, after taking [illegible] whiffs.

"Yes, I am," was the reply. "There's no use trying to be anybody in this world."

"Oh, come, brace up," Hamblin urged. "What's gone wrong?" You ought to be ashamed to let yourself be cast down, after the streak of good luck you've had. Here you are on the sunny side of 30, and a firm doing a business of $1,000,000 a year has made you its chief buyer, with a salary that would keep three or four good-sized families in luxury. You've had a trip to Europe at the house's expense and you—"

"Hold on," Flagg interrupted, "you've struck the very thing that bothers me. You know Miss Dolliver—that beautiful, stately girl I introduced you to one night in the Burkwells' box?

"I called on her last evening. I used to call there every week or two, before I started across to the other side. Well, more than three months had elapsed since I had seen her last. Of course, I concluded that my trip was an apology enough for the fact that I had not called lately, so without any ado I began talking about my experiences in Paris. What do you think she said?"

"Oh, I can't guess!"

"'Why, have you been out of the city?'"—Chicago Evening [illegible]

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney and Bladder Troubles Make You Miserable.

Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT is the Great Remedy for all Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid Troubles.

By Special Arrangement, Every Reader of this Paper, to Prove for Themselves The Wonderful Merits of THIS GREAT DISCOVERY, May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely FREE by Mail.

You are in no danger of being sick if you keep your kidneys well.

They filter your blood, keep it pure and free from disease breeding germs.

Your other organs may need care, but your kidneys most, because they do most.

If you are sick, begin with your kidneys, because as soon as they are well they will help all the other organs to health.

The treatment of some diseases may be delayed without danger, not so with kidney disease.

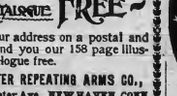
Swamp-Root is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of untiring effort and research by the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, Dr. Kilmer, and its truly wonderful healing action on the kidneys and bladder.

It will be found by both men and women just what is needed in all cases of kidney and bladder disorders, lame back, dull pain or ache in the back, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, rheumatism, sciatics, neuralgia, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of neglected kidney trouble.

Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold water and promptly overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night.

If your water when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

The way to be well is to look after your kidneys :—To take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root when you are suffering from clogged kidneys.



This prompt, mild and wonderful remedy is easy to get at the drug stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

It has taught him the lesson that even a worthless cur cannot be kicked with impunity.

The Rev. James Rogers, of this place, delivered a lecture Sunday evening, at the Methodist Church to the Knights of Pythias. It was a masterpiece of learning, logic, eloquence and wisdom. The Knights were happy over the Reverend gentleman's exposition of the text:—"By their fruits ye shall know them," and the Walton people are very proud of their fellow citizen, who has shown that he is entitled to rank as first-class upon the lecture stand.

On last Friday Mr. George Youell, one of the oldest citizens, was assisting Mr. Wm. Holder in hauling hay to the barn of Squire John C. Byland. After delivering a load Mr. Holder said to him, "George, you had better get up from there (he was sitting down), and we'll go to the house and get some dinner." Youell said, "Well, if I go you will have to help me." Holder gave the assistance, but before getting there Youell had to be carried in and had lapsed into unconsciousness. Dr. Jones was sent for when he pronounced it a stroke of apoplexy. He seemed some better today (Sunday), and at times appeared to be conscious that something had happened to him.

As a batter cake eater one of our young men can take the championship. The other day one of the family thinking he might prove a record breaker, kept tally on his eating capacity in a quiet way. When he had finished his meal it was found that he had eaten 12 batter cakes besides a proportionate amount of other victuals. It reminded an old timer of the performance of one Jett Willett, who was a twister of tobacco for Major Murphy in the early days of Walton. He had been in the employment of John B. Casey in Covington, and had a well deserved notoriety of being a good workman whenever he could overcome his natural indisposition to manual labor. One day he complained of being sick and did not make his appearance at the factory. A messenger was sent out for him as work was pressing. After some time he returned and reported that Willett had eaten his dinner, his wife having boiled twelve apple dumplings, of which he had eaten eleven, when the messenger got there. His little son of four or five saw him take the last one on his plate and lisped, "papa, gimme thuh dumplin, plethe," to which Jett made reply, "Go set down, sonny, poor papa's sick."

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Edwards, on Friday, the 10th inst., gave a grand party in honor of their son, Ralph. Written invitations were sent to each guest. Music and games beguiled the merry youngsters until 9:30, when a bountiful lunch was served. How it was relished the disappearance of ice cream, cake, oranges, bananas and candy testified. The table was decorated with carnations, smilax and ferns, the display being fairylike and beautiful. All were happy save two disconsolate kids:—Emerson Crisler wanted to take Virginia Sawyers to the supper table, but the managers put her in charge of Roy Stamler, and Emerson with George Grubbs; Jimmie Stetson wanted to take Gladys Wilson, but she was allotted to Sidney Ambrose, and Jimmie sequestered her uncle, whether he knew who brought her to the party and whether he knew that she had a beau, remarking that she was too dod blamed little to have beaux. Those present were: Myrtle Murphy, Estella Booth, Virginia Sawyers, Leona Rouse, Gladys Wilson, Clara Diers, Pauline Cooley, Blanch Stephens, Hattie Vest, Katie Bentz, Blanch Dixon, Willeve Tillman, Queenie Tillman, Alma Dahling, Lulu Ellis; Wesley Murphy, Virgil Holder, Roy Stamler, Harvey Diers, Riveliette DeMoisey, Cleveland Hedges, Ben Sawyers, Leslie Jones, Kirtley Adams, Presley Adams, Harry Dahling, Sidney Ambrose, Stanley Dixon, Eddie Kipp, Dannie Blackburn, Emerson Crisler, Willie Cross, John DeJarnette, George Grubbs, Godfrey Houston, Yonell Murphy.

Bellevue.

Feb. 18.—28 degrees below zero here Monday morning of this week.

Mrs. Scimes and Miss Wooly are still butchering.

Blant Pope, of Huntaville, was a caller in town Friday.

Bro. Utz and family are again able to be about we are glad to report.

J. H. Lawell, wife and Miss Lucy Ryle have about recovered from their attack of grippe.

O. N. Grant makes an efficient postmaster. Otta is generally in place, let his position be what it may.

If Burlington is distributing fuel to the needy please send down a few loads, for we are even out of slats to burn.

Billie and Charley Slayback began to move to S. D. Rice's, last Monday. They are known as the best tenants about here.

Bro. Utz's parents, of Hathaway, were visiting him and family, Friday. We were glad to see Uncle Jeff again able to get out.

Prof. Snyder and your correspondent had opossum for dinner, last Friday, at their houses. You know what a fellow Dave is for the dish.

Prof. D. M. Snyder closes his school this Wednesday. He quits the school with honor to himself and pupils, but that is not uncommon for him.

Mrs. James Rogers and son, Will, and John and wife, Willie Huey and wife and his sister, Mary, were visiting Al Rogers and family, last Friday.

J. J. Huey, left last Monday morning, for his future home, taking the blessings and best wishes of his relatives and friends here. We hope our loss will prove to be his gain.

Weed Williamson has returned home after several months' absence, looking well and hearty. He claims to be the prodigal son, but they did not kill the fatted calf when he returned.

Hathaway.

The ice on Gunpowder is 12 inches thick.

Harry Stephens is hauling corn from East Bend.

The young lambs have begun to put in their appearance.

Jessie Kelly was in this vicinity, one day last week, selling fruit trees.

The recent cold weather caused a good many to lay in a fresh supply of coal.

Misses Ollie and Annie Rector called on Miss Minnie Sullivan, one day last week.

T. J. Stephens and wife gave a delightful party on the night of the 13th. It was enjoyed by all present.

J. D. McNeely went to the city last Friday with a load of nice turkeys for which he realized a good sale.

Master George White, of Woolper, was visiting his grandparents of this place last Friday and Saturday.

The public school closed here last Friday with a small attendance of scholars, but there were several callers.

Quite a crowd assembled at this office ever mail evening to discuss the topics of the day, and raise crops by the store stove.

A tenant house near where R. L. Huey lives, and which was occupied by Frank Weaver, (colored), was burnt to the ground Tuesday night. The occupants saved some beds and bed clothing only.

One day last week the house of Walter Ryle, son of T. C. S. Ryle, caught fire in the roof, and came near burning. The neighbors answered the alarm and the fire was soon put out. Cause—defective flue.

Florence

Mess. Clara Hogan is visiting at Mr. Theodore Grogers'.

F. H. Russell was shaking hands with old friends here, Saturday.

Dr. Frank Sayre, of Hebron, was visiting his father here, Friday.

We are glad to report R. P. Rice about recovered from his recent illness.

T. N. Clutterbuck, who has been quite sick for the past week is some better.

Stanley Clutterbuck and wife were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ryle, Sunday.

Misses Carrie Clark and Ollie Corbin are visiting Owen Bradford and wife near Union.

Chas. Robinson and family, of Constance, spent Sunday here with W. J. Cody and family.

Miss Nannie Latham spent several days, last week, at Erlanger, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Riggs.

Chas. Olaner and family, of near Covington, spent Sunday here the guests of his father, Henry Olaner.

Our esteemed bachelor friend, Chas. Bradford, will, on the 22d inst., lead to hymen's altar one of Erlanger's most popular young ladies, Miss Mattie Talbott. Here is our hand, Charlie, and we hope your joys may be great and your responsibilities "little ones."

Flickertown.

Chess Aylor contemplates going west in the near future.

Miss Mary McCarthy was visiting her parents at Bromley, a couple of days last week.

Floyd Snyder, of Utzinger, bought a fine saddle horse from James Brown, one day last week.

Chess Aylor says it is a mistake about him having hay fever. It was only a slight cold, caused by getting his feet wet.

Some of our citizens are beginning to think that the gentleman who gave our town that pet name, a few weeks ago, was not far from right.

The greatest event of the season was the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Lyte Smith on the 5th inst., in honor of their son, Henry's 20th birthday. Those present were Misses Ethel Schree, Prudie Acre, Bessie and Ada Rue, Woodie Sullivan, Leslie Nichols, Harry, Ben and Henry Passons, Wade Tolin, Willie Warford and Claibourne Campbell.

Verona.

The public school closed, last Friday, that being the end of a five months term.

The members of New Bethel church have called Rev. S. M. Adams as their pastor for the ensuing year.

Chas. Horrell is packing up to move to Elwood, Ind. Mr. Horrell has just become acquainted and is well thought of here, and we are sorry to hear of his leaving.

We notice our friend, Butler Myers, looking unusually, happy one day last week, and on inquiring was informed that a 9 pound boy had arrived at his home.

J. H Harpor, who has faithfully discharged his duties as housekeeper for the past three years with J. R. Johnson, is looking for another suitable situation.

Geo. Johnson met with quite an accident, one day last week. While out cutting wood with Mantly Conley, Conley's ax glanced out of his hands, and, striking George a glancing lick on the head, made a painful, but not serious wound.

Utzinger.

We feel the deepest sympathy for our mail carrier, who has braved the cold weather and performed his duty without a break.

H. C. Duncan, one of our most prosperous farmers, sold to C. A. Gaines 80 fat hogs, last week.

Mr. James Clore is visiting friends at Eminence. Miss Fannie Gordon, of Hebron, is also visiting there.

We were pleased to see Mrs. J. A. Gaines in her accustomed seat in the church, Sunday. It had been vacant for some time on account of her illness.

Mr. Clinton Gaines is being urged to become a candidate for Representative in the next Legislature. Mr. Gaines is a broad minded man and would represent us with fidelity and honor.

The family of Mr. James Barnes has been very sorely afflicted, this winter. At the present time there are four of them very sick. Dr. Furnish, of Burlington, was called there, one day last week, in consultation with Dr. Tilly.

This wintry spell affords the boys a fine opportunity to catch up with their reading, and what we don't know about the money and Philipine and other current matters has not been published. The verdict is that we have too many Philipines and not enough money.

Mr. Belden's barge of coal at Petersburg saved the surrounding country from experencing a coal famine. His supply is now exhausted, but the demand is about filled. We can get along with very little ordinary weather, but in a spell like that we have just passed through, it calls for abundant supplies all round.

We had the pleasure of meeting for the first time on Thursday last, our new citizen, Mr. Enoch White. Mr. White hails from Gallatin county, and occupies the farm of the late W. P. Holton. He has moved into a section of country where thrift characterizes the career of each family, and we judge from all appearances, that he will fall in line with his neighbors and become one of our first citizens. We give him and his family a cordial welcome, and wish them every success.

Mound Field Farm.

Feb. 20.—Miss Nannie Anderson was visiting her aunt, Mrs. Maggie Manin, several days last week.

Charlie Regenbogen is of the opinion that his entire blackberry crop for this season is killed.

Chester Davis is receiving bids for the completion of a cellar he contemplates building this spring.

Misses Minnie and Add Batterson are taking in the Mardi Gras festivities at Harrison, Ohio, this week.

Miss Lizzie Conner began teaching a private select school, last Monday, at her school house near Hebron.

Mrs. Bart Ayler presented her husband with valentine in the way of a six pound daughter. Bart is doing well.

The bee-keepers in this vicinity are of the opinion that many of their swarms have perished from the extreme cold weather.

Wilson Conner is herding and tending a large number of sheep, this winter, that belong to John Rucker. Wilson makes a good Shephard.

Anderson Thornton (colored) suffered the loss of one horse, one hog and one dozen chickens, all being frozen to death the night of the 12th inst.

Henry Hafer had us to sample a new variety of squash that he raises. It is out of sight in a very few minutes when made into pies—get some of the seeds.

Charles Beall has moved from the Louisa McPee farm, where he has lived for several years, to the farm formerly owned and occupied by J. C. Beall, deceased.

It is a very common thing to pick up some unfortunate fellow's nose or an ear since the snow has disappeared that was frozen off during our Klondyke weather.

Uncle John Beall came out to Hebron, one day last week, the first time this winter. His health is remarkably good for a man of his years, and he is very careful that it shall remain so.

Called on Mr. D. Winnes a few days since, and found the old gentleman quite feeble. The fall he sustained a few weeks since compels him to keep in doors. With this and the great misfortune of losing his oldest daughter, last fall, has filled his cup of affliction to overflowing.

The ground-hog must certainly have seen a very pronounced shadow of himself when he prudently skipped back into his hole, dug it a foot or two deeper, put weather strips on the door, and in all probability, will remain there for an indefinite period yet.

Bud Conner may be a judge of beauty, play a pretty fair game of checkers, know all about crokinole and the like, but when it comes to distinguishing one kind of a tree from another in a sugar camp, he is clear off. He was hoisting Henry Hafer to tap no camp, last week, and Henry says Bud was just as likely to tap a hackberry tree as any other.

Constance.

Master Albert Dollwick, was knocked down and struck in the stomach by a horse.—Miss Flora West and brother of Bromley, have been visiting here.—On account of the ice the boys have been unable to cross the river to their work.—Rev. Davidson, of Pleasant Plains, Ohio, preached at the Mission, Sunday night. He will preach their all week.—Rev. Peno preached at the Constance Christian church, Sunday.—The Mission Sunday School has received its library.—Davis & Co. have a beautiful cash register.

Richwood.

N. B. Marshall is on the sick list.

Mr. F. Dickey is able to be out again.

Oscar Beeh has a very valuable badge.

Lee Gaines and family spent Sunday with H. A. Hicks.

C. B. Rice moved to the Conner residence, last Monday.

Mr. J. S. Matson will move to the city in the near future.

Lonnie Robinson will move to Covington in a few days.

Lee Lancaster will have a meat stall in the Pearl street market, when the new market house is opened to the public.

Erlanger.

Mr. A. Morelli and family were the guests of Judge Morelli a few days last week.

The dance given by the young men at the town hall Thursday evening was an enjoyable affair.

Bro. Hoover preached an elegant and interesting anniversary sermon to the K. P's. The hall was crowded.

Miss Martha Talbott and Mr. Chas. Bradford, will be married at the Baptist church to-day at noon. Here is wishing them a happy and prosperous life.

E. M. Oliver died here Sunday at 4:40 p. m. He was a member of Fiskburg Masonic Lodge, at which place he was buried. His wife and family have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

Hume Store.

The roads here are getting very bad.

Everett Baker will move to the Jas. Fry place.

The school at Stone Lick closed last Friday, with an entertainment.

Miss Lizzie Baker, of Walton, was visiting relatives here, Saturday and Sunday.

Misses Mollie and Bertha Wilson handsomely entertained a number of friends, with a music party, Saturday night. Numerous games were indulged in, after some delightful music was rendered. Those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sutton, Misses Mollie Stahl, Clara Ross, Ella Norman, Mary Houston, Messrs. Joe Noel, Jas. Sleet, Lou. West, John Brown, Clarence Featherson, Charlie Sutton, Johnnie and Charlie Stahl, Ben and Jim Houston and Willie Riley.

Limaburg.

Willis Clore has a severe attack of asthma and grip.—Hubert Rouse's little boy is no better.—Mrs. Mike Wilhoit fell Sunday and was hurt considerably.—J. E. Rouse has bought two fine horses.—Mrs. Bettie Aylor is quite ill.—Joe Myers, of Union, was hauling lumber from the mill, Monday.—Sam Conrad was on the sick list, Monday.—Harvey Baker is getting along very nicely this winter.—An ewe belonging to Chas. Youell dropped a lamb that weighed 16 pounds before it was a day old.—Jacob Rouse is getting ready to open his sugar camp.—Ed Marcus has lost 5 out of 75 lambs.—Chas. Craven bought a horse in the city, last week.—Martin Farrell is quite sick.—Miss Alia Hoffman, who spent the winter with her grandfather here, has returned to her home at Bellfontain, Ohio.—Wheat and grass look fine. You can turn that weather chart's face from the wall now.—A fine horse belonging to J. C. Hankins, died Sunday.

IN REMEMBRANCE OF

Ida May Dixon who departed this life, January 26th, 1898.

Just as the evening shadows gathered, just as the short day winged its flight, her spirit departed for realms of pure delight.

When a little child, one year of age, she received a burn that was the germ that ended a noble life. Although through childhood and up to womanhood's reign there was no manifestation of the germ, but like the volcano that breaks forth in great fury and then for a while almost every trace of it is in sue is gone, but the fire is still in the mount and ere long it breaks forth with greater violence, until what was once a beautiful city is only a blackened mass of ruins. So it was with Ida, just as she had reached womanhood's noblest estate, just as life seemed brightest, and the earth was fairest to her eyes, the germ broke forth with redoubled force, causing her long days of suffering and dark nights of anguish and pain, until God recalled the boon he love had given. Although she suffered greatly she remained conscious almost to the last, and between the moans of anguish came fragments of a prayer. A friend for a few minutes talked with her and said, "Put your trust in God"; she replied, "I do trust him, I am trusting Him for all."

At the end came a peaceful sleep that never was to be broken, from which she glided quietly down that dark, broad stream whose waters roll on and on, but never return for—

Your pure soul winged its flight
From earth to heaven where it found
All beautiful and bright;
Where all such souls as yours find rest,
And peace, and joy, and love,
With God and his angles ever to dwell.

And when they who loved her gazed first on that cold, quiet form they said, "How can I give her up to death?" and when they kissed and caressed the pale, cold cheek that never before had been deaf to their caresses, they, cried out, "Oh! if tears and caresses could only warm it into life," but, ah! they would not have it so, for on gazing again, at the white, peaceful brow from which every trace of suffering was removed on the white marble cheek that never more would be drawn with pain, on the pale thin lips that had uttered such cries of anguish, around which now lingered a smile, they said, "I would not have her back from such a sweet repose."

For the meeting with death brought no anguish, no struggle passed over that marble form as it was clasped in death's cold embrace, all was peace and rest. It was like some fair lily or some stately rose, that we have tended with great care, that we have seen first in a beautiful bud, and have thought it almost perfect, but as it comes into full blossom, every petal a rich creamy tint sending forth its fragrance, we thought it perfection, and just as it reaches this magnificent state some rude blast scatters its fragrant petals to the earth, and it is no more, it is gone but not forgotten, and since it is absent from our garden, time hitherto lavished upon it is devoted to other plants that with proper care would be equally as beautiful or as fragrant, and ere long our care will be rewarded by the same creamy tint or fragrance fully as sweet in another blossom. So it was with Ida May, she was like the full blown blossom shading forth love and animation, and just as others began to rely most upon her, to trust her strength and wisdom, the silver cord was broken, the staff was gone, but not forgotten. In the long years that are to come, her memory will be a sacred thing, it will be a guiding star, "an apple of gold in a picture of silver." In the hour of strong temptation over memory will come stealing the picture of that fair angelic face, and the influence of the pure, upright character will gain, hence her memory will draw our thoughts from earth to heaven—from sinning to repenting. So her life was not in vain, her death all gain.

Death released her from a world of suffering to one of joy and peace; to those who loved her, it drew their hopes from earth to heaven, and when their feet are slipping from the shores of earth to eternity the way will not be dark for a gray haired father and a brown-tressed sister wait for them there, and will each lead them by a hand for—

The arman death deals right and left,
And flowers fall as well as oaks;
And when his hand heals other strokes
They will stand at heavens gate I know
And wait "to welcome Our Folks."

Administrator's Notice.

All persons indebted to the estate of Joseph Huey (colored), deceased, are requested to come forward and settle same, and those who have claims against said decedent's estate, must present proof of same to my attorney, D. E. Castleman, at his office in Burlington, Ky.

JAMES A. HUEY,
Administrator of Joseph Huey, dec'd.

Order of Reference.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

John H. Otten's Ext., &c., Plff.
vs
Philipena Otten, widow, &c. Defts.

This cause is now referred to J. W. Duncan, Master Commissioner of the Boone Circuit Court, under sections 430 and 431, Civil Code of Practice, with the following instructions, to-wit:

1. He will audit and settle the accounts of the administrator.

2. He will ascertain and report the amount of indebtedness found against decedants estate and report same.

3. He will report what real estate the decedent owned at the time of his death, where situated, how encumbered if at all, and its probable value.

4. He will give due notice of the time and place of his sittings and report all of his acts hereunder at the next term of said court.

Witness my hand as clerk of said court, this January 30th, 1899.

J. W. DUNCAN, Clerk B. C. C.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 2d day of February, 1899, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause, and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 6th day of April, 1899. All persons having claims against said estate will present them to me properly proven according to law.

J. W. DUNCAN, Master Com.

PEACH TREES.

I have a lot of vigorous young peach trees of the most popular varieties, for sale.

LOU TERRILL,
near Lawrenceburg Ferry.

Local News.

This is Washington's birth day.

There is considerable complaint of petty stealing about town.

The skating carnival was interrupted last Thursday, by the rise in the temperature.

Stock is being solicited for the organization of a local building and loan association.

You can now make some maple molasses if you have the trees to furnish the water.

W. S. Underbill and family were the guests of A. Bentler and family, last Thursday.

The ground hog has had enough bad weather for a six weeks' period, it would seem.

The game of Caroms is the most popular game here, and a great many have purchased boards.

Arch Herrick, an old man from Normansville, was admitted to the County Infirmary, Monday.

The people were very much inclined to celebrate the withdrawal of the 20-below zero weather.

A great many flowers that were kept in rooms occupied by the family during the recent cold spell, were frozen.

During the last very cold snap several cooking ranges in different parts of the country froze up and then blowed up.

By the time Dick Hensley's misfortune reached the Cincinnati dailies for publication it had been distorted into a fatally crushed head.

Last Sunday was quite a different day from the Sunday preceding. The boys were loafing in the sunshine in spring-like attitudes.

If you are going to require any tobacco plants in your business this year, you would better sow your plant beds at the very first opportunity.

The farmers will soon begin to plow land for the next crop of corn. There does not appear to have been done as much fall and winter plowing as usual.

James Hogan milked his cow Saturday night, and noticed nothing wrong with her. When he went to the barn to milk, Sunday morning, the animal was dead.

The District Board of the North Bend Association of Baptists, will meet with the church here next Thursday and Friday. A good attendance is anticipated.

WANTED—A gentleman wants a position as cook and housekeeper. Can do all kinds of kitchen work. For more particular information apply to J. H. H., Box 1, Verona, Ky.

J. C. Hankins, of the Hopeful neighborhood, visited the poultry show at Cincinnati, a few days since, and purchased the premium trio of White Wyandotts. They scored from 93½ to 94½.

It was several days after the cold weather before the English sparrows were as frisky as usual. Probably they were busy attending the funerals of those that were frozen, during the period of sadness.

A large crowd attended Jas. Keating's sale, last Thursday afternoon, and every thing sold well. One bull and 12 cows brought $340, being an average of $25 15 per head. One horse brought $17; sheep, $6 per head.

Harold, Bert Gaines and wife's oldest child, had a narrow escape from being badly scalded, one day last week. He ran against a cup of hot water the cook had in her hands, some of the water being spilled on the child.

In another column will be found a call on E. B. Morse, of Constance, to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative. As the call shows Mr. Morse is a very popular gentleman in his precinct.

Miss Mary Thompson was compelled to move her school to rooms at the Boone House, last Wednesday, on account of the great number of hemipterious vermine that infested the building in which she was teaching.

Lung Irritation

is the forerunner to consumption. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey will cure it, and give such strength to the lungs that a cough or a cold will not settle there. Twenty-five cents at all good druggists.

The barn on the premises occupied by M. L. Swetnam, on the Lexington pike, below Erlanger, together with a bull and several cows, was burned Thursday morning. Loss about $1,500 and fully covered by insurance.

Nearly every time the RECORDER calls at the County Clerk's office it finds the clerk engaged in recording some instrument of writing prepared by J. G. Tomlin, of Walton. Such business as Tomlin make the clerks enjoy life.

Noah Clore and Geo. Blyth were on the horse market, last Wednesday. George traded a pair of mules for a pair of horses. Noah sold one horse and invested the proceeds of the sale in a nice bridle and saddle for his daughter.

NOTICE—I will offer at auction on Monday, March 6th, 1899, at the Court House door in Burlington, 2 miles.—Terms of sale—Negotiable bank note, 9 months credit without interest.
ERNEST L. GRANT.

We know of a coal merchant in Covington, who lost the sale of several loads of coal last week, because he had no ad. in the RECORDER notifying his friends here that he was in that business. We solicited their trade for him upon their second trip to that city for coal.

Coughed 25 Years.

I suffered 25 years with a cough, and spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and for medicine to no avail until I used Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. This remedy makes weak lungs strong. It has saved my life.—J. B. Rosell, Grandsburg, Ill.

Don't forget the oyster supper Saturday evening, February 25th, at the Hebron town hall. Program will consist of music and recitations. Some talent from the city is expected.

Chas. Voshell, of Sparta, Ind., came over one day last week, and purchased the noted stallion, Jim Crow, of Julius Rouse. Jim Crow has been in this neighborhood since 1892, and is the sire of many good, serviceable horses. His colts are very successful in the exhibition ring, and develop into good sized animals.

In the trial of Geo. Rosen against E. B. Morse, at Constance, before Esq. J. H. Walton and a jury, last Saturday, the jury found for the plaintiff. The action was for a forcible detainer, and the verdict will be traversed. Graziani & Riddell, for Rosen, and Clore & Tolin, for Morse.

You can imagine about how desperate the fuel situation was getting here, last week, as one team that was started for a load of fuel had orders to proceed to Pittsburg, if necessary, to procure a load of coal. As it was after midnight before that team returned the owner began to think the driver had gone to the Smoky City sure enough.

We are in receipt of the Courier-Journal Almanac for 1899. It is complete and correct, the statistics covering a multitude of subjects, and the information contained in the book is valuable and extensive. All the important facts regarding the Spanish war are presented in a convenient form. It is a valuable hand book. Price 25 cents.

Our Gasburg correspondent sends the following historial items: Ex-Gov. A. G. Porter, of Indiana, was born in the house now occupied by Lewis R. Terrill, near the Lawrenceburg ferry. Jim Lane, the notorious Kansas Jayhawker, who committed suicide while a member of the U. S. Senate from Kansas, was born in a house that stood about 200 yards from the Porter residence.

W. Lee Gaines, of Kensington, passed through town, Thursday, with several tons of hay for his stock he is keeping on his land out on the Petersburg pike, the provender provided for them last fall having been exhausted. Speaking of the price of corn he said he purchased, a few days before, 100 barrels of corn at $1 75 per barrel delivered.

A and B had a lot of apples in equal shares. Each put 20 bushels in his wagon and they started to market. A's wagon breaks down and B puts A's 20 bushels on his wagon and goes on to market, saying you take an extra 20 bushels to-morrow, and that will make us equal. They went to market the next day, A taking 40 and B 20 bushels. How did the accounts stand that night?

There is a great deal of speculation as to the extent the fruit has been injured—if there is any of it alive. Older one say that peach buds never stood 15 degrees below zero in previous years but they say the buds were in such a fine condition this year and it has been such a dry cold that there might be one chance in many that they will pull through. Much depends upon how rapidly the thaw follows.—Milton News.

W. H. Ratcliff, who had been in the Williamstown jail for six months, charged with forging a check on the Corith Deposit Bank, was acquitted in the Circuit Court at Williamstown, last week, as was also Harvey Sanders, who killed David Franks, at Crittenden on the 3d day of last April. John Wade, who killed Addison Peplar, in November, 1897, was giving 18 years in the penitentiary.

A provender syndicate, with C. L. Crisler at its head, was organized here one day last week, when Crisler was chosen as the purchasing agent and sent to the country to buy hay. He found a stack at William Clore's but it was too large for the syndicate's capital. He came home, and a meeting was called, new members admitted, and the capital stock increased to an amount large enough to pay for the stack.

The spring campaign of bad roads is now about due, and some localities are threatened with the periodical attack of turnpike fever. This fever generally prevails in a locality every spring for about thirty consecutive years before it develops into anything serious, and there are several neighborhoods in this county that have been subject to these annual attacks for nearly one quarter of a century, and it is about time for roads to begin to materialize.

"The tobacco market," says the Western Tobacco Journal, "has shown more strength the past week than has been the case since the holidays; bidding has been active on all grades of new, and especially on the colory grades, caused by the competition between the redryers' and manufacturers' agents. The best grades have received more attention and an advance can be quoted on these goods. One hogshead of fancy new brought the high price of 22 cents at the Morris House. Medlums are about the same, although the bidding was more active."

Hiram Long filed his petition in bankruptcy in the United States Court in Covington, last Friday. His schedule shows $8,771 assets while the list of claims against him amounts to $14,819.- of which, claims to the amount of $8,128, he will contest, and says he will defeat. This bankrupt proceeding, it is claimed, puts all the creditors on equal footing, having wiped out all liens by reason of the attachment suits. If Mr. Long can reduce his indebtedness to the extent he says he can, and his property brings the amount he has valued it at, he will be able to pay out. G. G. Hughes attorney for Long.

In an Irish chain quilt of 80 squares, made 40 of two kinds. One kind of square is made up of 25 patches or minor squares, the other is made up of 16 of the minor squares, surrounding another patch, which is solid and is equal in size to nine of the minor squares. Now each minor square has on an average 17 stiches in places 0 on each of its sides, excepting, of course, around the outside of the quilt. When the quilt is joined it is eight squares wide and ten long. Without reckoning the binding or quilting, let some one, who is apt in figures, tell how many stiches are in the quilt. The 80 squares are all of the same size.

Miss Patty Revill celebrated her ninth birth day, last Thursday.

Miss Fannie Finch is visiting her grandparents in Williamstown.

Dr. Furnish and wife and Mrs. J. C. Revill were shopping in the city, Monday.

A. M. Thomas, our worthy Florence correspondent, made us a pleasant call, Monday.

Rev. G. W. Watkins and B. F. Hood, of Constance, made us a brief call, last Monday.

Mrs. Frank Smith, left here last Saturday afternoon, for her home in St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Lewis Rice, one of the thrifty citizens of the Richwood neighborhood, was in town, Thursday.

Mrs. C. C. Roberts has been visiting her relatives in the Walton and Verona neighborhoods for a week.

James Gaines and wife, of the Flickertown suburbs, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Smith, Thursday.

Rupert Rogers, of Walton, came down one day last week, to bring a load of provender to the county Judge.

Mrs. J. E. Duncan and Mrs. E. L. Riley, of the Bullittsville neighborhood, were guests of Mrs. W. C. Brown, last Thursday.

Miss Susie Roberts who has been attending the Walton Academy is at home, having quit school until better weather comes.

We hear that the venerable newspaper man, and our worthy correspondent at Walton, G. M. Casey, is threatened with grippe.

Mr. B. C. Tanner, of Gunpowder, was in town Monday, closing the trade with H. O. Brown for the land that descended to him from the Enos Tanner estate.

Mr. White and son, who lives near the Lawrenceburg ferry, were in town, last Thursday. It was their first visit to the capital since they became citizens of the county, which was only a few weeks since.

Mrs. J. M. Lassing and Masters Warren and Robert, were visiting in the Union neighborhood, last Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. H. C. Lassing and children, of Nashville, Tennessee, have been visiting in that neighborhood for a week or more.

Miss Edna Cowen entertained the following friends from Hebron, last Thursday evening: Misses Lizzie Die, Grace Bullock, Clara Hoseman, Mary Riddell, and Messrs. James and Woodford Bullock, and Walter and Norris Riddell. Crokinole and Caroms were the games indulged in.

O. J. Ryle was over on Gaines' reservoir, one day last week, with the boys, and they do say he cut pigeon wings equal to any of the skaters, but he had to be lifted from his bed in a sheet the next morning, and it took several hours' rubbing to get his joints sufficiently lubricated for him to be able to walk up in town.

Wm. Houston, who keeps the toll-gate on the Florence pike, near Burlington, went to town one of those cold days, and came very near freezing before he reached home at night. Before he got home he had ceased to feel the effects of the cold, and was experiencing a stupor, and was unconcerned about going to the fire. He could not have traveled many miles further.

The following is the opinion of the court of Appeals in the case of Henry Feltman against Simeon E. Terrill, &c:

Appellant procured a judgment against S. E. Terrill and his father G. W. Terrill, the latter being surety in the debt, and had an execution levied on certain personal property of his debtors, and on a tract of some 130 acres of land belonging to the son.

When it was about to be sold, the wife of S. E. Terrill, began to assert an interest in the land by reason of certain of her money having been put in it, and the husband also claimed a homestead. Under these circumstances the father who as we have seen, was bound for the Feltman debt and was entirely solvent or supposed to be, concluded to buy the land and visited Feltman who lived in an adjoining State to induce him to agree to let him buy it at private sale from his son, and give to Feltman his notes for the purchase price to the extent of the amount of his execution. Feltman's debt being secure as he conceived, he was reluctant to make the arrangement, but finally agreed to do so.

On the return of Terrill to Boone county where he lived and where the land was situated, the conveyance was duly made by S. E. and his wife to G. W. Terrill, the deed reciting as paid the sum of $2000.00 and reserving a purchase money lien for a note of the purchaser for $2900.00 to Feltman and to Mrs. Huey for $800.00.

The sum of $2000 was not in fact paid, but notes of $1000 each were executed and delivered by G. W. to his son and his wife for their claims on the land respectively.

Shortly thereafter G. W. Terrill died and his estate is probably insolvent. The 130 acre tract has been sold and it not bringing enough to pay the Feltman and Huey notes and the notes of S. E. Terrill and wife, the question of priority among these parties was presented to the chancellor, who held that Feltman having notice that these purchase money notes of $1000 each were in fact unpaid, stood on equal terms with the holders of them; and that Mrs. Huey having no such notice had a superior lien to all of them.

The correctness of this judgment is the only question presented on this appeal.

We are unable to agree with the chancellor in holding that Feltman had any such notice. No witness proves it or facts from which it can fairly be inferred. On the contrary, in addition to his own denial, the circumstances strongly corroborate the contention of Feltman that he had no such notice. The plain import of the transaction is that the son and wife waived any claim for a lien on the land as against those whose liens were expressly retained and agreed to take the unsecured notes of G. W. Terrill, who at the time was good and solvent.

The proof in contradiction of the import of the transaction on its face, ought to be satisfactory and convincing. Besides the circumstances surrounding the parties lead us to believe that Feltman agreed to the arrangement only as a matter of accommodation to them. It was only to give time to G. W. Terrill, who, it is admitted, agreed to pay Feltman's debt before all others. We think it was because of this agreement that the son and daughter-in-law did not reserve a lien on the land.

If it was shown that Feltman knew this sum of $2000 was in fact not paid the inference must still be indulged that there was a voluntary release of any claims for a lien therefor against Feltman.

We think Feltman and Mrs. Huey have superior liens over S. E. Terrill and wife, and for that reason the judgment is reversed for proceedings consistent herewith.

Orlando P. Schmidt and G. G. Hughes for appellant; S. W. Tolin, J. M. Lassing and Jno. S. Gaunt for appellees.

About 6 o'clock, Saturday evening the Buck town population was thrown in a fever of excitement by a pistol duel brought on between two of Buck's citizens by a quarrel over the shooting of a dog belonging to one of the principals in the affair. The pistol users were Henry (Bucks) Osborn and Luther Kirtler, jr., the latter being the owner of the dog that was lame and was supposed to have been shot by Osborn. In the fusillade Osborn fired three shots with a pistol and two with his shot gun, while Kirtley discharged his pistol three times. They proved themselves poor marksmen, only one shot taking effect, that striking Osborn in the forearm, making rather an ugly wound. Kirtley is under bond to appear for trial to-day (Wednesday.)

THE Oceanic, which was recently launched at Belfast, is the largest and heaviest ship ever made. She is 705½ feet long against the Great Eastern's 691 feet. Her gross tonnage is 17,000; the diameter of the propeller is 21 feet. She has taken 22 months to build, will cost nearly £1,000,000, and will carry 1,499 passengers and 394 of a crew.

SENATOR WILSON, of the Minnesota legislature, has introduced a bill which, if it becomes a law, will practically affect the pardoning of the Younger brothers, who robbed the bank of Northfield and killed a number of people in 1876. It is to amend the parole law of Minnesota so that prisoners sentenced for life and who may have served over 20 years in prison with a good record may be granted a parole without geographical limitations.

THE countess of Castellane, daughter of the late Jay Gould, has just moved into the palace in the avenue of the Bois de Boulogne, which has been in course of construction for several years. The stone employed is similar to that of the Arc de Triomphe and the marble came from Italy. The great feature will be the ball room, which occupies about a third of the area. This magnificent abode promises to be one of the sights of the French capital.

GOLD is not the only valuable discovery made in the new northwest. What are called "natural soap and paint mines" have been discovered in British Columbia. The "natural soap" is said to be handled exactly like ice, being cut out in blocks suitable for transportation. It is declared it will remove grease and dirt quicker than soap. The "mineral paint" is of such purity that it requires only roasting and pulverizing to prepare it for the market.

THE prince of Wales will benefit to the extent of $1,250,000 under the will of Baron Ferdinand Rothschild. A bequeat to that amount is left in the will to Mr. Alfred Rothschild, Baron Ferdinand's cousin, who already is a multimillionaire, and the suggestion is this sum is intended for the prince, to whom a legacy is not formally left, to obviate gossip about his financial affairs, which the prince detests. Under the English law a 10 per cent. legacy duty is chargeable to this b quest.

ONE of the most interesting and novel effects in the new drama at the Princess is the d monstration of mechanically produced hypnotism by means of the revolving crystal globe that gives its name to the piece. This globe, which is the latest invention of the French mesmerists, has such power that the actors and actresses on the stage have to exercise great care to keep their eyes away from it. There is no risk to the audience, as the globe is focused "up stage."

A TRAVELER, recently returned from the Ladrones, reports the existence of some strange things in the islands. "There is a fruit," says he, "the odor of which is so extremely offensive, that the average person who smells it can not be persuaded to taste it. The flavor, however, is most delicious. Another strange feature of the country is a flower that opens its petals at noon each day, remaining open but five minutes, then closing tightly, and remaining shut until noon the next day.

A MAN who has recently been under treatment at the Maine general hospital has lost his thumb from an injury that at first seemed very trivial. He was sharpening a pencil, drawing the knife toward him, when the blade slipped and inflicted a hardly noticeable cut on his thumb. After some days the wound became inflamed, and, as it continued to grow worse rather than better, he came from his home in the center of the state for surgical treatment. Every effort was made to save the thumb, but it finally had to be amputated.

THERE are half a dozen Felix Faures holding responsible positions in France, and this fact sometimes results in confusion, owing to the fact that the president's name is the same. A barriater of that name now uses the numerals IV in his signature. The mysterious numeral does not signify any dynastic claim, but merely indicates that he is the fourth of his family in direct descent who has received the baptismal name Felix as well as the patronymic Faure.

A NEW ice creeper has been invented. It consists of wire stretched back and forth across the sole of the shoe. Hooks to engage in the edge of the shoe are provided, and there are also sharp points on the bottom for the purpose of affording a firm footing on slippery surfaces. This creeper acts on the sole surface, while the usual type covers the heel, and in adjusting the former it is only necessary to slip it over the toe, and it is held in place by the tension of the spring wire of which it is made. It is the invention of a Sing Sing, N. Y., man.

THE Filipino is artistic and his clothing is clean—two tremendous strides toward civilization. The men do clever work in wood, silver and brass. Their old war knives are highly embellished. Their pottery is often picturesque, and the clothing of the women, made of the indigenous fiber that abounds throughout the islands, is picturesque and has a jaunty, attractive style, which their straight forms and exposed shoulders carry off well. The fiber is often woven as finely as silk, and some of the drawn work of the Filipino lace-makers is most exquisite and expensive.

FOR THE DRUMMERS.

Dr. Talmage Preaches to the Army of Commercial Travelers.

Cautions Them to Start Right on Their Journeys—Condemns Work on the Sabbath—The Duty of Employers.

In this discourse Dr. Talmage gives words of good cheer to commercial travelers and tells of their safeguards and their opportunities: text, Nahum 2:4, "The chariots shall rage in the streets; they shall justle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches; they shall run like the lightnings."

It has been found out that many of the arts and discoveries which we supposed were peculiar to our own age are merely the restoration of the arts and discoveries of thousands of years ago. I suppose that the past centuries have forgotten more than the present century knows. It seems to me that they must have known thousands of years ago, in the days of Nineveh, of the uses of steam and its application to swift travel. In my text I hear the rush of [illegible] the clang of [illegible] wheels and the jamming of the car couplings. "The chariots shall rage in the streets; they shall justle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches; they shall run like the lightnings."

Have you ever taken your position in the night far away from a depot along the track waiting to see the rail train come at full speed? At first you heard in the distance a rumbling like the coming of a storm; then you saw the flash of the headlight of the locomotive as it turned the curve; then you saw the wilder glare of the fiery eye of the train as it came plunging toward you; then you heard the shriek of the whistle that frenzied all the echoes; then you saw the hurricane dash of cinders; then you felt the jar of the passing earthquake and you saw the shot thunderbolt of the express train. Well, it seems that we can hear the passing of a midnight express train in my text, "The chariots shall rage in the streets; they shall justle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches; they shall run like the lightnings."

I halt the train long enought to get on board, and I go through the cars, and I find three-fourths of the passengers are commercial travelers. They are a folk peculiar to themselves, easily recognized, at home on all the trains, not startled by the sudden dropping of the brakes, familiar with all the railroad signals, can tell you what is the next station, how long the train will stop, what place the passengers take luncheon at, can give you information on almost any subject, are cosmopolitan, at home everywhere from Halifax to San Francisco. They are on the eight o'clock morning train, on the noon train, on the midnight train. You take a berth in a sleeping car, and either above you or beneath you is one of these gentlemen. There are 100.000 professed commercial travelers in the United States, but 500,000 would not include all those who are sometimes engaged in this service. They spend millions of dollars every day in the hotels and in the rail trains. They have their official newspaper organ. They have their mutual benefit association, about 4,000 names on the rolls, and have alrendy distributed more than $200,000 among the families of deceased members. They are ubiquitous, unique and tremendous for good or evil. All the tendencies of merchandise are toward their multiplication. The house that stands back on its dignity and waits for customers to come instead of going to seek bargain makers will have more and more unsalable goods on the shelf and will gradually lose its control of the markets, while the great, enterprising and successful houses will have their agents on all the trains, and "their chariots will rage in the streets, they shall justle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches; they shall run like the lightnings."

I think commercial travelers can stand a sermon of warm-hearted sympathy. If you have any words of good cheer for them, you had better utter them. If you have any good, honest prayers in their behalf, they will be greatly obliged to you. I never knew a man yet who did not like to be prayed for. I never knew a man yet that did not like to be helped. It seems to me this sermon is timely. At this season of the year there are tens of thousands of men going out to gather the spring trade. The months of Februnry and Mnrch in all our commercial establishments are very busy months. In a few dnys our national perplexities will be settled, and then look out for the brightest ten years of national prosperity which this country has ever witnessed. All our astute commercial men feel that we are standing at the opening gate of wonderful prosperity. Let the manufacturers put the bands on their wheels, and the merchants open a new set of account books in place of those filled with long columns of bad debts. Let us start on a new commercial campaign. Let us drop the old tune of "Naomi," and take up "Ariel" or "Antioch."

Now you, the commercial traveler, have received orders from the head men of the firm that you are to start on a long excursions. You have your patterns all assorted and prepared. You have them put up in bundles or cases and marked. You have full instructions as to prices. You know on what prices you may retreat somewhat. You have your valise or trunk, or both, packed. If i were a stranger, I would have no right to look into that valise, but as I am your brother, I will take the liberty. I look into the valise, and I congratulate you on all these comfortable articles of apparel. The seasons are so changeable you have not taken a single precaution too many. Some night you will get out in the snow bank and have to walk three or four miles until you get to the railroad station, and you will want all these comforts and conveniences. But will you excuse me if I make a suggestion or two about this valise? You say: "Certainly: as we are having a plain, frank talk I will not be offended at any honorable suggestion."

Put in among your baggage some carefully-selected, wholesome reading. Let it be history, or a poem, or a book of pure fiction, or some volume that will give you information in regard to your line of business. Then add to that a Bible in round, beautiful type—small type is bad for the eyes anywhere, but peculiarly killing in the jolt of a rail train. Put your railroad guide and your Bible side by side—the one to show you the route through this world and the other to show you the route to the next world. "Oh," you say, "that is superfluous, for now in all the hotels, in the parlor, you will find a Bible, and in nearly all the rooms of the guests you will find one!" But, my brother, that is not your Bible. You want your own hat, your own coat, your own blanket, your own Bible. "But," you say, "I am not a Christian, and you ought not to expect me to carry a Bible." My brother, a great many people are not Christians who carry a Bible. Besides that, before you get home you might become a Christian, and you would feel awkward without a copy. Besides that, you might get bad news from home. I see you with trembling hand opening the teiegram, saying: "George is dying," or "Fannie is dead; come home!" Oh, as you sit in the train, stunned with the calamity, going home, you will have no taste for fine scenery, or for conversation, and yet you must keep your thoughts employed or you will go stark mad. Then you will want a Bible whether you read it or not. It will be a comfort to have it near you—that book full of promises which have comforted other people in like calamity. Whether you study the promises or not, you will want that Book near you. Am I not wise when I say put in the Bible?

Now, you are all ready to start. You have your valise in the right hand and you have your blanket and shawl strap in the left hand. Good-by! May you have a prosperous journey, large sales, great percentages. Oh, there is one thing I forgot to ask you about—what train are you going to take? "Well," you say, "I will take the five o'clock Sunday afternoon train." Why? "Oh," you say, "I shall save a day by that, and on Monday morning I will be in the distant city in the commercial establishment by the time the merchants come down!" My brother, you are starting wrong. If you clip off something from the Lord's day, the Lord will clip off something from your lifetime successes. Sabbath breaking pays no better for this world than it pays for the next.

Young man, the dollar that you earn on the Sabbath is a red-hot dollar, and if you put it into a bag with 5,000 honest dollars that red-hot dollar will burn a hole through the bottom of the bag and let out all the 5,000 honest dollars with it.

But you have come now near the end of your railroad travel. I can tell by the motion of the car that they are pulling the patent brakes down. The engineer rings the bell at the crossing. The train stops. "All out!" cries the conductor. You dismount from the train. You reach the hotel. The landlord is glad to see you—very glad! He stretches out his hand across the registry book with all the disinterested warmth of a brother! You are assigned an apartment. In that uninviting apartment you stay only long enough to make yourself presentable. You descend then into the reading-room, and there you find the commercial travelers sitting around a long table with a great elevation in the center covered with advertisements, while there are inkstands sunken in the bed of the table, and scattered all around rusty steel pens and patches of blotting paper. Of course you will not stay there. You saunter out among the merchants. You present your letters of introduction and authority. You begin business. Now, let me say, there are two or three things you ought to remember. First, that all the trade you get by the practice of "treating" will not stick. If you cannot get custom except by tipping a wine glass with somebody, you had better not get his custom. An old commercial traveler gives as his experience that trade got by "treating" always damages the house that gets it in one way or the other.

Again, I charge you, tell the whole truth about anything you sell. Lying commercial travelers will precede you. Lying commercial travelers will come right after you into the same store. Do not let their unfair competition tempt you from the straight line. It is an awful bargain that a man makes when he sells his goods and his soul at the same time. A young man in one of the stores of New York was selling some silks. He was binding them up when he said to the lady customer: "It is my duty to show you that there is a fracture in that silk." She looked at it and rejected the goods. The head man of the firm, hearing of it, wrote to the father of the young man in the country, saying: "Come and take your son away. He will never make a merchant." The father came in agitation, wondering what his boy had been doing, and the head man of the firm said: "Why, your son stood here at this counter and pointed out a fracture in the silk, and of course the lady wouldn't take it. We are not responsible for the ignorance of customers. Customers must look out for themselves, and we look out for ourselves. Your son will never make a merchant." "Is that all?" said the father. "Ah! I am prouder of my boy than I ever was. John, get your hat and come home."

But it is almost night, and you go back to the hotel. Now comes the mighty tug for the commercial traveler. Tell me where he spends his evenings, and I will tell you where he will spend eternity, and I will tell you what will be his worldly prospects. There is an abundance of choice. There is your room with the books. There are the Young Men's Christian association rooms. There are the week night services of the Christian churches. There is the gambling saloon. There is the theater. There is the house of infamy. Plenty of places to go to. But which, O immortal man, which? O God, which? "Well," you say, "I guess I will—I guess I will go to the theater." Do you think the tarrying in that place until 11 o'clock at night will improve your bodily health or your financial prospects or your eternal fortune? No man ever found the path to usefulness or honor or happiness or commercial success or Heaven through the American theater. "Well," you say, "I guess, then, I will go to—I guess I will go to the gambling saloon." You will first go to look. Then you will go to play. You will make $100, you will make $500, you will make $1,000, you will make $1,500—then you will lose all. Then you will borrow some money so as to start anew. You will make $50, you will make $200, you will make $600—then you will lose all. These wretches of gambling saloon know how to tempt you. But mark this—all gamblers die poor. They may make fortunes—great fortunes—but they lose them.

"Well," you say, "if I can't go to the theater, and if I can't go to the gambling saloon, then I guess—I guess I will go to the house of infamy." Commercial travelers have told me that in the letter box at the hotel within one hour after their arrival they have had letters of evil solicitation in that direction. It is far away from home. Nobody will know it. Commercial travelers have sometimes gone in that evil path. Why not you? Hait! There are other gates of ruin through which a man may go and yet come out, but that gate has a spring lock which snaps him in forever. He who goes there is damned already. He may seem to be comparatively free for a little while, but he is only on the limits, and the satanic police have their eyes upon him to bring him in at any moment.

The hot curse of God is on that crime, and because of it there are men whose heaven was blotted out ten years ago. There is no danger that they be lost. They are lost now. I look through their glaring eyeballs down into the lowest cavern of hell! Oh, destroyed spirit, why comest thou in here to-day? Dost think I have the power to break open the barred gateway of the penitentiary of the damned? There is a passage in Proverbs I somewhat hesitate to read, but I do not hesitate long. "At the window of my house I looked through my casements and beheld among the simple ones, I discerned among the youths, a young man void of understanding, passing through the street near her corner, and he went the way to her house, in the twilight, in the evening, in the black and dark night. He goeth after her straightway, as an ox goeth to the slaughter, or as a fool to the correction of the stocks, till a dart strikes through his liver."

But now the question is still open. Where will you spend your evening? Oh, commercial travelers, how much will you give me to put you on the right track? Without charging you a farthing I will prescribe for you a plan which will save you for this world and the next if you will take it. Go before you leave home to the Young Men's Christian association of the city where you live. Get from them letters of introduction. Carry them out to the towns and cities where you go. If there be no association in the place you visit, then present them at the door of Christian churches and hand them over to the pastors. Be not slow to arise in the devotional meeting and say: "I am a commercial traveler. I am far away from home, and I come in here to-night to seek Christian society." The best houses and the highest style of amusement will open before you, and instead of your being dependent upon the iepsous crew who hang around the hotels, wanting to show you all the alums of the city on the one condition that you will pay their expenses, you will get the benedletion of God in every town you visit. Remember this, that whatever place you visit bad influences will seek you out. Good influences you must seek out.

O commercial travelers, I pray for you the all sustaining grace of God! There are two kinds of days when you are especially in need of Divine grace. The one, the day when you have no success—when you fail to make a sale, and you are very much disappointed, and you go back to your hotel discomfited. That night you will be tempted to go to strong drink and rush into bad surroundings. The other day when you will especially need Divine grace will be when you have a day of great success and the devil tells you you must go and celebrate that success. Then you will want the grace of God to restrain you from rollicking indulgences. Yes, there will be a third day when you will need to be Christians, and that will be the last day of your life. I do not know where you will spend it. Perhaps in your house, more probably in a rail car, or a steamer, or the strange hotel. I see you on your last commercial errand. You have bidden good-by to the family at home for the last time. The train of your earthly existence is nearing the depot of the grave. The brakes are failing. The bell rings at the terminus. The train stops. All out for eternity. Show your ticket now for getting into the gates of the shining city—the red ticket washed in the blood of the Lamb.

INVESTIGATING ARMY BEEF.

If Gen. Miles Fails to Prove His Charges He May Be Court-Martialed—The Inquiry Begun in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The beef inquiry began Friday and the court has decided on its method of procedure. Any one whose course of action is in any way involved before the court has the right to be represented by counsel.

This will allow the beef concerns or any other individuals or firms who may be concerned in the outcome to be represented by counsel, and it also permits Gen. Miles to have counsel. If Gen. Miles fails to prove the charges he has made he will unquestionably be court-martialed.

His failure to inform the government during a period of five months after which he had been informed by the chief surgeon on his staff that chemically treated beef was being served to the soldiers, greatly to their injury, has put Gen. Miles in a very peculiar position. If he proves his charges it will be a serious matter for some other officials, and if he fails to prove them there is hardly a doubt that a court-martial will follow. Gen. Miles has prepared a bundle of documents containing reports from military officers, which he will present to the committee.

It was learned Friday afternoon that the court has practically determined to visit the packing houses in western cities from which beef was furnished. The pilgrimage will take in Chicago, South Omaha, Kansas City and perhaps St. Louis.

Some of the officers whose reports Gen. Miles has placed with the court are now in the Philippines. Their testimony will not be sought. Of course they could not be ordered here, and the taking of their depositions would be attended with too much delay and inconvenience. It was pointed out by a member of the court that their testimony would be cumulative, and, therefore really unnecessary since it would be in accord generally with what would come from officers who are accessible.

The depositions of a number of officers now in Cuba will be taken.

The court will meet at 10:30 Saturday morning and resume behind closed doors the work of mapping out the plan of proceedure and preparing the list of witnesses to be summoned.

M'KINLEY'S CONDOLENCE.

Ambassador Porter Requested to Convey to the Family of the Late President Faure His Heartfelt Sympathy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The following was cabled at midnight Thursday night:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, Feb. 16: Porter, Ambassador, Paris,—The president of the United States desires you to convey to the family of the late president of the French republic the expression of his heartfelt sympathy in their irreparable bereavement. The whole world mourns the loss of one of its greatest statesmen, and this country has an especial share in the sorrow of her sister republic.

(Signed) JOHN HAY.

The secretary of state also indicted a personal letter to M. Thiebut, charge of the French embassy here, expressive of his sentimenta of the occasion.

SUCCUMBED TO EXPOSURE.

Estimated Loss on Cattle and Sheep in Colorado Caused by the Recent Storm $200,000—Wyoming's Loss.

DENVER, Col., Feb. 18.—The estimate of losses to the cattle and sheep interests, caused by the recent storms in Colorado, made by State Veterinarian Charles Gresswell, based on reports received during the past week, reach a total of $200,000. He figures that 4,300 head of cattle have succumbed to exposure to the heavy storms on the open ranges which were continuous for nearly a month. In addition to this he places the losses to the sheep industry at 47,500 head. Mr. Gresswell is also in receipt of information to the effect that a large number of sheep and cattle were killed in Wyoming and northern New Mexico at the same time, but he has no data from which to base an estimate.

Predicted His Own Death.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 18.—Rev. Father William H. Judge, prominent missionary in Alaska, died at Dawson, January 16. He was born in Baltimore, Md., and held chairs in Woodstock and Georgetown colleges. His death occurred on his birthday and was prophesied by him.

Married in Jail.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Giovanni Leroy, described as a son of an Austrian count, was married to Maria La Porte in the White Plains jail, where he is confined for horse stealing.

"Evil Dispositions Are Early Shown."

Just so evil in the blood comes out in shape of scrofula, pimples, etc., in children and young people. Taken in time it can be eradicated by using Hood's Sarsaparilla. In older people, the aftermath of irregular living shows itself in bilious conditions, a heavy head, a foul mouth, a general bad feeling.

It is the blood, the impure blood, friends, which is the real cause. Purify that with Hood's Sarsaparilla and happiness will reign in your family.

Blood Poison—"I lived in a bed of fire for years owing to blood poisoning that followed small pox. It broke out all over my body, itching intensely. Tried doctors and hospitals in vain. I tried Hood's Sarsaparilla. It helped. I kept at it and was entirely cured. I could go on the housetops and shout about it." MRS. J. T. WILLIAMS, Carbondale, Pa.

HE DID NOT HAVE IT.

How a Jostling Judge Salted Down a Delightfully Fresh Young Man.

William Lightfoot Visscher tells this characteristic story of Hon. Isaac Parker, famous as the terrible judge at Fort Smith, Ark., who probably sentenced more men to be executed than any other judge that ever lived. This was not, however, because he was so unrelentingly severe, but because he had the hardest and most numerous lot of criminals to deal with that ever came within the jurisdiction of such an official. One day when there was an unusually large batch of culprits to be sentenced, the judge looked compassionately over his spectacles at one young seamp, and said:

"In consideration of the youth and inexperience of this prisoner I shall let him off with a fine of $50—"

Before the judge had done speeking the very fresh young man coolly stretched his right leg and ran his hand into his trousers' pocket on one side, remarking nonchalantly as he did so:

"That's all hunky, judge; I've got that much right here in my jeans."

"And one year in the penitentiary," concinded the judge. Then looking over at the convict in a quizzical sort of way, he added: "Do you happen to have that in your jeans?"—Womsn's Home Compsnion.

Obstacles.

"Ha, ha!" laughed Desdemona, derisively. "Do your worst!"

For, it being a one-night stand, the pillow borrowed from the hotel certainly wasn't large enough to smother mybody.

"Think not to escape me, wretched woman!" cried Othello, deftly felling her with a chunk of cord wood.

IS YOUR HAIR TURNING GRAY?

What does your mirror say? Does it tell you of some little streaks of gray? Are you pleased? Do your friends of the same age show this loss of power also?

Just remember that gray hair never becomes darker without help, while dark hair rapidly becomes gray when once the change begins.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

will bring back to your hair the color of youth. It never fails. It is just as sure as that heat melts snow, or that water quenches fire.

It cleanses the scalp also and prevents the formation of dandruff. It feeds and nourishes the bulbs of the hair making them produce a luxuriant growth. It stops the hair from falling out and gives a fine soft finish to the hair as well.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp which you may obtain free upon request.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the Doctor fully.

RIOTS IN PARIS.

Demonstrations in Different Parts of the French Capital on Sunday.

Several Persons Were Injured in the Melee—Partisans of the New President Were Worsted in the Conflict—One Hundred Arrests Were Made.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—Police measures for the maintenance of order have been taken on an extensive scale, and the city is now quiet. M. Loubet did not quit his residence at the Luxembourg until 6 o'clock Sunday evening.

Toward 7 o'clock demonstrations occurred in front of the office of Sebastian Faure's anarchist paper, the Journal du Peuple, on the Boulevard Montmartre, for and against Loubet. There was a collision between the rival factions and several persons were injured. The partisans of the newly-elected president were worsted in the conflict, and moved off to the Cafe Broba, where they were again attacked and dispersed by their opponents. Many arrests were made. Similar encounters occurred at about 9 o'clock at the offices of the Libre Parole, and more serious disorders at the Brasserie Monaco, on the Boulevard Montmartre, where several women were injured.

A fracas also took place at the Cafe Des Panoramas, where blows were freely exchanged. In both cases the police intervened energetically, arresting many.

At 11 o'clock an enormous crowd was demonstrating in favor of M. Zola.

Toward midnight crowds broke the windows of the Rothschild's offices in the Rue Lafitte and another group wrecked the offices of the anti-Juif.

Minor disturbances took place in various parts of the city, but the crowds gradually dispersed, and at midnight quiet had been almost restored.

Monday M. Dupuy, premier, will ask the chamber of deputies to vote 26,400 for the obsequies to M. Faure. This was the amount voted for President Carnot's funeral. President Loubet following the precedent set by President Casimer-Perier, will attend the obsequies.

M. Loubet will preside at the first cabinet council of the new administration on Tuesday.

Altogether 100 arrests have been made in connection with Sunday's disturbances. There is every sign of a campaign against President Loubet similar to that which drove M. Casimer-Perier to resign. Clearly La Patrie Francais will leave no stone untured to achieve this object, its chief ground of objection being that the president is a Dreyfusard. The street demonstrations which have occurred have not been spontaneous but were evidently organized and so far they have been easily suppressed.

It is affirmed that the Dupuy cabinet will act energetically to maintain public order.

The keynote of M. Loubet's policy may probably be found in the following conversation with M. Bourgeois, leader of the moderate radicals, who came to offer to the new president the support of his party. Before accepting it, M. Loubet said: "You are doubtless aware that one of the first enactments of any ministry of mine will be a stringent law to stem the current of insult, infamy and defamation which now befouls France. I fear that perhaps legislation of this kind will scarcely tally with the radical ideas."

M. Bourgeois' answer was a cheerful acquiescence.

Her Frischauer, the correspondent here of the Neue Free Presse, has been expelled from the country.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail described the scenes at the Versailles election as a "Donnybrook fair, with a touch of tragedy therein—the tragedy of a newly chosen ruler attempting to ignore his own unpopularity and smilingly returning thanks for congratulations."

"I believe," says the correspondent, "that the riotous scenes in Paris are only a forecast of what is coming. Saturday night the boulevards were battlefields and nowhere was a voice to glorify the new president. Sunday the press was uncommonly rancorous. Here are some of the titles of honor conferred upon Loubet: 'Imbecile,' 'Panamaist,' 'Wretch,' 'Liard,' 'Perjurer' and 'Avowed Protector of the Dreyfusards.'"

A Shirt Company Fails.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., Feb. 20.—The Leominster Shirt Co. has made an assignment to D. Curtis Nickerson. The liabilities are $150,000, the heaviest creditors being New York parties. The company was started 18 years ago and had branch offices in Boston, Chicago and San Francisco.

A Cat Carried the Disease.

FINDLAY, O., Feb. 20.—An epidemic of scarlet fever exists in the Bigelow school district in this city, and the board of health has made the discovery that the epidemic was started by a cat which was afflicted with the disease coming to the home of the first victim. There are eight cases in the district.

A Heavy Fire Loss.

WICHITA, Kas., Feb. 20.—Fire wiped out the business portion of Hunnewell, Kas. Ten buildings with contents were burned. The loss is heavy.

A COSTLY CONFLAGRATION.

Large Chair Factory and Other Property at Fort Washington, Wis., Burned—Loss Over $300,000—600 Men Out of Work.

PORT WASHINGTON, Wis., Feb. 20.—Fire, which started at 9:30 o'clock Sunday night in the large plant of the Wisconsin Chair Co., threatened to destroy the whole town. Help was summoned from Milwaukee and Sheboygan. At 11:30 Sunday night the chair factory was a total loss. This plant alone is valued at $300,000 and employs 600 hands. A large lumber yard adjoins and the flames are spreading with great rapidity. A second engine started from Milwaukee at 11:30 o'clock.

At 1 a. m. Monday the Wilson house, the largest hotel in town, caught fire. The flames leaped across the river to an unoccupied foundry formerly operated by the Western Malleable Iron Co. and soon reduced it to ashes, together with a large number of fish shanties. Two engines were sent from Milwaukee and one from Sheboygan.

A row of business establishments on Maine and Franklin streets were burned, but the individual losses were small. It is believed the flames will be confined to the section now afire.

RIOT IN A CHICAGO THEATER

Two Thousand Men, Women and Children Took Pr... Chairs and C... Were Broken and Carpets Torn Up.

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—A riot, in which 2,000 men, women and children took part, occurred Sunday afternoon at the Star theater, Sedwick and Division streets, and before the police arrived the interior of the theater had been badly damaged. Scenery which was to have been used in the presentation of a play had been tied up by legal proceedings and after the audience had waited until 4:30 p. m. for the curtain to be up, many began to clamor for the return of their money. They were refused at the box office and two minutes afterward chairs were broken in pieces and hurled at the stage, chandeliers were broken, carpets were torn up and the theater and sidewalk outside was one mass of fighting, yelling humanity. The clanging of the patrol-wagon bells scattered the crowd in a hurry however. Later in the afternoon the money was refunded to those who presented their coupons.

BEAT PREVIOUS RECORDS.

Burlington Fast Mail Train Exceeded 100 Miles an Hour for Several Spurts Between Chicago and Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 20.—The westbound Burlington fast mail train Saturday beat all previous records between the two cities. The train left Chicago Friday evening at 10:47, being detained by the eastern connections. The train was an unusually heavy one, carrying the accumulated mail delayed in the east. The weight of the mail in the cars is estimated at 250 tons. The best time was made between Chicago and Burlington, when it exceeded 100 miles per hour for several spurts. The actual elapsed time between Chicago and Omaha was nine hours and 14 minutes, actual running time, taking out stops, eight hours and 44 minutes for the 502 miles. The best previous record was the eastbound mail on the Burlington, January 2, nine hours, 23 minutes, and a Northwestern special last summer, nine hours and 20 minutes.

THIRTY PERSONS KILLED.

Frightful Collision Between Trains Near Brussels—Engineer Did Not See Signals Owing to the Fog.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 20.—An express train from Calais, having passengers from London on board, collided Saturday with a stationary train at Foret, near this city. Thirty persons were killed outright and 50 were more or less injured.

The train left Tournai at 5:22 Saturday morning and reached Foret at 8:14. Immediately afterward the Mons express dashed at full speed into the station and ran into the Tournai, which was standing at the platform.

It is said that, owing to the fog, the engineer of the express train did not see the signals.

The collision was appalling. The express locomotive mounted on top of the last of the carriages of the Tournai train, which were filled with passengers. These cars were smashed to pieces.

Brewer Philip Zang Dead.

DENVER, Col., Feb. 20.—Philip Zang, the veteran brewer, died Saturday of dropsy, after two months' illness. He was born in the neighborhood of Aschaffenburg, Bavaria, February 15, 1826. He came to America in 1843 and founded a brewing business in Louisville, Ky. In 1869 he took the management of a small brewery in Denver, which has grown to the present large Zang establishment.

Senator Ross, of Vermont, is a man of punctual habits. When offered the appointment to succeed Senator Morrill he said he would allow himself half an hour to think it over. He shut himself up in his library for 30 minutes, at the close of which time he made his decision. In 36 hours he was on his way to Washington.

The best-dressed, most up-to-date women have discarded jewelry almost entirely for day wear, but gems of all kinds and grades of magnificence glitter in profusion in the evening.

STEP BACKWARD

The American Troops Retire From Guadaloupe Church.

The Advancing Insurgents Burn the Edifice—Gens. Pelar and Montenegro Conducting the Work of the Filipinos, Concentrating East of Manila.

MANILA, Feb. 20—5:33 p. m.—The heat was very oppressive Friday, and the troops, especially those who are compelled to work in the open, have been affected. It will probably be warmer from now on until the rainy season.

The rebels have been concentrating south of the Pasig river, in front of Brig. Gen. Ovenshine's lines, on the right, all day long. The country in the vicinity is a particularly thick jungle, extending for miles. The scouts report that the rebels are apparently coming from Laguna and Cavite provinces. The Americans are strongly intrenched from the beach to the Pasig.

MANILA, Feb. 20.—The California volunteers abandoned Guadalupe church at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, which has since been set on fire, and retired to San Pedro Macati. The rebels still hold the country in the vicinity of Guadalupe, Pasig and Patero, despite the efforts of the gunboats to dislodge them from the jungle on both sides of the river.

The heat is intense and is increasing perceptibly daily. Under present conditions it is impossible to provide shade for the troops in certain parts of the line, particularly McArthur's division. King's brigade is also exposed from San Pedro Macati to Cuiicuil, where it joins Ovenshine's brigade.

FOUR ASPHYXIATED BY GAS.

Mrs. Charles Fahrenkamp, Her Two Children and an Unknown Woman Found Dead in Their House in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Chas. Fahrenkamp, aged 33; her two children, Florence and William, aged respectively 10 and 9 years, and an unknown woman, aged 35 years, were found dead Sunday in a room in Mrs. Fahrenkamp's home, 1416 North Fifty-second street. The gas was turned on and life had apparently been extinct for several days. Scattered about the first floor were remnants of cigars and cigarettes and empty beer and whisky bottles. The bodies were found by a next door neighbor who had forced an entrance to the house. Mrs. Fahrenkamp was lying on the floor and her daughter nearby. The unknown woman and the boy were in bed. The last heard from the inmates of the house was on Thursday night, when the piano was kept playing until a late hour. On Friday morning Mrs. Wilson, living next door, was asked by Florence to assist her in raising her mother from the floor where the child said she was sleeping. Mrs. Wilson told her she was unable to do so and suggested that the girl cover her mother and allow her to continue sleeping. The two women and the boy it is believed were then dead and from the position of the girl who occupied another room, it is thought that she was overcome by the gas while trying to lift her mother. Mrs. Fahrenkamp's husband, who is a traveling salesman, left home about a week ago on business for his firm.

BODY FLACED IN THE COFFIN

Remains of President Faure Prepared for the Grave—Twenty Thousand Persons Viewed the Body Saturday.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—It is estimated that 20,000 persons viewed M. Faure's body on Saturday. The family of the dead president spent some time in the presence of the body Sunday, prior to the touching ceremony of placing the remains in the coffin, which took place at noon. M. Dupuy stood at the foot of the catafalque while the deceased's military household marched in and took up a position behind the premier. MM. Berge, Legall and Blondel were also present. With tears in his eyes M. Berge cut a few locks of hair from M. Faure's head and kissed his left hand, an example which was followed by M. Legall and M. Blondel. Four mutes then gently raised the body and placed it within the coffin which was enclosed in a leaden sheil the cover of which was soldered down leaving a glass covered aperture through which the face of the dead president is visible.

Upon the silver plate on the casket is a simple inscription which describes the deceased as president of the republic and master of the Legion of Honor and gives the dates of his birth and death. After the ceremony of coffining the remains was completed the basket was replaced upon the catafalque and the public was again admitted to view the remains.

Cracker Trust Purchase.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 20.—It was given out Sunday night that the American Biscuit Co., known as the cracker trust, has absorbed the Hitz Baking Co., of this city, one of the largest independent concerns in the country. Mr. Hitz refuses to either confirm or deny the report.

Died of Heart Trouble.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Feb. 20.—Isaac Bethen, of Wheeling, a guest of Shofer's hotel, died suddenly at 4 o'clock Sunday morning of heart trouble.

DEATH OF PRESIDENT FAURE

Flood of Telegrams of Condolence Pour in From All Parts of the World—McKinley's Floral Tribute.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—The flood of telegrams of condolence from all parts of the world continues. Probably the most interesting are those of Emperor Nicholas, conveying his sorrow, and that of the czarina, President McKinley, representing the feeling of the sister republic, and Emperor William, praying that God would grant the widow strength to bear her sorrow.

Among the most noticeable wreaths is the kaiser's, composed of orchids and parmaviolets, bearing the monogram "W," surmoonted by the imperial crown. In sharp contrast to this are a couple of pretty bunches of flowers, with ribbons inscribed to "Our Friend and Ally" and bearing the visiting cards of the czar and czarina respectively.

The German colony in Paris has sent its sincere regrets to Madame Faure, with a beautiful wreath. Count Muravieff, the Russian foreign minister, has wired the Russian government's condolences to the French minister of foreign affairs, M. Delcasse.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Aside from the transmission of formal assurances of sorrow and sympathy, little further action by this government because of the death of President Faure will be taken. The president will probably instruct Minister Porter to present an appropriate floral tribute on behalf of the executive. This was done on the occasion of the death of the Empress of Austria, when the offering bore the writing, "From the president of the United States—A tribute to a noble woman." On the day of President Faure's funeral it is probable that a requiem mass will be said for the dead in one of Washington's churches, invitations to which will be sent to the president, the members of his cabinet, heads of departments and congress and representatives of foreign countries resident here. This was the case when former President Carnot, of France, was assassinated and when the empress of Austria recently died. The invitations in such cases are transmitted by the state department to the members of this government and the foreign representatives in Washington are invited through the diplomatic office of the bereaved country.

LOOKING TO A COMPROMISE.

A Movement Inaugurated by the Republicans to Patch Up the Army Reorganization Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—There was a pronounced movement in the senate Friday looking to a compromise on the army reorganization bill. The movement originated with several republican senators who advance the opinion that a compromise was preferable to an extra session of congress. The Cockrell bill was accepted by them as the first advance on the part of the democrats toward an understanding, and many felt that they would go farther in that direction in case the republicans should indicate a willingness to meet them half way. The movement grew wholly out of the desire to avoid a special session and was participated in by some of the republican leaders. When the matter was brought to the attention of Senator Hawley, chairman of the committee on military affairs, he gave it no countenance whatever, declaring that he was not willing to yield anything. He was critical of the Cockrell bill, finding especial fault with its provisions for natives of the new possessions in the American army. He announced his purpose to stand by his notice to call up the bill reported by the republican members and insist upon consideration on that basis and that only. Other republican members of the committee did not appear so decided. Senator Proctor, who does not support the house bill, is expected to return to the city Saturday and there will then be a majority of the committee antagonistic to the bill. The democratic senators generally assume an appearance of indifference.

THE SEVENTH ARMY CORPS.

Gov. Gen. Brooke Reviews the Command of Gen. Lee at Marianao—They Made a Good Showing.

HAVANA, Feb. 18.—Gov. Gen. Brooke reviewed the seventh army corps Friday afternoon at Marianao. The weather was fine, and the troops made a good showing. Gen. Brooke and his staff arrived from El Vedado at half past three, and were met by Maj. Gen. Lee, who accompanied them in a ride around the parade ground. About 14,000 troops marched past. The 7th cavalry regiment were the only regulars present. Many Cuban and American visitors were spectators of the review, which lasted two hours.

Will Receive a Severe Sentence.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Feb. 18.—Maj. Edward Wilson, of the 3d volunteer regiment of immunes, whose trial by court-martial on the charge of forgery and embezzlement is in progress, has pleaded guilty to altering records, and it is expected that a severe sentence will be imposed.

Badly Injured by Machinery.

AKRON, O., Feb. 18.—Charles Doubleday was caught in the machinery at the Falls River works Friday and received probably fatal injuries.

ON THE RETREAT.

The Americans Attacked While Retiring, But Drove the Rebels Back.

The Insurgents Are Massing in the Vicinity of Pateros—Some Are Coming From the North—The Insurgents Are Indignant.

MANILA, Feb. 16.—Several rebels Tuesday afternoon, having fired from houses bearing white flags on the American outposts, Col. Smith, with Companies L, D and M, of the California volunteers, proceeded to clean out the enemy along his front. The rebels opposed him from the brush and several skirmishes occurred, during which nine of the Californians were slightly wounded before the rebels were driven out.

The work proceeded Wednesday in a systematic manner, a gunboat shelling the villages and working her rapid-fire guns very effectively on the jungle. The entire California regiment, with the exception of two companies; four companies of the Washington regiment, two companies of the Idaho regiment and a battery of the 6th artillery were engaged. The rebels were driven towards Lake Laguna de Bayo. The rebels held their fire, apparently being short of ammunition, but they fought desperately.

The American outposts in this direction are now fully twelve miles. All is quiet along the rest of the line with the exception that an occasional exchange of shots between the sharpshooters breaks the monotony.

MANILA, Feb. 17.—There was another clash Thursday between the Americans and insurgents. Four companies of volunteers which had been driving back the rebels southeast of the city were followed in when they retreated. At San Pedro Macati the Americans made a stand near a churchyard. The rebels closed in and warm fighting ensued for some time. The Californians finally advanced and took a ridge commanding the valley of the river. A gunboat went as far as the Pasig and poured shells into the jungle, cleaning out the rebels.

American provost officers have received information to the effect that natives in the city are preparing for general uprisings, and to this end are spying out the location and number of the guards.

Armed insurgents to the number of 106 have been captured in a house in Binondo. A large quantity of arms, money, uniforma and incriminating papers were also seized.

The Americans were warned by a friendly Chinaman that the uprising was to take place Thursday night, and that several boat loads of rifles and machetes had been landed at Ermita. In accordance with the policy of Gen. Otis not to extend the lines about Manila any further at present, the front already being nearly 25 miles long, portions of the California and Washington regiments, the 4th cavalry and Lieut. Hawthorne's mountain battery, which were about to make a concerted attack on the insurgents below Pateros, were withdrawn Thursday afternoon to their former positions along the river. A thousand or 1,200 insurgents are reported to be massing in that vicinity. Some are coming from the north.

HONG KONG, Feb. 17.—There is a rumor here that Aguinaldo is ready to quit hostilities with the United States on a cash basis. This is indignantly denied by the Filipino junta, despite the fact that the insurgent chief made a similar deal with the Spaniards.

MANILA, Feb. 18.—Extraordinary precautions to prevent a threatened uprising of the natives in the city continue to be taken.

More arrests of suspected Filipinos have been made. The rebel depot raided at Binondo Wednesday adjoins the residence of Col. Funston, of the Kansas regiment.

The native crews of the steamers Gloria, Don Jose, San Joaquin, San Pedro and Saturnus have killed their Spanish officers and handed the vessels over to the insurgents. The steamers had been flying the American flag since the surrender.

To Improve the Buffalo Bayou.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 20.—The house of the Texas legislature has adopted a resolution indorsing the movement in Congress to secure an appropriation to make the Buffalo Bayou from Houston to the Gulf of Mexico navigable for deep draught ships, and urging the Texas members to give their hearty support to the appropriation, and secure its passage.

Ice Gorge Broke.

RACINE, O., Feb. 20.—The ice gorge in the Ohio broke between Pomeroy and Letard at 5 o'clock Saturday morning.

Bad Freeze In Mexico.

MONTERET, Mex., Feb. 20.—Reports from nearly all points in Northern Mexico show that the intense cold spell wrought hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of damage to fruit and vegetables. The orange and peach crops will be a total failure.

King Oscar's Health Restored.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The Daily Chronicle's Stockholm correspondent says that the health of King Oscar has been restored and that he has resumed the government amid general rejoicing.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—SENATE—Bills passed Monday: Creating an admiral of the navy; amending the statutes concerning the drawing off, gauging, marking and removal of spirits, so that spirits may be drawn off in packages smaller than barrels and put in five gallon cans for export purposes. The senate non-concurred in the house amendments to the bills granting pensions to Mrs. Semple, daughter of President Tyler, and Gen. John M. Palmer, and sent them to conference. Consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill was then begun.

HOUSE—In the house Monday a resumption of the discussion of the receipts and expenditures of the treasury, which attracted considerable attention last week, was again precipitated by Mr. Sulzer (dem., N. Y.), who offered figures as to the cost of the steamship subsidy bill. Mr. Cannon reiterated his statement of last week regarding the ship subsidy bill and the Nicaragua canal bill. Mr. Payne, chairman of the committee, reported the subsidy bill. After having completed 59 pages of the bill the committee rose, and at 4:55 p. m. the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—SENATE—The unanimous consent agreement reached by the senate Saturday was reached Tuesday afternoon on the resolution of Mr. McEnery (dem., La.) declaring a policy of this government in the Philippines was not vacated. In accordance with that agreement the vote was taken on the resolution at 2:30 Tuesday and it was adopted 25 to 22. It was noticeable that several democrats who were present and not paired refrained from voting. An amendment offered by Mr. Bacon (dem., Ga.) several days ago was defeated. The vote on the amendment was a tie, 29—29—and Vice President Hobart cast the deciding vote against the proposition.

HOUSE—The Nicaragua canal bill was offered in the house Tuesday afternoon as an amendment to the senate civil appropriation bill by Mr. Hepburn (Ia.), chairman of the committee that reported it, and the leaders on the respective sides are engaged in a fierce struggle which involves the fate of the measure at this session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—SENATE—In the senate Wednesday Mr. McEnery (La.), as a question of personal privilege, made emphatic denial of the statement that his resolution, adopted by the senate Tuesday was introduced in the interest of the sugar growers of Louisiana. A bill extending the "cordial appreciation" of congress to Miss Helen Miller Gould for patriotic services during the recent war and providing that the president should present to her a gold medal, was passed. After the executive session an effort was made to obtain an agreement to hold an evening session to read the Alaska code bill, but it failed.

HOUSE—The house Wednesday settled the fate of the Nicaragua canal bill in this congress by refusing to override the decision of the chair in committee of the whole, when the chair held that the canal bill, offered as an amendment by Mr. Hepburn, was out of order. The friends of the Nicaragua bill were very confident Tuesday and Wednesday that they would triumph, but after four hours of debate the chair was sustained, 127—105. Mr. Bailey, (dem.) democratic leader, made an argument in favor of the view that the amendment was in order.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—SENATE—The army reorganization bill was reported to the senate Thursday, and Mr. Hawley (Conn.), chairman of the military affairs committee, gave notice that he would move to proceed to its consideration at the earliest possible time. The naval personnel bill was taken up and read, but no effort made to proceed further with its consideration. The military academy appropriation bill was passed. The post office appropriation bill was under consideration during the greater part of the afternoon, but was day disposed of finally. A spirited debate occurred over the amendment of the senate committee providing for an appropriation to secure fast mail service between New York and Washington and Atlanta and New Orleans. The amendment was retained in the bill.

HOUSE—Two very sensational and unexpected things happened in the house Thursday during the consideration of the sundry civil bill. The paragraph carrying the appropriation of $20,000,000 for payment to Spain under the terms of the peace treaty was stricken out upon a point of order made by Mr. Wheeler (dem., Ky.), who declared that he opposed the appropriation on principle and would resort to any technicality to defeat it. The point of order was debated for hours, its determination hinging upon the question of whether the ratification of the treaty by the senate and its signing by the president vitalized it without the action of the Spanish cortes. Warrant of law was necessary to make the appropriation in order. Mr. Hopkins (rep., Ill.) who was in the chair, sustained the point of order against it, and on an appeal his decision was sustained, 146 to 84.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—SENATE—At its session Friday the senate adopted a resolution instructing the vice president of the United States, as president of the senate, to express to the government and the people of France the sympathy of the senate in the bereavement that has fallen upon the French republic in the death of President Faure. The naval personnel bill, for which the navy department has been contending for so many years, was passed by the senate Friday afternoon. It was under discussion for several hours, but was passed practically in the form in which it was reported by the senate committee. The remainder of the day's session was devoted to passage of bills on the private pension calendar. 74 in number, and to the reading of the Alaska code bill.

HOUSE—The house Friday finally passed the sundry civil appropriation bill to which it had devoted over a week. No important amendment had been adopted. The speaker's ruling upon a motion to recommit the bill, with instructions to incorporate in the Nicaragua canal amendment was sustained, 155 to 96. The naval appropriation bill was taken up and later half the bill was completed during the remainder of the day. There was no general opposition to the measure, although it carries $44,000,000, being $8,000,000 more than the last naval appropriation bill ever passed by congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—SENATE—The senate spent most of Saturday on the post office appropriation bill, but failed to complete it. After an animated discussion of the pneumatic tube system, Mr. Cullom's amendment increasing the appropriation for this purpose, and designed to extend the system to Chicago, was tabled. An echo of the old star route developments was heard when several senators criticised Mr. Smith severely for a combination of speculators secured the star route contracts. A number of bills of minor importance were passed early in the day. At 4 o'clock, tributes to the memory of the late Representative Simpkins, of Massachusetts, were pronounced.

HOUSE—The house Saturday spent two hours upon the naval appropriation bill without making any progress and devoted the remainder of the session to eulogies upon the life and public services of the late Representative Northway, of Ohio. The paragraph in the bill relating to the naval academy, against which Mr. Mudd (rep. Md.) raised a point of order Friday, was stricken out, the point of order being sustained. Mr. Mudd then moved an additional appropriation of $720,000 for the completion of the buildings at the academy authorized in the last naval bill. Without voting upon the amendment, the committee rose at 2 o'clock.

Buried Together.

CHILLICOTHE, O., Feb. 20.—Brother and sister, Mrs. Nancy Crouse and W. L. Brown, were buried together at Crouse's chapel Sunday afternoon, having died within a few hours of each other.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

CIRCLEVILLE, O., Feb. 20.—At a late hour Saturday night the jury in the case of Ohio vs. James Patton, colored, returned a verdict of manslaughter. He killed Verne Davis in a street brawl.

THE PHILIPPINE PROBLEM.

[By David A. Piatt.]

It is perfectly natural for freedom loving Americans to revolt at the idea of returning the Philippines to the Spanish oppressors: but mere retention does not necessarily imply annexation immediate or remote.

I feel certain that we have not the capacity, through administrative bureaus, to feed, educate and govern the Filipinos; but we do possess the capacity to assist them without the pre-encumbrance of an undersirable territory or people. It is certainly our privilege, in assisting them, to further our own interests to any extent short of interfering seriously with theirs.

I favor now, as I always have, a protectorate or something similar, until the Filipinos have acquired a capacity for self-government, when I advocate the withdrawal of America from administrative relations with the people of the Philippines, carrying with her such privileges as would, in their exercise tend to increase our trade in that portion of the globe, or in the event of the natives proving themselves desirable citizens and having expressed a desire for closer relations with us, I favor annexation. Such a course as I have outlined above is plainly our duty; but how often does duty triumph over desire.

"We have the building up of the nation's honor in our hands," say the expansionists. In the sense they apply the word, honor is a delusion and a snare. Diverse are the ideas of how honor is to be built up. My idea is that the highest honor that America could achieve would be to lift these benighted Filipinos to a higher plane of civilization; to aid them in establishing self-government, and does not consist in the wholesale confiscation of lands and curtailment of freedom. The noblest work of man is performed aiding his fellow men, and a true philantrophist does not lift a starving beggar from the streets in hopes of pecuniary reward. The hypocrits who are donning the robes of humanity are ambitious to be honored —to attain distinction above their fellows. They have yet to learn that it is better to be honorable than honored!

Is the voice of the people literally and truly the voice of God as the expansionists of the Frye stamp ars telling us? This is a question which cannot be successfully answered, yet I have no hesitancy in stating that if public opinion leads to the commission of any injustice in ths Philippines, it will not be the first case where the conquest of a weaker race has been made in the name of a God of humanity, love and mercy. Students of history need not be told this. They find it in the very first chapters of our own history. "Columbus discovered America," says one writer, "by the grace of the Almighty." We have ever since been robbing and deceiving the red men in the same Divine way.

The Indian question has become a subject of much comparative discussion in reference to the Philippine problem, and some consideration of it is not inappropriate in these columns.

In a certain sense it is absurd to attempt a comparison of our administration of Indian affairs with any probable course of government to be maintained in the Philippines. The Filipinos may become our wards or even our subjects, but not as subjects of charity. Neither is it probable, after the unsatisfactory results experienced in the past that this government will appropriate millions to furnish the natives sectarian schools of the low order that have been maintained until recent years among our Indians. This had been an incessant drain upon our national resources and was only abolished under Harrison's administration.

The importance of establishing schools in the Philippines cannot be overestimated. Yet it is important to have them free of the domination of any religious order. The most direct way of educating the natives will be through a free public school system untrameled by the restriction of any creed.

Conciliation, education and annexation should be the order of progress. Some desire it reversed, but I fail to see the common sense of it.

The pages of Indian history are dark ones, made so by murder, treachery and cruelty unequaled save by the infernal tortures inflicted upon heretics by ancient christians. Yet, who can blame the untutored savage? If he was a savage it was no fault of his: if he was patriotic and loved the hunting grounds which he defended to the last, it was no crying sin. If we, the God sent promoters of civilization, chose to pollute and rob them, I fail to see where their resentment was a crime.

If they led us into evil we repaid them in kind twofold. The harmful effects of tobacco upon the white race is more than discounted by the wretchedness and degredation to which spirits have brought the red men.

Our later dealings with the Indians have been charaterized by as much of justice and honor as could be hoped for from a race of conquerors, backed by the nine points of law called possession.

It is a signal fact that in every instance the Indians have been the aggressors at arms. Time and again this fact has given us an excuse to deprive them of certain guaranteed lands which we coveted. Our most sacred agreements with the Indians have been respected so long as it served our purpose. The moment that the possession of their lands would benefit us the most solemn treaties were broken and a bloody campaign precipitated.

If we establish ourselves in the Philippines and assume any territorial privileges under treaty with the natives, we will sooner or later encroach upon their rights. This, in the light of the past, is easily seen. The results of such encroachment are just as obvious. We will incite them to war—they will ostensiblly be the aggressors and we the ultimate victors. To the victors go the spoils.

Of course I do not predict any such encroachment under the present administration; but, unfortunately for them, Mr. McKinley and his followers cannot always guide the destinies of these people. Under a future administration, when the American people become dulled to the "humanity" of their mission, such an injustice will be done. It is the inimitable outgrowth of an imperial policy on the part of the United States.

Says The Outlook:

"The failure of our administration of Indian affairs is due less to deliberate injustice than to the fact that we have endeavored to administer their affairs for them instead teaching them to administer their affairs for themselves."

Do we desire the performance of this farce to be repeated? Assuredly not. With a succession of disastrous failures before us covering more than a century we should be able to avoid political pit falls, and to properly conduct colonial affairs.

Are we competent? The history of our dealings with the American Indians will amply justify the assertion that the American Government is ill-fitted to care for an alien people. Bad as well as good history repeats itself.

Expansion, whether it be the form of possession or guardianship, means the acceptance of a sacred trust in the interest of civilization and the education and elevation of one phase of benighted humanity to the status of intelligent freemen. But have we not broken "sacred trusts" before? Will our dealings with the Filipinos be a repetition of the same pitiful story of incapacity, dishonor and failure? Or, will we profit sufficiently by experience to enable us to handle our savage wards with intelligence and justice? The situation cannot be measured in its great depth by the sordid sounding line of dollars and cents.

It is useless for the expansionists to wholly blame the "antis," who blocked the ratification of the treaty for the present state of war in the Philippines. That there are incorporated in the ranks of the anti-expansionists a few who merit the title of "jingoes," I do not deny. However, their opponents are not the unsullied angels they (the latter) would have us believe.

I feel reasonably secure in my position that the undesirable complications existing in the Philippines could have been averted had the President accorded Agoncillo an interview, which he could with propriety have done.

That the delay in ratifying the treaty aggravated an already inflamed populace, I do not hesitate to admit. The anti-expansion blockaders should have discerned the fact that the ratification of the treaty would, in no way, pledge us to any definite policy regarding the Philippines.

Now, if the Spanish Cortes ratify the treaty, which I think they will, we will find ourselves on a more substantial footing than we have heretofore held. Mutual satisfaction will have conveyed Spain's title (?) to these islands to us, and placed in our hands with full power to do as we please with it.

My prediction that we would have to conquer the Filipinos before we could be insured submission was fulfilled to the letter, and although speculation on such a subject is hazardous, I feel safe in predicting a protectorate over these possessions. The vote on the treaty was as close as I anticipated, and we have now to conqure the natives and undergo a severe Congressional battle before we shall know the real policy of the United States.

Loudly are the expansionists censuring the "antis," not only for blocking the ratification of the treaty, but for misleading Aguinaldo's representatives at Washington.

Did Agoncillo allow his judgement of America's attitude toward his people to be inflamed by the Senators who surrounded him? If he did not it was no fault of the level-headed (?) ratificationists and the President, who held aloof and allowed the minority to unduly influence him and thereby bring on the attack upon our forces at Manila. These astute statesmen should have treated Agoncillo more courteously and accorded him the information that we did not propose to enslave the Filipinos or deprive them of legitimate rights. Why did they not do this and avert bloodshed? Who or what is it that will not let McKinley speak?

The statements, so often urged by the expansion sheets, that Agoncillo represented but a small portion of the people, and that the natives had very little idea of what the word liberty signified; were not confirmed by the reports of the battle. The number of native troops led against our forces exceeded the expectations of those mislead by false reports.

The battle was no battle. It was a slaughter. The people knew what liberty meant. They were fighting for their freedom as we have fought for ours. Even women, disguised as men, were found on the battlefield. They had followed in the footsteps of fathers, brothers and lovers, and died for the sacred cause they loved so well.

In closing this series I desire to thank the editor for the kindness and courtesy in allowing me so much space in the Recorder for the publication of these articles. I do not know how far the sentiments expressed in these columns have met with the reader's approval, but as they have called forth no criticism I feel reasonably sure that they are satisfactory. I had intended to close the series with a special article on the Filipinos; but owing to illhealth and a reluctance to impose further upon the kindness of the editor and the good-nature of the public, I shall be unable to do this.

In my first paper I invited criticism; the invitation is still open and I shall endeavor to give my best attention to all letters public or private.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1899. NO. 19.

THE mud-slinging politician should be shut off.

THE Philippine white elephant is increasing in size.

THE Indiana Legislature is doing some anti-trust legislating.

HON. FRANK PEAK contradicts the report that he has withdrawn from the race for Attorney-General.

THE Kentucky monument at Chickamauga National Park will be dedicated May 3 and 4.

"SEND the Oregon at once," is a dispatch from Dewey that does not sound very encouraging.

GEN. EAGAN demonstrated, the other day, that he knows how to act the gentleman. He did not use the word lie once in his testimony before the beef investigating committee.

ONE of Russellville's German citizens is an enthusiastic supporter of Hon. W. J. Stone for Governor. He says: "I was for Stone for de reason that he haf only one leg for der politicians to pull."

WHEN General Alger, in his recent Washington birthday speech said the stars and stripes had never been taken down where they had been planted, but once, showed his absolute ignorance of, or total disregard for, the facts.

THE Lexington Herald suggests that it might be a good idea to pass a law requiring every man to go armed, under which law the thugs and cowards who are carrying pistols would know the good citizens was prepared for them.

SPEAKER REED'S dislike to Mark Hanna may result in the saving of many millions of dollars to this country yet, by his knocking on the head a big steal which Hanna is trying to engineer through Congress, labled the ship subsiddy bill.

IN his charge to the grand jury, last Friday in Covington, Judge Tarvin paid especial attention to trusts and combines, and in regard to the pool rooms the Judge told the jurors they would violate their oaths if they failed to indict. The charge was redhot.

THERE is a disposition on the part of some in Jessamine county to mix up the race for representative with that for Governor, and to prevent this the county committee has called the primary election to nominate a candidate for representative for the 29 inst.

THERE is national honor in paying to Spain that $20,000,000 the peace commissioners agreed to give her for her Philippine war, but there are other lines along which some say national honor has been a total stranger in certain dealings with the Filipinos.

COL. EVANS, of Louisville, is a Republican politician who goes after everything that is in sight and many of his party in Kentucky are not only made tired by his political avarice, but are vexed, and have listed him as a chronic. Such men as Evans is a great obstruction in the advancement of worthy young men in a party.

THE school book question will receive considerable attention by the next Legislature. There is a very strong sentiment throughout the State in favor of having school books supplied at much less prices than now prevail. It is believed that Indiana has solved the school-book problem, and Kentucky now proposes to profit by her neighbor's experience.

THE loss of stock in the northwest because of the extreme cold this winter, is unprecedented. Over three million head have succumbed to the cold weather since the beginning of the year, which heavy loss is expected to have some effect on the price of beef next summer, as the supply of cattle from the northwest will be very much less than has been calculated on.

THE return of the gum-shoe statesman of Kentucky, Dr. W. Godfrey Hunter, Minister to Guatemala, has put one of the Republican factions in this State to guessing. He has a thirty day leave of absence, and many believe that his principal business in Kentucky at this time is to upset some of the political plans which have been laid by his enemies in his absence. At any rate Hunter's return is causing considerable uneasiness on the part of a large number of Kentucky Republicans who hoped that his sojourn in Guatemala would be a protracted one.

HERE is what some of the officers who tried to eat Gen. Eagan's army meat say of it: "Covered with slime."—Maj. Gen. Kent. "Gagged me."—Lieut. Col. Humphry. "Was like sweet sea-weed, and tasted of chloroform."—Col. W. H. Powell. "Had to be buried."—Col. A. T. Smith. "Was thrown overboard, had yellow color."—Lieut Col. C. D. Viele. "Was repugnant."—Capt. J. W. Duncan. "Was a stringy mass."—Capt. W. H. Hughes. "Nauseated me."—Capt Wm. Ennis. "Had to be thrown overboard."—Maj. Gen. Summer.

A CLAUSE in the peace treaty with Spain, showing that the United States intended to deal with the Filipinos in the same manner that the Cubans are to be handled, would have saved many hundreds of American lives, besides disposing of the necessity of burdening this country with the expense of maintaining an army and navy in the Philippines islands. The Filipinos would not have objected to this country retaining a coaling station as the President instructed the peace commissioners, to demand, and its more than probable that under such circumstances conditions in the Philippines would now be the same as those in Cuba.

SCHLEY is having his inning before the public, and is placing Admiral Sampson and Secretary Long under a cloud, and is accomplishing this in a manner that will increase public admiration for him. He charges that some of his official reports have been suppressed, reports that would have vindicated him of the charges that were circulated. Schley is not a favorite at Washington, where every effort possible has been made to keep him in the background and permit others to reap the honor due his modesty and bravery. But truth, like murder, will out, and the correct history of the naval battle at Santiago will make Schley the hero that he was of that conflict.

EACH of the candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor is a good Democrat, one whom any member of the party can conscientiously support if nominated, and those local papers that are indulging in vicious attacks upon the opponents of their favorite, are making a mistake in that they are cultivating a prejudice that will be difficult to overcome after the candidate is named by the State convention, and cause a lukewarmness on the part of many Democrats, thereby weakening the party, and encouraging the opposition. The better plan is to maintain a position through the preliminary campaign that will not place any fetters on the feet when the battle between the two parties is on. Each tub should stand on its own bottom in politics as in other matters.

THERE seems to be a general demand that the next Legislature shall pass some new law against the practice of carrying pistols. The law as it now is would be very effective if it was enforced, and a demand along that line would be very much in order. The imprisonment part of the penalty is never enforced except in the case of some negro or some very poor white man who has been convicted of a violation of the law against carrying concealed deadly weapons and has no influential friends. If the failure to enforce the present law is because of the penalty being too severe, what benefit is to be derived from a law with a more severe penalty? If public sentiment does not sustain the existing law, there is nothing to justify a more stringent law on the subject. The proper course is to demand a fearless and impartial enforcement of the law as it now stands.

Successful teaching implies an intimate acquaintance with mental processes, confessedly so or not. The philosophy of method in teaching has at its core the principle of apperception operating in all its phases. It demands of every teacher first that an attainable goal be erected in full view of the pupil, to arouse desire, to focus effort, and to exclude the irrelevant; that the approach be graded according to the pupil's habit of learning, according to what he knows, in order to reach after the related unknown, and according to his power of comparing; third, that the means be varied to harmonize individual with class teaching, to reach the eye-mind, the ear-mind, the tactile mind, etc., and to summate influences by reviewing frequently without appearing to do so; fourth, that the pupil's self-activity be fostered through every form of expression, the proper complement of all acquisition, to the end that he may be emancipated from pupilage by growing more and more a student, increasingly zealous for development, jealous of every opportunity to plan and execute for himself.—E. D. Shimer.

From the moment the period is reached when our countrymen obtained a stable form of government, from the moment when the constitution became the supreme law of the land, our national history should be presented to the student as the growth and development of a marvelous people. He should see our country as it was when Washington was first inaugurated, a country vast in extent with its people gathered on a narrow strip along the seaboard and just beginning their great march westward; he should see them destitute of manufactures, of machines, of great industries, of easy and rapid means of communication; he should see the arts and sciences in a rudimentary state, and he should see the differences in habits, customs, occupations which were peculiar to the people of the Eastern States, the Middle States, and the South. The attention of the student should be called to the fact that innumerable trades, occupations, industries, trades and callings that now afford a livelihood to millions of people had then no existence; that articles and conveniencies with which he is perfectly familiar, and which have come to be looked on as necessities of life were then unknown, and that the lot of every man in every walk of life was far harder than at present.—Prof. J. B. McMasters.

THOSE fellows who are testifying to save the beef contractors do not hesitate to slur the privates in the lines. One of them swore: "All their lives were out of whack. I estimate that ninety-nine per cent. of them had enlarged livers, and they were ready to complain at everything—wanted to be fed all the time on delicacies."

The following is a Dakota paper's account of a western cyclone: "A southern wind hurled tumbe-weeds and Russian thistles through the air at a 29 mile gait and the gate went too. Many stoves were drawn out of the chimneys; the strong wind blew in at the neck of a bottle and blew the bottom out. Nebraska wagon tracks passed over the towns by the thousands. The strain on the wire fences was so great that staples were drawn out the north side of the post. A Kerosene barrel standing in front of a grocery store was sucked out of the bung hole and turned in side out like a lady's slipper. The dirt blew from a post hole in the hill side and left the hole sticking out of the ground about two feet with the dirt around it."

POLITICAL.

Major Thos. H. Hays, is Jefferson county's candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Jess T. Gosnell, circuit clerk of Grayson county, wants the office of State Treasurer.

Green R. Keller is a candidate for Secretary of State, and is out among the voters renewing acquaintances.

The Republicans will hold their convention at Richmond to nominate a candidate for Railroad Commissioner in the Third District.

Midway.

Mr. Editor, as we have noticed nothing in your columns from our little village, we feel it our bounden duty to ourselves and the many readers of your interesting paper to report at least occasionally. Midway is a neighborly little country hamlet, nestling cozily in a pretty, fertile valley, environed by lofty, rugged hills, all blending into a picturesque scene which daily feeds our vision and gives gladness to our very being. Situated just halt way between the celebrated Big Bone springs on the west, and the ancient, but recently rejuvinated little commercial village, Beaver Lick on the east, we are continually indulging the flattering hope that ere many centuries shall come and go we will be the metropolis of old Boone and they our pretty, little, thrifty suburban cities. Thus we pass the seasons quietly away, watching for our daily mail carrier, yearning for him most anxiously on Wednesday, as, on that day, he brings the RECORDER to enliven and brighten our hearth stones

Died, Februray 29th, of old age and general debility, Aunt Elizabeth Grubbs, at the residence of her son, F. D. Grubbs, at Beaver Lick. Rev. H. P. Duncan preached an interesting funeral sermon at Fairview Christian church, from the text, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord," after which the remains were laid to rest in the Fairview cemetery, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Deceased was in the 66th year of her age.

There is as usual, about this time of the year, much talk of a macadamized road from Beaver to Big Bone. The condition of the mud road at present certainly forcibly suggests that such a thing is terribly needed, the road being almost impassable.

Marion Johnson, our village representative at the literary meeting at Chas. Baker's hospitable residence at Union, February 17th, pronounces it a highly interesting event to the advanced circle of literary society.

We learn that during the cold snap the mercury dropped to 36° below zero at Joe Noell's store over on Mudlick, on Sunday night, Feb. 12th. Many speak of it as being too low to talk about.

Aunt Eliza Ossman is quite ill at present. She has long been a sufferer of rheumatism, and the recent prolonged zero weather was very trying on her.

Mrs. Geo. Moore is very ill of la grippe, and her daughter, Miss Katie, who has been quite poorly for some time, we are glad, is some better.

M. C. Carroll, one our most enterprising farmers, who has been quite ill for some time, is reported better at present.

Robert Noell will occupy the house that is soon to be vacated by one ot our neighbors, Thos. Barnett.

Ed Slayback and wife have moved into our midst, and we are glad to welcome them as our neighbors.

Flickertown.

Hiram Early had a tobacco stripping one day last week.—Uncle Jim Jarrell is quite poorly.—A. C. Passons has moved into Ed Hensley's house on Ashby Fork.—J. B. Tolin, your Petersburg correspondent, was visiting his mother here, last Friday. —Reynard was given several pretty lively chases here, last week.—Taylor Johnson, Mrs. Mary E. Hensley's brother, left here, last Friday, for his home in Illinois.—Charley Hensley thinks so much of his valentine that he tacked it up on the side of the house that everybody might see it. It's a beaut.—Lewis Sullivan and wife gave a party, one night last week, in commemoration of their son Charles' fifteenth birthday.—Several of our boys and girls had their fortunes told last week, and some of them appear pleased, while others are quite the contrary. —There will be a show in our town as soon as Harry Passons gets his hand-organ and monkey.—A very extensive land deal was closed in this neighborhood, last week, Edward Gaines selling to Mrs. Martha Delph a tract of land adjoining the Voshell farm and known as the ice-house farm. The exact number of acres is not known.

Hebron.

Mr. and Mrs. Pickleheimer were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Sayre, Saturday night.—Bird Clore and wife, of the Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, were calling on Mike Dye and wife, Saturday night.—The monthly examination of our school will be held next Friday.—Mrs. Alice Rouse was very ill several days last week. —Wallace Tanner and Cecil Hafer were at home from college and attended church here Sunday.—Norris Riddell was out in his buggy, Sunday.—Frank Jackson, of Cincinnati, was visiting friends here, Saturday night and Sunday.—A crokinole and carrom party was given by Chas. Clore, Friday night. —Frank Hossman and Frank Sayer, two bright little lads of 5 are progressing nicely.—Owing to the inclemency of the weather, Saturday night, the oyster supper was postponed.—A well filled house, Sunday, listened to Rev. Lentz's able sermon from the text, "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them."—Mark 11:24.

It being too late after the nomination is obtained, would it not be well before that time, while the candidates are trying to touch the popular chord to lift them into real or imaginary honors, to inquire into the abilities, desires and purposes of aspirants, and suggest to them the matters and things which would be to the interests of the people of this county and State.

All come short of perfection, yet we have some honest, good and fairly qualified men for all official positions in this county, who are well known to the public, and if they could be induced to keep self in the back ground and remember as well after election as before, that the officer is only the servant of the people and a being of their creation and support while in office and attend to his duties as such, fairly, without prejudice, fear or favor, and not permit it to be truthfully said that an individual click or party has a greater or less influence or control over him than others, for the good or evil of the people whom he represents. The people ought to be able to select such a man, who will rise to the occasion, when qualified, after his election, and make a genuine effort to relieve us of the burdens of taxation so far as possible under our form of government by taking a step forward in the way of reforming some of the many things and laws that because of age, change of conditions and circumstances and being too far removed from the people are out of accord and reach of them.

The elementary principles of this government as laid down, are that the governed shall be as near free and equal as possible, and all shall bear the burdens equally as near as is consistent under general laws and that the officials or servants of the governed shall be one of and as near the people as possible. That is, if an officer is to administer or execute the laws, or do anyother official act in Boone or anyother county, if it is possible, he shall be a resident thereof, at home therein among the people, appreciate and know personally their needs and wants and his duties and responsibilities to them, instead of being a stranger, whose home, interests and thoughts are elsewhere.

Likely someone will say why do so much writing without naming a change that would be beneficial along the lines indicated above? If none of the aspiring candidates for honors at the next November election or others will suggest reform, we will, in the near future, try and do so, and take as our subject the inferior courts of Kentucky. X.

Resolutions adopted by Bullittsburg church:

WHEREAS, Our beloved brother, Rev. J. A. Kirtley, after having the pastoral care of this church for forty-three years, offers his resignation, and declines to serve us longer, and feels in his declining years that another pastor could better discharge the duties, be it

Resolved, That in accepting his resignation we desire to express our heartfelt appreciation of his long, able and faithful services, believing that no pastor could have been more true, zealous and solicitous for our good and for the good of the community around him, and that we individually and collectively pubiely express our sorrow at the parting, but again renew our vows to the doctrine so long and ably presented by our reverend pastor, and give him every assurance that in his declining years he can be comforted by the knowledge that we have endeavored to profit by his teachings, and be it further

Resolved, That as now the burden of life hangs more heavily on the shoulders of Bro. Kirtley, that it is the duty and pleasant privilege of each of us to endeavor by the practice of his eloquent teachings, and by following as closely as possible, in his footsteps, to lighten that burden, and as he travels down the shady side of life's rugged hill, he may be able to say: "Behold my children follow me." We cordially invite him to feel free to preach to us whenever he feels able, and desires to do so.

BY ORDER OF THE CHURCH.

Foreign Christian Missionary Society.

Among the most prosperous Missionary organizations of this country is the Foreign Christian Missionary Society of Cincinnati, Ohio, an organization of the Christian Church. During the past five years its receipts have been more than doubled, and last year they reached $130,925. Missions have been planted by the Christian Church in India, China, Japan, Africa, Turkey, Scandinavia and England. One of the most important steps recently taken is the planting of Churches in Cuba. Two Missionaries will be sent to Havana soon. Missions will be planted under the shadow of Morro Castle. This religious body has 204 Missions aries in foreign lands, and a number more will be sent out this year.

The Annual Offering in all the Churches of this commission for Foreign Missions is the first Sunday in March. The Churches in this county may be counted upon to do their part.

We are reminded of the rapid growth of this religious body. In only about 75 years this people have come to number more than 1,000,000 communicants in this country alone. Last year they made a gain of no less than 50,000, and their warery this year is a gain of 100,000. They have more than 10,000 churches and about 6,000 ministers. They are building up a number of splendid educational institutions in different parts of the country. Last year, for all missions, they raised more than $500,000. They call for $1,000,000 this year and not without hope of success.

The Jubilee of their organized missionary work is to be observed Oct. 13th to 19th of this year, at Cincinnati, Ohio, where the American Christian Missionary Society was organized for Home and Foreign Missions in 1849. Alexander Campbell was the first President Fully 10,000 delegates are expected to attend the Jubilee Convention. The great Music Hall of Cincinnati has already been secured, and other large buildings will be used. No doubt there will be a creditable representation of the churches from Boone County.

GEORGE W. WATKINS.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier.]

Contractor A. Carter is moving heaven and earth to get the new county infirmary buildings completed by the 10th of March.

Senator Elliston's old roan horse is dead. He was born 37 years ago and has been a tried and true family horse for more than a generation.

Mrs. Wallace Garrison, of Big Bone, and Mrs. John Garrison, of Union, were visiting their brother, Dr. John W. Violette, and other relatives, last week.

Mrs. M. D. Gray, who some weeks ago underwent a dangerous surgical operation, is so far recovered that she will be able to return home from the hospital in a few days. Her health promises to be completely restored.

Joshua Gruel, of Dry Ridge, claims that he broke all records last season in the raising of tobacco in Grant county. On a measured acre of land which he had fertilized well he raised 1200 sticks of tobacco which weighed 2460. Mr. Gruel sold his tobacco at 7 cents per pound.

Two of the children in the Cordova country who were suspected to have leprosy have died during the past few days. The eldest daughter of Louis Martin and the son of Bud Brooks. These children were in a horrible condition when examined recently by Dr. C. D. O'Hara. The face was almost entirely eaten away and finally the disease attacked the brain and vital parts and death was the result. The other children are no better and are evidently progressing in the same direction.

Hon. Worth Dickerson and Capt. A. G. DeJarnette have each volunteered their services to defend Eugene Wilson, who is charged with the killing of Miss Floyd at London, Ky., and is under indictment for murder. The case is set on the docket for to-day but it is hardly thought that it will be tried at the present term of the Laurel Circuit Court. Dr. Wilson writes from London that much favorable testimony is being introduced and that Eugene's acquittal on the first trial is expected, all of which his many friends here hope is true.

THE Dispatch is bringing a serious charge against Mr. Goeble—that he is conspiring with others to wreck that paper. If not guilty he ought to make the editor smoke.

SPRINGTIME OF LIFE.

A Sermon on the Scenes of Youth by Dr. Talmage.

A Man's True Character Will Come Out Beside the Fireside—Home Should Be the Brightest Place on Earth.

Many tender recollections are stirred by Dr. Talmage's discourse, and scenes of boyhood and girlhood days will be lived over again; text, 1 Timothy, v. 4: "Let them learn first to show piety at home."

During the summer months the tendency is to the fields, to visitation, to foreign travel and the watering places, and the ocean steamers are thronged, but in the winter it is rather to gather in domestic circles, and during these months we spend many of the hours within doors, and the apostle comes to us and says that we ought to exercise Christian behavior amid all such circumstances. "Let them learn first to show piety at home."

There are a great many people longing for some grand sphere in which to serve God. They admire Luther at the diet of Worms and only wish they had some such great opportunity in which to display their Christian prowess. They admire Paul making Felix tremble, and they only wish they had some such grand occasion in which to preach righteousness, temperance and judgment to come. All they want is an opportunity to exhibit their Christian heroism. Now, the apostle practically says: "I will show you a place where you can exhibit all that is grand and beautiful and glorious in Christian character, and that is the domestic circle. Let them learn first to show piety at home." If one is not faithful in an insignificant sphere, he will not be faithful in a resounding sphere. If Peter will not help the cripple at the gate of the temple, he will never be able to preach 3,000 into the kingdom at the Pentecost. If Paul will not take pains to instruct in the way of salvation the jailer of the Philippian dungeon, he will never make Felix tremble. He who is not faithful in a skirmish would not be faithful in an Armageddon. The fact is, we are all placed in just the position in which we can most grandly serve God, and we ought not to be chiefly thoughtful about some sphere of usefulness which we may after awhile gain, but the all-absorbing question with you and with me ought to be: "Lord, what wilt Thou have me now and here to do?"

There is one word in St. Paul's adjuration around which the most of our thoughts will revolve. That word is "home." Ask ten different men the meaning of that word, and they will give you ten different definitions. To one it means love at the hearth, plenty at the table, industry at the workstand, intelligence at the books, devotion at the altar. In that household discord never sounds its warwhoop and deception never flicks with its false face. To him it means a greeting at the door and a smile at the chair, peace hovering like wings, joy clapping its hands with laughter. Life is a tranquil lake. Pillowed on the ripples sleep the shadows. Ask another man what home is, and he will tell you it is want looking out of a cheerless fire grate, kneading hunger in an empty bread tray. The damp air shivering with curses. No Bible on the shelf. Children robbers and murderers in embryo. Obscene songs their lullaby. Every face a picture of ruin. Want in the background and sin staring from the front. No Sabbath wave rolling over that doorsill. Vestibule of the pit. Shadow of infernal walls. Furnace for forging everlasting chains. Faggots for an undying funeral pile. Awful word. It is spelled with curses, it weeps with ruin, it chokes with woe, it swears with the death agony of despair. The word "home" in the one case means everything bright. The word "home" in the other case means everything terrific.

I shall speak now of home as a test of character, home as a refuge, home as a political safeguard, home as a school and home as a type of Heaven. And in the first place home is a powerful test of character. The disposition in public may be in gay costume, while in private it is dishabille. As play actors may appear in one way on the stage and may appear in another way behind the scenes, so private character may be different from public character. Private character is often public character turned wrong side out. A man may receive you into his parlor as though he were a distillation of smiles, and yet his heart may be a swamp of nettles. There are business men who all day long are mild and courteous and genial and good natured in commercial life, damming back their irritability and their petulance and their discontent, but at nightfall the dam breaks and scolding pours forth in floods and freshets.

Reputation is only the shadow of character, and a very small house sometimes will cast a very large shadow. The lips may seem to drop with myrrh and cassia and the disposition to be as bright and warm as a sheath of sunbeams, and yet they may only be a magnificent show window for a wretched stock of goods. There is many a man who is affable in public life and amid commercial spheres who in a cowardly way takes his anger and his petulance home and drops them in the domestic circle. The reason men do not display their bad temper in public is because they do not want to be knocked down. There are men who hide their petulance and their irritability just for the same reason that they do not let their notes go to protest—it does not pay—or for the same reason that they do not want a man in their stock company to sell his stock below per test it depreciate the value.

As at sunset sometimes the wind rises, so after a sunshiny day there may be a tempestuous night. There are people who in public act the philanthropist who at home act the Nero with respect to their slippers and their gown. Audubon, the great ornithologist, with gun and pencil went through the forests of America to bring down and to sketch the beautiful birds, and after years of toil and exposure completed his manuscript and put it in a trunk in Philadelphia and went off for a few days' recreation and rest, and came back and found that the rats had utterly destroyed the manuscript, but without any discomposure and without any fret or bad temper he again picked up his gun and his pencil and visited all the great forests of America and reproduced his immortal work. And yet there are people with the ten-thousandth part of that loss who are utterly irreconcilable, who at the loss of a pencil or an article of raiment will blow as long and loud and sharp as a northeast storm. Now, that man who is affable in public and who is irritable in private is making a fraudulent and overissue of stock, and he is as bad as a bank that might have $100,000 or $500,000 of bills in circulation with no specie in the vault. Let us learn to show pity at home. If we have it not there, we have it not anywhere. If we have not genuine grace in the family circle, all our outward and public plausibility merely springs from the fear of the world or from the slimy, putrid pool of our own selfishness. I tell you the home is a mighty test of character. What you are at home you are everywhere, whether you demonstrate it or not.

Again, home is a refuge. Life in the United States army on the national road to Mexico—a long march, with ever and anon a skirmish and a battle. At eventide we pitch our tent and stack the arms; we hang up the war cap, and, our head on the knapsack, we sleep until the morning bugle calls us to march to the action. How pleasant it is to rehearse the victories and the surprises and the attacks of the day, seated by the still campfire of the home circle! Yea, life is a stormy sea. With shivered masts and torn sails and bulk aleak, we put in at the harbor of home. Blessed harbor! There we go for repairs in drydock. The candle in the window is to the toiling man the lighthouse guiding him into port. Children go forth to meet their fathers as pilots at the Narrows take the hand of ships. The doorsill of the home is the wharf where heavy life is unladen. There is the place where we may talk of what we have done without being charged with self adulation. There is the place where we may lounge without being thought ungraceful. There is the place where we may express affection without being thought silly. There is the place where we may forget our annoyances and exasperations and troubles. Forlorn earth pilgrim, no home? Then die. That is better. The grave is brighter and grander and more glorious than this world with no tent from marching, with no harbor from the storm, with no place of rest from this scene of greed and gouge and loss and gain. God pity the man or the woman who has no home!

Further, home is a political safeguard. The safety of the state must be built on the safety of the home. Why cannot France come to a placid republic? MacMahon appoints his ministry, and all France is aquake lest the republic be smothered. Gambetta dies, and there are hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen who are fearing the return of a monarchy. The Dreyfus case is at this moment a slumbering earthquake under D. S. France, as a nation, has not the right kind of a Christian home. The Christian hearthstone is the only hearthstone for a republic. The virtues cultured in the family circle are an absolute necessity for the state. If there be not enough moral principle to make the family adhere, there will not be enough political principle to make the state adhere. No home means the Goths and Vandals, means the Nomads of Asia, means the Numidians of Africa, changing from place to place according as the pasture happens to change. Confounded be all those babels of iniquity which would overpower and destroy the home! The same storm that upsets the ship in which the family sail will sink the frigate of the constitution. Jails and penitentiaries and armies and navies are not our best defenses. The door of the home is the best fortress. Household utensils are our best artillery, and the chimneys of our dwelling houses are the grandest monuments to safety and triumph. No home, no republic!

Further, home is a school. Old ground must be turned up with subsoil plow, and it must be harrowed and reharrowed, and then the crop will not be as large as that of the new ground with less culture. Now, youth and childhood are new ground, and all the influences thrown over their heart and life will come up in after life luxuriantly. Every time you have given a smile of approbation all the good cheer of your life will come up again in the geniality of your children. And every ebullition of anger and every uncontrollable display of indignation will be fuel to their disposition 20 or 30 or 40 years from now—fuel for a bad fire a quarter of a century from this. You praise the intelligence of your child too much sometimes when you think he is not aware of it, and you will see the result of it before ten years of age in his annoying affectations. You praise his beauty, supposing he is not large enough to understand what you say, and you will find him standing on a high chair before a flattering mirror. Words and deeds and examples are the seed of character, and children are very apt to be the second edition of their parents. Abraham begat Isaac, so virtue is apt to go down in the ancestral line, but Herod begat Agchelaus, so iniquity is transmitted.

Oh, make your home the brightest place on earth if you would chain your children to the high paths of virtue and rectitude and religion! Do not always turn the blinds the wrong way. Let the light, which puts gold on the gentian and spots the pansy, pour into your dwellings. Do not expect the little feet to keep step to a dead march. Do not cover up your walls with such pictures as West's "Death on the Pale Horse" or Tintoretto's "Massacre of the Innocents." Rather cover them if you have pictures with "The Hawking Party," and "The Mill by the Mountain Stream," and "The Fox Hunt," and the "Children Amid Flowers," and the "Harvest Scene," and "The Saturday Night Marketing." Get you no hint of cheerfulness from grasshopper's leap and lamb's frisk and quail's whistle and gurgling streamlet, which from the rock at the mountain top clear down to the meadow ferns under the shadow of the steep comes looking to see where it can find the steepest place to leap off at and talking just to hear itself talk? If all the skies hurtled with tempest and everlasting storm, wandered over the sea, and every mountain stream were raving mad, frothing at the mouth with mud foam, and there was nothing but simoons blowing among the hills and there were neither lark's carol nor humming bird's trill, nor waterfall's dash, but only bear's bark and panther's scream and wolf's howl, then you might well gather into your homes only the shadows. But when God has strewn the earth and the heavens with beauty and with gladness, let us take into our home circles all innocent hilarity, all brightness and all good cheer. A dark home makes bad boys and bad girls in preparation for bad men and bad women.

Above all, my friends, take into your homes Christian principle. Can it be that in any of the comfortable homes whose inmates I confront the voice of prayer is never lifted? What! No supplication at night for protection? What! No thanks giving in the morning for care? How, my brother, my sister, will you answer God in the day of judgment with reference to your children? It is a plain question, and therefore I ask it. In the tenth chapter of Jeremiah God says He will pour out His fury upon the families that call not upon His name. Oh, parents, when you are dead and gone, and the moss is covering the inscription of the tombstone, will your children look back and think of father and mother at family prayer? Will they take the old family Bible and open it and see the mark of tears of contrition and tears of consoling promise wept by eyes long before gone out into darkness? Oh, if you do not inculcate Christian principle in the hearts of your children, and you do not warn them against evil, and you do not invite them to holiness and to God, and they wander off into dissipation and into infidelity and at last make shipwreck of their immoral soul, on their deathbed and in the day of judgment they will curse you!

Seated by the register or the stove, what if, on the wall, should come out the history of your children? What a history—the mortal and immortal life of your loved ones! Every parent is writing the history of his child. He is writing it, compassing it into song, or pointing it with a groan.

My mind runs back to one of the best of early homes. Prayer like a roof over it. Peace like an atmosphere in it. Parents personifications of faith in trial and comfort in darkness. The two pillars of that earthly house long crumbled to dust. But shall I ever forget that early home? Yes, when the flower forgets the sun that warmed it. Yes, when the mariner forgets the star that guided him. Yes, when love has gone out on the heart's altar, and memory has emptied its urn into forgetfulness. Then, the home of my childhood, I will forget thee! The family altar of a father's importunity and a mother's tenderness, the voices of affection, the funeral of our dead, the father and mother with interlocked arms like intertwining branches of trees making a perpetual arbor of love and peace and kindness—then I will forget thee—then, and only then! You know, my brother, that a hundred times you have been kept out of sin by the memory of such a scene as I have been describing. You have often had raging temptations, but you know what has held you with supernatural grasp. I tell you a man who has had such a good home as that never gets over it, and a man who has had a bad early home never gets over it.

Again, home is a type of Heaven. At our best estate we are only pilgrims and strangers here. "Heaven is our home." Death will never knock at the door of that mansion, and in all that country there is not a single grave. How glad parents are in the holidays to gather their children home again! But I have noticed there is almost always a son or a daughter absent—absent from home, perhaps absent from the country, perhaps absent from the world. Oh, how glad our Heavenly Father will be when He gets all His children home with Him in Heaven! And how delightful it will be for brothers and sisters to meet after long separation! Once they parted at the door of the tomb. Now they meet at the door of immortality. Once they saw only "through a glass darkly." Now it is face to face, corruption, incorruption, mortality, immortality. Where are now all their sins and sorrows and troubles? Overwhelmed in the Red sea of death, while they pass through dry shod. Gates of pearl, capstones of amethyst, thrones of dominion do not stir my soul so much as the thought of home. Once there, let earthly sorrows howl like storms and roll like seas. Home! Let thrones rot and empires wither. Home! Let the world die in earthquake struggle and be buried amid procession of planets and dirge of spheres. Home! Let everlasting ages roll in irresistible sweep. Home! No sorrow. No crying. No tears. No death. But home, sweet home, beautiful home, everlasting home, home with each other, home with angels, home with God!

INVINCIBLE HORSE-TAMER.

Early Achievements of an Ohioan Who Became World-Famous—Riding a Wild Colt at Age of Three.

His name was John S. Rarey. Early in the century, his father—a Pennsylvania Dutch farmer—cleared a tract of forest land on the outskirts of Ohio's capital. On this virgin spot was built a log cabin, in which the future horse tamer was born. The cabin in time became the beginning of the village of Groveport, known half a century ago to lovers of horses throughout the civilized world.

While a babe in his mother's arms, it was young Rarey's delight to watch the animal life on the farm. To pet the horses and cows was ever to the boy a keen pleasure. When he could make his way alone to the farmyard, it was observed that the friskiest colts were docile under the caressing strokes of the child's hand. John was the youngest of seven children. At this period he was the only child at home. The Rarey farm was isolated. Many miles lay between neighbors. Having no youthful playmates, his warm little heart made friends of the chickens, the cows and the colts. At the age of three years it was his delight to ride astride the plow horses.

One significant incident in the childhood of the "invincible horse tamer" was frequently related by his mother. It occurred in his fourth year. The family being at the dinner table, one day, it was discovered that the chair of the youngest was vacant. A servant was sent in quest of the truant. The fields, the barns, the hay mounds were searched in vain. A terrific scramble was heard, at length, in a gravel roadway near by. To the horror of the distracted household, Johnny Rarey was discovered upon the back of the wildest colt on the farm.

Expecting to see the child fall to the ground every moment, the father started to his rescue; but to the relief of the household, colt and rider soon reined up in safety at the barn door. When reproved for his conduct, the infant replied that he and the colt were the best of friends. To convince his father of his mastery of the colt, he mounted and dismounted, bridled and unbridled the animal, who, to the astonishment of the spectators, submitted to his young master's directions. His control of the colt was much talked of in the neighborhood. From that time the young horseman was in great demand to carry messages between the scattered farmhouses. Before his ninth year his reputation for horsemanship in that part of the country was unrivaled.—Lida Rose McCabe, in St. Nicholas.

PEARY'S LAST BEAR.

Extreme Precautions Were Taken to Preserve Its Snow-White Skin Unsoiled.

At the first glimpse of daylight on the morning of September 4 the Hope got under way and steamed out for Cape York to land my faithful Eskimo assistants. As we steamed out through the western passage between Meteorite island and Akpudi we entered the fleet of countless bergs sweeping out of Melville bay, dazzling in their glittering brilliancy and with the dancing whitecaps flashing between them in every direction.

Scarcely were we well within this Arctic white squadron, threading our way between the stately cruisers, when one of my quick-eyed Eskimos cried out: "Nannookoah!" He had seen the bear for an instant far up on the top of a big berg, one of the tabular giants of Melville bay, peering over its precipitous face, but it had quickly disappeared. As we steamed slowly round the berg he came into view again, a beautiful white animal with contrasting black nose, moving leisurely along the surface of the iceberg. The captain and I both chanced a shot at him at long range, and the captain's bullet grazed his hind leg, making him whirl and snap savagely at the wound. Then he galloped awkwardly and disappeared round a pinnacle of the berg. Circling the berg again, we discovered him in the water swimming vigorously, and several shots were fired at him, one of which took effect, and he apparently collapsed completely; yet a few moments later he was swimming off again, and it was only after I had a boat lowered that he was secured.

The fur of the animal was so spotlessly white and unstained that I gave orders not to have him lowered upon the deck, but kept him suspended from the tackle until, a few hours later, we reached Cape York, and, mooring the Hope against the face of a glacier, he was swung out on to the surface of the glacier, covered with newly-fallen snow, and there skinned and the beautiful pelt rolled up and packed away still unsullied. This was our last bear.—Lieut. Peary, in St. Nicholas.

Infallible.

An eloquent Detroit preacher tells this among his early experiences in a rural parish. One of his parishioners was very ill, and finally sent for the minister, who found the man rather reticent, and finally asked if there was anything he could do.

"Parson," was the answer, "sleep would make me well, but the doctor can't make me sleep. I wondered if you'd preach me that long sermon I heard last July."—Detroit Free Press.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

NEW FORAGE PLANT.

Idaho Pea Grows on Almost Any Kind of Soil, But Prefers a Heavy Loam.

For several years a leguminous plant, bearing the name of grass, chick-pea and Idaho pea has been highly spoken of as a fodder plant for the northwest. The introducer claims that it is a new species of pea. The United States department of agriculture, through its division of agrostology (Circular No. 7) states that this is an old plant known in Europe for centuries. It has been introduced into India, where 5,000,000 acres are now devoted to its culture. The seed is used in that country for fattening sheep and cattle. The chemical analysis shows that it contains 20 per cent. of crude protein, 4 per cent. of fat, and 59 per cent. of carbohydrates, which is approximately the composition of field peas grown in the northern states.

Whether or not the pea will be of great value in the United States remains to be seen. Plats have been grown in the gardens at Washington and in various other localities. Reports concerning it are not very favorable excepting from some parts of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho and Montana. Newspaper reports give very high yields in the Rocky Mountain regions, but in India it has not exceeded in any case 25 bushels per acre under most favorable conditions and any yields above this must be substantiated before they can be accepted. If the crop can be made to yield 25 bushels per acre Agrostologist Smith thinks that it will be a valuable addition to western forage crops, but until still further trials are made he advises the western farmer to be careful about investing much money in seed or devoting much land to its culture.

The plant is sensitive to cold, consequently the seed must not be sown until the middle of May or the first of June. It will grow on almost any kind of soil, but prefers heavy loams. It may prove valuable as a winter crop in the southern states, on land which is unsuited to vetches and crimson clover. It requires only a moderate amount of moisture. In common with all leguminous plants it has the power of absorbing nitrogen from the air and storing it up in the soil, and consequently it is a good plant for soil renovation.—Orange Judd Farmer.

HORSES LOVE COMPANY.

That Is One Reason Why No Stallion Should Be Condemned to Solitary Confinement.

No stallion, no matter what offense he may have been guilty of, should be condemned to solitary confinement, says the Horseman. Put him in some cheery stall where he may hear what is going on, see other horses and men and generally live the life of other horses on the farm. Don't shut him away by himself so that he will hear or see nothing all day. There is no surer way to make a horse cross, no surer way to teach him bad habits and tricks that lessen his value and impair his usefulness and vitality. No, far from keeping the stud all by himself, have a wire-protected window in his stall so placed that he can see what is going on, hear the voice of man and enjoy the society of the chickens and cats and feel that he is verily one of the stock family on the premises. If more than one stallion is kept on the farm, build them a house by themselves, not away in one corner, but up where it is handy to get to them and leave an open space barred with iron between them in the partition that divides their stalls. Through this space they will converse together, in all probability tell each other their woes, and if anyone will take the trouble to watch unseen the procedure of a pair of stallions thus housed, he will see them with their noses at the aperture in the partition more than half the time. If thus provided for, they will never get lonely. Who shall say that horses cannot carry on some sort of conversation in their own way? They may not be able to do so, but they dearly love company and they must have it.

The Horse in History.

The horse appears in the beginning of all history. He is referred to in the Bible, Homer, the Vedas, the earliest wall pictures of Egypt, and the recently discovered literature of early Babylon and Akkad. In the ancient years he appeared to have been more of an aristocrat than to-day. His first use was for war; his second, for carrying kings, priests and warriors. All the heavy and hard work was done by the ox, and the menial labor by the donkey.—Rural World.

PULLETS AS LAYERS.

They Are Not Very Far from Being Twice as Productive and Profitable as Old Hens.

There is no doubt that pullets are much more profitable as layers than old fowls. It is often wise to keep old hens because of their good qualities as breeding stock, when they are fine in color, shape, size, etc., but they are hardly ever profitable from the standpoint of the egg basket for market purposes, says the Homestead. It is often well also to keep some matronly old "biddies" that are reliable as mothers for chicks, for the pullets are apt to be "young and thoughtless" and will have a disposition to neglect maternal duties, but as layers simply a pen of pullets is not very far from twice as productive as the same number of old hens, and on the farm where egg production is sought for no hen should be kept longer than two years unless for some other reason than her egg production. Another point in connection with egg production should also be borne in mind, and that is that only winter production pays. The time may come, as it appears to be coming in dairying, when the price for winter and summer will be more nearly equalized, but just now it is the winter egg that brings a price, while the summer egg does not repay the cost of production, even though the cost of production in summer be small. Observance of these two points—pullets as layers, and more attention to winter production—will go far to make egg production profitable.

SOME TURKEY TALK.

Eggs Laid by Two-Year-Old Hens Are the Only Satisfactory Ones for Hatching.

The first clutch of eggs laid by a turkey are seldom fertile, and if by chance a few are, they invariably hatch out weakly poults and crippled ones, no matter whether the eggs were placed under a hen or in an incubator, says Poultry Journal. The second clutch laid do quite often hatch very well, but the poults are not so strong as the ones hatched from eggs laid by a two-year-old hen. If the young turkey hens can have their entire liberty and can forage at will there will be quite a difference in the vitality of the poults. Of a naturally roaming disposition they are better contented, do better in every way, are not so liable to disease and the results are in every way more satisfactory if you allow them to follow this instinct of roving at will in search of a living. If the hen should select a nest in some out-of-the-way place, don't meddle, just let her alone, and do not allow yourself to be unnecessarily nervous over it. Turkeys can stand a great deal of "letting alone," and they hatch more poults and stronger ones by such treatment. I shouldn't advise anyone to move a brood of turkeys unless it was an old one and accustomed to being handled by its owner. The second cause is lice; they will kill more poults and do it quicker than any other one thing.

NEAT CHICKEN FEEDER.

A Clever Little Homemade Device That Keeps the Birds from Running Over the Feed.

I see a great many articles on feeding young chickens, but all feed where the chickens can run over the feed and waste and dirty it. I will give your readers the description of one of my inventions. Take for bottom an inch board, four inches wide, any length, four feet is about right; nail one upright piece four inches wide on each end, a foot high, with top slanted like a house roof; then tack one piece of three-inch batting on each side, down close to bottom board, as shown in cut below. This makes a trough to hold feed. Have space above this one and one-half inch for little chicks to poke their heads through; then board up tight almost to top, then tack board on one side of top and hinge one on other side with leather hinges, to put feed in. This leaves it so little chicks can eat on both sides and old ones cannot get their heads in.—George F. Williams, in Agricultural Epitomist.

ARTIFICIAL BROODING.

Do not heap up eggs in the incubator.

Never run the brooder heat over 90 degrees.

Always feed before watering the chicks.

Too much glass in the brooder is a mistake.

An evenly trimmed wick gives the best heat.

Remove all feed after the chicks seem satisfied.

Never crowd a brooder to its advertised capacity.

No machine can make a good hatch from poor eggs.

Even temperature in incubator room is imperative.

The moisture question is being more successfully handled.

Eggs from over-fat hens will not hatch well, even under hens.

Do not allow inquisitive people to tamper with the machines.

Never allow more than one person in charge of the machines.—A Few Hens.

MAMMY'S VOCABULARY

Expletives Which She Believes Necessary to the Proper Rearing of Children.

Mammy has been in the family for a long time. She is invaluable, and when her rheumatism lays her up for a day the domestic wheels refuse to run. No one of the household has ever had the courage to speculate as to what would become of the family if Mammy should be gathered to her fathers.

She has but one fault, this rara avis, and whether that is a fault or not depends entirely upon one's point of view. Mammy will say "Good Lawd," or "My Gawd" upon the slightest provocation. Her conversation is positively freckled with those two ejaculations; and her mistress didn't approve of it. There was a time, when the children were small and were rapidly enlarging their vocabularies, when their mother decided she must reason with Mammy and show her the error of her ways, but she never did it, for she learned to look at the habit from Mammy's point of view.

The children were growing too large to be managed by one rheumatic nurse; so it was decided that a second nurse must be hired, and Mammy was much exercised over the seriousness of the step. The mistress finally decided upon Mammy Chloe, and announced the decision at the dinner table, but said she would not engage the new nurse until the first of the next week.

On the following Sunday Mammy came into the sitting-room with ponderous gravity in every line of her face and figure.

"Mis' Sally," she said to her mistress.

"Well, Mammy."

"I wan' ter tole yoh suthin'. Don' yeh lilah that Mam' Chloe."

"Why not, Mammy?"

Mammy looked gloomy and shook her head.

"She's a no 'count niggah."

"Oh, now, Mammy, what makes you think that? She has splendid references."

Mammy groaned.

"Mis' Sally, she ain't got no religion."

"How do you know?"

The old darky rolled her eyes and leaned forward, speaking in an impressive whisper.

"I bin a-watchin' heh—watchin' heh mighty close. She gits hurt—buhns herse'f, an' it's 'Oh, me,' an' 'Oh, my,' but, Mis' Sally, de name o' Gawd nevah passes heh lips. We can't trus' de chilun wid no such niggah as dat."

Mammy Chloe wasn't engaged, and Mammy still says: "My Gawd" and "Good Lawd." Probably it is counted unto her for righteousness.—N. Y. Sun.

NEW FOOD FOR CATTLE.

Successfully Manufactured from Cornstalks in the State of Maryland.

The new corn products, upon which investigations have been conducted at the Maryland agricultural experiment station to determine its value as a stock food, has been given much consideration by the farming community of the state; in fact, many states have taken up the subject and are conducting experiments to ascertain its relative feeding value. In the process of the extraction of the pith, the blades and husk are first removed, and the stalks are cut up in small pieces. After the extraction of the pith from the stalk the balance is ground up into meal, which in general appearance resembles coarse bran. This ground material is termed the "new corn product." The new corn product contains 11 pounds per 100 more digestible matter and two pounds per 100 more digestible protein than the whole fodder shredded. During the past few years much has been done in the way of testing methods for preparing corn fodder for feeding, with most of the results in favor of some method of shredding the stalk. Shredding possesses many points which makes it superior to the ordinary or old way of cutting fodder, the principal one of which is that the shredded fodder is almost wholly eaten by animals.

It is found that the new corn product contains within one pound as much total digestible matter as wheat bran, but less than one-third as much digestible protein, consequently the nutritive ratio is wider. It was further observed that animals fed with a fattening ration with the new corn product base made more gain in live weight and upon less feed than with a fattening ration of the same grain and corn blades. The keeping qualities of the new corn product are as good as linseed meal, cottonseed meal or wheat bran and rations made up with this material can be fed with less labor and less waste of feed than when hay and fodder are fed separately, as ordinarily practiced.—Baltimore Sun.

Hindoos Vaccinated.

A distinction must be made between inoculation for the prevention or mitigation of smallpox, and vaccination, which is the grafting of cowpox, as a protection against the severer malady. Inoculation was practiced by Turks, Greeks, Syrians and Circassians long before Lady Mary Wortley Montague brought it to England. It was after this that Jenner made his so-called discovery of vaccination or inoculation with virus from the cow instead of from the human subject. There is, however, not the slightest doubt that true vaccination in this sense was long ago known to and practiced by the Hindoos as a preventive smallpox, because distinct references are found to it in Hindoo medical treatises which are certainly several centuries old.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

CURED WITHOUT MEDICINE.

The Man with Rheumatism Comes in Contact with the Hold-Up Man.

"Yes," said the man in the macintosh, lighting another cigar, "it was one of the most remarkable cases I ever knew. Rheumatism 25 years—both shoulders—had to be fed like a little child. Arms had hung helpless ever since I knew him—no use of them whatever."

"And he was cured without medicine?" asked the man who had his foot on the table.

"Yes."

"Or liniments?" inquired the man with the slouch hat.

"Or liniments."

"And recovered the use of his arms in one moment?" observed the man with the goggles on.

"Yes."

"I've heard of such things," remarked the man in the inverness. "It was under circumstances of strong mental excitement, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"I thought so. He was induced to believe he could be cured if only he made the effort, wasn't he?"

"I suppose so. Something or other of that nature."

"Then there's nothing strange about it. The history of medical practice is full of such cases. It was only an instance of what they call faith cure."

"No," said the man in the macintosh, reflectively, "you could hardly call it that. The cure was effected by a man with a revolver, who met him on a lonely road and said:

"'Hold up your hands!' And he held them up."—Chicago Journal.

MADE AN IMPRESSION.

The "Smart Aleck" Candidate Spoils His Chances by Being Too Foremost.

"Do you happen to know why the rural vote went back on him when he ran for congress?" asked one leading Michigan politician of another.

"Never gave the matter any study."

"Nor did I. Just happened to learn a few facts. He went to a big meeting of horticulturists several years ago; long before he thought of running for office. You know what a smart 'Aleck' he is. After what was really a thoughtful and well-considered discussion, he obtained permission to ask some questions, and started off with this one: 'Where do literary laurels grow?' There was a laugh, and the thing would have been remembered as a joke had he not persisted.

"'Who cultivates the flowers of rhetoric?' was his next conundrum, and then he wanted to know if the buds of genius could be forced and if they could survive a hard winter.

"'Mister Chairman,' shouted a little weazened man in the back of the hall, 'I would move you, sir, that we appoint a committee of three to report on the feasebility of raisin' pumpkins in large cities and fur to ascertain if the germs of true will kin be cultervated in the cabbage head.'

"The future aspirant for congress closed the debate with nothing more expressive than a sickly grin, but the rural contingent remembered him when the election came off."—Detroit Free Press.

AN EXCELLENT COMBINATION.

Successful Enterprise Based on Merit —The Importance of Informing the Public of the Value of an Article Through the Leading Newspapers.

The few remedies which have attained to world-wide fame, as truly beneficial in effect and giving satisfaction to millions of people everywhere, are the products of the knowledge of the most eminent physicians, and presented in the form most acceptable to the human system by the skill of the world's great chemists; and one of the most successful examples is the Syrup of Figs manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Unlike a host of imitations and cheap substitutes, Syrup of Figs is permanently beneficial in its effects, and therefore lives and promotes good health, while inferior preparations are being cast aside and forgotten. In olden times if a remedy gave temporary relief to individuals here and there, it was thought good; but now-a-days a laxative remedy must give satisfaction to all. If you have never used Syrup of Figs, give it a trial, and you will be pleased with it, and will recommend it to your friends or to any who suffer from constipation, or from over-feeding, or from colds, headaches, biliousness, or other ills resulting from an inactive condition of the kidney, liver and bowels.

In the process of manufacturing the pleasant family laxative made by the California Fig Syrup Co., and named Syrup of Figs, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste; but the medicinal properties of the remedy are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially. As the true and original remedy, named Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The Company has selected for years past the leading publications of the United States through which to inform the public of the merits of its remedy, and among them this paper is included, as will be seen by reference to its advertising columns.

COMFORTING WORDS TO WOMEN.

The Surgical Chair and its Tortures May be Avoided by Women Who Heed Mrs. Pinkham's Advice.

Woman's modesty is natural; it is charming.

To many women a full statement of their troubles to a male physician is almost impossible. The whole truth may be told to Mrs. Pinkham because she is a woman, and her advice is freely offered to all women sufferers.

Mrs. O. E. LADD, of 19th and N Sts., Galveston, Texas, whose letter is printed below, was completely discouraged when she first wrote to Mrs. Pinkham. Here is what she says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you some time ago, telling you of my ills, but now I write to thank you for the good your remedies have done me. I have used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, three packages of Sanative Wash, and one box of Liver Pills, and to-day I call myself a well woman. I suffered with backache, constant headache, whites, sick stomach, no appetite, could not sicep, and was very nervous. At time of menstruation was in terrible pain. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I never can say enough in praise of it. I have recommended it to many friends. If only all suffering women would try it, there would be more happy homes and healthy women. I thank you for the change your medicine has made in me.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice, have saved thousands of women from hospital operations.

The lives of women are hard; whether at home with a ceaseless round of domestic duties or working at some regular employment, their daily tasks make constant war on health. If all women understood themselves fully and knew how exactly and soothingly Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound acts on the female organs, there would be less suffering.

CONSTIPATION

"I have gone 14 days at a time without a movement of the bowels, not being able to move them except by using hot water injections. Chronic constipation for seven years placed me in this terrible condition; during that time I did everything I heard of but never found any relief; such was my case until I began using CASCARETS. I now have from one to three passages a day, and if I was rich I would give $100.00 for each movement; it is such a relief." AYLMER L. HUNT, 829 Linsell St., Detroit, Mich.

Society Women

and, in fact, nearly all women who undergo a nervous strain, are compelled to regretfully watch the growing pallor of their cheeks, the coming wrinkles and thinness that become more distressing every day.

Every woman knows that ill-health is a fatal enemy to beauty and that good health gives to the plainest face an enduring attractiveness. Pure blood and strong nerves—these are the secret of health and beauty.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People build up and purify the blood, and strengthen the nerves. To the young girl they are invaluable, to the mother they are a necessity, to the woman approaching fifty they are the best remedy that science has devised for this crisis of her life.

Mrs. Jacob Weaver, of Bushnell, Ill., is fifty-six years old. She says: "I suffered for five or six years with the trouble that comes to women at this time of life. I was much weakened, was unable much of the time to do my own work, and suffered beyond my power to describe. I was downhearted and melancholy. Nothing seemed to do me any good. Then I made up my mind to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

I bought the first box in March, 1897, and was benefited from the start. A box and a half cured me completely, and I am now rugged and strong." —Bushnell (Ill.) Record.

The genuine package always bears the full name Dr. Williams Medicine Co. All druggists or sent postpaid on receipt of price 50¢ per box by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co, Schenectady, N.Y.

ALABASTINE

WHAT ALABASTINE IS.

Alabastine is the original and only durable wall coating on the market. It is entirely different from all kalsomine preparations. Alabastine is made ready for use in white or twelve beautiful tints by the addition of cold water. It is put up in dry powdered form, in five-pound packages, with full directions on every package. It takes the place of scaling kalsomines, wall paper and paint for walls. Alabastine can be used on plaster, brick, wood or canvas, and a child can brush it on.

WHAT "KALSOMINES" ARE.

Kalsomines are cheap and temporary preparations, manufactured from whiting, chalks, clays, etc. They are stuck on the walls with decaying animal glue. Alabastine is not a kalsomine. It is a rock-base cement, which sets, and it hardens with age. It can be re-coated and redecorated without having to wash and scrape off its old coats. Beware of a large four-pound package of light kalsomine, sold to dealers for four pounds and offered to customers as a five-pound package.

CHURCHES AND SCHOOLHOUSES.

The interior walls of churches, schoolhouses and all public halls should never be coated with anything but the durable and pure Alabastine. So evident has this fact become, that hundreds of tons are used annually for this work. The genuine Alabastine does not rub or scale off. It is cleanly during the long period of its usefulness. Every owner of a building should use it. Ask your paint dealer or druggist for card of tints, and write for free copy of our paper, Alabastine Era. Co. own the right to make and sell wall coatings adapted to mix with cold water.

REJECT THE "JUST AS GOOD."

The dealer who tells you that he can sell you the "same thing" as Alabastine or "something just as good," either is not posted or is trying to deceive you. In offering something he has bought cheap and is trying to sell on Alabastine's demands, he may not realize the danger to himself as well as to you. Beware of all new substitutes. Dealers risk a suit for damages by selling and consumers by using an infringement. Alabastine Co. own the right to make and sell wall coatings adapted to mix with cold water.

That there is a large and ferocious wild animal roaming about in this community is a certainty, as its tracks are seen in the snow when it comes to Geo Ruth's slaughter house at night in search of something to eat. Its tracks lead to a large cave on the river bank near Solon Early's. Some think it an American lion.

China Day, a notorious character, of Aurora, came over to town, one day last week, and Marshal Jack Smith ordered him to leave. He went to the Aurora ferry, took the skiff away from the ferryman, got aboard and started for Hoosier. China was some the worse for liquor, and he don't know how he got across the river or where he landed. The ice was running very heavy that day. Frank Smith, one of the owners of the ferry interviewed China at his home in Aurora, Thursday, with the above results. China, it will be remembered, is one of the fugitives that the Indiana officers had such an exciting chase after near Plattsburg, several years ago.

Dr. Charles Grant, son of J. Frank Grant, formerly of this place, but now a resident of Baltimore, Md., and Grand Secretary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., who died at Sabinal, State of Chihuhua, Mexico, was born in this county, August 24th, 1866, and consequently he was in his 33rd year. He graduated from the Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia, in 1890, and practiced medicine in the city of Louisville for six years. He was Demonstrator of Anatomy in the Hospital College of Medicine in Louisville. Two years ago he saw that he was developing serious lung trouble and went to Red Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, hoping to derive some benefit therefrom. From there he went to Sabinal, Mexico, where he practiced his profession until within a few weeks of his death. His father was with him at the time of his death, having arrived four hours previous. The following day Mr. Grant left Mexico with the remains of his son, reaching Petersburg, Wednesday at 8 a. m., when the family joined him and the funeral services were conducted by Rev. Jas. A. Kirtley, in the Methodist Church, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives. Dr. Kirtley preached a short discourse from the 24th verse of the 102d Psalm: "Oh, my God, take me not away in the midst of my days," and many eyes were moistened by tears of sorrow during the services. The occasion was made more solemn and pathetic by the absence of the sick mother in the far away Maryland home. A kinder hearted, truer gentleman never lived than Charley Grant.

Feb. 23.—J. S. Cullum made a call at Limaburg, Tuesday.

Mrs. Jemimah Popham has been on the sick list for the past few weeks.

J. S. Cullum had a horse to die and a hog to freeze, during the cold weather.

Mrs. Carrie Scott, of Fairview, was the guest of Mrs. J. M. Riggs, on Wednesday.

H. E. Russell is cutting oak timber on Mr. Frank Gordon's farm, at Taylorsport.

Earl Walton, of Petersburg, was the pleasant guest of Miss Loula Souther, one day last week.

Miss Mima Robinson, of Ludlow, is the guest of her graudmother, Mrs. Florinda Robinson.

The Souther Bros. are delivering several tons of hay to Mr. Claud Couner, of Beech Grove Farm.

The "Poverty Social" at Miss Loula Souther's was very much of a success, notwithstanding the inclemeucy of the weather.

Jacob Stahl is again able to be out after a second attack of pneumouia, but his wife is still confined to her bed with the same disease, also one of his children.

Mound Field Farm.

Abe Clore's old brindle cow froze up during the cold spell and since the weather has moderated she is gradually thawing out, and is giving about a gallon of ice cream at a milking.

Henry Quick's latest invention is a thermometer that registers the weather in inches instead of degrees. The figures are raised on a dial plate so that a person can tell by feeling, just how cold it is even after his eye lids are frozen together and he cant see.

One of the most aggravated cases of absented - mindedness that we have heard of lately, occurred with Jim Beall, last mill day, at Limaburg. Jim had got out of corn-meal, and being a great lover of corn-cakes, it became a necessity for him to go to mill. So mill day came, he got his grist ready and had Mrs Beall to go with him for a sleighride. Arriving at Geo. Baker's a relative of Mrs. Beall, she stopped off for a short visit while he went on to mill, with an invitation to return for dinner at Mrs. Baker's. As several turns were ahead of him he concluded to leave his grist and go back and get his dinner. By this time Mrs. Baker had got up one of those hungry appeasing meals, for which she is noted, and Jim did it ample justice. After dinner corn-meal never entered his head, and as the shades of evening began to fall, he got out his trotters and called Mrs. Beall to come on and home he come without his meal-sack. Very early next morning he was seen to go through here with his flag at half mast, and on being interviewed, said he had a little business at the Cross Roads, but failed to say what it was. On his return, however, the joke leaked out, he acknowledged the corn and said he had no recollection of being at the mill at all the day before.

Solon Stephens, sr., and wife are both quite sick.

The farmers are complaining about losing their pigs and lambs.

Prof. Nelson, of Petersburg, returned home at the close of his school last week.

Will McConnell has purchased a dehorner. So look out and don't let your cow get in his field.

Lucian Clore went to Louisville with 4 hogsheads of tobacco, but the market was full and he did not sell.

Stephen R. Mock, an old citizen of this community, had a stroke of paralysis last week. Owning to his great age his recovery is doubtful.

Wilson & Riddell sold out nearly all of their coal during the cold weather. People from Bellevue and Union were haulilug from here.

Mrs. James H. Stephens surprised her husband on his 52d birthday by giving a dinner, and inviting his many friends to help him enjoy it. Their were 36 present.

Joe Ambrose is visiting his grand mother, Mrs. Caroline Ryle. He was in Santiago battle under Roosevelt. He says that the suffering among the soldiers was terrible.

Florence

Dr. Moffett made a business call at Covington, Sunday evening.

Our old friend, T. R. Castleman, will move back here in a few days.

Miss Lizzie Graves, of Covington, is the guest of the Misses Hoggins.

E. M. Clutterbuck, T. N. Clutterbuck and Mrs. John Clark are still on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Souther are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Souther.

Born—On the 24th ult., to Mr. and Mrs. Geo Crouch, a 10 lb. boy. George is all smiles.

Mrs. O. M. Ryle has returned from a very pleasant visit to her aunt, Mrs. H. B. Harnaday, at Delhi, Ohio.

Mr. James West, of Berkshire, has become a citizen of Florence, occupying the house of Mrs. E. V. Rouse.

John Nead, of Kansas City, Mo., and H. E. Nead, of Delaware, Indiana, are spending a few days here since the death of their mother.

Harvey Latham left, Monday, to take a position with the C. N. & C. St. Railway Co., at Covington. There are several more young men here looking for situations, but there is not much prospect of finding them unless they can secure long-distance glasses to look with.

Among the names of the prospective candidates for Representative mentioned in last week's RECORDER, we noticed the name of ex-County Judge Ben Stephens. We wish to say that there is no better material in Boone county. Having filled several county offices with credit and ability and being thoroughly acquainted with the condition, needs and affairs of the county, we think that old Boone would make no mistake in seuding Judge Stephens to represent her in the next General Assembly. The writer has not said anything to the Judge in regard to this matter, and does not know whether or not he would accept the nomination if tendered.

Utzinger.

The smiling face of the genial Mr. G. C. Graddy was seen in our village a few days since. He reports that the mercury registered 30° below 0 at his boarding house.

No good farmer at the present day is justified in keeping stock without providing them with comfortable quarters in bad weather. The loss from death and exposure on many farms during the recent severe weather would itself be sufficient to build sheds that would secure them from future loss.

We are informed that 1899 bids fair to be a year of great prosperity to the farmers and will mark the beginning of an era of success among us that will instill new life in our people, and with glad hearts and plenty of money, we will be restored to the times like we enjoyed before this terrible depression set in. We must confess that we fail to see any signs to justify this conclusion, but on the part of all our people we promise to put our shoulder to the wheel and do our best to start the wheels of good fortune to rolliug.

Hathaway.

Feb. 27.—Mrs. Caroline Ryle has pneumonia.

C. B. Mason had a wood-sawing, one day last week.

Several of our farmers are getting scarce of feed for their stock.

Lee Adams has purchased a farm in Grant county, and will move on to it next month.

The personal property of Joe Huey, deceased, was sold at public auction last Saturday.

The farmers are having considerable trouble to save their lambs. Lots of them are dying.

Frauk Ambrose was visiting his relatives in this neighborhood several days the past week.

Bill Williamson, the Rabbit Hash fur dealer, was in this bailiwick one day last week, buying furs.

Mrs. B. H. Stephens and daughter, Connie, and Mrs. Cynthia White and Miss Minnie Sullivan were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Smith, last Friday.

Prof. D. M. Snyder closed his school at Beech Grove the 22nd. Quite a crowd assembled and took well filled baskets, and an elegant dinner was spread at noon and was enjoyed by all present. The scholars read several selections in the afternoon and the Prof. gave them a few minutes talk, when the school closed.

Union.

Chas. Baker has lost nine hogs of thumps, recently.

John and Leonard Adams will move to Grant county soon.

J. W. Kennedy thinks Mr. Piatt's articles in the Recorder unanswerable.

Rev. Davis preached Sunday morning and evening at the Presbyterian church.

James West entertained the young folks with a dance, one night last week, that lasted until the small hours of the morning.

Sup. Voshell has been engaged in the wood business, lately, and will be prepared for any 50° changes in the weather that may occur in March.

John L. Rouse has two Poland-china sows that are using their utmost endeavors to raise 28 pigs—one has 15 and the other 13. Mr. Rouse thinks the Poland-chinas hard to beat.

Henry Conner is not much of a jumper himself, but he got hickory poles and made a jumper that was a jumper from away back. With a mule at one end of it, and himself and about 4 girls at the other, he had a grand time sleighing.

The Ladies' Mission Society, of the Baptist church, made their social at Mrs. James A. Hueys', a success in every particular. Every part of the program was carried out nicely, and everyone present enjoyed the evening very much.

The recent snow was a peculiar one in several respects. First, it fell for 4 or 5 hours without the wind blowing enough to prevent it coming down almost perpendicular. Second, 9 inches of the beautiful fell in this short time, and thirdly, was the lightest of the season.

Mr. Columbus Wilson, of Richwood, was visiting in Union, recently, and your cor. interviewed him on the Philippines with this result: "I think the war with Spain was unnecessary to begin with, and any encroachment upon the Fillipinos is unjust, and devoid of even common decency."

The O. M. C. A. Club was entertained by Harry Cronnel, Friday evening, and a most enjoyable evening was passed. Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar seemed delighted to have the club meet with Harry, and Mr. Ogden grew 10 years younger under the pressure of fun.

In Richwood, Saturday morning, a man was in danger of being run down and run over most any minute by the various kinds of wagons that were being hustled around there in regular New York style. The veteran hustler of hustlers, David Hicks, assisted by Messrs. Lee Gaines, John Delahunty and Ryland Hedges, were hauling baled hay; Bradberry Bedinger and W. W. Conner were hauling coal out of town while Mr. Jackson's team hauled it into his elevator; Columbus Bedinger was "hauling the mail" and Mage Conuer was "hauling us over the coals" for not getting over in time to see him make a "water haul." When we left Dr. Mcalfee was going to see a patient, Sam Hicks was trying to sell five hogs, Ben Northcutt was picking the snow out of his hair and ears, and business was still booming with Prof. Collins holding the safety valve down with a rail to keep it from blowing out.

On the night of the 17th ult., the Excelsior Club, of Beaver, and the Hickory Club, of Union, were entertained by Miss Bertha Baker. The following delightful program was rendered: Debate: Resolved, That man is more influenced by money than by woman. Affirmative—Mr. Marion Johnson. Negative—Messrs. Robert Chambers and Walter Lassing. Piano duet—Misses Emilie and Elizabeth Cleek. Recitations—Misses Corbin, Lassing and Williams, and Messrs. Elbert Rouse and Charles Chambers. Piano solo—Mrs. Baker. Vocal solo—Miss May L. Norman. Then several new members were initiated, after which a delightful collation was served by Miss Bertha and her mother. The approach of the wee 'sma hours warned one and all that it was time to say adieu, so all departed saying that this was an event long to be remembered by those who were so fortunate as to be present.

Gunpowder.

W. N. Surface has been on the sick list.

Ell Surface has four ewes with 12 lambs.

Ben Surface has lost two sheep and several lambs.

Perry Aylor lost 17 lambs during the cold weather.

W. N. Surface is on the sick list with a case of rheumatism.

Wallace Tanner, of Wittenburg College, attended church at Hopeful, last Sunday.

Rev. T. L. Utz and family were guests of J. N. Pearson, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Fair, of Grand Rappids, spent several days last week with his sister, Mrs. Lentz.

Uncle Thos. Utz was taken sick very suddeuly, a few days ago, and is still in a critical condition.

Mrs. B. C. Surface, who has been seriously sick for about two weeks with grippe, is improving slowly.

Geo. Barlow, our lamb buyer, has been out prospecting and has made some very good bids on lambs.

J. P. Suyder, who, for several years, has lived on the Price farm near Florence, has moved to this neighborhood again.

The severe cold weather has been the cause of a great many young lambs dying. There has been quite a number of old sheep died in this neighborhood also.

We met James A. Smith a few days ago, and he seemed so much agitated, that we inquired the cause of his trouble, when he said: "When I reached the house to-day in answer to the diuner bell, I looked at my clock and it was just 12 m. I began eating dinner at once, and I was aware that I was very hungry, and was eating quite a while, but imagine my surprise when I looked at the clock again, and please God, it was 1 p. m. I am afraid that I ate so much that it will make me sick." We suggested that there might be something wrong with the clock, and that he examine it. Acting upon this suggestion Mr. S. discovered that the pendulum was off and that the clock was reeling off 48 hours per day. This discovery dispelled all fears of bad results from overfeeding, and Mr. Smith resumed his usual jovial manner.

The semi-annual meeting of the Joint-council of the Evangelical Lutheran churches of the Boone county charge, was held at Hopeful church, last Saturday, with the following members present: From Hebron, Robert. S. J. and W. L. B. Rouse, J. W. Crigler, and William Graves; Ebenezer, J. B. Dixon, J. W. Hogan, and E. H Surface; Hopeful, J. L. and A. F. Rouse, N. C. Tanner, M. P. Barlow, J. H. and E. K. Tanner, E. A. Floyd and Rev. H. Max Lentz. The officers elected for the ensuing year were B. A. Floyd, Chairman, E. H. Surface, Secretary; M. P. Barlow, Treasurer, and T. A. Crigler, J. H. Tanner and J. W. Hogan, Executive Committee. The meeting was of great interest and the members manifested much zeal in pushing forward the work in which they are engaged.

Verona.

I noticed in the Verona news of your paper an item in which it speaks of a man approving or disapproving of matters according to his desires, regardless of rightor wrong. I will first say if man does not approve of what is right and is calculated to do our people good and disapprove of what is wrong is not a man at all, and as to a man argueing for a lower standard in life I don't suppose any man would argue for people to be any less truthful, honest, or if possible any the less pure. But I have beard men say that all business is run to the extremes and most all men live beyond their means, from which the effect is very perceptible. It causes many people to lose their homes. If there is any man truthful and honest, and loves purity, take a man that is willing to live plain and according to his means and by the sweat of his brow. It is not the man that goes to church or Sunday-school the most that is the highest grade in purity, but in many cases, have more deception and do more to drag down their fellow-men than others that they harp on as being very degraded. Therefore take heed that no more deceive you.

A LOVING TRIBUTE.

In Loving Memory of May Alloway Moore.

Death is always sad and the separation which it brings must cause a pang to loved ones. But when it snatches one just in youth's bloom, with all life's promises unfulfilled, oh the anguish of this only the hearts that have been thus bereft can tell. Thus it was with our dear May—surrounded by a loving husband, relations and kind friends. She has now crossed the dark river and entered the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem and is safe in the arms of Jesus, waiting to welcome to the other shore those whom she has left here to mourn her loss. Not laid in the cold grouud, Oh, no, dear grieved friends, May is in heaven. May her departure from this world draw those whom she has left behind nearer to Jesus that when they are called to their loug rest they may all unite in never-ceasing praise to the lamb of God.

Oh, how sadly we do miss thee,
We can hear thy voice no more;
Yet the thought is more consoling,
That thy sufferings are o'er.

Meeting of the Distrct Board.

The District Board of the North Bend Association of Baptists, met with the Burlington Baptist church, Thursday and Friday of last week. Notwithstanding the heavy fall of snow Thursday morning, a good congregation assembled. The visiting ministers were, Elders J. A. Kirtley, S. M. Adams, T. L. Utz, C. G. Jones, B. F. Swindler and J. A. Lee. The following churches were represented: Bellevue, Big Bone, Bullittsburg, Beaver Lick, Union, First Baptist, Madison Avenue, and Third ch[illegible], Covington. Mrs. C. L. Crisler, hostess of the Boone House, kindly offered to the ladies the use of her spacious and well arranged dining hall, were a bountiful dinner was served. On Friday the visiting brethren took dinner with brother and sister Castleman, and sisters Brady, Furnish and Geo. Biyth.

Thursday morning devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor. After the opening exercises, the body was organized, Bro. Jo C. Revill was unanimously elected chairman, and Bro. D. M. Snyder, secretary. The subjects on the program which had been prepared by brothers D. E. Castleman, B. W. Adams and M. J. Hoover, were then taken up for discussion. Dr. Sam Adams delivered a strong and helpful discourse based on John 17:17—"Sanctify them through Thy truth, Thy word is the truth." The subject, assigned him was, "How to elevate our people to a higher plain of Christian living." Dr. J. A. Kirtley next spoke on the subject, "What Baptist Principles are worth to the [illegible]." Bro. Kirtley was at his best, "his youth was renewed like the eagle's." His discussion was strong, clear, forcible and to the point. Owiug to the lack of time he omitted many of the principles held by Baptists in common with the other evangelical denominations, and dwelt upon distinctive Baptist principles as the following: The supremacy and absolute sovereignty of the New Testament Scriptures for the rule and practices of our people. Under this head he showed that "Infant sprinkling" had no scripture warrant, but was simply based upon tradition; hence it is repudiated by Baptists. He also showed that the tendency of this practice was to lay the foundation to national hierarchies, and where universally practiced surely and speedily abolishes all distinctions between the churches and the world. He traced the rise of papacy to this practice, and showed it to be the "pat and pillar of popery." He next dwelt upon the New Testament principle, salvation by grace, pure and simple. He spoke of Luther's idea of this principle, and showed that the great reformer did not fully teach this New Testament doctrine, so the true conception of salvation by grace was seized upon by Carlstadt and others of like faith as the Baptists, and made known to the world. He spoke of Religious Liberty or Freedom of conscience. He pointed out the persecutions suffered by the Baptist forefathers at the hands of Catholics, Lutherans, Episcopalians and Presbyterians, because the Baptists contended for religious freedom, which all evangelical denominations now admit as a glorious principle. Many historical references were given of the imprisonment, of whippings, of burnings and other cruel persecutions of the Baptists from the time of the persecution of two Baptist preachers, Paul and Silas, until long after the settlement of America. He also spoke of the Baptists holding to the New Testament Baptism. Under this division he showed that such scholars as Mosheim Neander of the Lutheran, Shaff and Calvin of the Presbyterians, admitted that immersion only was New Testament Baptism. He next spoke of separation of church and state as a Baptist principle.

Bro. B. F. Swindler gave an able discussion on the subject, "Baptists and missions." He said the Baptists were the first denomination to make an organized effort to carry the gospel to the heathens. William Cary, of England, preached his memorable sermon, "Expect great things from God; attempt great things for God," in 1792. This was really the beginning of Modern Missions. The Baptists were the first or among the first to form Bible societies and translate the Bible into the languages of the heathens. He referred to Mr. and Mrs. Judson and Mr. Rice, who were sent out by the Cougregationalist, becoming Baptists on the voyage to India. This change in their views was caused by a close study of the New Testament. He gave some interesting figures in reference to the various amounts contributed by the Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Methodists and Baptists. That while the Baptists had put less money on the foreign field they had more members by 60,000 than any other denomination.

Bro. J. A. Lee delivered a carefully prepared address on the subject, "The Christian Churches in the coming Centuries." He took the word Baptists and made an acrostic as follows: The churches in the coming century will be,

B—Biblical churches;
A—Active churches;
P—Progressive churches;
T—True churches;
I—Intelligent churches;
S—Spiritual churches;
T—Triumphant churches.

The address was ingenously arraiged and well received.

Bro. C. G. Jones next spoke on "Church Polity." He spoke of Thomas Jefferson getting his idea of States' rights from a little insignificant Baptist church down in Virginia. He showed that the Baptists have no Popes, Cardinals, Archbishops, Priests or Presiding Elders to lord it over God's people; but every man is accountable to God alone and must obedience make to Him, Who is head over all. Baptist preachers too are members of Baptist churches, while preachers and presiding Elders and Bishops in the Methodist church do not belong to the church. He then made a comparison between the teachings of the Episcopal church, the Presbyterian and the Methodist church, and the teachings of the Baptist churches on the communiuon. In this comparison he proved to a demonstration that if these great denominations would consistently hold to the practice of the teaching of their creeds on this question, they would be as close communionists as Baptists. For example: The Episcopal prayer book says that before one shall be permitted to partake of the sacraments of the Lord's Supper, that person must be confirmed or ready and anxious to be confirmed. Now no Presbyterian, Methodist nor Baptist has been confirmed nor are they ready and anxious to be confirmed, hence they have no right to partake, nor the Episcopal Rector to invite them to partake. Again, the Confession of Faith of the Presbyterian church says, p. 147 § IV. "There be only two sacraments ordained by Christ, our Lord, in the Gospel, that is to say baptism and the supper of the Lord: neither of which may be dispensed by any but by a minister of the word, lawfully ordained." Now no one among the Methodist, Episcopalians and Baptists is lawfully ordained according to the Confession of Faith of the Presbyterian church, hence cannot administer to the Lord's supper, so that the Presbyterians cannot communeate out side of their own churches. The Methodist Discipline says no one who inveighs against the doctriue of the Methodist church has a right to communion. Now since all other denominations inveigh against their doctrine they have no right to the communion table in a Methodist church.

Bro. T. L. Utz read a carefully prepared paper on the communion question, He was once an open communionist, but by his sound logic and scriptural proofs soon convinced us that he was as close as the closest, even as close as the Methodist Discipline, which teaches that the communion can be offered no further than church discipline extends. He first discussed the names given the ordinance. 1st—Sacrament was without scriptural authority and should not be used. 2nd—Eucharist not to be used for the same reason. 3rd—Some scriptural ground for communion but perhaps the best term would be Lord's Supper. He next discussed Transubstantiation, which means that when the words of consecration are uttered by the priest the bread and wine are instantly changed into the real body and real blood of Christ, just as they actually existed on the cross. He pointed out the absurdity of this view. He next discussed consubstantiation, which holds that the bread and wine remain bread and wine after the words of consecration, but the real body and blood of Christ are mystically united with them, and that the communicant receives, in a corporal seuse, the actual body and blood of Christ, in, under, and with the elements. This view was shown to be absurd and untenable. He next discussed the symbolic view as held by the Baptists, that the bread and wine are symbols, representing the body and blood of Christ. Next he showed the perequisites to membership as follows: Regeneration, baptism —without which one could not become a church member, and without church-membership one could not partake of the Lord's Supper. He then conclusively proved that where a church had no authority to exercise discipline it had no right to offer communion, and concluded his paper by quoting the Methodist Discipline in favor of his position: "No person shall be admitted to the Lord's Supper among us, who is guilty of practice for which we would exclude a member of our church."

Friday the Board met and transacted the regular business, after which the last subject on our program was discussed. Board adjourned to meet at Bellevue church on the 25th and 26th of April. Brethren T. L. Utz, Robt. Huey and D. M. Snyder were appointed to prepare a program. All are cordially invited to attend the meetion. M. J. HOOVER.

PARIS' city council is going to give prizes yearly to the architects and the constructors of the six handsomest houses erected during the year. The owners will be exempted from half the betterment assessments. Fifty-two sets of plans have been handed in for the first competition, which is for houses built last year.

A BILL has been introduced in the Michigan legislature providing for the non-forfeiture of life insurance policies upon which one premium has been paid, and making life insurance companies responsible for all representations of its agents, the company not being released from this responsibility even by the terms of a policy contract signed by the assured.

THE old fight against state aid for higher education is on in the South Carolina legislature. Opponents of such aid made an effort in the house to reduce from $27,500 to $20,000 the recommended appropriation for the South Carolina college, but only succeeded in cutting the amount down to $25,000. The appropriation has varied between that amount and $30,000 for the last nine years.

THE reason why ships are not struck by lightning is attributed to the general use which is now made of wire rope for rigging purposes, as well as to the fact that the hulls of ships are usually constructed of iron or steel. Thus the whole ship forms an excellent and continuous conductor, by means of which the electricity is led away into the ocean before it has time to do any serious damage.

RINGS never were more fashionable, and it is the latest fashion to wear a ring on the index finger, and this is quite as awkward as wearing a circlet of jewels on the thumb. The ring most approved at present to wear on the index finger is large and costly. It consists of a ruby surrounded with diamonds. An emerald set in this same fashion is also in vogue. Women of fashion are also wearing curious ancient rings, many of which cover three fingers, after the style of Mrs. Mackey and her $27,000 ring.

THE United States department of agriculture has, by experiments, found that the force of a growing pumpkin is sufficient to lift two and one-half tons, provided the weight is so placed as not to interfere with the growth or natural development of the vegetable. In London a paving stone, which weighed 500 pounds and which was wedged in on all sides by other stones, was lifted up by a mushroom. The growth of a big gum tree at Cinerias, Honduras, moved the walls of a concrete church, three feet in thickness, 18 inches in 17 years.

GEORGE GOULD will be urged to accept the colonelcy of the 7th regiment of the New Jersey national guard, to succeed Col. Charles Y. Bamford, who has placed his resignation in the hands of Adjt. Gen. Stryker. It is probable that Col. Bamford will be retired with the rank of brigadier general. The acceptance of the resignation of Maj. Gen. Plume, as commander, will be followed by a reorganization of the New Jersey national guard. Gen. Steward, commander of the 2d brigade, will be promoted to the general command.

FOUR states are getting ready to go into competition with New Jersey in the business of incorporating corporations and trusts. For several weeks agents from New York, Pennsylvania and Maine have been examining the New Jersey corporation laws, with a view to adopting many of them to make the states named more attractive to corporations and trusts. The little state of Delaware has already passed a corporation law which will be even more attractive to corporations than the existing laws.

MOTHERS of the small children possessed to put everything in their mouths will be glad to know that matches at last are to be taken out of the catagory of things poisonous. To effect death now, says the match manufacturers, a person would have to eat the ends of some 6,000 matches. This even an industrious child would hardly be apt to do. The substitution of a mixture of phosphorus sesqui, sulphide and chloride of potash for the poisonous yellow phosphorus has been brought about through the efforts of the French government.

THE German emperor's private train, in which he travels over the German railways, is a very comfortable affair. There are nine carriages, each of which cost between $10,000 and $15,000. Outside these are painted in blue and cream and gold. There is a saloon carriage for the emperor and another for the empress, besides kitchen, dining and luggage cars, a saloon for the suite, and another for the servants. Finally, there is a carriage containing tools and workmen, to make any small repairs that may happen to be required while the imperial train is on the journey.

AMERICAN LINES

Insurgents Tried to Break Through and a Hot Engagement Ensues.

The Americans Were Treacherously Attacked on All Sides by the Filipinos—The Shells of the Monitor Monadnock Did Excellent Service.

MANILA, Feb. 24.—The insurgents outside of Manila, emboldened by the action of their sympathizers in the city Wednesday night, began desultory attacks on the American lines Thursday, but were speedily repelled. Other engagements, short and sharp, but generally disastrous to the Filipinos, occurred at several other points. The American loss, so far, is one killed and a dozen wounded.

The monitor Monadnock threw a number of big shells among the rebels, with probably disastrous results. Fires can be seen at a number of points in the rebel positions, no doubt due to the monitor's exploded shells.

There was some trouble in the country between the city and the American lines, caused by native sympathizers, but these were either killed or driven away by troops sent away from the city. Scores of arrests have been made. Business in the city is at a standstill. It is reported the Americans Thursday discovered a plot to burn old Manila Thursday night.

One of the fiercest fights, for a small one, since the war began took place at and around Tondo bridge Thursday afternoon.

A body of daring insurgents, about 250 in number, passed Gen. McArthur's left wing, along the swampy shore near Caloocan during the night and entered the Tondo district, where there are three miles of nipa huts.

Building five trenches across the road they took possession of Tondo bridge, which they held until 2 o'clock. Thus they were in the outskirts of the city, and our line of communication with the front was cut.

Two Minnesota companies sustained the first attack, but held on until reenforced. Capt. N. C. Robinson was wounded in the mouth. Sergt. George Shepherd, Private George Wooding and Thomas Galvin and four others were also slightly wounded.

At noon Thursday one battalion of the 23d infantry, under Maj. Goodale, three companies of Minnesota militia, three Oregon companies and a battalion of the 4th cavalry were ordered from their position.

The troops advanced along and on each side of the road. The insurgents fought from house to house and in this manner eight were killed in one yard. The American advance was somewhat slow.

At Tondo bridge the insurgents made a stubborn fight. They were on our right and in trenched in strong positions in ditches.

Company C, of the 23d infantry, moved out to dislodge them and a hot fight followed. The insurgents only showed their heads from time to time and poured volleys into our line. We here lost one man killed and one wounded. The firing of the 23d men at this point was magnificent.

The nipa huts used as a refuge by the insurgents had to be burned. Hundreds of refugees came into our lines, insurgent soldiers among them, mixed up with weeping women, carrying children.

It was difficult to distinguish the insurgents who threw away their uniforms before being captured.

The American medical department attended to the insurgent wounded as well as to our own.

Finally the insurgent forces were gradually driven toward the shore, where the Monadnock, under the direction of the signal corps on land, directed an effective fire upon them.

During a maneuver the Nebraskans beat up a very rough country for two miles, when they were suddenly taken in the rear by a body of insurgents advancing to the reinforcement of their fellows. Col. Stotenburgh was obliged to face his troops about and drive back the new enemy. The Filipinos fell back when pursued and fought from bush to bush. Finally they disappeared beyond the San Mateo river. The Americans found one insurgent officer and 19 soldiers dead. Our loss was two soldiers severely wounded.

About midday some foreigners in the Tutuban cotton mills in the Tondo district were caught between the fire of the insurgents and Americans, and had an exceedingly exciting experience.

The Curfew at Manila.

MANILA, Feb. 24.—Maj. Gen. Otis Thursday issued a general order directing all the inhabitants of Manila, until otherwise ordered, to confine themselves to their homes after 7 o'clock in the evening, when the streets will be cleared by the police.

DEWEY WANTS THE OREGON.

The Admiral May Want the Big War Ship for the Moral Effect It Will Have on the Filipinos.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Secretary Long took to the cabinet meeting Friday morning two cipher cablegrams from Adm. Dewey, dated Friday morning. The following are translations:

"MANILA, Feb. 24.—Secretary of the Navy: For political reasons, Oregon should be sent at once.

(Signed) "DEWEY."

"MANILA, Feb. 24.—Yorktown arrived. Charleston and Petrel cruising around the Philippine islands. Affairs more quiet. DEWEY."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The cablegram from Adm. Dewey asking for the Oregon was received with surprise by the officials here. No one knew, or at least would acknowledge that he knew, of the political reasons which the admiral says demand the immediate presence of the peerless battle ship. The cablegram was taken to the cabinet board and fully discussed there. The admiral, it is said, possibly feels that the moral effect of the presence of the big ship upon the insurgents themselves, and particularly upon that large element among the Filipinos that is believed to be restrained with great difficulty from joining fortunes with Aguinaldo, with whom their sympathies lie, would be good. But there is an underlying doubt whether or not the admiral may not be keenly sighting a gathering cloud in the east and is looking to prevention of any possible intervention or interference by European powers in the struggle now in progress in the neighborhood of Manila. It is believed that in the big fires much property of foreign residents and business concerns was destroyed. That these fires were caused by the insurgents can not be denied, and it may be that some of the foreign naval commanders in the east are disposed to seize upon the pretext that their interests demand protection, which we can not afford them, to make a landing or do something obnoxious to the United States and likely to encourage the insurgents. With such a strong naval force as would be afforded by the reinforcement of Dewey's fleet by the Oregon there could not be any sound reason, nor even a plausible reason for any such action on the part of third parties.

It is said here that up to this moment there has been no intimation of a purpose on the part of any foreign government to file any claims for pecuniary remuneration for the property of their citizens destroyed in the fires and fighting at either Manila or Iloilo. Just what disposition would be made of any such claims is not indicated here, though there is ground for the belief that if it can be shown that our naval and military and naval officers practiced the precautions required by international law in the matter of giving due notice to foreigners of any action in the way of bombardment that might injure their property, and otherwise did everything that could be done to protect the foreign interests equally with our own, then there is little foundation for a sound claim for damages.

The Oregon arrived at Honolulu on the 5th inst. according to the telegraphic report that came to the navy department Friday morning. No mention was made of her being in need of repairs as is stated in the press dispatches. It is not known either why the battle ship arrived at Honolulu a week before the Scindia and the Iris, which started out with her from San Francisco. The two tenders were supposed to attend the Oregon, to help her out with a tow in case she ran short of coal, or was otherwise in distress. Probably one of the boats broke down and the other was left to take her in tow while the Oregon pushed on to Honolulu.

Assuming that the battle ship really needed ten days' repairs, she should have started away from Honolulu on her long run to Manila on the 15th instant. Allowing for detention on account of coaling at Guam or some other point between Honolulu and Manila, it is estimated that the Oregon will reach Manila about the 10th of March.

SAMPSON-SCHLEY MATTER.

Secretary Long Says He Has No Idea of Ordering a Court of Inquiry Into the Merits of the Controversy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—In answer to an inquiry Secretary Long said Friday that he had not thought of ordering a court of inquiry into the merits of the Sampson-Schley controversy, nor did he contemplate allowing Schley to be forced out of the service through any technicality, such as the failure of the senate to confirm his nomination to be rear admiral. The department in that case would see that he was protected.

A Corner in Eggs.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 25.—There is a corner in eggs here and prices have advanced from 21 to 40 cents a dozen. Last week H. D. Miller, of Philo, Muskingum county, O., arrived here and quietly started in to buy eggs. In a few days he had secured 1,000 cases, or 30,000 dozen and now has the market cornered.

Transferred to the Prison De La Sante.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—Messrs. Beroulede and Habert were transferred during Friday to the prison De La Sante.

NEAR THE END.

The Last Week of Congress Will No Doubt Be a Very Busy One.

The Appropriation Bills Will Demand Attention—There Are Still Five of These—They Will Occupy the Balance of the Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The week will open with the compromise army bill still before the senate, but it is impossible to say how long it may continue to demand the attention of that body. The best opinion is to the effect that a vote will be secured Monday, but this depends largely upon the temper of Mr. Gorman and his friends, who insist upon the amendment of the army bill so as to further curtail the size of the army in 1901.

If the debate should be continued to any considerable length, the action would be generally accepted as indicating an intention to force an extra session, as all admit that with as many appropriation bills as are pending, it is impracticable to give very much more time to the army bill and still pass the supply bills before the 4th instant. There is yet no danger of failure on either the army bill or the appropriation bills. No senator can be found who avows himself desirous of forcing a called session. Hence the general belief that all these measures will become laws and that when congress adjourns for the session next Saturday legislation will be in such shape as to render it safe to permit the legislators to remain at their homes until next December.

The appropriation bills will demand almost all the attention of the senate after the army bill is out of the way, and the senate will have to materially increase the length of sessions in order to secure their enactment into laws. There are still five of these bills which have not as yet received attention from the senate and five others which are in conference and which will require more or less consideration on conference reports.

The house will devote practically all of the closing week of the session to the appropriation bills and conference reports, and the prospects are that every minute of the time will be required to get through before noon on March 4. An order has been made to meet at 11 o'clock each day, but in addition to this night sessions will be held, and it would surprise no one if one or more all-night sessions should be necessary. Everything else except the appropriation bills and the army reorganization bill will go by the board in the final crush. A few minor bills may go through by unanimous consent, but there is no longer any time for the consideration of important general measures. The bill for the government of Hawaii has been abandoned, and although the friends of the public buildings bill, favorably acted upon in the committee of the whole ten days ago, still cherish a lingering hope that time will be given for their consideration in the house, the change is so insignificant that it is barely worth mentioning. Hundreds of bills will die on the calendar. Although the fear of an extra session practically disappeared with the agreement in the senate upon the army reorganization bill, it will require the most arduous labor to get through the appropriation bills and conference reports before the curtain falls next Saturday.

ACT OF FOREIGN COMMANDERS

They Have Decided to Land Forces at Manila to Protect Their Subjects—The War May Be Long.

MADRID, Feb. 27.—The government has received a long dispatch from Gen. Rios, at Manila, but refuses to impart its contents.

El Imparcial, which asserts that it is in a position to know the truth of the situation at Manila, says:

"There is constant fighting between the Americans and the Tagalos. The courage and stubbornness of the latter have caused great anxiety to the Americans, who do not conceal their belief that the war will be a long and desperate one. There is the greatest alarm among foreigners in Manila and the commanders of the foreign war ships have decided to land forces to protect their subjects."

No Case Against Hanna.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The senate committee on privileges and elections decided that there was no case made in the protest against Senator Hanna, of Ohio, and orderd such a report made to the senate. Senator Turley, of Tennessee, reserved the right to make a statement concerning the matter to the senate, though no minority report would be made.

Small Cyclone at Toledo.

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 27.—A terrific thunder storm bordering on a small cyclone passed over this city late Sunday afternoon. Many trees were blown down and other damage done by the wind and lightning.

Wild Rush of Diamond Miners.

A wild rush of excited miners is reported at Nullagine, Western Australia, where diamonds have been discovered in large quantities, and it is feared that many will lose their lives in the mad struggle for riches. In this country the rush for gain is causing many other men to break down in health and strength. Nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of flesh and appetite and general debility are the common symptoms. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will cure them all.

Timely Reminder.

The other day, as two friends were talking together in the street, a donkey began to bray and wheeze and cough in a distressing manner. "What a cold that donkey has," said one of the men. "And, by the way, that puts me in mind—how is your cough?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with Local Applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

The wealth of the multi-millionaires is not equal to good health. Riches without health are a curse, and yet the rich, the middle classes and the poor alike have, in Hood's Sarsaparilla, a valuable assistant in getting and maintaining perfect health. It never disappoints.

Scrofula—"Three years ago our son, now eleven, had a serious case of scrofula and erysipelas with dreadful sores, discharging and itching constantly. He could not walk. Several physicians did not help for sixteen months. Three months' treatment with Hood's Sarsaparilla made him perfectly well. We are glad to tell others of it." MRS. DAVID LAIRD, Ottawa, Kansas.

Nausea—"Vomiting spells, dizziness and prostration troubled me for years. Had neuralgia, grew weak and could not sleep. My age was against me, but Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me thoroughly. My weight increased from 125 to 143 pounds. I am the mother of nine children. Never felt so well and strong since I was married as I do now." MRS. M. A. WATERS, 1529 33d St., Washington, D. C.

Eczema—"We had to tie the hands of our two year old son on account of eczema on face and limbs. No medicine even helped, so we tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, which soon cured." MRS. A. VAN WYCK, 123 Montgomery Street, Paterson, N. J.

GOVERNOR OF OREGON

Uses Pe-ru-na For Colds in His Family and Grip.

CAPITOL BUILDING, SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From the Executive Office of Oregon.

Pe-ru-na is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Letters of congratulation and commendation testifying to the merits of Pe-ru-na as a catarrh remedy are pouring in from every state in the Union. Dr. Hartman is receiving hundreds of such letters daily. All classes write these letters, from the highest to the lowest.

The outdoor laborer, the indoor artisan, the clerk, the editor, the statesman, the preacher—all agree that Pe-ru-na is the catarrh remedy of the age. The stage and rostrum, recognizing catarrh as their greatest enemy, are especially enthusiastic in their praise and testimony.

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Pe-ru-na is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Pe-ru-na not only cures catarrh, but prevents. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds and so forth.

The Governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Pe-ru-na. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

STATE OF OREGON,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
SALEM, May 9, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Dear Sirs—I have had occasion to use your Pe-ru-na medicine in my family for colds, and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.

Yours very truly,
W. M. Lord.

It will be noticed that the Governor says he has not had occasion to use Pe-ru-na for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold. Using Pe-ru-na to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments. This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do. Keep Pe-ru-na in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe, and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house. Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled "Winter Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

GOMEZ BANQUET.

Function Regarded as a Promising Augury of Cuba's Independence.

Gens. Lee and Brooke Assured Cubans That the United States Would Establish a Stable Government and Then Turn it Over to Them.

HAVANA, Feb. 27.—The banquet at the Tacon theater proved a brilliantly successful affair. Gov. Gen. Brooke and Maj. Gen. Lee spoke. Cubans generally regard the occurrences at the function as the most promising auguries of Cuban independence since the peace protocol was signed. The theater was crowded to overflowing with spectators, and more than 300 covers were laid for the banqueters. Besides the governor general and Gen. Lee the company included Maj. Gen. Ludlow, Gen. Chaffee, the governor general's chief of staff, the staffs of Gens. Lee and Ludlow, and other army and navy officers, together with many prominent citizens and Havana officials. Gen. Andrade sat on the right of Gen. Gomez and Mayor Lacoste on his left.

The boxes were filled with people representing Havana's best society. As the American generals entered a trumpeter at the door blew once, whereupon a concealed band played the "Star Spangled Banner." When the Cuban commanders entered the trumpet was sounded twice and the band played the Cuban hymn. Among the speakers were Senors Pedro Llorento, Col. Carlos Garcia, Cualberto Gomez and Dr. Lanuza, secretary of the department of justice. The tendency of all the speeches was toward independence for Cuba, with eulogy of Gen. Gomez and assertions that he must never more leave the island. The spectators called vociferously for a speech from Maj. Gen. Lee. His remarks and those of Gen. Brooke were translated for the benefit of the assembly by Senor Pablo Desvernines, secretary of the department of finance. Both the American generals repeated former statements of the military administration, chiefly along the line of assurance that the United States intended to establish a stable government in the island and then to deliver it to the Cubans themselves. These assurances were vociferously applauded.

Col. Garcia explained the disinterested position of American military officers in Cuba. Gen. Gomez himself did no speak, owing to the hoarseness from which he is suffering. Gen. Andrade expressed thanks on his behalf, adding in his name that the banquet had done much to bring the Cuban and American elements to a clear understanding and to define the position, work and aims of the United States military administration in Cuba. Gen. Gomez withdrew from the theater about midnight, crowds in the streets applauding him wildly as he emerged and followed his carriage for blocks.

MAY BE TWO VICE ADMIRALS.

Adm. Schley's Friends Will Not Press the Fight Over the Question of Adm. Sampson's Advancement.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The understanding among Adm. Schley's friends now is that they will not further press the fight over the question of Adm. Sampson's advancement over Adm. Schley. They will, therefore, agree to let the nominations be confirmed without much, if any, more debate, depending on future legislation to place Adm. Schley before the country in the position which they think he should occupy. They propose to ask that provision be made for the appointment of two vice admirals, with the understanding that Messrs Schley and Sampson shall be nominated to the two places thus created. Adm. Schley told his senatoral friends that he was willing to trust his fortunes to their care.

ACTION ON THE CENSUS BILL.

The Conferees on the Measure Have Agreed and They Will Make Their Report Early This Week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The conferees on the census bill have agreed and will make their report early in the week. Certain features of both the senate and house bills will be retained. The census will be nominally under the direction of the secretary of the interior, but all appointments in the census bureau will be made by the director of the census. The director, assistant director and 300 supervisors are to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate. The director receives a salary of $6,000 and the assistant director $4,000. The only important point of difference was in regard to whether the census should be made a bureau of a department or separate, the house bill providing for an independent bureau.

Susquehanna River Gorged.

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 27.—Latest reports Saturday morning give no material change in the situation on the Susquehanna river. The big gorge at Turkey Hill is still intact, and the ice is packed solidly from there to the Columbia dam, a distance of six miles. There are two other gorges.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.—Earl J. Pierson, a Pan-Handle car repairer, while at his work in the yards, was caught between two cars and crushed to death.

GEN. GOMEZ ENTERS HAVANA.

The Population Was Wild With Enthusiasm, Throwing Themselves in Front of the General's Horse.

HAVANA, Feb. 25.—Gen. Maximo Gomez, the Cuban commander-in-chief, entered Havana Friday afternoon, escorted by Gen. Ludlow and his staff and Troop L of the 7th United States cavalry. He marched at the head of 2,000 armed Cuban horsemen and footmen. The population of the city was wild with enthusiasm, throwing themselves in front of the general's horse, impeding its progress and pelting him with flowers.

The general reviewed the troops at the palace.

Previous to this the programme had been carried out. Gen. Gomez arrived on the edge of the town from Marinano at 12:30 p. m. and was escorted by the 2d Illinois band and three battalions. These battalions then returned to their camp and did not enter the city.

The festivities Friday in honor of the fourth anniversary of the beginning of the Cuban struggle for independence were most spontaneous and wildly enthusiastic. Havana has never seen anything like it before. The whole town was decorated, and the streets were packed with a crowd twice as large as that which turned out at the Garcia funeral.

At half-past twelve Friday afternoon Gen. Gomez left Cerro, the suburb from which the march was to be made, with a procession in the following order of formation:

The band of the 7th regiment, mounted, playing the Cuban hymn and national airs; Company L, of the 7th United States cavalry; the staff of Gen. Gomez, with escort; Gen. Mayia Rodriguez and staff; Gen. Maximo Gomez, upon whose right was Maj. Gen. Ludlow, the members of Maj. Gen. Ludlow's staff; then a great number of Cuban generals and officers, some mounted and some in carriages; and, finally, 2,000 Cuban cavalry and infantry.

As Gen. Gomez passed the crowds went wild with vivas, hats were flung in the air and women showered flowers on all sides. He bowed and raised his hat incessantly as the crowds struggled to get near his horse and clung to the animal's sides as long as possible.

The procession stopped frequently, eventually filing into the main streets of the city, passing Central park and arriving at the palace at half past two. The Prado and other avenues were lined with patriotic clubs, taking up various positions of vantage and then joining the procession as it passed on from the palace, from a balcony of which it was reviewed by Gen. Gomez. Once at the palace the Cuban commander-in-chief was welcomed by Senor Frederico Mora, the civil governor; Mayor Perfecto Lacoste, the members of the city council, the junta patriotica, the members of the assembly, the officials of all classes and numerous patriotic clubs. The place was beautifully decorated, and all previous efforts in the display of banners and bunting was surpassed by the almost endless showing of silk embroidered standards and flags.

Following the procession were many private carriages, filled with women representing the best society, some allegorically dressed and others waving flags. The Cuban bands played the Cuban national hymn, varying this with "Dixie," "The Star Spangled Banner," "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and popular American marches.

There were many allegorical floats expressing the friendship between the United States and Cuba. Two attracted particular attention, each drawn by three yoke of oxen. One represented the Cuba of yesterday—a woman standing with manacled hands, a broken wheelbarrow and other signs of desolation at her feet; the other, the Cuba of to-day—a woman under a palm smiling and surrounded by evidences of prosperity. The contrast was very effective and everywhere applauded.

No fewer than 25,000 people were in line, requiring three hours to pass a given point. The horses of the Cuban cavalry are scrawny and ill fed and the cavalrymen are clad in a vague Cuban uniform. All carried Remington carbines with nondescript bundles of clothing and bedding. They marched in lines of twos. The infantry occasionally kept step, and as they passed the palace presented arms. Most of them carried Cuban flags stuck in their rifles.

Against the City.

MARYSVILLE, O., Feb. 25.—The case of Mrs. Nannie E. Gray et al. against H. E. Conkright, treasurer of Union county and the city of Marysville, to enjoin the treasurer from further collecting taxes for street sprinkling, was decided Friday morning by Judge Dow in favor of the plaintiff. The case has been in the courts for two years. The city will now have to bear all of the costs.

Kipling No Better.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Rudyard Kipling, who is ill of inflammation of the right lung at the Hotel Grenoble, was said to be in about the same condition Friday morning. The crisis is not expected for three days more. Mr. Kipling's physicians are hopeful.

Merchant's Trust Deed.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Feb. 25.—William G. Frow, general merchant, of Homer, has made a trust deed to Benjamin F. Turner, for the benefit of creditors. Liabilities $1,200; assets about $900.

THE SEAT OF WAR

The American Forces Have Taken Possession of the Island of Cebu.

Feeling in the City is Decidedly Improved, Although Chinese Are Still Timid—The Insurgent Sharpshooters Are Very Annoying.

MANILA, Feb. 26.—The military police have raided several suspected houses in various districts, capturing small bodies of 20 to 30 prisoners in each place. This, and the 7 o'clock ordinance, is effectually dispelling the fears of a threatened outbreak of the natives, who do not dare, singly or collectively, to appear on the streets after dark. The feeling in the city has decidedly improved, although the Chinese are still timorous. Hundreds of applicants for cedulus besiege the register's office, the natives apparently being under the impression that their possession insures them from interference and the ignominy of being searched for arms on the streets.

It is generally believed that the disastrous attempts to attack the city and destroy property, the Filipinos themselves being the worst sufferers, will prevent their recurrence, but every precaution is being taken to deal with an emergency if it arises.

Outside of the city the sharpshooters about Caloocan are very annoying. Six men belonging to the brigade commanded by Gen. Harrison Gray Otis have been wounded since midnight. All is quiet elsewhere.

The German first-class cruiser Kaiserin Augusta has arrived here.

MANILA, Feb. 27.—Saturday night the rebels concentrated in such numbers near the Chinese cemetery that Gen. MacArthur anticipated an attack and asked for reinforcements. Two companies of the 23d regulars were sent to Caloocan and a battalion of the 20th regulars to the cemetery at about midnight. But the expected attack was not made. The rebels, after making a great noise with bugle calls and yells of "Viva independencia" and "Much malo Americanos" and firing volleys, disappearing in the woods.

It is believed their leaders are getting desperate and are attempting to force the United States troops to make an attack, in the hope of breaking through the American lines, but the rebels are evidently unwilling to be sacrificed when facing the Americans. It is just possible however, that they may be goaded into such a move before more reinforcements arrive. All was quiet in the city Saturday night.

MANILA, Feb. 27.—According to the advices brought Sunday morning by the steamer Neustra Senora Del Carmen, whose arrival brought the news that the American flag had been raised over the island of Cebu, the United States gunboat Petrel, Commander C. Cornwell, visited Cebu February 22.

Commander Cornwell sent an ultimatum ashore, declaring the intention of the Americans to take possession—peaceably if possible, by force if necessary. The rebels immediately vacated, taking their guns to the hills. A party of marines and blue jackets was landed and the American flag was raised by them over the government building, which they still occupied when the Nestra Senora Del Carmen left.

BUTCHER ALBERT A. BECKER.

More Evidence That He Killed His Wife and Made Away With the Body—The Search Continued.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Evidence strengthening the belief of the police that Butcher Albert A. Becker, who was arrested Saturday on suspicion of having murdered his wife did actually commit that crime, was furnished Sunday by Dr. W. T. Kirby, who, after a microscopical examination of the stains found on the boards in Becker's barn, expressed the opinion that they were made by human blood. Further examination of the barn has resulted in the discovery of a small bunch of black hair, which neighbors say exactly matches that of the missing woman. Search for Mrs. Becker's body was continued throughout the day, catch basins and the prairie for a mile in all directions being thoroughly investigated, but no traces of it were found. The ear-rings and ring found in Becker's house, and which the butcher declared he had recently bought for his second wife, were positively identified as belonging to the missing woman.

Sudden Death of a Teacher.

NORFOLK, Ky., Feb. 27.—John Abbott, a well-known school teacher in this section, was taken suddenly with a violent hemorrhage while sitting by the fire at his home in the northern part of this county and died in a few hours.

The Bluefields Revolution.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 27, via Galveston, Tex., Feb. 26.—(Delayed in transmission) — President Zelaya's army, under Gens. Saenz and Traneo Estrada, has captured Cili mountain and Agua Calientes, thus virtually terminating the Bluefields revolution.

Augustus Won Out.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 27.—The contest board rendered a decision in the Augustus-Bell contest for magistrate in favor of Augustus, the democrat.

AMERICA'S MISSION.

The Patriotic Theme of Mr. Bryan at Washington.

The Famous Nebraskan Makes a Vigorous Attack on Imperialism—A Very Full Synopsis of His Address.

Following is an abstract of the address of William J. Bryan before the Virginia association, Washington, D. C., Wednesday evening, February 22. His subject was "America's Mission." He said, in part:

"When the advocates of imperialism find it impossible to reconcile a colonial policy with the principles of our government or with the canons of morality; when they are unable to defend it upon the ground of religious duty or pecuniary profit, they fall back in helpless despair upon the assertion that it is destiny. 'Suppose it does violate the constitution,' they say; 'suppose it does entail upon us unnumbered millions of expenditure of blood and money; it is destiny and we must submit.'

"The people have not voted for imperialism; no national convention has declared for it; no congress has passed upon it. To whom, then, has the future been revealed? Whence this voice of authority? We can all prophesy, but our prophecies are merely guesses, colored by our hopes and our surroundings. Man's opinion of what is to be is half wish and therefore worthless. Avarice paints destiny with a dollar mark before it, militarism equips it with a sword.

"He is the best prophet who, recognizing the omnipotence of truth, compares both most clearly the great forces which are working out the progress, not of one party, not of one nation, but of the human race.

"History is replete with predictions which once wore the hue of destiny, but which failed of fulfillment because those who uttered them saw too small an arc of the circle of events. When Pharaoh pursued the fleeing Israelites to the edge of the Red sea he was confident that their bondage would be renewed and that they would again make bricks without straw, but destiny was not revealed until Moses and his followers reached the further shore dry shod and the waves rolled over the horses and chariots of the Egyptians. When Belshazzar, on the last night of his reign, led his thousand lords into the Babylonian banquet hall and sat down to a table glittering with vessels of silver and gold, he felt sure of his kingdom for many years to come, but destiny was not revealed until the hand appeared and wrote the wall those awe-inspiring words: 'Mene, Mene, Tekel Upharsin.' When Abderiahman swept northward with his conquering hosts his imagination saw the crescent triumph throughout the world, but destiny was not revealed until Charles Martel raised the cross above the battle of Tours and so saved Europe from the sword of Mohammedanism. When Napoleon emerged victorious from Marengo, from Ulm and from Austerlitz he thought himself the child of destiny, but destiny was not revealed until Blucher's forces joined the army of Wellington and the vanquished Corsican began the melancholy march to St. Helena. When the red coats of George III., routed the New Englanders at Lexington and Bunker Hill, there were few who dreamed that the provisions of colonies taxed without representation and drained of their wealth by foreign-made laws, but destiny was not revealed until the surrender of Cornwallis completed the work begun at Independence hall and ushered into existence a government deriving its just powers from the consent of the governed.

"We have reached another crisis. The ancient doctrine of imperialism, banished from our land more than a century ago, has recrossed the Atlantic and challenged democracy to mortal combat upon American soil. Whether the Spanish war shall be known in history as a war for conquest or as a war of conquest; whether the principles of self-government shall be strengthened or abandoned; whether this nation shall remain a homogeneous people or become a heterogeneous empire—these questions must be answered by the American people—when they speak, and not until then, will destiny be revealed.

"Destiny is not a matter of chance, it is a matter of choice; it is not a thing to be waited for, it is a thing to be achieved.

"No one can see the end from the beginning, but everyone can make his course an honorable one from beginning to end, by adhering to the right under all circumstances. Whether a man steals much or little may depend upon his opportunities, but whether he steals at all depends upon his own volition.

"So with our nation. If we embark upon a career of conquest, no one can tell how many islands we may be able to annex or how many races we may be able to subjugate; neither can anyone estimate the cost, immediate and remote, to the nation's purse and to the nation's character, but whether we shall enter upon such a career is a question which the people have a right to decide for themselves.

"Unexpected events may retard or advance the nation's growth, but the nation's purpose determines its destiny.

"What is the nation's purpose? That purpose is set forth clearly and unmistakably in the first sentence of the constitution:

"'We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and to our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America.'

"It will be seen that one of the main purposes of the founders of our government was to secure for themselves and for posterity the blessings of liberty. That purpose has been faithfully followed up to this time. Our statesmen have opposed each other upon economic questions, but they have agreed in defending self-government against foreign aggression. Our people have quarreled among themselves over tariff and finance, but they have been united in their opposition to an entangling alliance with any European power.

"Under this policy our nation has grown in numbers and in strength. Under this policy its beneficent influence has encircled the globe. Under this policy the taxpayers have been spared the burden and the menace of a large military establishment and the young men have been taught the arts of peace rather than the science of war. On each returning Fourth of July our people have met to celebrate the signing of the Declaration of Independence; their hearts have renewed their vows to free institutions and their voices have praised the forefathers whose wisdom and courage and patriotism make it possible for each succeeding generation to repeat the words: 'My country, 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty, of thee I sing.'

"This sentiment was well universal until a year ago. It was to this sentiment that the Cuban insurgents appealed; it was this sentiment that impelled our people to enter into war with Spain. Have the people so changed within a few short months that they are now willing to apologize for the war of the revolution and force upon the Filipinos the same system of government against which the colonists protested with fire and sword?

"The hour of temptation has come, but temptations do not destroy, they merely test the strength of individuals and nations; they are stumbling blocks or stepping stones; they lead to infamy or fame, according to the use made of them.

"Benedict Arnold and Ethan Allan served together in the continental army and both were offered British gold. Arnold yielded to the temptation and made his name a synonym for treason; Allan resisted and lives in the affection of his countrymen.

"Our nation is tempted to depart from its 'standard of morality' and adopt a policy of 'criminal aggression.' But, will it yield? If I mistake not the sentiment of the American people they will spurn the bribe of imperialism, and, by resisting temptation, win such a victory as has not been won since the battle of Yorktown. Let it be written of the United States: Behold a republic that took up arms to aid a neighboring people, struggling to be free; a republic that, in the progress of the war, helped distant races whose wrongs were not in contemplation when hostilities began; a republic that, when peace was restored, turned a deaf ear to the clamorous voice of greed and to those borne down by the weight of a foreign yoke spoke the welcome words: Stand up, be free. Let this be the record made on history's page and the silent example of this republic, true to its principles in the hour of trial, will do more to extend the area of self-government and of civilization than could be done by all the wars of conquest that we could wage in a generation.

"The forcible annexation of the Philippine islands is not necessary to make the United States a world power. For over two decades our nation has been a world power. During its brief existence it has exerted upon the human race an influence more potent for good than all the other nations of the earth combined, and it has exerted that influence without sword or Gatling gun. Mexico and the republics of Central and South America testify to the benign influence of our institutions, while Europe and Asia give evidence of the working of the principle of self-government. In the growth of democracy we observe the triumphant march of an idea—an idea that would be weighted down rather than aided by the armor and weapons proffered by imperialism.

"Much has been said of late about Anglo-Saxon civilization. Far be it from me to detract from the service rendered to the world by the sturdy race whose language we speak. The union of the Angle and the Saxon formed a new and valuable type, but the process of race evolution was not completed when the Angle and the Saxon met. A still later type has appeared which is superior to any which has existed heretofore; and with this new type come a higher civilization than any which has preceded it. Great has been the Greek, the Latin, the Slav, the Celt, the Tuton and the Anglo-Saxon, but greater than any of these is the American, in whom are blended the virtues of them all.

"Civil and religious liberty, universal education and the right to participate, directly or through representatives chosen by themselves, in all the affairs of government—these give to the American citizen an opportunity and an inspiration which can be found nowhere else.

"Standing upon the vantage ground already gained the American people can aspire to a grander destiny than has opened before any other race.

"Anglo-Saxon civilization has taught the individual to protect his own rights. American civilization will teach him to respect the rights of others.

"Anglo-Saxon civilization has taught the individual to take care of himself. American civilization, proclaiming the equality of all before the law, will teach him that his own highest good requires the observance of the commandment. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

"Anglo-Saxon civilization has, by force of arms, applied the art of government to other races for the benefit of Anglo-Saxons. American civilization will, by the influence of its example, excite in other races a desire for self-government and a determination to secure it.

"Anglo-Saxon civilization has carried its flag to the frozen regions and defended it with forts and garrisons. American civilization will imprint its flag upon the hearts of all who love freedom.

"To American civilization, all hail.

"'Time's noblest offspring is the last.'"

Tax on Workingmen.

The industrial classes, who by their labor must create the wealth and pay the interest on bonds and dividends on the enormously watered stock of these combines, are expected to toil and sweat to keep in luxurious idleness the horde who profit by this iniquitous financiering. As an example: The newspapers say that the promoters of the tin plate trust, just organized, get $10,000,000 worth of the bonds of the trust as their share for their services in effecting the organization. This $10,000,000 is undoubtedly what is called "watering;" not stock but bonds. The balance of the bonds are supposed to represent a fair valuation of the property. The extra $10,000,000, therefore, becomes unearned increment, to pay the interest on which the workingman of the "dinner pail," about which we heard so much during late campaigns, will be mulcted to pay in the higher price of tin for many generations to come.

Nothing But the Truth.

In dealing with public affairs we should be neither pessimists nor optimists. In order to prove that bimetallism should be restored it is not necessary to claim that the country is in any worse condition than it is in. Neither should be be blindly optimistic and jump at the conclusion that we have a grand era of prosperity before us merely because wheat has gone up, and some factories have resumed work. We should look at the situation exactly as it is. Wheat has risen because crops are short in other countries. Factories have resumed partially to replenish stocks exhausted by a long period of idleness and partially in anticipation of a demand which may or may not be realized. But there is nothing in the situation to prove that the gold standard is a good thing or that bimetallism is a bad one.

——We are not in the least likely to make American states of the Philippines, or American citizens of the Filipinos; but neither are we going to stand brutally by and watch unmoved the destruction of a people through the operation of conditions which we ourselves have helped to create. This is what the ratification of the treaty means; this is all it means.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

——A thick-and-thin supporter of McKinley says that "Gen. Miles is no soldier; his uniform ought to be stripped from him." The only true soldiers, it would appear, are Alger, who was court-martialed for desertion; Corbin, whose horse ran away with him out of the reach of danger, and Gen. Falstaff Shafter, who fought the battle of Santiago eight miles in the rear.—N. Y. World.

——From now on the people must be prepared for entanglements and broils with foreign powers, and fathers and mothers must be prepared to give their sons to the nation, that its influence, power and position may be maintained, no matter what the cost shall be in human life and treasure. It costs a great deal in blood and gold to play the game of empire. — Kansas City Times.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—SENATE—During almost six hours Monday afternoon the post office appropriation bill was under discussion in the senate the time being consumed largely by Mr. Butler (pop., N. C.) and Mr. Pettigrew (sil-rep., S. D.) in an amendment providing that the postal commission should present its final report to congress by March 1, 1900. It was defeated 27 to 19. Agreement was reached to vote on the bill and amendments at 2 o'clock Tuesday. At 2 o'clock Mr. Hawley, chairman of the military affairs committee, moved to take up the army reorganization bill, unanimous consent having been refused to take up the measure without displacing the unfinished business—the anti-scalping bill. Mr. Hawley's motion prevailed, 44 to 26, thus making the army bill the unfinished business. It is agreed that this action disposes finally of the anti-scalping bill for the present session.

HOUSE—A separate bill appropriating $30,000,000 for payment to Spain under the provisions of the treaty of Paris was passed Monday under suspension of the rules. No amendment was in order and an attempt to secure unanimous consent to offer an amendment declaratory of our policy not permanently to annex the islands was objected to by Mr. Wheeler (Ky.), upon whose point of order the appropriation went out of the sundry civil bill, made the only speech in open hostility to the measure. The roll call showed 34 members—31 democrats, 2 populists and 1 silver republican voted against it. The senate bill to reimburse the governors of states for expenses paid by the states in organizing volunteers for service in the war with Spain before their muster into the service of the United States was passed under suspension of rules.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—SENATE—Formal discussion of the Hull-Hawley army reorganization bill was begun in the senate Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Hawley and Mr. Warren, (reps.), supported the measure, and Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Cockrell (dems.) opposed it, while Mr. Proctor (rep.) addressed the senate in favor of some amendments which he had proposed to the bill. The post office appropriation bill was passed. The conference reports on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was agreed to. The joint resolution amending the act of June 12, 1898, by adding to it a provision that whenever any bond or bonds shall be secured by a mortgage or deed of trust, but one stamp shall be required, that being the highest rate required for either paper was passed. Post office appropriation bill passed.

HOUSE—The house reached the last page of the naval bill Tuesday, and adjourned with a point of order pending against a provision fixing the price of armor plate at $545 per ton.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—SENATE—Beginning Thursday night sessions of congress will be held almost uninterruptedly until the adjournment on March 4. It is possible, too, that congress may remain in session on Sunday, if it is found that the exigencies of the public demand. But eight full working days now remain, besides the forenoon of Saturday, the day of adjournment, and while it is possible to finish all absolutely needful work, to do so will require expedition and the improvement of all available time.

HOUSE—The house Wednesday listened to the reading of Washington's farewell address. Two hours were devoted to the naval appropriation bill but seemingly only the threshold of debate upon the cost of armor plate has been passed. Several votes were taken fixing the maximum price of armor plate at $545 per ton but restricting the provision to the appropriation made in the present bill was ruled to be in order, whereupon another proposition was offered by Mr. Underwood (Ala.) for the erection of an armor plate plant by the government. A point of order against the latter proposition was pending when the consideration of the naval bill was suspended to allow the members of the house to pay tribute to the memory of the late Senator Morrill, of Vermont.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—SENATE—During the entire session Thursday, until 6 o'clock, the senate had under consideration the river and harbor bill. Good progress was made, no action having been disposed of, with the exception of one amendment. The bills under consideration will be resumed Friday at 11 o'clock.

HOUSE—The naval appropriation bill finally passed the house Thursday afternoon after four days of acrimonious debate, most of which was spent upon the question of rehabilitating the naval academy at Annapolis in accordance with the scheme inaugurated by the appropriation of half a million in the last naval bill and the proposition to increase the price of armor to be paid for armor plate to $545 per ton, existing law limiting it to $400. Upon both propositions the naval committee suffered signal defeats. The amendment to build a great armor plant was ruled out upon a point of order.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—SENATE—Among the bills passed Friday were the following: Authorizing the legislative assembly of the territory of New Mexico to create an additional indebtedness for the completion and furnishing of the territorial capitol; authorizing a resurvey of certain lands in Cheyenne county, Nebraska, in the interest of the river and harbor bill was then resumed.

HOUSE—After a session of nearly eight hours Friday the senate Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock passed the river and harbor bill by the decisive vote of 50 to 9. The measure was under consideration throughout the day and on several of the committee amendments a determined fight was made, but in every instance the opposition was defeated. The sharpest contest arose over the Nicaragua canal bill amendment. A point of order was made against it that it was of general legislation but the senate voted to the vice president submitted the point overruled it. It was then attacked as not being revelant to a river and harbor measure but this too, was overruled by the senate. Mr. Pettigrew (rep. S. D.), Mr. Rawlins (dem. Utah), and Mr. Teller (sil-rep. Col.), vigorously attacked the bill, their opposition developed unexpectedly especially against the canal amendment. During the afternoon Mr. Sewell, of New Jersey, delivered a speech in support of the Hull-Hawley army reorganization bill, contending the measure that it would require an army of 50 000 men to control the Filipinos and that we were likely yet to have serious trouble in Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—SENATE—After two hours devoted to the consideration of bills on the calendar Saturday, the senate at 1 o'clock began the consideration of the compromise army reorganization bill which had been agreed upon by the members of the military affairs committee. The objection to the bill is a permanent increase of the army while passed: Appropriating $250,000 for the purchase of a site for the Carnegie library in the city of Washington; enabling the city of Albuquerque, N. M., to create certain indebtedness; authorizing the construction of three bridges across the Conecuh river, a navigable stream in Escambia county, Alabama.

HOUSE—The house continued work on the army appropriation bill Saturday, but failed to complete it. Considerable animosity was developed during the debate and there were sharp passages between Mr. Grosvenor and Mr. Cannon on one hand and Messrs. Simpson (Kans.) and Cochran (Mo.) on the other.

Kipling's Condition Critical.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—At 3:30 o'clock Monday morning the following bulletin was posted: "Mr. Kipling still remains in a very critical condition.

A strange death, that of Miss Dora Brown occurred at a meeting which was being held at a church near Dalton, Hopkins county, by Rev. Willis Brown, a "divine healer." After the discourse the Christians were invited to come around the altar. While standing facing the audience during the singing of a song Miss Brown threw up her hands and fell backward. It was thought she was only making a religious demonstration, so she was raised to a seat, but the congregation was horrified in a few minutes to find that she was dead.

It was then bought second handed and came from England. It is nine feet tall and each weight weighs 13 pounds, has brass works of very fine mechanism which are not worn in the least. It also has a moon which rises with perfection. The clock keeps good time and is quite a curiosity. It is very valuable on account of its age and as it is supposed to be the only one of its kind in this country.—Owen News.

"There lives in Washington county, we are informed, six or seven miles south of Springfield," says the Harrodsburg Democrat, "one of the most eccentric human beings, we feel warranted in saying, in Kentucky. Shortly before Abraham Lincoln was inaugurated President of the United States, on the 4th of March, 1861, Basil Haydon was to have married a young lady in the neighborhood in which he now lives, but before the day set for the marriage arrived she eloped with another man and has never been heard from by any of her relatives. This weighed on the mind of her former admirer, and the day the President took his seat in the White House he went to his room in the second story of the building and declared he would never step on the earth again as long as he lived. His father and mother were both dead, and he had been living in the house alone for several months, doing his own cooking. His bitter disappointment he gave as a reason of his seclusion. People at first thought him to be crazy, but after a sufficient length of time discovered their mistake. Since he first secluded himself 38 years ago, so far as is known, he has never broken his word. He is the owner of a good farm, and employs a man to attend to his business, but his employe has at no time been further than the door of his room, neither has anyone else. He orders his clothes and other necessary articles through his assistant, who delivers them at his door. He is now about sixty years of age. Nothing has ever before been said through any newspaper of this strange case, and the facts are not widely known."

CROP AND STOCK.

Many sheep are dying in Eastern Kentucky from sheep rot.

Squire Cotton, of Madison county, had 20 cattle killed by the cold.

R. A. Dodd, of Jessamine county, shipped a car-load of mules to Havana, Cuba.

Receipts of sheep at Chicago in January were 354,140, the largest record for the 1st month of the year.

In Colorado 60,000 sheep have died of cold and hunger and in Wyoming 50 per cent of the cattle have died.

There has been less sod-breaking in Madison county up to date than ever known for a similar period. The weather has been detrimental to the farmer ever since New Year.

Adams county, Ohio, farmers are very much discouraged over the prevailing prices on tobacco. Buyers are only offering from 2 to 5 cts. for the 1898 crop, which figures are below the actual cost of production.

Mr. Thos. Barger, of this county, has applied for a patent to prevent the growth of tobacco suckers. He says that he has experimented thoroughly with the plan, and knows that it is a success.—Marion Press.

Mr. C. E. Smith, says the Richmond Pantagraph, who recently closed one of the largest timber deals made in recent years in eastern Kentucky, is at Chicago, where he expects to close a sale of 125,000 acres of land in the same section of Ky.

From reports nearly 50 per cent. of the drop of lambs thus far in this locality have been lost by freezing as they drop. Some have resorted to the plan of securing the ewes in a house warmed by a stove, and wet nursing the lamb as soon as dropped with good results.—Lexington Gazette.

Mr. John Ray, of Glasgow Junction, says that Monday morning, the 13th ult., he had an old rooster to freeze to death. Along in the day a buzzard came flying along and hit on the fowl and began to devour it. In a few minutes the buzzard froze to death and fell over as stiff as a board itself—stone dead. Mr. J. B. Poynter, of the same section, had a jack frozen to death. Mr. Bob Moran, of the Boyd's creek country, had a fat hog frozen to death in the pen. —Glasgow News.

The popularity of sheep raising is returning, and even poor farmers are buying small flocks. It used to be said that the hog was the best poor man's stock; but the swine is no more so than the sheep. A small flock of sheep does not cost much to begin with, and then if a ram of the best blood is added to it there is a good chance for some profit. Good mutton and lamb are always in demand, and when wool does not pay one can get back some returns on the investment for the meat.

Walton.

Mr. Amos C. Johnson was baptized at the Christian church, Sunday night.

The funeral of Mr. George Youell was preached at the Baptist church on Thursday 23d. Deceased was 61 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson, William and Miles Wilson, of Bank Lick, Mr. Geo. Casey and Mrs. Emma Lermoud, partook of a most excellent dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Judge Botts on Saturday last. Everything on the menu was relished most exquisitely.

The congregation of the Christian church are delighted to have Bro. Moss for pastor one more. Some time ago he resigned but the members ignored that incident and took no action looking toward the choosing of a successor, and now he is installed for another year.

John Booth, manager for John S. Matson, at this point for the past 21 years, has bought about 200,000 pounds of tobacco at from eight cents down. Mr. Booth was careful in his purchasing to ascertain whether Paris Green was used on the crop when it was growing.

Misses Leyda and Mary Percival spent Sunday last in Walton with Misses Adah and Effie J. Lermond; and by the way Miss Leyda through the RECORDER to the gentleman who sent her a Valentine after the day had passed, and to say to him, that if he should employ his time from now until next Valentine day he might be able to write so that a person would have an idea of what he was writing about.

Persons traveling on the Lexington pike say that it is in an awful condition from here to the city, and predict that it will be almost impassable when a general thaw comes. The general turnpike law of Kentucky requires all macadamized roads shall have 9 inches of metal and there are very few if any roads in Kentucky that have 6 inches. At any time by an injunction they can be restrained from collecting toll until they can show that they have the requisite amount of metal. The county of Grant could have had that portion of the road between Williamstown and Crittenden condemned at a small cost instead of paying $11,000 for it.

The courtesy of the M. E. Church to the Knights of Pythias in allowing them the use of the church for religious service, was duly reciprocated by the gallant Knights on the 22d, when the church set a dinner and held an evening festival. The Knights attended the function in a body, and the sick brethern, who were unable to attend, wishing to show their appreciation of the courtesy, ordered dinners to be sent to their homes, although unable to eat. The Life Insurance Agents Messrs. Friend and Cobb, dined there and also paid for their suppers, which they had not time to eat. They were loud in their praise of their dinner, and yet our friend, Henry C. Diers, when it was hinted that he had the gout, indignantly exclaimed, "gout, thunder and Mars, where could a person get anything in Walton to bring on the gout?"

It is said that 3,000 of the Philippine rebels want to surrender.

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

McELREE'S

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. I. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it a most excellent preparation for female troubles."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1899. NO. 20.

SPEAKER REED gave the Nicarauga canal bill another set back.

CONGRESS adjourned last Friday, and several of the members returned to their homes to remain.

GEN. TORAL, who surrendered Santiago to the Americans, has been sentenced to a term in a French prison.

GEN. WHEELER has gone over completely to the administration. It did not take much flattery to capture the staid old Joe.

THE testimony of those who tried to eat rotton beef the contractors put off on the army is causing a storm of indignation the country over.

THE effort to down the Dispatch brought an avalanche of subscribers to that paper, and a flood of condemnation for those engaged in the despicable scheme.

THE three distilleries of the Anderson and Nelson Company were delivered to the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company for a cash consideration of $800,000.

ANY nation that has on its hands a war which it desires to dispose of may find a purchaser by calling on U. Sam, doing business in Washington, D. C., America.

FIGHTING BOB EVANS says when he stood on the bridge of the Iowa and watched the Spanish fleet as it was destroyed by Schley's squadron, it looked like hell with the lid off.

THERE are now over 250,000 words in the English language acknowledged by the best authorities, or about 70,000 more than in the German, French, Spanish and Italian combined.

THE Carrollton people are singing the praises of Congressman Berry since the $25,000 appropriation for a public building in their city was nailed down. That appropriation is only a starter.

CONGRESS refused to unseat Wheeler, Colson, Robin and Cambell, who held commissions in the army. The committee had reported in favor of unseating them, but the House refused to consider the report.

THE Supreme Court, in a recent decision held that the city of Chicago was responsible for all the damage done to property during the railroad riot of 1894, which will amount to something near $4,000,000.

THAT outrageous Steamship and Subsidy Bill died in the Senate, very much to the chagrin of its friends who expected to pocket two hundred million dollars under its provisions. It was one of Mr. Hanna's pet schemes.

IT is well enough for admiral Dewey that he has no Presidential aspiration, as those, of the party in power, who dictate nominations are now and have been for some time arranging for the renomination of Mr. McKinley.

WHEN it comes to appropriations Kentucky will be ably represented at the feast so long as Col. Berry is a member of Congress. In getting what he goes after there is not a member of Congress that has a record that approaches the Colonel's.

GEN. MILES has produced enough proof to satisfy the public that the canned beef furnished the army was rotten, but it is very doubtful if the investigating committee will be convinced of the fact—or will report the facts as sustained by the proof.

SMALL POX is scattered all over this State. Cases are not numerous at many places as yet, but there is fear that it will become epidemic in many of the most populous centers. The State Board of Health is doing all it can to stamp the disease out.

IT was claimed that four thousand Filipinos were captured in the first battle the Americans had with them, but the number has continued to dwindle until now the number of prisoners taken is said to be fifteen hundred; and it is claimed that the enemy does not hold an American prisoner.

ANOTHER Congress has come and gone and that currency reform about which so much has been heard in the last two years, has not materialized. It is now generally conceded that no such legislation was ever contemplated by those who promised it.

THE Democratic State Central and Executive Committees will meet in Lexington to-day, and name the time and place for holding the State convention to nominate candidates for State offices. The basis of representation will be fixed. Lexington ought to get the convention.

THE efforts of the commission that is investigating Gen. Miles' charges in regard to the army, to perpetrate a fraud on the witnesses while under examination, show that the commissioners are not conducting the investigation in good faith, and that if possible they will protect the army meat contractors.

BORN, in Cincinnati, on the 1st inst., a new political party, christened the Union Reform party. It expects to have as nurses the Silver Republican, the Populists, the Prohibitionist and the Liberty parties. Very likely this reform is for the same purpose a great many others, viz: to reform the leaders into office.

IT is said that ex-Gov. John Young Brown is about in the notion again to enter the race for Governor. He has sinned away his day of grace, and could not expect to command the support of any considerable portion of the Democratic party, after having heretofore said emphatically that he would not be a candidate. Stand aside, Johnny.

THERE is a strong sentiment in the State in favor of holding the next Democratic State convention in Louisville, but Louisville is the last city in the State to which the convention should be taken. As a convention city, it does not possess a single advantage over several other cities in Kentucky, while it is hedged in with reasons why the convention should be held elsewhere.

A TRUST with $7,500,000 capital is organizing to control the tobacco business in Cuba, and as soon as the fighting ceases in the Philippines trusts will take charge of the valuable business interests (if any there be) in those islands. The claim that expansion will be detrimental to trusts is so nonsensical that a man who makes it displays qualifications for an inmate of a feeble minded institute.

Secretary of War Alger may not leave the Cabinet as reported, but he has recalled invitations for the junket to Cuba and Porto Rico planned for March.—Ex.

No doubt the Secretary is anxious to visit Cuba, and especially Havana, where he and some of his friends are interested in a bank, at which he makes all the government drafts payable, the bank collecting one-fourth of one per cent. exchange. It is a fat thing for Mr. Alger.

IF Mr. Collier, Harrison county's candidate for Auditor, does not put a plug in the mouth of some of his friends, whose chief delight is the abuse of a candidate for another State office, his chance for being nominated by the State convention will be on a par with that of a snow ball in hadese. The Harrison county man is already badly handicapped by the action of his county in the Congressional election last fall, and he is in no condition to carry any additional weight.

KENTUCKY would be much better off had her land owners paid more attention to the raising of cattle and a great deal less to the production of tobacco for the last fifteen or twenty years. Timber has been destroyed, and land damaged immensely by the continuance of a crop the production of which was not a compensation for the labor expended to say nothing of the injury resulting to the lands. Live stock can be produced at a profit in Kentucky and the productive qualities of the land retained, and to that branch of farming attention ought to be turned.

TRUSTS.

Trusts are a combination of manufacturers, merchants or other vocations banded together for the purpose of securing a monopoly with a view of controling the market price and quantity produced of any commercial commodity. Such combinations have become a very prominent and most alarming factor in the commercial circles of this country, and many vain efforts have been made to prevent their formation, and to curtail their power when once formed. Legislation of various tendency has been attempted against them, and their constituent members have succeeded in evading the law and accomplishing their objects.

It would be a useless expenditure of time and space to undertake to enumerate the various trusts that exist in our commercial world today. It seems to be the tendency of every branch of business, except that of farming, to enter into a combine or trust, It has attained such gigantic proportions in the commercial circles of our country that it has become a Hyda-headed monster with its tail encircling the beautiful figure of our Godess of Liberty and the eyes in its many heads fixed in a most enchanting gaze upon every industry of our glorious land of liberty. The alarming question confron ts us as to what we shall do to destroy this monster. Like the watersnake which it resembles, it is so very contractile and variable in form that it is almost impossible to destroy it. If you cut off one of its many heads two are sure to grow up out of the wound. It was one of the labors of Hercules, we are informed by tradition, to destroy this monster; this he effected by applying a redhot iron to the wound as each head was cut off.

The rapid growth of these trusts, which personate this monster, the malign influence they are exerting upon our State and national legislatures, and the various means resorted to to corrupt and secure the favor of the people's representatives I deem sufficient cause for alarm.

I firmly believe that in the near future the greatest contest that has ever engaged the American people since the foundation of their government (lest it be that of the war between the States) will be between the combinations of these overgrown trusts on the one part, and the unorganized masses on the other, for the mastery and control of the government.

The unprecedented growth of corporate power has awakened every class of honest citizens and their combined influence should be brought to bear upon Congress, today in the interest of anti-monopoly, anti-consolidation, anti-corporation and anti-trust legislation.

These honest citizens of varied vocations should cooperate in warning Congressmen against the impending dangers, and clamor for Congressional action of some kind to stay the growth of corporate power.

To attempt to saddle the cause of the existence of these trusts upon any political party is indisputable evidence of the grossest ignorance or most diabolical demagogism. Prominent men in both the Republican and Democratic parties are the leading spirits in many of these trusts.

Politics has nothing to do in forming these trusts. They germinate from the seeds of selfishness and greed. It is apparent to all observing minds that our country has attained such unprecedented proportions in its varied productions that available markets are inadequate to consume our surplus, hence low prices and small profits. Large establishments realizing this buy up the smaller ones, limit their supply to the demand, advance prices and pool their profits. To accomplish this many honest laboring men are thrown out of employment and consequent suffering follows.

In order to solve this problem Congress should legislate against the formation of trusts and at the same time legislate for wider markets for our surplus. The opportunity prevents itself through the acquisations from the late war with Spain. We should hold to all we have gained in this war, develope the territory we have attained and court the trade of Asia, for Asia is our Eldorado.

Should this be done there would be no occasion for trusts, a ready market for our surplus would always be at hand and our various industries would not be driven to the necessity of going into trusts in order to make their supply conform to the demand, thus throwing many worthy, honest laborers out of employment, permitting idleness to germinate the seeds of discontent.

Believing what I have written, can you blame me for favoring expansion in its broadest sense—expansion of trade, expansion of markets and expansion of commerce all over the world. I am not in favor of annexing any of the newly acquired islands as states at present. Let that be a problem for the Congress to solve in the future. The United States should establish a colonial rule in these islands that would tend to encourage, enlighten and inspire the nations to advance in civilization and develope the rich resources these islands possess. G. CARTER GRADDY.

We think the constitution and laws should be reformed so as to bring the individuals who execute and administer the laws as close as possible, to the people, so that the candidate and officer might be seen and his ability known and character inquired into before the nomination takes place. In olden times when the population was scattered and counties were thinly settled, it was necessary economy to have circuit courts, clerks and commonwealth attorneys, but that time and those conditions are now past and we believe that it would be to the best interests of all, to have the county and county attorneys possess the same qualifications that the circuit judges and commonwealth attorneys now are required by law to have, and then give the county judges the same jurisdiction which the circuit judges and they as county judges now have, in their respective counties, and the county attorneys' duties to be the same as the commonwealth and county attorneys now are, the State to pay each county judge and county attorney a fixed salary per year, and each county to also fix and pay its county judge and county attorney a salary as now provided for by law, and the county court clerks, in addition to their present duties, be required to perform the duties now done by the circuit clerks in each county.

We would like for some of the gentlemen of Boone county, who are learned in the law and its forms to take this matter up and present it to the people and candidates for office through the columns of the RECORDER, including the necessary amendments to the State constitution to carry the forgoing views into effect, but if they will not we will make an attempt in that direction. X.

C. C. COLEMAN.

C. C. Coleman was recently elected President of the Kansas State Bar Association. The Mail and Breeze, of Topeka, Kansas, publishes a good picture of Mr. Coleman and says:

"C. C. Coleman, who was recently elected president of the State Bar Association, is one of the leading attorneys of Clay Center. He was born in Boone county, Ky., December 29, 1854, lived there until nineteen years old, then came to Kansas, settling in Clay Center. He graduated from the Morgan Academy of Burlington, Ky. Mr. Coleman studied law in Col. M. M. Miller's office, being admitted to practice in 1878. He served as deputy register of deeds for two years thereafter, then engaged pretty actively in real estate until in 1885, when he purchased a regular law library and cut loose for himself. He is all kinds of a Mason, and has been the highest in the state in one or two of the grand bodies. Mr. Coleman is a fine lawyer, studious, hard working and faithful. He has been successful in the law. He is now making a reputation as a ready and interesting speaker on all occasions. Has a very rich, deep musical voice that charms and pleases. Mr. Coleman was married in 1878 to Miss Willie Miller. Coleman has dropped secret society foolishness and is a coming man—coming rapidly, surely and safely."

The Topeka State Journal also gives Mr. Coleman a very complimentary write-up, following his picture.

"Lawyer Coleman was elected president of the State Bar association at Topeka, last Friday afternoon. It was the largest meeting the association has ever held. Mr. Coleman is the youngest man ever chosen to preside over its destinies. It is one of the heaviest, most dignified, scholarly organizations in the state. Clay Center is proud of Coleman."—Clay Center Times.

So is Burlington.

MR. STONE, no doubt, expects to be benefitted by the Harding-Dispatch-Goebel controversy.

Thomas Campbell in Burlington.

Having seen a question in your paper regarding Thomas Campbell, the father of Alexander Campbell, I take this liberty to state a matter of history, hoping it may be interesting to your readers.

In the fall of 1817, Thomas Campbell, with his family, came to Newport, Ky., from Pittsburg, in search of a new home. Visiting the Baptist churches in this community, he came to Burlington, in Boone county, a town of 300 inhabitants. Being much pleased with the generous and hospitable character of the citizens, and thinking it a suitable place for the founding of a Seminary, he concluded, at the request of the principal families, to move his family to this place. A building was already being constructed for the purpose of a school. Here, in a short time, he had a flourishing school. Pupils were sent from different parts of the State and the school was prosperous beyond expectation. His daughter, Jane, then about eighteen years old, assisted her father. The people were pleased and exceedingly friendly; the school and work suited Mr. Campbell and it seemed that this was to be his permanent abode. However, in the summer of 1819, an event took place that suddenly changed all this. One Sunday afternoon, in a grove near the village, a number of negroes of both sexes were amusing themselves in their accustomed ways. After watching them for a while Mr. Campbell went to them and invited them to his school-room where he read to them the scripture, talked to them and had them singing religious songs. The next morning a friend informed him that he had broken the law of the State, which was, at that time that, no one should address a company of slaves, except in the presence of white witnesses. This was a great surprise to Mr. Campbell, and he resolved to at once take his family from the place where he could not read the scripture and teach Christ to his fellowmen. Though greatly urged to remain, he very soon after returned east and settled with his son, Alexander, at what was then Buffalo Creek, Va., afterward the seat of Bethany College.

GEORGE A. MILLER,
Covington, Ky.

Capt. W. T. Ellis, who was one of the four delegates from the State-at large of the Chicago Convention and the strongest free silver leader in the Second district introduced Senator Goebel to the audience at Owensboro in the following speech:

"It is no part of my purpose in calling this meeting to order to formally introduce the speaker of the occasion. That would be wholly unnecessary.

"Senator Goebel is well, and I believe favorably, known to you all. His course as a Senator of this State for a dozen years, and his services as a member of the convention that framed the present constitution of this Commonwealth, are not only familiar to the people of Kentucky, but to all those who take an interest in the political affairs of our State.

"But if I were asked to name Senator Goebel's most conspicuous party service, a service that endears him to every Democrat in the State, I would point to his faultless leadership and faithful management of Jo Blackburn's memorable Senatorial contest before the Kentucky legislature in 1896 and 1897.

"As an individual Democrat, and speaking for myself alone, I am glad thus early in the State campaign, which is just opening, to say in the most unqualified form that I endorse his candidacy to the high office to which he aspires.

"I endorse without reservation or qualification the able, candid and manly speech made by the Senator in opening the campaign at Lebanon the 23d instant.

"That speech does not contain a sentiment, advocate a policy or condemn a system which does not have my cordial approval.

"When Senator Goebel says he would not accept the nomination for the office of Governor upon a platform that did not endorse in its entirety the Chicago platform of 1896, and when he declares that he favors the renomination of William J. Bryan, he utters a sentiment which I believe will find a ready response, not only in the hearts of Kentucky Democrats, but in the hearts of Democrats throughout the whole country.

"It is unnecessary now to inquire when or where Senator Goebel first became an advocate of the financial policy announced in the Chicago platform of 1896. It is enough for all good Democrats to know that he not only endorses the platform in its entirety, but that there has not been a day nor an hour since it was written when he has not been one of the most loyal advocates and able defenders. But I could, if I were persistent, point to the fact that long before the adoption of the Chicago platform Senator Goebel stood loyally with those who believe in the doctrine of the free and unlimited coinage of silver on precisely the same terms as defined in the Chicago platform.

"At Lexington, in 1896, before the assembling of the Chicago convention, as a delegate from the county of Kenton, I happen to know that he was actively and cordially co-operating with those who were insisting the silver should be restored to free and unlimited coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1, and that that policy should be adopted without asking the co operation or consent of any other country or nation in the world.

"Apart from his views relating to national politics, Senator Goebel's frank statement of his position on all questions relating to state politics challenges the admiration and commands the respect of all those who believe in the doctrine of 'equal rights to all and exclusive privileges to none.'

"His record as a member of the Kentucky Senate and as a member of the Constitutional Convention is a consistent and vigorous protest against all schemes, frauds and combinations which tend to the detriment of the general good. He is and has been the recognized leader of those who seek by legislation to thwart the schemes of trusts and to defeat legislation prompted by corporate greed. It is unnecessary to review Senator Goebel's record along these lines, for it is well and familiarly known to you all.

"If his course as a Senator has met your approval his elevation to the high office which he seeks places him in a position to further protect the rights of the plain people against the combined assaults of corporations and trusts and which, if not restrained, will necessarily, sooner or later, regulate and control our public affairs to the injury and great detriment of the general public."

Continuing Capt. Ellis especially commended Senator Goebel's war on the book trust and the railroad lobby as well as his advocacy of the new election law.

CHURCH NEWS.

Mordecai Ham, aged 83, for more than fifty years a prominent minister, died of grippe, last week.

By his will the late Math. Layne, a wealthy Christian county citizen, leaves $500 each to the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and Baptist Orphans' Home, Louisville; $1,000 to the Ministers' Aid Society; $3,000 to Fairview Baptist church, and $500 each to the Baptist Home Mission and Foreign Mission Boards. He directs that after these and other claims are satisfied the residue of the estate be probated among the above Baptist institutions. This will more than double each bequest.

A GROCER, who served in the army, swore before the investigating committee, the other day, that the canned beef furnished the army was not the same that was put upon the market for general consumption. There is no longer any question as to the bad quality of the beef furnished the soldiers, but it will be impossible to trace a knowledge of it beyond the contractors, notwithstanding several persons high in authority grew very angry when the meat scandal was first made public, and wanted to d—n every person who intimated that the beef was not what it ought to have been.

HENRY WATTERSON has been very unsuccessfull in the past few months in his efforts to launch booms for candidates. He first tried to start a boom for Dewey for President but his effort was a humiliating failure. He then concluded to try his hand on local officers, and nominated Gen. Castleman for Governor of Kentucky, but his effort in that direction was ridiculed until the once mighty Henri dropped his head in despair, seeing that the people are determined that he shall continue to occupy his position in the rear ranks of the Democratic party" according to his voluntary promise.

THE mercury was down to zero in Burlington Tuesday morning.

BOUND IN A BUNDLE.

Dr. Talmage Chooses a Familiar Simile for a Text.

The Precious Bundle of Life and the Care It Should Receive—Things of Earthly and Heavenly Existence.

Under the familiar image of a bundle Dr. Talmage shows in this sermon the things which go to make up man's earthly and heavenly life; text, I Samuel 25:29. The soul of my Lord shall be bound in the bundle of life with the Lord thy God."

Beautiful Abigail, in her rhythmic plea for the rescue of her inebriate husband, who died within ten days, addressed David the warrior in the words of the text. She suggests that his life, physically and intellectually and spiritually, is a valuable package or bundle, divinely bound up and to be divinely protected.

That phrase "bundle of life" I heard many times in my father's family prayers. Family prayers, you know, have frequent repetitions, because day by day they acknowledge about the same blessings and sympathize with about the same misfortunes, and I do not know why those who lead at household devotions should seek variety of composition. That familiar prayer becomes the household liturgy. I would not give one of my old father's prayers for 50 elocutionary supplications. Again and again, in the morning and evening prayer, I heard the request that we might all be bound up in the bundle of life, but I did not know until a few days ago that the phrase was a Bible phrase.

Now, the more I think of it the better I like it. Bundle of life! It is such a simple and unpretending, yet expressive comparison. There is nothing like grandiloquence in the Scriptures. While there are many sublime passages in Holy Writ, there are more passages homely and drawing illustrations from common observation and everyday life. In Christ's great sermons you hear a hen stacking her chickens together and see the photographs of hypocrites with a sad countenance and hear of the grass of the field, and the black crows which our Heavenly Father feeds, and the salt that is worthless, and the precious stones flung under the feet of swine, and the shifting sand that lets down the house with a great crash and hear the comparison of the text, the most unpoetical thing we can think of—a bundle. Ordinarily it is something tossed about, something thrown under the table, something that suggests garrets or something on the shoulder of a poor wayfarer. But there are bundles of great value, bundles put up with great caution, bundles the loss of which means consternation and despair, and there have been bundles representing the worth of a kingdom.

During the last spell of cold weather there were bundles that attracted the attention and the plaudits of the high heavens—bundles of clothing on the way from comfortable homes to the door of the mission-room, and Christ stood in the snowbanks and said as the bundles passed: "Naked, and ye clothed me. Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Those bundles are multiplying. Blessings on those who pack them! Blessings on those who distribute them! Blessings on those who receive them!

With what beautiful aptitude did Abigail, in my text, speak of the bundle of life! Oh, what a precious bundle is life! Bundle of memories, bundle of hopes, bundle of ambitions, bundle of destinies! Once in awhile a man writes his autobiography, and it is of thrilling interest. The story of his birthplace, the story of his struggles, the story of his sufferings, the story of his triumphs! But if the autobiography of the most eventful life were well written it would make many chapters of adventure, of tragedy, of comedy, and there would not be an uninteresting step from cradle to grave.

Bundle of memories are you! Boyhood memories, with all its injustices from playmates, with all its games with ball and bat and kite and sled. Manhood memories, with all your struggles in starting—obstacles, oppositions, accidents, misfortunes, losses, successes. Memories of the first marriage you ever saw solemnized, of the first grave you ever saw opened, of the first mighty wrong you ever suffered, of the first victory you ever gained. Memory of the hour when you were affianced, memory of the first advent in your home, memory of the roseate cheek faded and of blue eyes closed in the last sleep, memory of anthem and of dirge, memory of great pain and of slow convalescence, memory of times when all things were against you, memory of prosperities that came in like the full tide of the sea, memories of a lifetime. What a bundle!

I lift that bundle to-day and unloose the cord that binds it, and for a moment you look in and see tears and smiles and laughter and groans and noondays and midnights of experience, and then I tie again the bundle with heartstrings that have some time vibrated with joy and anon been thrummed by fingers of woe.

Bundle of hopes and ambitions also is almost every man and woman, especially at the starting. What gains he will harvest, or what reputation he will achieve, or what bliss he will reach, or what love he will win. What makes college commencement day so entrancing to all of us as we see the students receive their diplomas and take up the garlands thrown to their feet. They will be Faradays in science; they will be Tennysons in poesy; they will be Willard Parkers in surgery; they will be Alexander Hamiltons in national finance; they will be Horace Greeleys in editorial chair; they will be Websters in the senate. Or she will be a Mary Lyon in educational realms, or a Frances Willard on reformatory platform, or a Helen Gould in military hospitals. Or she will make home life radiant with helpfulness and self-sacrifice and magnificent womanhood. Oh, what a bundle of garlands and scepters from which I would not take one sprig of mignonette nor extinguish one spark of brilliance. They who start life without bright hopes and inspiring ambitions might as well not start at all, for every step will be a failure. Father would I add to the bundle, and if I open it now it will not be because I wish to take anything from it, but that I may put into it more coronets and hosannas.

Bundle of faculties in every man and every woman! Power to think—to think of the past and through all the future, to think upward and higher than the highest pinnacle of Heaven, or to think downward until there is no lower abysm to fathom. Power to think wrong, power to think forever, for, once having begun to think, there shall be no terminus for that exercise, and eternity itself shall have no power to rid it halt. Faculties for love—filial love, conjugal love, paternal love, maternal love, love of country, love of God. Faculty of judgment, with scales so delicate and yet so mighty they can weigh arguments, weigh emotions, weigh words, weigh Heaven and hell. Faculty of will, that can climb mountains or tunnel them, wade seas or bridge them, accepting eternal enthronement or choosing everlasting exile. Oh, what it is to be a man! Oh, what it is to be a woman! Sublime and infinite bundle of faculties! The thought of it staggers me, swamps me, stuns me, bewilders me, overwhelms me. Oh, what a bundle of life Abigail of my text saw in David, and which we ought to see in every human, yet immortal, being!

Know, also, that this bundle of life was put up with great care. Any merchant and almost any faithful householder will tell you how much depends on the way a bundle is bound. The cord, or rope, must be strong enough to hold, the knot must be well tied. You know not what rough hands may toss the bundle. If not properly put together, though it may leave your hands in good order and symmetrical, before it reaches its proper destination it may be loosened in fragments for the winds to scatter or the rail train to lose.

Now, I have to tell you that this bundle of life is well put together—the body, the mind, the soul. Who but the omnipotent God could bind such a bundle? Anatomists, physiologists, physicists, logicians, metaphysicians, declare that we are fearfully and wonderfully made. That we are a bundle well put together I prove by the amount of journeying we can endure without damage, by the amount of rough handling we can survive, by the fact that the vast majority of us go through life without the loss of an eye, or the crippling of a limb, or the destruction of a single energy of body or faculty of mind. I subpoena for this trial that man in yonder view, 70 or 80 years of age, and ask him to testify that after all the storms and accidents and vicissitudes of a long life he still keeps his five senses, and, though all the lighthouses as old as he is have been reconstructed or new lanterns put in, he has in under his forehead the same two lanterns with which God started him, and, though the locomotives of 60 years ago were long ago sold for old iron, he has the original powers of locomotion in the limbs with which God started him, and, though all the electric wires that carried messages 25 years ago have been torn down, his nerves bring messages from all parts of his body as well as when God strung them 75 years ago. Was there ever such a complete bundle put together as the human being? What a factory! What an engine! What a mill race! What a lighthouse! What a locomotive! What an electric battery! What a furnace! What a masterpiece of the Lord God Almighty! Or, to employ the anticlimax and use the figure of the text, what a bundle!

Know also that this bundle of life is properly directed. Many a bundle has missed its way and disappeared because the address has dropped, and no one can find by examination for what city or town or neighborhood it was intended. All great carrying companies have so many misdirected packages that they appoint days of vendue to dispose of them. All intelligent people know the importance of having a valuable package plainly directed, the name of the one to whom it is to go plainly written. Baggage master and expressman ought to know at the first glance to whom to take it.

This bundle of life that Abigail, in my text, speaks of is plainly addressed. By Divine penmanship it is directed Heavenward. However long may be the earthly distance it travels, its destination is the eternal city of God on high. Every mile that it goes away from that direction is by some human or infernal fraud practiced against it. There are those who put it on some other track, who misplace it in some wrong conveyance, who send it off or send it back by some diabolical miscarriage. The value of that bundle is so well known all up and down the universe that there are a million dishonest hands which are trying to detain or divert it, or to forever stop its progress in the right direction.

Every human being is assailed at the start. Within an hour of the time when this bundle of life is made up the assault begins. First of all, there are the infantile disorders that threaten the body just launched upon earthly existence. Scarlet fevers and pneumonias, and diphtherias and influenzas, and the whole pack of epidemics surround the cradle and threaten its occupant, and was not more imperiled by the monsters of the Nile than every cradle is imperiled by ailments all devouring. In after years there are foes within and foes without. Evil appetite joined by outside allurements. Temptations that have utterly destroyed more people than now inhabit the earth. Gambling saloons and rummeries, and places where dissoluteness reigns supreme, enough in number to go round and round the earth. Discouragements, jealousies, revenges, malevolences, disappointments, swindles, arsons, conflagrations and cruelties which make continued existence of the human race a wonderment. Was any valuable bundle ever so imperiled as this bundle of life? Oh, look at the address and get that bundle going in the right way! "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and soul, and mind, and strength." Heaven with its 12 gates standing wide open with invitation. All the forces of the Godhead pledged for our heavenly arrival if we will do the right thing. All angeldom ready for our advance and guidance. All the lightnings of Heaven so many drawn swords for our protection. What a pity, what an everlasting pity, if this bundle of life, so well bound and so plainly directed, does not come out at the right station, but becomes a lost bundle, cast out amid the rubbish of the universe!

Know also that this bundle of life will be gladly received when it comes to the door of the mansion for which it was bound and plainly directed. With what alacrity and glee we await some package that has been foretold by letter; some holiday presentation; something that will enrich and ornament our home; some testimony of admiration and affection! With what glow of expectation we untie the knot and take off the cord that holds it together in safety, and with what glad exclamation we unroll the covering and see the gift or purchase in all its beauty of color and proportion. Well, what a day it will be when your precious bundle of life shall be opened in the house of "many mansions" amid saintly and angelic and Divine inspection! The bundle may be spotted with the marks of much exposure. It may bear inscription after inscription to tell through what ordeal it has passed. Perhaps splashed of wave and scorched of flame, but all it has within undamaged of the journey. And with what shouts of joy the bundle of life will be greeted by all the voices of the heavenly home circle!

In our anxiety at last to reach Heaven we are apt to lose sight of the glee or welcome that awaits us if we get in at all. We all have friends up there. They will somehow hear that we are coming. Such close and swift and constant communication is there between those uplands and these lowlands that we will not surprise them by sudden arrival. If loved ones on earth expect our coming visit and are at the depot with carriage to meet us, surely we will be met at the shining gate by old friends now sainted and kindred now glorified. If there were no angel of God to meet us and show us the palaces and guide us to our everlasting residence, these kindred would show us the way and point out the splendors and guide us to our celestial home, bowered and fountained and arched and illumined by a sun that never sets. Will it not be glorious, the going in and the settling down after all the moving about and upsettings of earthly experience? We will soon know all our neighbors, kingly, queenly, prophetic, apostolic, seraphic, archangelic. The precious bundle of life opened amid palaces and grand marches and acclamations. They will all be so glad we have got safely through. They saw us down here in the struggle. They saw us when we lost our way. They knew when we got off the right course. None of the 33 ships that were overdue at New York harbor in the storm of week before last was greeted so heartily by friends on the dock or the steam tugs that went out to meet them at Sandy Hook as we will be greeted in the heavenly world if by the pardoning and protecting grace of God we come to celestial wharfage. We shall have to tell them of the many wrecks that we have passed on the way across wild seas and amid Caribbean cyclones. It will be like our arrival some years ago from New Zealand at Sydney, people surprised that we got in at all, because we were two days late, and some of the ships expected had gone to the bottom, and we had passed derelicts and abandoned crafts all up and down that awful channel—our arrival in Heaven all the more rapturously welcomed because of the doubt as to whether we would ever get there at all.

Once there it will be found that the safety of that precious bundle of life was assured because it was bound up with the life of God in Jesus Christ. Heaven could not afford to have that bundle lost, because it had been said in regard to its transportation and safe arrival: "Kept by the power of God through faith unto complete salvation." The vernicity of the heavens is involved in its arrival. If God should fail to keep His promise to just one ransomed soul, the pillars of Jehovah's throne would fall, and the foundations of the eternal city would crumble, and infinite powers would dash down all the chalices and close all the banqueting halls, and the river of life would change its course sweeping everything with desolation and frost would blast all the gardens and immeasurable sickness slay the immortals, and the new Jerusalem become an abandoned city with no chariot wheel on the streets and no worshipers in the temple—a dead Pompeii of the skies, a buried Herculaneum of the heavens. Lest anyone should doubt the God who cannot lie smites His omnipotent hand on the side of His throne and takes affidavit, declaring: "As I live, said the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth." Oh, I cannot tell you how I feel about it, the thought is so glorious! Bound up with God. Bound up with infinite mercy. Bound up with infinite joy. Bound up with infinite purity. Bound up with infinite might. That thought is more beautiful and glorious than was the heroic Abigail, who at the foot of the crags offered it: "Bound in the bundle of life with the Lord thy God!"

AN ADVERTISING GENIUS.

Harry L. Kramer Invests a Thousand Dollars Every Day for Newspaper Advertising.

The young man whose portrait is here printed is a living, breathing illustration of the success which can be obtained by practical faith and persistent and judicious investment in newspaper advertising. Mr. Kramer only a few years ago, without capital, started in a most modest way, advertising in newspapers the merit of a tobacco inhibit cure, building up an enormous mail order business for that successful specific. His original line, "Don't tobacco spit and smoke your life away," through the medium of newspapers, became known throughout the English-speaking world, and brought in unprecedented results. The secret of his advertising method is "reinvestment." When Mr. Kramer ran his first little advertisement ten years ago his capital was less than one hundred dollars. He wrote the order on a rented typewriter operated by himself, and his advertising appropriation was five dollars. Three years ago he originated the now familiar Cascarets that "work while you sleep," and this year he employs over 200 people, including twenty stenographers and typewriters and a system of ten graphophones. His newspaper advertising investments are over $300,000 a year, and he is counted as one of the greatest practical, because successful, authorities on the science of advertising in the world. His delight is to see the working of the enormous advertising machine which he set in motion a few years ago, and his ambition is best illustrated by an expression made use of to a friend recently. He said: "My boy, we'll get rich when we make money faster than we can spend it for advertising."

H. L. KRAMER.

Besides his proprietary enterprises, Mr. Kramer scored another great business success in the Magno-Mud baths of Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind., where treatment for rheumatism is obtained. The place was a mere wilderness in the hills of Indiana a few years ago, but nature had provided the material, mud and lithia water, for the cure, and Mr. Kramer appreciated its possibilities at first sight. To-day there is at the Indiana Mineral Springs a $250,000 plant of hotels, bathhouses and cottages, electric-lighted, steam-heated, with beautiful park surroundings.

Mr. Kramer is only thirty-six years old and his energy and vitality have not yet reached their climax. Many leading business men of America have been glad to join in his enterprises, displaying the highest confidence in a great future which this man's remarkable advertising genius and capacity for work will bring forth.

His Denomination.

At the close of services one Sunday morning the pastor of a city church went down the aisle, as was his custom, to greet the strangers in the congregation. "You are not a member of our church," he said to one of them.

"No, sir," replied the stranger.

"Do you belong any denomination, may I ask?"

"Well," responded the other, hesitatingly, "I'm what you might call a submerged Presbyterian."

"How is that?"

"I was brought up a Presbyterian, my wife is a Methodist, my eldest daughter is a Baptist, my son is the organist at a Universalist church, my second daughter sings in an Episcopal choir, and my youngest goes to a Congregational Sunday school."

"But you contribute, doubtless, to some one church?"

"Yes, I contribute to all of them. That is partly what submerges me."—Youth's Companion.

Man's Expenditures in a Lifetime.

A resident of Kent, Md., who has kept careful account of his expenditures, calculates that during the 84 years of his life he has consumed 28,560 loaves of bread, at 3 cents per pound, value, $856.80; 26,880 pounds of meat, at 5 cents, $1,340; 7,728 pounds of vegetables, eggs, fish, etc., at 2 cents, $154.56; and 11,760 gallons of water, tea, coffee, beer, wine, etc., at an average cost of 1 cent per gallon, $117.60; total, $2,468.96. He also figures that of the 30,660 days of his life 10,080 have been spent in sleep, 10,920 in work and 9,760 in eating and pleasure seeking.—Chicago Chronicle.

Europe's international telephone system is being rapidly extended. Within a few weeks all Swiss cities have been connected with Frankfort, and with Vienna they will have connection as soon as the distance from Munich to that city shall have been included in the circuit.

M'KINLEY TAKES A DROP.

The Imperialistic Administration Is Beginning to Fiddle a Second Term Tune.

The president, who swore he never would consent, has at least consented to something less than an increase of the standing army to 100,000 men. He has, in fact, consented to something not very different from the Cockrell bill, which was tendered to him some time ago as a sort of democratic ultimatum. The bill agreed upon provides that the regular army may be kept up to the maximum of 62,000 men, now authorized by law, until July 1, 1901, or for about two years and four months from the present time. It also authorizes the president to raise 35,000 men for volunteer service if necessary to serve for the same length of time if not sooner discharged. These additional troops may be raised either at home or in the subject provinces. In the discretion of the president, but they are to serve only in the provinces. Unless otherwise ordered by congress in the meantime, the army will be reduced to 27,000 men July 1, 1901.

When Mr. McKinley returned to Washington after communing with the Home Market club in Boston, he was very stiff on the army question. He told a body of republican leaders of the two houses who called to see him on the subject, that he deemed it their duty to hold out for a standing army of 100,000, and that he would much rather call the new congress together in extra session than accept anything less.

What has happened to bring about so great a change of mind, amounting almost to a complete surrender to the democrats? It is explained that party leaders have been laboring with him, and have succeeded in convincing him that it would be dangerous to convene the new congress in extra session. They have convinced him that it would be dangerous because the new congress would make haste to vote away many millions of money for shipping bounties, canal-digging and other purposes, and make it evident to the country that, so far from reducing the war taxes, it would be necessary to increase them, or else issue more bonds to get the money needed for the execution of the various numbers on the imperial programme.

The shrewd republican politicians are alarmed at the prospect. They think it would be disastrous to the party to have it discovered by the people before the next presidential election that the new departure is going to fasten more than the so-called war taxes upon them as a permanent burden. Accordingly, we are told by the correspondent of unimperialistic paper that "permanent reorganization of the army will be provided for by the next congress, but it is quite possible that it will be deferred until the second session, so that it will not become a campaign issue."

It was pretty plain that on his return from Boston to the capital the president wanted a good excuse for calling an extra session, and had no fear of the effect upon his party or his own prospects of either the standing army bill, or the various bills to deplete the treasury. He evidently was inhaste to have these measures put through, and the country thoroughly committed to the entire costly programme while the popular blood was up and the imperial fit was on.

But other politicians have been holding their ears to the ground, and they have heard some things that Mr. McKinley has not heard. They have reported to him that it will not be safe to let the people know all about the cost of the glorious new policy of mixing in "world politics" until he is securely booked for four years more in the white house. Then, during the second session of the incoming congress, will be the time to increase the standing army, and turn loose the various syndicates that are so impatient to get at the public treasury.

These politicians seem to have succeeded in convincing Mr. McKinley that it will not be safe for him or his party to let the people know any more about their designs until after the votes have been counted a year from next November. It will nearly break the hearts of Hanna, McKinley & Co. to wait so long, but they will bear up as well as may be, consoling themselves with the reflection that all things come to those who wait, while the impatient are very likely to frighten the game before they get within range.—Chicago Chronicle.

Vindication of the Platform.

I want to call your attention to some of the events which have been vindicating the position taken in the Chicago platform. Do you remember that in that platform we declared a preference for an income tax? I never could understand how any person who considered the subject could oppose it, because if he understands the situation he knows that he is paying now a larger proportion than he should of the expenses of the federal government. I could not understand why a rich man could oppose it, because I have never yet expressed so poor an opinion of a rich man as to make me believe of him that he would lay upon the shoulders of poor men the burdens that he ought to be willing to bear for the good of his country. And when I found the rich opposing the income tax I attributed it to the fact that they did not fully understand the injustice which their acts were perpetrating upon those less able to support the government than themselves. When we advocated the income tax a great many people did not seem to appreciate its importance, but events have shown us that our position was right, and there are more people believing in the income tax to-day than there were a little more than two years ago, when you met in this hall; and if a republican tells you that the Chicago platform is dead, you ask him whether the income tax is not stronger to-day than when the Chicago platform was written.—From W. J. Bryan's Grand Rapids Speech.

THE ISSUE FOR NEXT YEAR.

Gold Standard Democrats Will Have to Vote for a Republican Again.

The views of Senator J. K. Jones, chairman of the national democratic executive committee, are simply in the line of national development.

The great issue before the people of any country is that of the greatest internal importance. In the shrinkage of values which have taken place in this country during the last 20 years the people have recognized the hand of adverse financial legislation. According as the currents of money supply were cut off, paralysis spread into every line of business, first attacking the productive industries and the farm, and finally destroying the prosperity of cities and large financial institutions. Spurts of prosperity have come to the country between times, owing to the wonderfully recuperative character of our country, but still, in spite of abundant nature and intense individual industry, no permanent prosperity has come.

The political parties which started out handicapped by the leadership of Wall street on both sides have finally taken position as to what the remedy must be. The republican party, after a period of dodging under the cover of international agreement, has finally drifted away into the extreme gold standard policy. The democratic party, having effectually shaken off the "old men of the sea," who were weighting it down, has declared for a wholesale and thorough financial reform, which can only be brought about by a return to the money of the constitution. Notwithstanding the intrenchments of the money power within its ranks, it succeeded in ousting them out and polling nearly 7,000,000 votes.

That such a fight as this should have been waged, with the result of a straetling so large a vote, is evidence of too strong a position to be surrendered at the bidding of the enemy, or in consequence of bogus issues set up by the enemy, and is not for one moment to be considered. The democratic party, in national convention, has declared its faith, which has been indorsed by a larger vote than was ever cast for a democratic issue before. When the people meet again, in national convention they will meet with a full knowledge of their strength and of the righteousness of their cause, and it is safe to say that they will meet the enemy in the campaign of 1900 on the same ground upon which they were met in 1896, and that they will win.

Chairman Jones, therefore, in making the statement which he does, does not need the gift of prophecy for so declaring, because the issues are now so fixed as to be beyond the power of any man to change them. Those who want the gold standard will have to vote for the republican nominee to get it, while the democratic platform will stand as already written.—Atlanta Constitution.

COMING GENERATIONS.

Questions Which Will Naturally Occur to Thinkers a Few Years Hence.

Why did the industrial classes allow themselves to be exploited?

By what process were the laboring classes kept in ignorance of their condition so long?

Did Americans think a country ruled by plutocracy was a government of the people?

Why did the succeeding generations of America ignore the objects for which a preceding one fought—independence, life and liberty?

Why did they not make the declaration of independence a practical fact and realize the possible blessings of self-government?

Why were they so interested in the welfare of Cubans and Armenians and so blind to the iniquities and injustice practiced in America?

Why were the working classes so ungrateful to those among them who championed their cause?

Why did the working classes elect capitalists and professional office seekers to represent them in legislative bodies?

What kept the industrial classes so ignorant of the science of political economy in the schools?

Why did the working people vote such magnificent salaries to their representatives in office and accept such a pittance for their own services?

Was the condition of the wage slave better than the condition of the chattel slave?

How did the millions of unemployed, those in a condition of enforced idleness, live?

Did the poor compete among themselves (for places to work) by offering to work for less wages than others received?—Clarence C. Allen.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

——The gist of the report of Mr. McKinley's late war inquiry board was: "There was very bad management, but the managers were not to blame."—St. Louis Republic.

——It is the opinion of the war investigators that the war department lacked the requisite grasp during the war with Spain. Still, the head of it has somehow managed to hold on ever since. There are grasps and grasps, it would seem.—Boston Hernid.

——President McKinley ascribes our present perplexities in the Philippines to Providence. He must be a lineal descendant of those plausible folk of an earlier time who always found it convenient and soothing to attribute everything trying and disappointing to "speerits." A short stroll in memory's aisles will call up some things that do not entirely confirm the chief executive's explanation of the unforeseen extending of the scope of the war, and of the painful developments of the present month in the distant Philippines.—Detroit Free Press.

FREE TO MILLIONS OF SUFFERERS.

The New Cure for Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid Troubles.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of Swamp-Root, the great Kidney remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, Dr. Kilmer, and has truly wonderful powers in curing kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid diseases.

Kidney trouble is responsible for more sickness and sudden deaths than any other disease, and is so deceptive that thousands have it without knowing it.

Thousands owe their health and even life to Swamp-Root, and thousands more who to-day think themselves beyond help, can be made well by the use of this great remedy.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at drug-stores.

JIMMY GOT HIS RAISE.

His Troubles with a Lady Customer Caused His Butcher Boss to Come Down.

"I've got to have my pay raised," announced the Clark street butcher's boy in a gentle but decided tone. "It's got to be raised."

The butcher smiled indulgently and replied: "Well, Jimmie, of course I'm always willin' to do the right thing, but times in this business was better once an' my shop is small. Still, if I can do anything—"

"It's over that Mrs. Justmarried," complained Jimmie. "I get along all right with everybody else but her—well, say, I told you how she wanted the salted mackerel sent up with 'only a pinch of salt.'"

"Yes."

"And about that order of 'one dozen lamb chops, freshly laid,' and the pound of 'boneless sausage.'"

"Yes."

"Well, to-day happened the worst yet. She's got a Mexican lady stopping with her, and I guess the other women in that flat have been stringin' her to get up a Mexican dinner, for to-day she sailed in high an' mighty as you please, and she says: 'You may send up, James, six Spanish omelettes cut thick and with the bones broken. And, let me see—yes, one pint of whipped chili colorow, and eight tamales dressed and ready for the oven. Pick out the plumpest tamales you have in the yard and have them killed and dressed before noon.'

"Say, won't that Mexican lady have a hot time? How can I go up there and explain matters unless—"

"I guess I can give you 50 cents more a week, Jimmie," said the butcher.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"So your poodle ran away, Miss Chie?" "Yes. I'm very sorry now I didn't have a muff made out of him—as Jack wanted me to."—Puck.

GOVERNOR M'CORD

Recommends Pe-ru-na to All Catarrh Victims.

HON. M. H. M'CORD.

Hon. Myron H. McCord, Ex-Governor of New Mexico, in a letter to Dr. Hartman, from Washington, D. C., says:

Gentlemen—At the suggestion of a friend I was advised to use Pe-ru-na for catarrh, and after using one bottle I began to feel better in every way. It helped me in many respects. I was troubled with colds, coughs, sore throat, etc., but as soon as I had taken your medicine I began to improve and soon got well. I take pleasure in recommending your great remedy to all who are afflicted with catarrh.—M. H. McCord.

Thousands of cases of chronic catarrh have been cured by Pe-ru-na during the past winter. In spite of changeable weather, in spite of the natural setbacks from catching cold, and confinement to illy-ventilated rooms, the great catarrh remedy—Pe-ru-na—has effected these cures. But now spring is here. The days are longer, the sun is warmer, and the blizzard is gone for another year. This presents a much more favorable opportunity for the permanent cure of chronic catarrh, especially old, stubborn cases. Now is the time to begin treatment. Other things being equal, one month's treatment in the spring is worth two months' treatment during the inclement weather of winter. Insist upon having Pe-ru-na. There are no successful substitutes for this remedy. Send to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for a free catarrh book.

FRILLS OF FASHION.

Fresh Novelties in Ladies' Costumes for the Up-to-Date Dresser.

Novelties in ribbons are added each week to those already shown, and now we have embroidered ribbons; white ribbon with bright red, green-stemmed cherries scattered all over it; ribbons scalloped on one edge with a brocaded feather design outlining the scallops in a two-inch band; ribbons with plumed gauze edges, and narrow striped ribbons of all kinds and colors gathered into little frills for trimming summer gowns.

Chiffonette, which resembles thin liberty satin in texture and gloss, is one of the pretty dress materials which tempt the shopper. It is figured in two or three colors or quite plain, in pretty, light shades, relieved only by the fine cords which stripe them up and down.

A stunning muff to carry with your black cloth gown is made of black chiffon, shirred into tucks, and white Persian lamb. The chiffon forms the wide band around the center and the fur is the lining which extends over the edge in two white bands at the ends.

Round waists and Eton jackets of fur are worn with cloth skirts.

Another [illegible] is the short coat bodice and the round waist of colored velvet to wear with cloth skirts, making a very dressy and useful theater gown.

The prevailing tendency in skirts just at the moment is to abolish seams as nearly as possible. One new model has no seam in the back, and is carried out in cloth with silk introduced at each side in panels, or a sort of stole end effect.

The best-dressed, most-up-to-date women have discarded jewelry almost entirely for day wear, but gems of all kinds and grades of magnificence glitter in profusion in the evening.

Drap decnir is one name for the new dull-finished cloth which is coming in to fill the place of faced cloths.

Street jackets for the coming season are either buttoned close down the front or turned back in revers to the waist line, or made double breasted, fastened from the shoulder down on the left side.

Fancy handkerchiefs with colored hemstitched borders and colored embroidery are revived again.

A high-necked lace bolero cut with little epaulettes over the shoulders, the lace forming scallops on the edge, is a pretty addition to a white chiffon bodice made with elbow sleeves.

Bengaline in any pretty color is very popular for seperate waists, but if you want the smartest thing get white and make it with a narrow round yoke of lace.

A novelty in skating gowns is made entirely of black carmeni with rosettes of rose-colored velvet on the bodice to brighten the effect.—N. Y. Sun.

WINTER WASHING.

Some Points About the Work Which Will Be of Value to Housewives.

Washing, which is usually the heaviest work of the household, is especially heavy and difficult to manage in winter. Where there is a place to dry the clothes in the house, as there often is to-day in well-built houses, the trouble of drying the clothes is materially mitigated. The old-fashioned idea that freezing clothes improved them is not so often heard of now as it once was. Cotton goods are not materially injured by being handled while frozen, but linen and woolen goods are cracked and the fibers are stretched by being folded or handled while frozen, or by whipping about on the line. It is safer and better to dry linen and woolen clothes indoors in winter. Unsually cotton goods must be finally dried indoors in winter by some means, and it is very inconvenient where there is no large room which can be used for this purpose. Where the kitchen is large and somewhat apart from the main living rooms of the house clothes can be dried there at night from lines arranged for the purpose. It is a dangerous thing on account of the health of the household to use this room as a drying-room during the daytime, though it is often done. It should only be used in this way when it can be shut up at night and is apart from the vicinity of the sleeping-rooms, so that by no accident can the dampness that arises penterate to them.

The drying of clothes is one of the most serious questions of washing day in winter. Next to this, or more important where there is an irregular supply of water for washing, is the question of the water. It is sometimes difficult to get soft water in winter. In such a case a little soda, ammonia or borax must be used to soften the water. The prejudice against chemicels is giving way, and the most careful housekeepers now use them with intelligence, so that they do not do the least injury. Where the water is muddy a little washing soda thoroughly dissolved and stirred in the water will cause it to clear itself, the mud settling to the bottom. The clear water may then be dipped off. It requires almost twice as much soap to wash clothes in hard as in soft water.—N. Y. Tribune.

Fricasseed Oysters.

Take a slice of raw ham—not smoked—cut in very thin slices and put into a saucepan with two-thirds pint of veal or chicken broth, the liquor from one quart oysters, one small onion, a little chopped parsley, sweet marjoram and pepper. Simmer for 20 minutes and skim well. In one-third cupful of milk mix one tablespoonful constarch, turn into hot liquor and add the oysters with one ounce of butter and a little salt. Boil ten minutes, remove oysters to a deep dish and stir into the broth one egg well beaten. Pour broth over the oysters and serve at once.—Good Housekeeping.

SIX MEN IN LOVE.

And All with a Young Lady Who Wrote Circular Love Letters.

Yes, people can come close to each other without scraping in a big city. I stumbled onto a case the other day. A few months ago I was down the trapdoor of somebody's confidence. Men don't confide very often, but when they do they make a landside of it.

This one did. He told me of a poor little Columbus girl who was hopelessly in love with him. Unrequited love is such a bid for sympathy, you know, and in this case it seemed so dreadfully pathetic. Poor little thing! If she could only care for some one else! But then she couldn't, he knew. He was worried, in a lofty, condescending kind of way. He hated to think that he must wreck a life on the shore of love—but then he could not care for her—for, well, she cared too much for him, you know.

Before the end of the month I was up to the ears in confidence! Six unfortunate fellows, neither of whom knew the other, were beloved by six unfortunate girls—with all of the love emaanating from the female side.

I had begun to fear for the sense of the sex, when one day I called in on a lively little friend of mine in a big High street office building, and found her writing letters. "Six of them—all alike, except for the addresses," said she.

"Circular letters?" I asked.

"Yes, circular love letters," she laughed, shoving the addresses.

"Marjorie! you don't mean that you are the composite young woman in love with these six men?"

"Oh, yes, I am, and it's great fun, too. And you ought to see the way they all believe it! Talk about flattering a woman! Why, they can't be touched compared to a man. Why, it has never occurred to one of them that possibly I might not mean it! Oh, yes, I'm an object of pity, all right. Let's see—I'm to commit suicide twice, go into two runneries and—well, die of six broken hearts some way. Oh, I'm in an awful shape.

"Yes, it is rather extravagant entertainment, but then, you know, I'm understudying a part at the theater that just needs such practice."—Ohio State Journal.

Our Naval Station at San Juan.

The new United States naval station to be located at San Juan, Porto Rico, will be of the utmost importance to this country as the key to the situation when the Nicaragua canal is constructed. The key to good health is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It guards the digestive organs from attacks of indigestion, biliousness and constipation, just the same as the new naval station at San Juan will ward off attacks upon this country by foreign foes.

DESPONDENT WOMEN

THE constantly recurring monthly suffering gives women the blues!

How hopeless the future appears, month after month the same siege with menstrual pain!

Comparatively few women understand that excessive pain indicates ill-health, or some serious derangement of the feminine organs.

A million women have been helped by Mrs. Pinkham. Read what two of them say.

MRS. LIZZIE COLEMAN, of Wayland, N. Y., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For years I suffered with paintul menstruation and falling of womb. The bearing-down pains in my back and hips were dreadful. I could not stand for more than five minutes at a time when menstruation began. But thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, my sufferings are now a thing of the past. I shall gladly recommend your medicines to all my friends."

MISS C. D. MORRIS, 3 Louisburg Square, Boston, Mass., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me wonderfully. I was troubled with headache, backache and that weak and tired feeling. I cannot say enough in praise of your medicine for it has done me so much good. I shall recommend it to all my friends who suffer."

Despondency is a disease. Nervousness and snappishness come with it. Will power won't overcome it. The feminine organs are connected by nerves with the brain and all parts of the body. These organs must be healthy or the mind is not healthy.

All low-spirited or suffering women may write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and receive her advice free of charge. Don't wait until your life is wrecked by neglect and suffering. Get advice in time.

POKER PARLANCE.

A Sunday School Boy Whose Education Included a Knowledge of Good Pairs.

The mixed metaphor of a South side Sunday school teacher and the precociousness of a youngster of seven in the juvenile class, who had evidently been listening to some fatherly club stories not intended for his ears, combined to disrupt the Bible services temporarily a couple of weeks ago. Recently the good pastor of the church received a call to another congregation, and in referring to this the young woman who sees to the spiritual growth of the youngest charges of the church dwelt at some length on the righteousness, faith and upright life of the pastor who had been so highly honored. She impressed her young hearers with the "faithfulness to duty" that had characterized the career of the beloved minister, and was listened to with devout and deep attention. Believing this lesson had effectively penetrated the young minds the teacher asked:

"And now who can tell me the one thing that our pastor held so dear that he should receive this call?"

After an interval of silence, during which the members of the small set looked about somewhat uneasily, a shrill voice came from the end of a row, where its owner and his knickerbocker suit were curled up comfortably against the cushions:

"I know."

"Well, Bobby?"

"Aces."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Neighborhood News.

Maple Grove.

Frank Crisler will move to Bromley.

Last Tuesday Miss Ethel Souther gave a birthday party. It was well attended.

As Henry Gerjin was returning from Limaburg last Mouday, he got mudbound.

Mr. Courtney has moved to Frank Hossman's place; Chriss Tupman, to Mrs. Fred Prable's farm, and Elwood Southern and sister, to John W. Popham's.

There appears to have been a misunderstanding in this district, and two schools are the result: Miss Lucy Kirtley teaching at the J. H. Otten house, and Miss Lucy Clayton at the Rucker school house.

Utzinger.

Scott Chambers and George Kreylich each lost a valuable cow last week.

The smiling faces of Bert Gaines and Jas. A. Duncan, of Burlington, were seen on our streets last week.

Mrs. Dudley Rouse and Mrs. Harry Blythe, of Burlington, were visiting relatives here Thursday last.

Lewis Sater Gaines has returned from a two years' sojourn in Missouri. Lewis says there is no place like old Kentucky.

William Stephens is moving to the farm he purchased from J. W. Berkshire, near Petersburg. He will be missed here and we wish him success.

I failed to notice an answer either to the quilt or apple problem in last week's paper. We calculate that there are 59,840 stitches in the quilt and that B gets 20 bushels more apples than A.

Limaburg.

Very little farm work has been done.

Wilson Delph had a wood-sawing on Monday.

Jacob W Rouse has made 10 gallons of maple molasses.

Eddie Riggs, of Bromley, will move on Adam Heist's farm.

Born, to Robt. Brown and wife, on the 1st inst., a flue girl.

L. S. Beemon and J. M. Utz captured a large ground hog, Saturday.

Abe Davis has moved into Jno. Rucker's house near Ft. Pleasant church.

The infant daughter of Bart Aylor has been very sick for a week.

Bruce Clore, of Burlington, spent Saturday night with his uncle, Charles Clore.

A good attendance was at prayer meeting, notwithstanding the rainy evening.

Mrs. James Riddell, daughter and son, were visiting Mrs. Bullock, one day last week.

Henry Quick, one of our geuial carpenters, has an abundance of work in his shop, we are told.

Mrs. Frank Clayton has been very ill for several weeks. Her health has been falling her since early autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hossman were in the city, one day last week, making purchases and calling on relatives.

Frank Ernst, who is attending school in Cincinnati, came home Friday night. Frank is a bright little pupil, and we wish him success.

Miss Grace Bullock was the pleasant guest of Miss Carrie Clore, Thursday and Friday nights. Miss Clara Hossman was also the latter's guest Friday night.

Miss Lucy Clayton came home from Verona Saturday, her school there having closed. She will begin a spring school at the Riddell school house, Monday.

Our handsome tailor, James Bullock, can scarcely suppress the tears from flowing from morn till night. Cause—Well, ask him, and if he wout tell his mother will.

We hope there will be no more dances, soon, for if there is so many of our popular young men will have to remain at home "on account of their love for that pitiful sum of 25c." So say the "Speckled potatoes."

Miss Clara Hoseman leaves us this week to reside with her cousin, Mrs. Emma Schraem, of Idville, Ohio. We will miss her from our social circle and our school. May peace and happiness go with her, and may Jesus ever be her guide, is the wish of her friends.

Chester, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Rouse, was brought here for interment, last Thursday. Another example of, "In the midst of life there is death." If we all were as pure as a little child when it takes its flight to the Savior's arms we would be certain of our entering the Father's kingdom. Jesus said, "Suffer little children to come unto me for of such is the kingdom of God," and he will fulfill his saying. May this bereaved mother and father know that their little one is "Asleep in the arms of Jesus," to be awakened on the judgment morn.

Erlanger.
